RULE BY DECREE CALLED PERIL TO CONSTITUTION

Vandenberg Speaks on Anniversary.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan last night denounced government by executive decree. He called it a progressive invasion of the American system of checks and balances which alone can preserve the liberty of the American people.

The senator was the principal speaker before 5,000 Chicagoans who commemorated the 151st anniversary of the adoption of the constitution. They filled every seat in the auditorium of the Civic Opera house.

Drama of Fight for Liberty.

Chicago's observance of the historic occasion came to a climax in a dramatic pageant, called "Human Rights." With simple but impressive dignity the actors unfolded the drama of humanity's fight for liberty, in terms of the great heroes, from Socrates to George Washington who led the battle.

Senator Vandenberg opened his address with a discussion of the possibilities in government philosophy that the nation might face. His remarks frequently were interrupted by prolonged applause and cheers.

Hits Communism, Fascism.

"We must be realistic," said the senior senator from Michigan, "if this anniversary is to be more than futile perspiration. The spirit of the constitution is threatened tonight in our own United States. Let me tell you precisely and bluntly what I mean.

"I could have in mind an incipient Fascist movement which would like to chain our free people to a collectivist state, and to the dictatorship of what are conceitedly deemed our better minds. If there be such, I condemn it as hostile to the spirit of the constitution.

"I could have in mind an incipient communist movement, which would like to deliver us, by force, to an atheistic dictatorship of the so-called proletariat, with death decreed to all industrial privileges and rights. If there be such, I condemn it as hostile to the spirit of the constitution.

Another More Serious Hazard.

"But I could also have in mind a far more subtle hazard—namely, a progressive invasion of the constitution's checks and balances, a gradual absorption of the powers of congress and the judiciary into government by executive decree.

"And if there be such, I would be untrue to my responsibilities at this vital moment, and upon this historic occasion, if I did not equally condemn it as hostile to the spirit of the constitution.

"Indeed, the more plausible and the more benevolent and the more direct such a trend may be, no matter how nobly meditated, the greater is its threat and danger."

Senator Vandenberg, in his address, pointed out that the drafters of the constitution, knowing that centralization leads to despotism, and too much decentralization leads to anarchy, "contrived an effective middle formula."

Our Hope for Democracy.

This permitted the government to control the people, but also required the government to control itself.

"This blessing," he declared, "was achieved by creating three coördinate but independent departments—executive, legislative, and judicial.

"Therein lies the strength and the protection and the sole hope for the preservation of our democracy, our republican institutions, and our liberties.

"All three," the senator continued, "work together for the common good; but each of the three checks the other, if it ever seeks to expand its power beyond the limits fixed by the people in their constitution.

"Only the people have a right to change those indispensable rights—and only by constitutional amendment. Any attempt to change them otherwise is a direct and sinister threat to the spirit and the genius of the constitution—a direct and sinister threat, no matter what its immediate innocence, to the personal liberties

TREE SURGEON BITES WAY THROUGH PEARS AND PLUMS INTO CELL

Charles Verville, a tree surgeon, has a contract to remove the trees from the parkway along Irving Park road in order that it may be widened between Crawford and Central avenues. Yesterday his eight employés were busy on the job.

Verville, who lives at 3457 North Paulina street, had a fine vantage point from which to direct them. He stood in front of Ben Okum's fruit store at 4202 Irving Park road. And his procedure, said Okum, was this: A shouted command to his men; then a swig from his liquor bottle, washed down by a plum, pear, or grape filched from Okum's sidewalk baskets.

Okum protested. Verville said "haw" and continued munching fruit. This went on until Policemen Martin Martensen and Edward Heffernan heeded Okum's complaints and tossed Verville into the Albany Park station—without fruit, liquor, or his assistant tree surgeons.

EXPECT CHICAGO WILL BE LEGION HOST NEXT YEAR

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Chicago—unless there is a major upset—will be host to the 1939 American Legion national convention. This became known tonight as the vanguard of 100,000 Legion members arrived for the first session of the 1938 convention which opens here tomorrow.

Last May, when cities of America were requested to present their statements of ability to house the delegates, pay their expenses and serve efficiently as host to the Legion, Chicago alone stepped forward, it was learned today.

So Chicago, which has posted a $50,000 cash bond of good faith in anticipation of the next—twenty-first—convention, will receive the Legion. No other city can apply at this late date, it was learned.

Lists Costs of Vote Race: 2 Teeth and Hank of Hair

Phoenix, Ariz., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Andrew Bettey of Nogales, unsuccessful Democratic gubernatorial candidate, filed a campaign expense statement listing the "loss of three months' sleep thinking about the election" and "two front teeth and a lot of hair in a personal encounter with one of my opponents' supporters."

One Alabama County G.O.P. for 75 Years

TENNESSEE
BIRMINGHAM
MONTGOMERY
PENSACOLA
GULF OF MEXICO

G. O. P. Stronghold in Dixie.

Double Springs, Ala., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Alabama Republicans today opened their fall campaign here in the county seat of Winston county which for seventy-five years has been a Republican stronghold in the heart of Democratic Dixie land. Dewey Short, Missouri's only Republican congressman, was the principal speaker.

T. J. Kennamer, Republican national committeeman for Alabama, and Judge W. L. Longshorre, Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, welcomed Short to Winston county and accompanied him tonight to Birmingham.

Winston county, which has a population of 15,596, all of whom except eighty-three are white, was chosen for the opening of the Republican campaign because it was the only one of a half dozen normally Republican northern Alabama counties that kept its Republican faith in 1936. Winston county gave Alfred M. Landon a majority of 153 votes over President Roosevelt, who carried the county by one vote in 1932.

Many Counties Go for Hoover.

Winston and four other northern counties went Republican in 1924 when John W. Davis ran against Calvin Coolidge and in 1928 when Alfred E. Smith ran against Hoover, Winston and more than twenty other counties voted Republican.

Winston county's pride in its Republicanism dates from July 4, 1861, when a small group of citizens rallied in a tavern here and voted to secede from Alabama because the state had voted to secede from the union. They declared Winston county a free state and since have maintained that attitude. With few exceptions Republicans always have been elected to county offices and all present officers are Republicans.

Back to Andrew Jackson.

Adherence of the county to Republicanism is, strangely, an Andrew Jackson tradition. Jackson was the hero of the southern upland folk because he had led them successfully against the Indians and against the British in the war of 1812. When the war was over many of his soldiers settled in northern Alabama and forever after accepted his word on national subjects as law. In 1832 when Jackson, a Democrat, as president of the United States, kept South Carolina from seceding from the Union by threatening the use of armed force, his followers in these northern counties cheered his determination to save the union.

The people of these upland counties never were slaveholders and they refused to join the secession movement in 1861 after the election of Abraham Lincoln.

Refuse to Accept Secession.

When the Alabama secession convention met in Montgomery Jan. 7, 1861, the leaders were surprised to find a strong Union sentiment among delegates from the northern counties of the state. Nicholas Davis of Huntville, Madison county, told the convention northern Alabama would not abide by the secession decision. He and his mountain neighbors were denounced on the convention floor as traitors. One secessionist suggested that the northern counties be coerced into submission.

Davis replied that when secessionists attempted to coerce his people that would be met with bayonets. In the civil war Winston county, along with Morgan and Madison counties, adjacent on the northeast, sent hundreds of soldiers for the Union armies.

When the reconstruction period began in 1866 these southern Union soldiers returned to their mountain homes and thus Republicanism still flourishes today in Winston county and other parts of northern Alabama.

HARD WORKING HAT CLEANER RUBS TOO HARD, STARTS FIRE

The unidentified colored man who cleans hats in Charles Salzone's hat and shoe shop at 3208 West 63d street was listed in the fire department records last night as Chicago's hardest working hat cleaner. He was taking the spots off a hat with a cleaning fluid. He rubbed the felt so hard he caused a friction spark. The spark ignited the fluid. Result: A fire that did $500 damage.

HENLEIN FORMS ARMY OF SUDETENS IN GERMANY UNDER ORDER OF HITLER

Nazi Troops Active Along Border; Hint at Sudden Coup.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 17.—Konrad Henlein, outlawed leader of the Sudeten German party in Czechoslovakia, today announced the formation of a private army of Sudeten Germans "to fight for the liberation of their homeland."

The army, to be known as the "Sudeten German Free Corps," will be formed in the Sudeten region of Czechoslovakia, where the German minority is clamoring for self-rule, and on German soil along the Czech frontier.

Announcement that the "free corps" will be recruited on German soil confirmed rumors that many of the 27,000 Czech Nazis who have fled to Germany recently were allowed to retain their weapons or are being given new equipment.

Nazi Troops Moving.

When the "free corps" will receive orders to march and who will be its leaders was kept a secret. Nazi officials here insist that no action will be taken while the Anglo-German negotiations over Czechoslovakia are still pending.

Nevertheless there is tremendous activity along Germany's eastern border. For three hours foreigners motoring from Munich to Leipzig today traveled alongside of infantry and artillery of the "Schutz Staffel emergency troops." These men, who wear field gray uniforms, are fully trained soldiers who serve for longer periods than do soldiers of the regular army.

French observers believe the Schutz Staffel troops may join up with the Sudeten German volunteers. It will be very difficult to distinguish between the Sudeten volunteers and their Schutz Staffel friends should there be an invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Would Give France an Alibi.

This point is of vital interest to the French and English because, under the terms of France's alliance with Czechoslovakia, the French must help her if she is attacked by another nation. But does this obligation to fight still apply if Czech citizens revolt and want to secede from their own government? The Sudeten Germans are Czech citizens. German officials hope the French and English legal experts will take the view that the French are not compelled to help their ally under these conditions.

An ominous sign that Germany may soon act was seen in an announcement that all German ships on the Elbe river have been ordered to stop at the German frontier and no longer navigate on the Czech side. This is a serious blow to Czech trade. The Elbe is an important exit for Czech exports. Under the Versailles treaty Czechoslovakia has a free port in Hamburg.

Hitler Pulls the Strings.

Henlein's announcement of the formation of the "Free Corps" was made in a proclamation upon orders of Reichsfuehrer Hitler. Hitler intrusted the proclamation and the order to issue it to Karl Hermann Frank, Sudeten German deputy in the Czech parliament, who relayed it to Henlein. The proclamation was dated at Asch, Czechoslovakia, although it is not known if Henlein is there. He has been in hiding since the Czech government issued an order for his arrest earlier in the week on charges of treason.

"We, therefore, now assume for ourselves emergency rights which nations have taken at all times by taking to arms and organizing a 'Sudeten German Free Corps.'"

Recruiting Already Begun.

Recruiting began immediately. All Sudeten German men under 35 years of age in refugee camps on the German side of the border were asked:

"Would you be willing to fight to free your homeland?"

PREMIERS STUDY SCHEME TO CARVE CZECHOSLOVAKIA

BULLETIN.

LONDON, Sept. 18 (Sunday).—(AP)—Premier Edouard Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet arrived at Croydon airdrome at 9:26 a. m. (3:26 a. m., Chicago time) today to confer with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain on the European crisis. They were greeted by Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax and prepared to go immediately to the prime minister's home at 10 Downing street to discuss Reichsfuehrer Hitler's peace terms.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 17.—British and French cabinet ministers in a conference to be held here tomorrow will decide whether they will accept Reichsfuehrer Hitler's demand that all parts of Sudetenland which have more than 50 per cent German population are to be carved off Czechoslovakia and incorporated in the new greater Germany.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, after explaining to the British cabinet at two sessions the talk he had with Hitler at the latter's home in Bavaria last Thursday, invited Premier Edouard Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet of France to come to London to coördinate French and British policy in a deal that is evidently pending.

French Leaders to Fly.

Charles Corbin, French ambassador to London, telephoned the invitation to Daladier while the latter was having lunch at Rambouillet, France, with King Boris III. of Bulgaria. Daladier and Bonnet will fly here tomorrow.

Because of the stiffening of the Czech attitude and the fact that there appears to be not only a split in the French cabinet and in popular opinion about treaty obligations to the Czechs, but also a division of opinion in the British cabinet, the situation appears somewhat obscure tonight.

Undoubtedly the French and British cabinet leaders will decide tomorrow what Hitler is to be told when Chamberlain goes back to see him next week. The British idea of holding a plebiscite in the Sudeten area appears to many observers im-

THE WAR DRAMA.
What will the next war be like? See today's Graphic Section of The Tribune for two pages of dramatic pictures.

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 18 [Sunday].—The cabinet is sitting in Kolovrat palace early this morning. The whole country was placed on a war footing by a cabinet decree.

The edict gives immediate effect to the emergency act of 1920, which suspends almost all civil rights and permits arbitrary arrest and search without warant and complete censorship of all letters, telegrams, and telephone calls. More decisions of an extremely serious nature are expected.

Martial law in sixteen Sudeten German districts where disorders have occurred has been in effect for several days.

Worried Over French Stand.

While the Sudeten Germans are continuing their agitation, with German support, and while Czech military preparations are quietly going forward, Prague's chief worry is the disquieting news of the peace-at-any-price campaign in France. The Czechs read with alarm French editorials, not only in the rightist press but also in certain leftist publications, against France interfering in a Czech-German war.

But this worry apparently is confined to the man in the street. The government gives the impression of having some kind of secret assurance that France will march.

Apparently there is belief in official circles that France considers Germany morally already an aggressor on Czech territory and who actually touches off the first field piece does not matter. These circles are said to favor a Czech attack on Germany in the belief that France will come in and eventually drag Great Britain after her.

Plan Defensive War.

THE TRIBUNE correspondent learns from a source close to the general staf that the staf considers the Spanish war has taught that defensive warfare has excellent possibilities. If war is started now by the Czechs, the general staf is said to believe they have a good chance of holding off the Germans long enough to get vigorous assistance at least from Russia. France, it is believed, would come in shortly.

The informant said the general staf considers one Czech capable of holding off four Germans defensively and that the Czech army, with 800,000 men now under arms, can keep the Germans at bay for a month.

The temper of Prague is unmistakably grim and belligerent and unwilling to make further concessions. It is understood that the general staf considers the Sudeten territory not only too valuable economically to surrender, but also is unwilling to write off all the defense works that have been built there.

An ominous measure tonight was a proclamation by the burgomaster of Prague asking for volunteers to give blood. "Experience in recent wars proves that many lives can be saved through blood transfusions," the proclamation said. Healthy persons under 55 but not liable to military duty are urged to begin training for the fire department's air defense section, which needs reservists since a big percentage of the firemen would be called to the colors in case of war. Women are asked to register for first aid work.

Germany Threatens Prague.

PRAGUE, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Germany's chargé d'affaires tonight threatened Czechoslovakia with retaliation against Czechs living in Germany to offset moves against members of the Sudeten German minority in Czechoslovakia.

The charge, Andor Hencke, told Premier Milan Hodza that just as many Czech subjects would be arrested in Germany as Sudeten Germans were taken into custody in Czechoslovakia, where their party has been ordered dissolved.

The German warning came while formation of a Sudeten German "free corps" spurred Czechoslovak determination to resist dismemberment and suppress possible disorders.

Hencke also was reported to have told the premier that if any executions of Sudeten Germans were carried out under court martial, the same number of Czechs would be executed in Germany.

Czechs Also Protest.

Almost at the same time the Czech legation in Berlin was lodging a protest against the arrest of Czech subjects in numerous German cities and demanding the release of forty Czech police said to have been kidnaped near the Czech-German frontier Thursday night while they were enroute to reinforce police at Schwaderbach.

Schwaderbach was the scene of a fierce engagement between police and 2,000 Sudeten Germans. The reinforcements were said to have been traveling by truck from an interior station when Sudetens seized them and carried them across the border into the German province of Saxony. The Berlin legation demanded prompt delivery of the forty men together with their arms to Czechoslovak soil.

See Sudeten Split.

Shortly before Konrad Henlein's proclamation announcing the formation of a Sudeten German "Free Corp," Ernst Kundt, Sudeten deputy in the Czech parliament, answered the government's order of yesterday dissolving the Sudeten German party. Kundt, as floor leader of the dissolved party, appealed to the Sudeten Germans to have patience.

"Do not let yourselves be confused by this party liquidation," he said. "Remain inwardly what you always were and wait until Hitler and Chamberlain have ended their fateful conversations."

The difference between the aggressive policy of Henlein, who demands union of Sudeten German regions with Germany, and the moderate stand taken by Kundt was seen as marking dissention in the minority ranks.

An authoritative source, however, said it was impossible to estimate how many Sudeten Germans might follow Kundt's policy and how many might follow Henlein, but that the lines probably would be more clearly defined in the next few days.

Henlein Surprises Aids.

Kundt has been regarded as a Sudeten German who generally was more moderate in his demands than Henlein and it was stated that Henlein's sudden call for union with Germany unquestionably caught Kundt and a number of other leaders by surprise.

Another quarter of the Germanic minority was heard from tonight when the German Christian Socialists, the German Democratic party, and the Agrarian and German Social Democrats proclaimed a belief there was a good outlook and good basis for continuation of negotiations with the government.

It was reported tonight that President Benes had informed Viscount Runciman, British mediator, before the latter's departure for London yesterday, that annexation of any Czechoslovak territory by Germany would have to be accomplished by force.

Pledges of allegiance from the powerful Slovak section in the nation and the opposition of representatives of the old Bohemian nobility to cutting up the nation's territory further solidified the government's position. A deputation of representatives of the nobility called on President Benes and recorded their stand against any change in the present boundaries of the republic.

FISHERMAN SAYS HE SAW HAWAII CLIPPER EXPLODE

MANILA, P. I., Sept. 17.—[U. P.]—A Samar Island fisherman told authorities today he saw a "big, white plane" burst into flames, crash and sink July 29 near the last reported position of the Hawaii Clipper.

The Clipper, with nine passengers and six crewmen aboard, disappeared while en route from Guam to Manila. In his last radio report Capt. Leo Terletzky, commander of the craft, gave the Clipper's position as near Samar Island.

Provincial correspondents of Manila newspapers said the fisherman told them the plane crashed off Tagapula Island, ten miles from the west coast of Samar. The "big, white plane," the fisherman said, was on a westerly course, and was making a low turn in the north when it exploded.

BRITAIN MASSES WARSHIPS IN FAR EAST FOR CRISIS

SHANGHAI, Sept. 17.—(AP)—British vessels in the far east were reported today to be concentrating in Hongkong in view of the European crisis. The cruiser Cumberland, flagship of Vice Admiral Sir Percy Noble, commander in chief of the China station, was en route from Weihaiwei, British port in Shantung province. The cruiser Suffolk, only British vessel at Shanghai, will leave tomorrow and was reported heading for Hongkong. Hongkong is the focal point of British interests in the far east and a strategically important naval base.

GRIM EUROPEAN NOTE: PRAGUE PREPARES 3 HUGE CEMETERIES

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 17.—[U. P.]—A grim note of preparedness was struck today by the Prager Press, which announced that three huge cemeteries will be opened for burials shortly. The announcement, under a headline "the most modern morgue in Europe," was sandwiched between items about the Hitler-Chamberlain conversations. The largest cemetery, at Chodov, is big enough for 500,000 bodies.

WARSAW, Poland, Sept. 17.—[U. P.]—Ten Polish military divisions are scheduled tomorrow to conclude three days of big maneuvers near the soviet border, ending the summer war games in southeast Poland. Marshal Edward Rydz-Smigly, head of the army, will review a parade at Luck tomorrow.

VISIT TO HITLER EFFORT TO FOOL PUBLIC, REDS SAY

MOSCOW, Sept. 17.—(AP)—The communist party newspaper Pravda today described Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's visit to Reichsfuehrer Hitler as "an attempt to deceive public opinion and reach an agreement with an aggressor under the banner of peaceful gestures."

If Great Britain had wanted to notify Hitler it would not tolerate violation of Czechoslovakia, the newspaper said, Chamberlain's flying visit to Berchtesgaden Thursday would have been unnecessary. Pravda said that much now depends upon the attitude of France.

"If France will take as strong a hand as that now taken by the Czechoslovak government," Pravda said, "no efforts of Chamberlain can make the Czechs retreat before the aggressor."

ARAB BAND BURNS HOME OF CHICAGO MAN IN JERICHO

JERUSALEM, Palestine, Sept. 17.—(AP)—A house belonging to Dr. Olga Anickman Feinberg, Chicago physician, was one of several burned in Jericho today by an Arab band.

Irish guards and Royal Air force planes killed the ringleader and six other members of an Arab band whose battle with British troops Thursday resulted in the death of 130 Arabs.

Thursday's engagement was the largest in Palestine since the world war. It occurred near Ramallah, north of Jerusalem, after the pilot of a scouting plane summoned twelve other craft, which machine gunned a crowd of several hundred Arabs.

Marines from the battleship Malaya and police fought an Arab band in Haifa today following an attack on Jewish workers.

Plan Will Be Submitted to France Today.

possible. The Germans, it is noticed, are not even mentioning a plebiscite but speak of self-determination. That would immediately stir up the Poles, Hungarians, Rumanians and others.

Chamberlain Urges Surgery.

Chamberlain at the second session of the cabinet today, which lasted two and a half hours, appears to have convinced his colleagues of the necessity of a surgical operation—cutting off Sudetenland from Czechoslovakia—as the only way of preserving European peace.

This view of some diplomats and other observers seemed to be confirmed by a statement issued by the British Press association, a news gathering organization which has close official connections. The statement in part follows:

"There are many who argue that the greatest calamity of all would be European war and that in a decision between two evils, one of which is so immeasurably greater than the other, it would be better to settle the problem by 'rough' justice and by methods involving some sacrifice rather than resort to courses which must in the end mean obliteration of Czechoslovakia, which would become a battleground. Those who take this point of view suggest that a redrawn line of the Czech boundaries is in the end inevitable."

U. S. Envoy Keeps Posted.

There are hints that the self-determination principle will be carried into practice in other parts of central Europe, perhaps as a principle for revision of post-war boundaries. The London Times today spoke of modification of the Versailles treaty so that it will not be so much an instrument for maintaining the status quo as for a peaceful adjustment.

Downing street hummed with diplomatic activity all day today. United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy called at the foreign office while the first cabinet meeting was in session and remained for an hour talking with Sir Alexander Cadogan, permanent undersecretary of state. He called presumably to ask for information. This evening Kennedy called on Prime Minister Chamberlain. They were together an hour and a half.

Dino Grandi, Italian ambassador to London, who called at the foreign office yesterday returned there today and remained half an hour. His visit caused speculation whether Premier Mussolini may also attend the conference next week between Chamberlain and Hitler. There have been reports that Premier Daladier also might attend.

Runciman Sees King.

Viscount Runciman, British mediator in the Czech dispute, who returned from Prague on orders from Chamberlain, saw the prime minister and King George. He had lunch with the king.

A deputation from the national council of labor spent two hours this evening in Downing street, where the labor attitude was discussed with Chamberlain and Lord Halifax, foreign secretary. No statement was made after the meeting.

News from France tonight indicated that Chamberlain's alleged plan to sell out the Czechs is gaining more and more support there. The former rigid French attitude of automatic support for Czechoslovakia in case of a German invasion is said to be breaking down under the arguments of French rightist leaders.

British Also Yielding.

That same process also appears to be taking place here. With the exception of the laborites and communists, the entire British press now declares the Czech issue is not international but internal and that British policy should not be aimed to enforce justice but to keep peace within the United Kingdom and the empire.

Just how the British and the French will put pressure on the Czechs to allow Sudetenland to be taken from them in the interests of European peace has not been disclosed. Presumably the method by which it is to be done is the greatest problem.

Informed circles here say the British would insist on the following conditions if any attempt to work out self-determination by a plebiscite were made:

FIRST—That some of the German troops now under arms be dispersed.

SECOND — International supervision of the plebiscite.

The cabinet will meet Monday.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 17.—While many Jews were sitting in their homes with Sabbath candles burning, a crowd of about 300 young men and women marched through Teesdale street in east end Bethnal Green shouting: 'Jews want war. We must get rid of the Jews."

Windows were smashed and many Jews were manhandled. Earlier there had been a large Fascist meeting at Hackney where Sir Oswald Mosley, head of the Fascist British union, was the chief speaker. The speakers alleged that Jews were responsible for the present crisis.

After the meeting dispersed in orderly fashion the demonstrators marched through the streets. Police who had been on special duty at the Hackney meeting dispersed them. Among the windows smashed was the plate glass front of the Bethnal Green labor party's headquarters in Cambridge road.

FRANCE DECIDES TODAY WHETHER TO DROP CZECHS

Premier Flying to London for Conference.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 17.—Premier Edouard Daladier and Georges Bonnet, foreign minister, will fly to London tomorrow to take, in concert with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain, the gravest decision any French government has faced since 1914.

They will have to decide whether to continue supporting Czechoslovakia at almost certain risk of war, or to take the responsibility of declaring before the world that Reichsfuehrer Hitler has a right to demand annexation of the Sudeten German area, tion of the Sudeten German area. The latter would leave their Czechoslovak allies in the lurch.

It did not seem tonight that the Paris government had made up its mind on this all-important issue. If the semi-official newspaper Le Temps is an accurate gauge of what the government is thinking, Premier Daladier, as well as Bonent, are resigned to the idea of an anschluss [union] of Germany and the Sudeten area, provided it can be arranged peaceably.

Czechs Must Determine.

It was realized, however, that it is not enough for France and Great Britain to accept an anschluss, or, for that matter, a plebiscite. The Czechs must accept them also, and although Le Temps expressed hope that the Czechs will make further sacrifices in the cause of peace, few in Paris have any illusions on that score.

The despondency in French political circles changed to the most acute alarm when news arrived late tonight that Konrad Henlein, Sudeten German [Nazi] leader, was organizing a Sudeten military force, and that the Prague cabinet was sitting in an all night session to take grave decisions.

Henlein's action was regarded as placing the French and British before a new accomplished fact in advance of the renewal of talk between Hitler and Chamberlain. The apprehensions of some French observers after Henlein's demand for union with Germany thus were confirmed.

Informed French observers accepted Henlein's action as an open bid for civil war. They bitterly expressed the view that Hitler used Chamberlain's visit to him to maneuver Paris and London into a false position, giving him freedom to strike.

Bids for Roosevelt's Aid.

The extreme gravity of the situation was graphically illustrated by an eleventh hour bid for President Roosevelt's intervention. Former Premier Leon Blum, Socialist leader, will publish it tomorrow in his mouthpiece, Le Populaire. Blum, who loyally supported Premier Daladier's moves in the present situation, expressed the hope on Thursday for "intervention from a still higher and perhaps even more powerful source," than Chamberlain. Tomorrow he will say:

"Isn't it time that Roosevelt should address Europe with the full weight of his personal prestige and with the full authority of a state whose moral and material support would be the final and decisive factor in any general war?"

The vast majority of Frenchmen now appear to be in favor of peace at any price, yet there are some prices no government can pay without losing the dignity and respect of its own citizens as well as of the rest of the world.

Not Ready for Air Attacks.

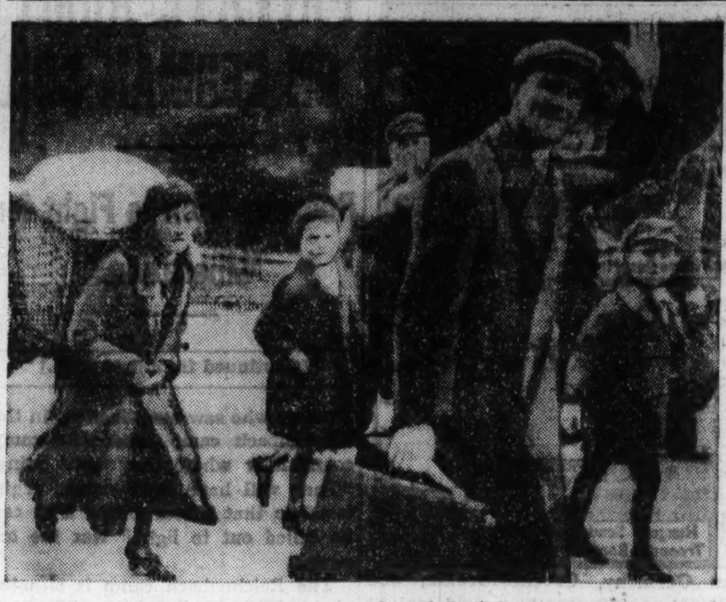
From a military point of view the French know that all long term factors are in their favor if the English stand with them. It cannot be denied, however, that Paris and other big cities are not prepared for serious aerial attacks. It is unlikely that preparations could be improvised in a few days even if the Germans held off that long.

Air attacks on Paris and other French cities would not crush the French morale. Quite the contrary. Few politicians, however, care to assume the responsibility of plunging the country into a war when the civilian population is so exposed.

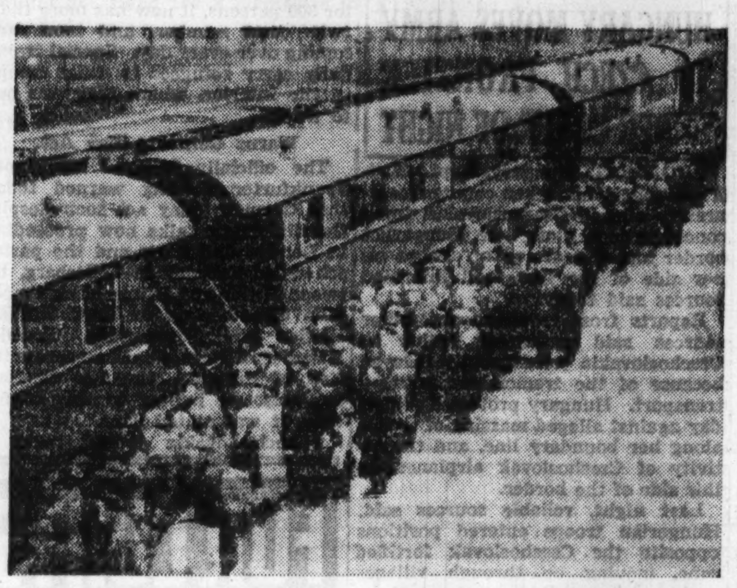
Indications were tonight that Daladier and Bonnet will have to make up their minds very quickly. News from Prague that the German minister and legation staf left today struck the French as ominous. It would not surprise any one if a German invasion of Czechoslovakia started tomorrow.

Rumania will permit Russian troops to pass through to the aid of Czechoslovakia, but the Russians themselves appeared to have become very coy since Prime Minister Chamberlain's visit Thursday to Hitler in Berchtesgaden. In any case, Paris does not think the Russians would throw their whole weight into a struggle.

Sudetens Flee Into Germany



Men, women, and children carrying their belongings across border from Czechoslovakia into Germany in fear of possible war. This picture was made yesterday at Oberklingenthal, Germany. Thousands of Sudetens were said to have fled into the land of their forefathers.



After making their way across the international boundary, these Sudeten Germans prepared to board a train at Klingenthal, Germany, for refugee camp.

DUCE EXPECTED TO BACK SUDETEN DEMANDS IN TALK

(Turn to today's Graphic Section for a story on how Italy is building its army. The author is Edmond Taylor, Paris correspondent of The Tribune.)

ROME, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini set out today for Trieste, where he will speak tomorrow. He was expected to emphasize in his talk Italy's view that the Sudeten Germans of Czechoslovakia must be given the right of "self determination." Il Duce will contend that such a program is necessary to save Europe from war, it was expected. He will speak in a territory, which, like Czechoslovakia, was a part of Austro-Hungary before the world war.

CZECHS MAY ASK U. S. TO CARE FOR AFFAIRS IN REICH

Capital Tension Lessens, but Still Very Grave.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Secretary of State Cordell Hull today revealed that Czechoslovakia has indicated a desire to have the United States diplomatic and consular corps handle Czech affairs in Germany in the event of war.

The suggestion, it was said, had been advanced by a Czech consular official at Berlin to American officials. It is expected to be followed by a request from the Czech government if the European situation grows more critical.

Mr. Hull emphasized that the proposal had not been presented formally to this government through the Czechoslovakian minister here, through the United States minister at Prague, or to Hugh S. Wilson, American ambassador in Berlin.

Precedents Reviewed.

Such arrangements are customary in the event of war or the breaking of diplomatic relations. Upon its entry into the world war, America turned over its diplomatic business to the Spanish embassy and consulates. The Czechs were turning to this country, it is believed, because of the part the United States played in forming of the nation.

Czechoslovakia did not turn to France or Great Britain because she expects those nations to march beside her in the event of hostilities.

Secretary Hull and President Roosevelt awaited reports from Joseph P. Kennedy, American ambassador to Great Britain, and from Ambassador Wilson on the demands Hitler made upon British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain at their momentous conference Thursday.

Woodring Cancels Trip.

Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring canceled a west coast speaking engagement on the ground of pressing government business. His announcement that he would not go to Los Angeles to address the American Legion convention on Monday was taken to mean that President Roosevelt might call another cabinet meeting soon to discuss the European crisis.

The President remained in the White House to follow European developments. It was announced he had issued orders that Secretary Hull be given access to the White House at any time and over all other persons seeking appointments.

Although officials feel the tension in Europe has lessened, they consider the situation most grave and are following developments anxiously.

It was rumored that the President might call a special session of congress to revise the neutrality act and the Johnson act.

CZECHS FORTIFY FRONTIER; TRAIN GUNS ON GERMANY

Barricade Roads; Build Concrete Pill Boxes.

REICHENBERG, Czechoslovakia [Near the German Frontier], Sept. 17.—(AP)—A frontier bristling with soldiers, steel, and fortifications guarded Czechoslovakia's independence tonight against possible invasion.

One kilometer [three-fifths of a mile] from the red and white barrier at Hradek, which marks the line between Germany and Sudetenland, guards with fixed bayonets halted all trafic for rigid inspection.

Travelers wishing to go to the frontier were required to be accompanied by armed infantrymen.

Soldier Shot to Death.

Surveillance was stricter today because last night a soldier who was on duty near a textile factory in a fortified zone was shot and killed. The killer or killers, who were not identified, escaped. The shooting occurred within 200 yards of the border.

Inside the border town of Hradek sentries carrying rifles paced the streets near the branch railway line to Reichenberg.

Mounted machine guns poked their dull black noses out of second floor windows which commanded the main streets and the town square.

The number of troops was not impressive, but their precision and attention to duty showed strict military control throughout the zone.

General Strike Dies Out.

The political dispute in Reichenberg, one of sixteen communities under martial law, has faded into the background with what residents called the "flight" of Konrad Henlein, Sudeten German leader, into Germany.

They said there had been no disorders for days and only "small arguments" between groups of Sudeten Germans and German Social Democrats.

The general strike called in Reichenberg Thursday virtually has died away. Street cars were running, stores were open, and factories were operating. A hotel proprietor laughed when asked by a French tourist if any restaurants were open.

"No one missed anything because of the strike," he said. "It still is in effect, but you would never know it."

Build Machine Gun Nests.

In addition to the border fortifications—some underground and some in plain sight—military engineering squads were hastily constructing auxiliary lines more than three miles behind the border.

Most of the new positions are machine gun nests with reënforced concrete dugouts and heavy wooden abutments. Their sloping fronts are covered with sod, making them almost invisible.

Engineering detachments were working openly in the fields.

Asked for the meaning of the work, a young Czech officer declared:

"For the last twenty years our government has been rebuilding this part of Czechoslovakia. More money has gone into the so-called Sudeten area than anywhere else.

Determined to Resist.

"We have built roads and schools. We have reëstablished Bohemia as an industrial and agricultural center, as it was for hundreds of years before. We are not going to give it away to any one or let any one take it from us if we can help it."

One of the few evidences of martial law in Reichenberg was the number of recruits among the state police. Men between 25 and 30 years of age have been enrolled and put on guard duty.

There were only a few soldiers on duty in the streets of Reichenberg during the day and a few more went on duty after 7 p. m.

No civilians are allowed on the streets after 8 p. m. unless they have obtained special passes from the military authorities.

Special police make regular inspections of all hotels at night. Travelers then must show their passports or other identification papers.

Two unidentified persons hurled hand grenades in Eger early today. One landed in a public building and the other in a park. Police said they were thrown from windows. No damage was done.

Refugees Pour Into Germany.

SACHSENTHAL-GEORGENTHAL, Germany [Opposite the Czechoslovak Frontier], Sept. 17.—(AP)—Sudeten Germans continued to pour into Germany today despite strict vigilance of Czechoslovak border patrols. Official figures placed their number at 20,000.

At night the border guards keep the territory lighted by firing flares into the sky so they can see fleeing Sudetens.

The hillsides in this frontier territory are mostly covered with woods, with stretches of cultivated land between, which the Sudetens must cross to reach the German side. It is here that the border patrols have their chance of catching them.

The border line between Germany and Czechoslovakia runs through the middle of the main road of this town, the northern half of the road being in German territory and the other half in Czechoslovakia.

Roads Are Barricaded.

Roads switching from the main road into Czechoslovakia are heavily barricaded with steel rails sunk into concrete about a foot apart and six lines deep, making it impossible for any vehicle or pedestrian to pass through.

Not far south of here lies the village of Schwaderbach, where one of the most serious clashes of the Sudeten dispute occurred Wednesday. Until then Schwaderbach was inhabited by about 2,000 Sudetens and twenty Czechs. Now it is deserted.

Streets are empty and houses have windows smashed, signs have been torn down from business buildings. A few hungry cats were yowling loudly for food.

Traveling along the frontier from midnight until dawn, newspaper men met hundreds of Sudetens who had managed to cross into Germany, many of them leading children and carrying babies in their arms.

At the village of Brundoebra, they were being received by German authorities. The women and children were being cared for by the Red Cross and the Nazi Welfare league.

Czechs and Neighbors Tense

The frontier regions of eastern Germany, Czechoslovakia, and Hungary britsled with military activity last night as the world waited to see whether Europe will be plunged into war. Principal events of yesterday are indicated.

HUNGARY MOVES ARMY TO CZECH FRONTIER UNDER COVER OF NIGHT

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Hungary has taken counter measures to alleged Czechoslovakia troop concentrations along the Hungarian border and has drawn up troops on her side of the line, well informed sources said today.

Reports from travelers and other sources said passenger trains in Czechoslovakia were greatly delayed because of the tremendous military transport. Hungary protested yesterday against alleged massing of troops along her boundary line, and the activity of Czechoslovak airplanes on this side of the border.

Last night, reliable sources said, Hungarian troops entered positions opposite the Czechoslovak fortified zone, moving up through villages darkened by military order. Many Hungarians were called to the colors and manufacturers received orders to report immediately all men they want exempted from military service in order to maintain military deliveries.

KNOCKED DOWN BY STREET CAR.

Joseph Dvorak, 65 years old, 1854 Ruble street, was critically injured last night when he was knocked down by a west bound surface lines car in 14th street at Newberry avenue.

Recruits Men to Fight for 'Liberation.'

TRIBUNE who saw men lined up in the Reichenbach camp asked the camp commander where they were going. "They will have their names registered so that if war comes they can be called out to fight," was the answer.

The Reichenbach camp is situated about twenty miles from the Czech border near Klingenthal, where most of the refugees from the Eger district of Czechoslovakia are crossing into Germany. Originally designed to care for 300 persons, it now has more than twice that number, and more are coming over every day. Special trains daily carry refugees to other camps in the interior, where they are put to work.

Warns Germany May Act.

The officially inspired newspaper Frankfurter Zeitung warned today that Germany may act soon despite the diplomatic talks now proceeding in London and Paris and the parley scheduled Tuesday in Godesberg, between Hitler and Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain or Lord Halifax, British foreign secretary. Premier Daladier of France said a representative of Premier Mussolini of Italy may also be invited to this conference, it was stated here.

"Czechoslovakia would make a tragic error if it assumed that after the Berchtesgaden talk all could now be directed into ordinary diplomatic channels," the Frankfurter Zeitung said. "It is apparent that when the existing dangers become too acute diplomatic methods no longer will suffice to master the situation."

"This caricature of a state must disappear," the official Voelkischer Beobachter said. This paper filled its columns with reports of "unparalleled Czech atrocities and incredible bestialities."

The Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung declared that the "Czechoslovakia of 1919 has ceased to exist. After the Czech terror act, the execution of a young Sudeten for desertion and the branding of all German elements as traitors, the Sudeten Germans have ceased to be members of Czechoslovakia and are released from all obligations to this state."

All German papers reported the shooting by a firing squad of four Sudeten Germans in the infantry barracks at Eger. They were said to have been sentenced to death by a military tribunal for desertion from the Czech army.

Claim 24 Buried Secrety.

Other reports alleged that in addition to the officially admitted six dead in the recent disorders in Eger, twenty-four other victims were secretly buried in the Eger cemetery, which since, it was said, has been guarded by Czech soldiers. No one is admitted, the Nazi reports declared.

Other reports told of Czech Boy Scouts carrying pistols and of Czech children being equipped with benzine cans to set fire to the home and headquarters of the Sudeten Germans.

Fifty five old-fashioned reasons why MEN give FANNIE MAY candies

FANNIE MAY'S Black Walnut Chips demonstrate one of the reasons! They're made from pure cane sugar cooked by the old-fashioned, open-fire process and made tender by the old-fashioned methed of "pulling" over a special candy hook. Their centers are chockfull of a mixture of honey and specially chosen black walnut meats. They're a "find" for gifts because they prove a man's discriminating taste!

NAZI GERMANY IS UNPREPARED FOR A LONG WAR

Compare Economic Situation with That of 1914.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 17. — If Germany were to enter a war tomorrow she would have to pin all her hopes on a short and localized conflict. Nazi Germany today, as compared with the kaiser's empire in 1914, is economically unprepared for a prolonged war, virtually having used up all the potential reserves within the country which enabled the imperial reich to carry on for nearly four and a half years, despite an allied blockade which cut her off from the outside world.

Those who believe more strongly in Germany's present economic ability point out that for the last three years she has been preparing her whole economy for an emergency, adopting Ludendorff's ideas about the totalitarian war.

All Workers Registered.

All Germany's millions of workers are registered in the labor front and can be drafted by the government at a moment's notice, while imperial Germany had to organize her labor and resources after the war was in full swing.

Nazi Germany has been collecting iron, copper, and other metals for four years. There is scarcely a household in Germany which can boast of the copper cooking utensils which helped Germany carry on twenty-three years ago. The shortage of iron has become an old story, and the squads of Hitler Youth which collect scrap metal and other materials are a sight to which Germans have become accustomed through the years.

The potential reserves of the third reich, to all practical purposes, have been used up in the preparation for war. How big the reserves accumulated by the government are no one knows exactly.

Public Debt Is High.

Financially, the country is no better off. In 1933 the public debt in Germany was less than 10 billion marks — a succession of loans to finance rearmament have jumped that figure to nearly 50 billion marks. The Reichsbank gold reserve totals about a quarter of a billion marks, including the gold taken from the Austrian bank at the time of the anschluss. Add to this a possible quarter billion more in secret war reserves and you have half a billion marks. The kaiser went to war with 1½ billion marks in gold — three times as much.

Added to this gold reserve of one and a half billion marks, the Germany of 1914 had enough gold coins in circulation to greatly increase its reserve supply of gold. Nazi Germany also lacks this potential reserve—there have been no gold coins in circulation in the reich for many years.

War Financed by Credit.

The world war was financed largely by credit and currency inflation—another potential reserve of countries entering a war. But in present day Germany this reserve also has been exhausted in advance by the formidable program of rearmament which the Fuehrer began in 1935. According to the leading economic weekly, the Deutscher Volkswirt, public expenditures in Nazi Germany at present absorb more than one-half of the national income.

The Nazi government, according to the Deutscher Volkswirt, controls two-thirds of this income, and it is safe to say that most of it is used in the interests of armament.

Nazi Germany's desperate lack of foreign exchange is well known. In this respect she also stands far behind the Germany of 1914, which had 20 billion marks in foreign exchange when the war broke out. The realization of these assets enabled the kaiser's Germany to buy supplies from neutral countries which the third reich now gets only in limited quantities, and then chiefly in exchange for finished products, the production of which in wartime would necessarily be greatly curtailed.

Question of Blockade.

Nazis will point to the four year plan as a means of breaking a future blockade. But administrators of the plan have admitted that 1938 is a "bottleneck year" when the outlay in materials necessary for the realization of the plan will be greater than the contributions made toward self-sufficiency. At its present stage it seems unlikely that the four year plan can be a decisive weapon for breaking a blockade.

Germans this year have prided themselves on a record grain crop which, coupled with huge imports during the summer of 1937, has enabled them to cover their crop deficit and, it is stated semi-officially, made it possible for them to lay in emergency stocks. The large imports of copper and rubber during the last year—when private consumption was restricted to a minimum—probably have served to build up a reserve in these materials.

Commercial Stocks Smaller.

But any history book will show you that these government stocks are far smaller than the commercial stocks which were stored in German warehouses in 1914, and the best authorities admit that they are sufficient for only three to six months of war. One reason for this is that the consumption of war materials in a war today would be infinitly greater than during the world war.

On the credit side of her ledger Germany can point to her matchless organization of both human and material resources. What supplies are on hand can be distributed now with greater economy and over a longer period than was possible during the last war. "The worker's passport" system has enabled Nazi officials to prepare a vast card index of 22 million workers of all branches of industry which would be of incalculable aid in the rational distribution of manpower in industry, agriculture, and transportation immediately upon the opening of hostilities.

Further, Germany is relying on her "economic vassals" in eastern Europe, Hungary and Jugo-Slavia, which will be able to give her valuable supplies.

Ardent Nazis will point to the Rome-Berlin axis as a most valuable asset for Germany in the event of a war, but they are likely to forget that Italy's financial and economic situation is even more precarious than that of Nazi Germany. To those who have studied the situation it is plain that Italy may prove only a heavy burden to the third reich, since a military alliance requires economic as well as military coöperation.

Austria is proving at present more of a liability than an asset to the third reich. The process of "building up" the ostmark so far has cost Germany more in food and raw materials, even iron and steel, than she is getting back or will get back for some time.

To complete the comparison between imperial Germany in 1914 and the third reich in 1938 it must be added that a present day war costs infinitly more in war material and supplies than a war of twenty-three years ago. Gasoline alone is a factor that might cause the downfall of a nation which cannot count oil among its natural resources, and even German authorities admit that a restriction of private automobile trafic in wartime would not leave Germany enough gasoline to keep all her motorized troops and airplanes in the field for a prolonged period.

ALL SPANISH FRONTS DEADLOCKED; REBELS OFFER AIR AGREEMENT

HENDAYE. France [At the Spanish Frontier], Sept. 17. — (AP) — Complete deadlock on all fronts in the Spanish civil war was reported today in government and insurgent advices.

Dispatches from Spain said the lines in the Ebro river, Valencia, and Estremadura sectors remained static after a week of quiet broken only by local raids, artillery bombardments and air bombings.

A conditional offer to coöperate with a neutral commission to avoid bombardment of civil populations was made by the insurgents through Gen. Alfredo Kindelan, head of their air forces.

He said in a public statement that the defenseless places would have to be proclaimed as such by a commission. Then it would have to station a representative in each to insure that these areas were not converted into legitimate military objectives.

National Retail Demonstration

A BEACON TO BETTER LIVELIHOOD

In the interest of all customers—their happiness, thriftiness, and general well-being—the retail stores of the country are demonstrating this week their unfailing confidence in the future of American business and rededicating themselves solidly to the cause of serving the public honestly, economically, and efficiently.

Wieboldt's takes pride in joining this coast-to-coast demonstration and extends you a most cordial invitation to visit our six large neighborhood stores which are now brimful of brand new Fall and Winter merchandise, carefully selected from the important markets of America and priced at levels which have warranted your patronage for 55 long years.

Last July, Wieboldt's was the first Chicago store to herald the importance of retail stores in the economic picture by launching the "More Sales—More Work" Drive. There are thousands of manufacturers from whom we select your merchandise who in turn employ hundreds of thousands of your neighbors. The greater your purchases mounted in our stores, and others, the faster the wheels of factories turned and employment of more people resulted. "Sales Mean Jobs" has become a definite reality here in Chicago and elsewhere.

The spirit of more work and better livelihood has gained such momentum that this week it assumes national importance in all retail stores. It is sweeping cities, towns and hamlets alike in a widespread demonstration of service and thrift to customers. Chicago's own "New Century of Sales" Week, proclaimed by Mayor Kelly, will vitalize this upswing program in every home in Chicagoland.

With Wieboldt's it is a DEMONSTRATION OF VALUES for our customers—such as has earned your growing esteem and patronage for nearly three score years.

We are proud to present our stores to you at this time. We are proud of our complete stocks in all stores of fresh, new, desirable merchandise. We are proud of our friendly, wholesome, neighborly atmosphere. We are proud of our courteous, thoughtful and efficient salespeople. We are proud of our thousands of shrewd, careful-buying customers, who know values when they see them, and who know where to find them.

It is a week long to be remembered at your store of neighborly values.

WIEBOLDT'S

The Honorable Daniel C. Roper, Secretary of Commerce of the United States, will speak over Station WMAQ Monday evening Sept. 19th, from 8 to 8:15 p. m., Chicago Time, on this very important nation-wide program.

RULE BY DECREE CALLED MENACE TO CONSTITUTION

Sen. Vandenberg Speaks on Anniversary.

still enjoyed by the individual American citizen."

Then followed a warning which seemed directed at the Roosevelt administration.

Sends Shaft at Roosevelt.

"Therefore," the senator said, "the vital thing I say to you tonight is to beware of any movement, no matter how temporarily persuasive; beware of any advocate, no matter what his virtues otherwise, who would invade these checks and balances and assemble these tremendous powers in one place or in one set of executive hands.

"If and when you permit that to occur, you have paved the way to dictatorship, American style, and you have terminated all but the empty shadow of such anniversaries as this which we celebrate tonight.

"Let me tell you why—though you already know.

"Let's take free speech and free religion as typical examples. Suppose these be invaded by the executive or the legislative arms of government. Where do you go to claim your constitutional rights? Where do you go to defend your liberties?

"There is just one place on earth you can go—into the forum of the Supreme court of the United States. Suppose that court has ceased to be independent? Suppose it has been bound to the chariot wheel of the President or the congress?

"Suppose the court is no longer permitted to speak up in behalf of your constitutional rights as an American freeman? Suppose it is a mere vassal to executive mandate or to legislative whim? What becomes of you? What becomes of your free speech and your free religion or any other freedom guaranteed you by the constitution?

"They are all as dead as Caesar's ghost. They are 'gone with the wind.' They take flight precisely as they have taken flight in other benighted countries where all powers of government are gathered into one imperial authority. A purge is a purge whether in the old world or the new.

"The moral is obvious. Either we protect, preserve, and defend an independent judiciary—and particularly an independent Supreme court—or Plymouth Rock is become the doorstone to the sepulcher of a dead liberty."

Introduced by Julius Miner.

Senator Vandenberg was introduced by Julius H. Miner, general director of the Constitution day committee, who, during the introduction, paid tribute to Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor of THE TRIBUNE and honorary chairman of the committee.

Mr. Miner referred to Col. McCormick as "the nation's foremost proponent of constitutional government."

PERILS OF WAR BRANDED THREAT TO CONSTITUTION

Col. McCormick Calls for Defense of Freedom.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, flew here by airplane from Chicago today to address a constitution day rally sponsored by the Indiana Republican Editorial association.

In opening his address, Col. McCormick alluded to a radio speech by Senator Sherman Minton [D., Ind.] broadcast earlier in the day from Louisville, Ky. [For Senator Minton's speech see opposite page.]

"Senator G. P. U. Minton and I have both been on the air today—I in a high flying airplane, he in a flight of fancy in a padded swivel chair," Col. McCormick said. "Yet I was on firmer ground up in the clouds than he was down in the muck. And I assure you that when I have refuted his falsehoods and enunciated some truths over the network he spoke on today he will be higher up in the air than I was this afternoon, and that when next he goes wagging his tail up the White House steps he will cringe at the wrath that will be in his master's voice."

Cites War Perils.

The danger of war in Europe, Col. McCormick told his audience, is a new threat to the American constitution and the nation was cautioned to maintain a strong defense of the guarantee of freedom.

"Clearly," he said, "those of us who understand the significance of Sept. 17 in the history of our country and of the world must continue to resist the attack on the constitution with all the power we possess.

"This country is giving ample evidence that it wishes for nothing so much as a return to constitutional government as we have known it. The outlook would be altogether favorable were there no danger of another European war. Just as the economic crises of 1932-'33 was made the pretext for the atttack on the constitution, so the crisis in Europe today can be put to use to frighten the American people into surrender of their liberties and the destruction of their republican form of government.

Warns Against Hysteria.

"If we allow ourselves to be swept away by the hysteria of war, the heritage of 1787 may be lost to us forever. We must arouse ourselves and the readers of our newspapers to hold fast to that which is good; to face the future with the sanity, courage, the patriotism, and the common sense which animated the Philadelphia convention.

"The effort in the last six years to expand the presidential powers may have left the impression in some minds that the constitution created an impotent executive. In reality, the powers granted to the President under our constitution are greater than those exercised by any one man in any other constitutional government.

"As a leader of the military forces in war he is supreme. As a leader in peace the checks upon his freedom of action are only those which prudence demands.

Discusses Limit on Powers.

"He cannot enact laws." He cannot override the courts. He cannot destroy the power of the states nor deprive the people of their liberties. He cannot suspend the constitution.

"Until 1933 no President sought to evade by subterfuge these limitations on his power, and though we have had many economic crises of great severity no President until the present one ever used them as an excuse for demanding more power than the constitution granted him.

"Curiously enough, if the men of the Philadelphia convention were to return to earth today they would have far less difficulty understanding events in Europe than in their own country.

"In a number of countries of the old world they would see the government concentrated in one man possessed of the power to make laws and enforce them by any means which seemed expedient to him. No checks would be imposed upon him by a legislature, or by the courts acting in the name of the laws or a constitution.

"The inevitable accompaniments of such a régime, suppression of free speech and a free press, free assembly and free worship, habeas corpus, and the right to a fair trial, would be found. Property rights would be violated. It would all fit into a pattern as familiar as it was hateful to the statesmen of 1787.

"But recent events in this country would be puzzling as well as hateful. The men in the convention foresaw the danger of permitting the legislature to elect the President. They said that if that were done the President might be able to bribe the legislators with offices and perquisites and thus hold them in his power and at his service.

"It could not have occurred to the delegates in Philadelphia that a spendthrift congress could place in the hands of the President such vast sums to distribute at his own discretion that congressmen would be bound in the chains they had themselves forged.

"Even more improbable would seem the entrusting to a President of colossal sums for distribution among voters all over the country. The men in the convention could not have imagined bribery on any such scale as is now practiced in this country.

"Most of the members of the convention would have been shocked by the President's attack on the judiciary.

"The fathers of the constitution made the chief executive the choice of the whole people. They expected—and for nearly 150 years their expectation seldom missed the mark—that the man at the head of the government would be conscious of his responsibility to the whole people and would use the great influence and power of his office to resist the excesses of demagogues.

"Bryce, writing a generation ago, could say that 'the responsibility of a great office and the feeling that he represents the whole nation tend to sober and control the President.'

"If he had lived to our day Bryce would have been forced to amend that passage. For today he would have before him the spectacle of a President in open league with communists whose aim is the destruction by violence not only of our government but of every liberty guaranteed under it to American citizens.

"He would find a President seeking political power by allying himself with the C. I. O., an organization of revolutionary purpose whose members have seized property and held it in defiance of the courts and the police; prevented the passage of trains; interfered with the delivery of the mails, and in many other ways demonstrated its lawless, violent character.

"Instead of seeking to restrain such an organization, the present occupant of the White House has actually given every encouragement to it which his great office can confer."

CHICAGO MILWAUKEE ST. PAUL AND PACIFIC

Divided into two sections with contrasting color schemes, the smartly modern Tip Top Tap has booths at one end and semi-circular wall settees at the other. There are seats for 44. Over a bulkhead is an illuminated station indicator and clock.

The exterior of the Beaver tail observation lounge is excitingly streamlined. Horizontal and vertical fins shade the slanting rear windows from the sun and strengthen the end of the car. Good to look at, even better to ride in, is this beautiful car.

First Flight September 19th

THE first Hiawatha was great; the 1937 Hiawatha was greater; the 1939 Hiawatha is greatest! Brand new throughout, this greatest Hiawatha offers the smoothest, softest, quietest ride of any railroad train ever built! With the lowest center of gravity of any train, with hydraulic shock absorbers, coil springs and stabilizing tie-bars, the Hiawatha rides with almost unbelievable smoothness at 100 and more miles per hour!

Air conditioning and heating of a new, exclusive type... strikingly modern decorations, with contrasting color schemes in alternate cars... focused lighting that eliminates glare... seats as comfortable as your favorite easy chair! The dining car... the enlarged Tip Top Tap... the Beaver-tail observation parlor car... are outstandingly original in colorful, modern designs. Appetizing 50 cent luncheons and 65 cent dinners in the diner; beverages and light luncheons in the Tip Top Tap.

MINTON ATTACKS CHICAGO TRIBUNE IN RADIO SPEECH

Indianan Defends His Bill to Curb Press.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—The following is the complete text of a speech by Senator Sherman Minton [D., Ind.] broadcast here today over radio station WAVE by the National Broadcasting company:

Senator Minton.

"Two weeks ago today Mr. McCormick, the publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, attacked me on the radio. In true CHICAGO TRIBUNE fashion he proceeded to misrepresent me and then to smear me with something I was never remotely connected with. That is CHICAGO TRIBUNE technique in its true form.

"What was the issue I had tendered for discussion that provoked Mr. McCormick's attack? Last spring the owners of the big town newspapers, represented by the American Newspaper Publishers' association, came out with a proposal to censor free speech on the radio.

Accuses Big Papers.

"Mind you, this was not a proposition submitted by the small town or country newspaper owners. This was a proposal of the big town papers like THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. They said that propaganda on the radio should be curbed and set for themselves the task of curbing the radio. They pointed out that the President's fireside chats were a dangerous thing that might lead to dictatorship. So they, the big newspaper owners, would say what should go over the radio.

"They also objected to the broadcasting companies using the free air, but did not say a word about the fact that the postoffice department carries the newspapers and magazines of the country for 90 million dollars a year less than it costs the government. In other words, the taxpayers of this country pay 90 million dollars a year to have the newspapers and magazines carried by the postoffice department. A subsidy of 90 million dollars a year to the publishers.

"And these same publishers wanted to set themselves up as the censors of the radio. In other words, the free press was going to censor free speech. In a speech on the floor of the senate I pointed out this amazing proposal of the publishers of the big papers and, knowing their papers to be full of propaganda, I proposed a bill that would help the newspapers clean their own house.

Minton Describes Bill.

"I proposed that it should be a crime for a publisher to publish as a fact anything he knows to be false. In other words, it would be a crime to publish a lie deliberately. That was a simple proposition.

"I know publishers may often publish things which may not be the facts, when they were honestly mistaken as to the facts, but it never occurred to me that any one would want to publish as a fact something he knew was a lie. The bill I proposed would have required proof in a court of law, before a jury, that the matter published as a fact was not only false but was known to be false before it was published.

"That proposal was represented to the country by the big newspaper owners as a proposal to censor the press. It wasn't censorship, it was the simple law of libel. Every state in the Union has a law punishing the publication of a falsehood that injures an individual.

"You say, if every state has a libel law, why have another? For the same reason we have federal kidnaping laws, and laws against transporting stolen automobiles. This law I proposed would make libel a federal offense and it would be an offense only if the matter was false and known to be false.

"But it would make it an offense to libel, or deliberately lie about, not only an individual but a group, such as labor, religious, political, or other organizations. It was not confined to the redress of individual wrongs.

Defends Proposed Measure.

"The bill was also represented as an attempt by me to muzzle the press. I did not want to muzzle the press. I only wanted to muzzle the liars, who know they were lying. If a publication wasn't deliberately lying the law would not apply. If it was, the liar was caught in the law. What could be fairer than that? That was the issue.

"But when you read about it in your paper, I was represented as attacking the free press. They never said a word to you about their proposal to censor free speech on the radio. I was defending free speech that was under attack by the newspaper owners.

"How did Mr. McCormick meet this issue? First, he said that he and I had never met. That is true, and I am sure I can stand that alright. He said he had never heard of me until I started out to censor the newspapers. Probably not, but I consider that a score in my favor.

"But, says Mr. McCormick, speaking of me, 'He could have known of me because of my searchings into the vicious alliance of crime and politics, especially in Indiana.'

"Mr. McCormick is quite right in his assumption that I had heard of him. But it wasn't because of his searchings into crime and politics.

"I heard of him by reading a book by Lundberg, entitled 'Imperial Hearst,' in which I read about crime and journalism, as practiced by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Mr. McCormick, in his speech, attempts to connect me up with Dillinger.

"How ridiculous that CHICAGO TRIBUNE trick was, every one in Indiana knows. Even my worst enemies know how silly that attempt was. I brand it here and now as a deliberate, infamous lie, without a shred of evidence to support it. All I know about Dillinger is that when he escaped he went to Chicago.

Quotes Lundberg Book.

"Let us see whose record resembles Dillinger's or Al Capone's. Let's take a look at the record of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, the Al Capone of journalism. Lundberg's book tells the story of how THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and another publisher, several years ago, got into a circulation war.

"He tells how both sides employed gun thugs, gangsters, and racketeers in open conflict to increase their circulation, in which little private war people were assaulted, shot, killed, and their property destroyed.

"I quote from Lundberg's book, page 154: 'THE TRIBUNE's truck of sluggers lay in wait at strategic points for the agents of Hearst's Examiner, the new name for the morning edition of the American. When they appeared, they were greeted with fusillades of shots that brought police and ambulances to the scene. The Hearst forces then resorted to counterambushes, with a delivery truck as a decoy. Newsboys, some of them crippled and unable to scamper to safety, were shot. Passing women were clipped by bullets.'

Prosecutor Criticized.

"The prosecutor at this time was a Mr. Wayman. On June 11, 1911, the Chicago Inter Ocean said of this TRIBUNE war: 'Why should not Mr. Wayman ascertain, and at least hold up to public reprobation, the men whose money nourished and sustained these bravos trained to swagger through the streets with automatic guns, in $5,000 automobiles, wounding or killing whosoever their employers dislike? But Mr. Wayman will not. He dare not. Everybody knows that.'

"Again I quote from Lundberg's book: 'On Aug. 22, 1911, Charles Gallenty, a newsboy at Chicago avenue and Robey street, refused to take thirty additional TRIBUNES, which he knew he couldn't sell, and THE TRIBUNE strong arm man assaulted him, knocked him down, kicked him, and drug him up an alley—all for the circulation of THE TRIBUNE.'

"Before a senate committee in 1911 the story was told of how the circulation manager of THE TRIBUNE assaulted and threw down an elevator shaft in the Tribune building one of the other men of the circulation department, and then shot at him. No prosecution, no indictment, no arrest was ever made. Do you think you could get away with that in your business? You wouldn't even want to.

Cites Acquittal Verdict.

"Again Lundberg says, the nearest any one came to answering before the bar of justice for the murders and terror was when the opposition succeeded in having the circulation manager of THE TRIBUNE indicted for shooting one of the opposition. THE TRIBUNE's man was tried and on the trial was defended by lawyers retained by THE TRIBUNE, and he was acquitted. Nice work TRIBUNE! There is a press that is free.

"I have given only a few of the instances of gangster tactics indulged in by THE TRIBUNE, as cited in Lundberg's book. This was the beginning of gangster warfare in Chicago. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, according to Lundberg, was one of the earliest racketeers.

"Suppose, Mr. McCormick, you tell the people whether Al Capone wasn't on the pay roll of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE at one time. Suppose you tell all THE TRIBUNE knows about the murder of Jake Lingle, your employé and friend of the underworld.

"From this recital from Lundberg's book it is easy to see where Mr. McCormick can learn a lot more about crime and its allies than by traveling to Indiana.

Rules Violated, Says Minton.

"THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE bears the reputation among newspaper men, as well as others, of violating most of the rules of decency that newspaper men have set up. If you want to see how it rates with newspaper men, read Rosten's 'Washington Correspondent.'

"When newspaper men talk to me they say: 'Don't class us with THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Why condemn all of us because there is such a sheet as that?'

"The answer is, I do not. I freely admit that the overwhelming majority of newspapers are fair, honest, and honorable and want to stay that way.

"Laws are not made for the majorities that are straight. Laws are made for the minority that will not obey the laws of God or the rights of man.

Majority Termed Honest.

"The overwhelming majority of people are not thieves, robbers, or murderers. You don't have to have laws for them. Laws are made for the Dillingers and Capones and other racketeers. It is an old saying that the law was not made for the honest man.

"THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE is read for its sport page, financial page, and the funnies. Few people give credence to its news and editorial columns. I leave Mr. McCormick to wallow in the filth of his editorial and news columns.

"I am grateful to the National Broadcasting company for the opportunity afforded me to answer in my feeble way the powerful CHICAGO TRIBUNE and its publisher, Mr. McCormick, who never heard of me."

Dies Mysteriously

Mrs. Nina Pierson Leviton, former Ziegfeld Follies beauty, who was found dead in Paris, France, yesterday, apparently a victim of an overdose of a sleeping potion.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 17.—Nina Pierson Leviton, a Wisconsin school teacher who became a Ziegfeld Follies star, was found dead in a hotel here today. Police said she apparently died of an overdose of a sleeping potion.

Broadway Is Shocked.

New York, Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Broadway was shocked tonight to learn of the death of Nina Pierson Leviton, former Follies star.

Tommy Manville, the asbestos fortune heir who once was engaged to marry her, said she had written to him two weeks ago asking for money.

"I didn't answer," Manville said, "because I had no secretary at the time. I didn't realize how much I loved her until she was gone."

He had police eject her from his Mamaroneck, N. Y., mansion last October.

Nina was divorced from Leviton in Mexico in 1935, at which time it was reported that she received a settlement of $10,000. She later learned that Leviton had inherited 5 million dollars and sued to have the divorce set aside. An appeal in this suit was pending at the time of her death.

Nina was born in Spooner, Wis., the daughter of a banker. After teaching in a country school she went to New York and was in the Follies in 1931.

COL. M'CORMICK WILL REPLY TO MINTON TALK

As soon as suitable time on the air can be arranged, Col. McCormick will reply to Mr. Minton's speech, which is printed in full on this page. Meanwhile, attention is called to the fact that if the Minton bill had been enacted, THE TRIBUNE could not have published the senator's harangue without violating that law because the editor knows the speech is filled with falsehoods.

Meanwhile, too, the reader will not fail to observe that Mr. Minton did not dare make his charges in his own name; he attributed them to one Lundberg, author of a volume entitled "Imperial Hearst," which, at least in its chapters dealing with Mr. Hearst's Chicago career, contains numerous untruths, and, in its reference to THE TRIBUNE, is a tissue of lies.

Mr. Minton must know, or could easily have learned, that Col. McCormick was not editor of THE TRIBUNE and was not concerned with its management at the time of the alleged incidents of 1911. The two men then in charge of the paper are now dead and cannot answer for themselves. Col. McCormick will reply on their behalf.

32 Firemen Overcome by Smoke in Newspaper Blaze

New York, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Smoke overcame thirty-two firemen early today as they fought a three-alarm fire in the newsprint warehouse of the New York Journal and American on the lower east side Manhattan waterfront. Officials estimated the damage at $75,000. Forty members of the newspaper's editorial staf, working in an adjoining building, were driven from from their desks, but the paper was published as usual.

EDUCATION IS UP TO YOU, DYKSTRA TELLS FRESHMEN

Madison, Wis., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—President Clarence A. Dykstra today told the 2,400 University of Wisconsin freshmen that "education cannot be poured into you, nor is it a cloak that can merely be put on and worn. Education must come from within you. You must be receptive to it."

In welcoming the first year students Dykstra called for an appreciation of personal liberty and academic freedom in America.

Registrar Curtis Merriman said the final freshmen enrollment would be slightly under that of a year ago.

Brig. Gen. Joyce Named to Ft. Bliss Cavalry Command

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Brig. Gen. Kenyon A. Joyce, commander of the 1st cavalry brigade at Fort Clark, Tex., today was ordered to the command of the 1st cavalry division at Fort Bliss, Tex.

EDITOR AND HIS WIFE GET GUN PERMIT AFTER ASSAULT BY POLICEMAN

Vincennes, Ind., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Permits to carry firearms were issued today to Sam and Emily Emison, Vincennes newspaper editors, following an attack made on them Friday night by Jeff Thomas, policeman. The permit was signed by William S. Hoover, Circuit judge.

Emison and his wife are under the care of a physician. They said Thomas was incensed by an item in their paper accusing him and another officer of running a red trafic light in the police car. Mrs. Emison suffered a broken nose, loss of an upper tooth, and a bruised knee, which she said resulted from a kick by Thomas. Emison's right eye was blackened and he suffered bruises about the body.

Since the May primary Emison's paper, the Vincennes Post, has been criticizing the city administration. The paper recently published news items criticizing the building of Kimmell's park, $65,000 unit in the city park system, dedicated last Sunday.

Hints Maury Maverick May Be Porto Rican Governor

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico.—Sept. 17.—Maury Maverick, who recently lost the Democratic renomination for congress in Texas, today was mentioned as likely successor to Gov. Blanton Winship of Porto Rico. The newspaper El Mundo said Winship is to undertake a diplomatic mission for the United States. Frank Porter, president of Graham university, North Carolina, was mentioned as another candidate for the governorship. Winship flew to Washington, D. C., today.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

ROOSEVELT HITS 'FEAR MONGERS'; DEFENDS REGIME

Makes Constitution Day Speech Over Air.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—In leading the nation in the observance of Constitution day, President Roosevelt today declared that the men of greatest stature in American history were those who sought to make the great document workable in the face of new problems and changing conditions.

Behind these words the President took the defensive against an army of hostile speakers of the day throughout the country, who leveled the accusation of dictatorship at the Roosevelt administration.

Anticipates Attacks.

Observing the adage that a good offensive is the best defense, Mr. Roosevelt assailed his political and economic enemies as "professional fear mongers of 1938" and charged they are retarding the nation's progress. Warding off attacks before they were delivered he asserted that Washington, Adams, Hamilton and Clinton were labeled traitors and dictators in their day.

The President delivered over the radio the speech he was to have made in person at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., in celebration of the 150th anniversary of the ratification of the constitution by New York state. He canceled his personal appearance yesterday in order to remain in Washington during the European crisis.

There was no reference to the Czechoslovakian situation in the address, other than these words: "It is with deep personal disappointment that I find the affairs of the world such that I cannot be with my neighbors in Poughkeepsie today."

Belief that the President might warn Europe of the dangers of war from the field of an American civil war battlefield was exploded today when the White House announced that the President canceled his projected visit to Chattanooga, Tenn., to participate in the seventy-fifth anniversary of the battle of Chattanooga.

The President inferentially defended his unsuccessful efforts to purge conservative Democratic senators and his ill fated plan to pack the Supreme court.

President Draws Parallel.

He was well aware that opposition orators later would charge that through his attempts to disrupt the check and balance between the executive, legislative, and judicial branches of the government he was furthering dictatorial ambitions. He drew a parallel between opposition to the constitution in 1788 and his policies in 1938.

"Believe me," he said, "the viewers with alarm, the patrons of ghosts and hobgoblins in those days had little to learn from the professional fear mongers of 1938.

"Then, as now, there were men and women afraid of the future—distrustful of their own ability to meet changed conditions, shortsighted in their dog-in-the-manger conception of local and national needs."

At the outset of his address the President recalled, with pride, that his great-great-grandfather, Isaac Roosevelt, cast his vote for ratification of the constitution in Poughkeepsie's court house 150 years ago. The court house is five miles from the Roosevelt family home at Hyde Park.

Move Birds Indoors

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

The long-legged aquatic birds at Lincoln park zoo were shooed into their winter quarters yesterday. Fifteen of them, including a Saris crane, Domescella crane, African crown crane, a Bariboo stork, and a Jabiru stork, were herded into their warmer home. All of the birds have clipped wings and cannot fly, but after a two hour chase Floyd Young, zoo director, admitted they aren't much handicapped.

A new African lioness moved in at the zoo yesterday, Mr. Young announced. She has spent several years in the Henry Vilas park zoo in Madison, Wis. Her coming brought the zoo's lion family up to seven, five of which are females.

ROOSEVELT PLAN PERILS U.S. PEACE, DECLARES LYONS

Oregon, Ill., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—The Roosevelt administration has embarked on a path which will lead to participation in any major European war that may arise, Richard J. Lyons, Republican nominee for United States senator, declared in a speech here today.

Lyons spoke at a Constitution day program and Republican rally at the Ogle county fair grounds.

Chicago Speech Recalled.

"At the outer drive bridge in Chicago," said Lyons, "the President startled the world by suggesting that America join an international police force for protection against so-called aggressor nations. The bitterness of foreign resentment had scarcely died when the President, at a bridge in Canada, pledged our country to protect and defend Great Britain. Ambassador Bullitt in Paris recently echoed his master's voice by telling the world that France and the United States were indefectively united in war as in peace.

"Unless the aroused millions of our people demand that Washington keep us from foreign alliances either by ill considered word or secret treaty, it may be too late.

People Entitled to Statement.

"The common people who fight the battles and bear the cost of war are entitled to be told whether they are being committed to participate in a European conflict. They are entitled to have that statement from the President of the United States.

"Whether Hitler and Chamberlain work out peace or war, regardless of the outcome of the crisis in Europe, America must let it be known that it is neither ally nor foe of the nations in conflict."

Frank Knox, Republican candidate for the vice presidency in 1936, also addressed the Constitution day audience at the fair grounds.

JAPS TAKE TOWN; WITHIN 50 MILES OF HANKOW R. R.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Japanese forces driving westward north of the Yangtze river toward Hankow reported tonight they had captured Hwangchwan, in Honan province. They continued to advance within fifty miles of the important Peking-Hankow railway, it was said.

The Japanese are aiming at Sinyang, a station on the rail line. From Sinyang it is only 100 miles due south along the railway to Hankow. The Japanese said they captured Hwangchwan after a five hour attack during which Chinese forces retreated to near Loshan.

A second Japanese column operating westward south of the Yangtze reported it had reached a point about fifty miles southwest of Kiukiang, Yangtze river base of naval operations against Hankow.

China Appeals to League.

GENEVA, Sept. 17.—(AP)—China again appealed to the league of nations today. Its representative demanded that steps be taken against what it charged was Japan's extension of mobilization orders to include Pacific islands held under league mandate. Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, Chinese delegate to the league, said in a private meeting of the league council that Japan had no right to decree mobilization in the Marianne, Caroline, and Marshall Islands. These are former German possessions.

G. O. P. SPEAKERS WARN OF DESIGNS ON CONSTITUTION

New Deal Plans Renewed Assaults, Says McNary.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Republicans urged the country, in a series of addresses last night, to maintain "constant vigilance" lest the Roosevelt administration renew what they said were efforts to evade the constitution.

They spoke at rallies scattered from Boston, Mass., to Tacoma, Wash., commemorating the adoption of the constitution by the Philadelphia convention 151 years ago. The addresses at the major rallies were broadcast.

The leader of Republican forces in the senate, Charles L. McNary of Oregon, said in an address prepared for delivery from Tacoma:

"The recent efforts to give the federal government authority lodged by the constitution in the states and to hand over that authority to the President for the most part have been beaten back. But there is reason to believe that similar efforts, perhaps more devious even than a Supreme court packing bill, will be made again to evade the provisions of the constitution."

Capper Assails "Purge."

Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, in an address at Topeka, said it was the duty of congress to refuse passage of the administration's court and government reorganization bills.

"For performing such duties unflinchingly and unafraid," Capper said, "members of congress should be honored by their countrymen, not purged from public life by order of the chief executive. Indeed, those members of congress who were unfaithful to their trust are the ones who should be purged from that body by order of the people."

Robert A. Taft, Republican senatorial nominee in Ohio and son of the former President and chief justice, condemned both the court and government reorganization bills, asserting:

"Both bills were defeated because they would destroy one of the fundamental principles of the American constitution, but if a New Deal congress is elected in November there can be little doubt that both will be law by July 1, 1939."

Quotes Franklin's Warning.

John Hamilton, Republican national chairman, who introduced the speakers, quoted Benjamin Franklin to convey his plea for vigilance. Hamilton said that Franklin was asked by a neighbor at the conclusion of the constitutional convention, "What kind of a government have you given us?"

"A republic—if you can keep it so," was Franklin's answer.

Representative Bruce Barton of New York said the constitution is "the most living, important thing in your daily life. It isn't," he added, "an old document covered with small writing preserved in the library of congress."

Police Park Anywhere! But He's No Policeman

A police officer can park his car any place. Thus spoke George Gephart yesterday to firemen who protested against his parking in front of their station house in Waukegan. But when Waukegan police found that he was no policeman, and was drunk, they locked him up. Gephart, 23 years old, lives at 1411 North McKinley road, Lake Forest.

MAYOR PLANS CLEANUP DRIVE IN LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Los Angeles' municipal government will be given a thorough house cleaning if Superior Judge Fletcher Bowron has his way.

Bowron, the candidate of the citizen's independent vice investigating committee, was elected mayor yesterday by a plurality of approximately 107,000 over Frank L. Shaw, the recalled incumbent. He will take office Sept. 26.

It was said that Bowron will demand the resignations of Police Chief James E. Davis and City Health Officer George Parrish. The resignation of a number of city commissioners, especially police commissioners, also may be asked.

PARABLE OF THE BUTTONS

By CALEB

YESTERDAY A LETTER from a young man came to Caleb's desk with the words, "Somehow I can't get ahead," it said. "The job I've been given is a small and unimportant one. What can I do?" Caleb's answer was to cite the parable of the buttons, well known among us here.

Once, years ago, our button department seemed on the wane. Styles no longer called for elaborate patterns and devices formed with buttons. The young man in charge of the button department faced what looked like a small and unimportant job. In some discouragement he went to John G. Shedd, then manager of the business. "Have courage," said Mr. Shedd, "work hard—and use your head."

The words, emphasized by a friendly pat on the shoulder, stayed with the young button man. For weeks he planned and schemed—and business continued to fall off. Then he launched a campaign destined to last for many years and to build his button department into preeminence, with a steady record of growth and profitable operation.

He began to haunt museums in his spare time. He designed buttons, the like of which had never been seen before. He went to manufacturers with his designs—but found them dubious. Finally he persuaded one to produce buttons to his design—but he had to agree to take 500 gross. He came home and waited in cold suspense for the shipment. In the months after its arrival he sold 1,500 gross of the one design! The manufacturers were convinced—after that they were glad to produce his designs without argument.

He visited factories throughout the country. He sponsored sewing exhibits in schools, beseiged teachers with new ideas in design and schemes for buttons. He dinned buttons into the ears of his associates—made them button conscious, as it were.

The space allotted him on the first floor was coveted by others. He had to hold it by showing a profit. He did that and more. He launched ideas and modes in buttons single handed—his volume increased through the years. In the past two decades, his staff has grown from five salespeople to some twenty-four today.

The small job has been made into a big and important one. He worked hard and used his head—and we can think of no better answer to our young friend's letter than this parable of the buttons.

DOCTORS OPPOSE FEDERAL HEALTH INSURANCE TAX

Delegates Approve Plans for Hospital Care.

By unanimous vote the house of delegates of the American Medical association yesterday went on record as opposing the government's proposal for compulsory sickness insurance tax. The delegates, meeting in emergency session at the Palmer house, asserted that such a plan would lend itself to political control and manipulation.

The delegates, however, came out in favor of hospital service insurance, such as Chicago's plan for hospital care. They also declared it was practicable to develop voluntary cash indemnity insurance plans to cover, in whole or in part, the costs of emergency or prolonged illness.

The 175 delegates concluded a two day meeting last evening. They form the governing body of the medical association, which represents 110,000 physicians throughout the country. The emergency session was called for consideration of the federal medical care program. This program, submitted at a national health conference in Washington in July, would require an expenditure of $850,000,000 a year.

The $850,000,000 would be to expand public health service and hospital facilities and for medical care for the needy. The delegates voted unanimously for extension of the health service. They declared, however, that there is at present greater need for use of existing hospital facilities than for construction of more hospitals. As for the medical care of the indigent, the delegates said this should be organized and administered by local government units.

Favor Health Department.

The delegates also favored the establishment of a federal department of health with a secretary who shall be a physician and a member of the presidential cabinet. Another recommendation was for a disability compensation program.

At the morning session yesterday a revolutionary change in ethics of the association was suggested by Dr. Charles A. Dukes of Oakland, Cal. He presented a resolution urging that district groups of physicians be allowed to advertise their service and its cost. The plan would not permit advertising by any individual physician but only by state and local medical societies on an impersonal basis. The advertising would concern low cost group medical plans and would be directed to the attention of the indigent.

Barred from Consideration.

The Dukes resolution was approved by the committee on miscellaneous matters. It was barred from further consideration or action by the delegates, however, when the association judicial council ruled that its subject matter did not come within the call for the emergency session.

Health service insurance was regarded as the most important issue at the meeting. The report, adopted unanimously by the delegates, read in part:

"We approve the principle of hospital service insurance, which is being widely adopted throughout the country. . . . We particularly recommend it as a community project. Experience in the operation of hospital service insurance or group hospitalization plans has demonstrated that these plans should confine themselves to provision of hospital facilities and should not include any type of medical care.

"We recognize that health needs and means to supply such needs vary throughout the United States. Health needs usually depend on local conditions and therefore are primarily local problems. We therefore encourage county or district medical societies, with the approval of their state medical societies, to develop appropriate means to meet their local requirements.

"In addition to insurance for hospitalization, we believe it is practicable to develop cash indemnity insurance plans to cover the costs of emergency or prolonged illness. Agencies set up to provide such insurance should comply with state statutes and regulations to insure their soundness and financial responsibility, and should have approval of county and state medical societies.

"We are not willing to foster any system of compulsory health insurance. We are convinced that it is a complicated, burocratic system which has no place in a democratic state. It would undoubtedly set up a far reaching tax system, with great increase in the cost of government. That it would lend itself to political control and manipulation, there is no doubt.

Seek Full Use of Hospitals.

"We recognize the soundness of the principles of workmen's compensation laws and recommend the expansion of such legislation to provide for meeting the costs of illness sustained as a result of employment in industry."

In urging full use of existing hospital facilities rather than building additional ones, the delegates reported: "The stability and efficiency of many existing church and voluntary hospitals could be assured by payment to them of the costs of the necessary hospitalization of the medically indigent."

Concerning appropriation of funds for the indigent, the delegates said: "Since the indigent now constitute a large group of the population, we recognize that the necessity for state aid for medical care may arise in poorer communities and the federal government may need to provide funds when the state is unable to meet these emergencies. . . .

Appropriations Welcomed.

"In the face of the vanishing support of philanthropy, the medical profession will welcome the appropriation of funds to provide care for the needy, providing first, that the public welfare administrative procedures are simplified and coördinated, and second, that the provision of medical services is arranged by responsible local public officials in coöperation with the local medical profession and its allied groups.

"We feel that in each state a system should be developed to meet the recommendation of the national health conference in conformity with its suggestion that: 'The rôle of the federal government should be principally that of giving financial and technical aid to the states in their development of sound programs through procedures largely of their own choice."

Committee Is Appointed.

Seven physicians were appointed as a body to consult with federal authorities on the national health program. They are Dr. Irvin Abell of Louisville, Ky., president of the medical association; Dr. Edward H. Cary of Dallas, Tex.; Dr. Walter E. Vest of Huntington, W. Va.; Dr. Walter Donaldson of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Dr. Fred Rankin of Lexington, Ky.; Dr. Frederick Sondern of New York City, and Dr. Henry A. Luce of Detroit, Mich.

The meeting of the house of delegates was the third such emergency session in the history of the association. The first was when America entered the world war in 1917 and the second was in 1935 when the federal social security act was under consideration.

Actress to Wed

FRANCES DRAKE.

New York, Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Word has been received here from Hollywood of the engagement of Frances Drake, screen actress, to Cecil John Arthur Howard, brother of the earl of Suffolk and a grandson of the late Levi Z. Leiter of Chicago.

Miss Drake, a native New Yorker, attended Havergal college in Toronto and a private school in Arundel, England. Since her entrance into motion pictures here in 1934, she has appeared in many screen productions.

The prospective bridegroom is the second son of the late nineteenth earl of Suffolk. He is a nephew of the late Lady Mary Victoria Curzon, the former Miss Mary Leiter, who was the first wife of the late Marquess Curzon of Kedleston, one-time viceroy to India. His mother, now the dowager countess of Suffolk, is the former Miss Marguerite Hyde Leiter, youngest daughter of the late Levi Z. Leiter.

RAIL SURGEONS OPEN CONGRESS IN CITY TOMORROW

A three day congress of railway surgeons will open in the Palmer house tomorrow. In connection there will be a large scientific exhibit and also an interesting technical exhibit.

The congress will be the forty-ninth annual meeting. Surgical groups of the Pennsylvania, Milwaukee, Rock Island, Illinois Central, Burlington, Chicago and Eastern, and Chicago and North Western railroads will meet jointly.

Special attention will be given to the types of injuries treated by railway surgeons.

RULES DIVORCES GRANTED IN RENO VOID IN MICHIGAN

Kalamazoo, Mich., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Reno divorces are void in Michigan, according to a ruling made by Circuit Judge George V. Weimer, when he granted a divorce to Warren Springer of Wakeshama from Mrs. Olive R. Springer Cox. Judge Weimer held that Nevada courts lacked divorce jurisdiction over a Michigan couple. Mrs. Cox failed in two attempts to secure a divorce from Springer in 1936 and 1937 and went to Reno where a decree was granted. She then married Mr. Cox in Indiana and a child was born.

WISCONSIN G.O.P. PROSPECTS HELD BEST IN 6 YEARS

Democrats Hope to Wreck Coalition Movement.

BY THORNTON SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—A study of the political campaign which will end with the primary Tuesday indicates that there is greater enthusiasm among Wisconsin Republicans than there has been for at least six years.

There also are signs that there is a greater breach among the La Follette Progressives than there has been since they were organized as a separate third party.

The hope of the Democrats, apparently, is to reëlect F. Ryan Duffy to the United States senate and quash the coalition movement by defeating Robert K. Henry and winning a primary victory for Jerome F. Fox, convention indorsed candidate for governor.

G. O. P. Is Enthusiastic.

Republican enthusiasm is evidenced by the industrious campaign being made by the six candidates for the senate nomination. No one fights very hard for a job that is not worth having, and each of the candidates has worked night and day for the last two months.

Whichever of the Republican candidates wins the nomination, observers feel that he will be able to defeat Duffy in the contest for his seat in the November election.

There is no proper basis for forecasting which of the six has the advantage. Privately each one of the six has expressed confidence of winning. All have campaigned earnestly against the New Deal. Whoever the nominee is, if he is elected, he will be a vital force in opposition to the Roosevelt administration.

The Republican nominees are Stephen McMahon, former federal tax commissioner; John B. Chapple, Ashland newspaper editor; William J. Campbell, Oshkosh lumberman and old time party worker; Alexander Wiley, Chippewa Falls attorney and candidate for governor two years ago; William H. Stafford, former congressman from Milwaukee, and Edward J. Samp, former state committee chairman.

Duffy is without opposition. His main support is the organization of Democratic postmasters and officeholders. Even his own party resents his supine response to the President's bidding. His record is attacked as blank check indorsed to the President.

Socialists Back Amlie.

The real fight on principles has been in the Progressive primary between Thomas Amlie, radical candidate for the senate nomination, and Herman L. Ekern, lieutenant governor.

Amlie, present congressman from the 1st district, has the support of the Milwaukee Socialists and all extremists in the radical group. Ekern, whose loyalty to the La Follettes dates back to his relations with the first Bob La Follette, is the candidate of the old Progressives who give signs of being frightened by the possibility of having to go along with the radicalism of Amlie. There is a clear breakdown of the traditional solidarity of the radicals.

Ekern has attacked Amlie's industrial expansion bill as one to create an absolute dictator in the person of an industrial director.

Under the bill the administration would control an annual expansion program, fix production, and allot quotas for each concern in each industry.

Amlie is the first Progressive who has dared look for public office without the express approval of the La Follettes. Ekern is accepted as the La Follette candidate, although the governor has done nothing openly to help him.

G. O. P. Chance Is Seen.

Betting tonight in Milwaukee was three to one that a Republican senator would be elected if Amlie were to win the Progressive nomination. Responsible farm and small business voters would flock to the Republican candidate. On the other hand, if Ekern is nominated the extreme radicals are expected to turn to Duffy.

Aside from Henry, who has been a dark horse, there has been a brisk competition for the Republican nomination for governor between Julius P. Heil, wealthy Milwaukee manufacturer, and James G. Peterson, a former Progressive and a leader in the coöperative movement.

Fox, the Democratic indorsed candidate for governor, has campaigned chiefly in an attack on coalition. Henry is his only opposition for the nomination. The liveliest spot in the Democratic party has been the campaign put on by Mrs. Louise Givan, national committeewoman and candidate for secretary of state. She is opposed by William Callahan, son of John M. Callahan, former national committeeman and leader of the Jeffersonian democracy. Mrs. Givan has toured the state with a beauty chorus of girl workers from Democratic headquarters.

KIDNAP AND ROB TWO WOMEN OF AN AUTOMOBILE

Hudson, Wis., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Mrs. C. J. Reiter, wife of the publisher of the Hudson Star-Observer, and daughter, Julieann, 19 years old, were abducted by three men tonight, driven about in the Reiter car for half an hour, tied with picture wire, and left by the roadside.

The women were entering their home when the trio forced them to return to their car. One of the men had a revolver. They drove near a farm six miles from here, bound the hands and feet of the women, and drove away. The captives soon freed themselves and were driven to Hudson by a farmer.

Shortly after the kidnaping Nellie's tavern, nine miles from here, was held up.

BURGLAR TAKES CANDY-DEALER'S 18 YEAR SAVINGS

For eighteen years Pasquale Daddio, owner of a little candy store at 612 South Racine avenue, has been putting away his savings. Seven years ago he withdrew his money from the bank, thinking home would be safer. Since then he had kept his savings in a coffee tin, deep at the bottom of his steamer trunk, in his flat a 615 South Racine avenue.

Last night a burglar broke into the flat and into the trunk and took the coffee tin with the money in it. Daddio despairingly told Maxwell street police the money amounted to $3,800 in $5, $10 and $20 bills. He was grateful, though, he said, that the thief overlooked a small bucket filled with nickels, dimes and quarters, the amount of which he didn't know.

WOMEN TO LEARN TIEUP OF POLITICS WITH HOME LIFE

G.O.P. County Conference Called This Week.

BY DORIS LOCKERMAN.

Turn on a water spigot and you admit politics. Build a new home or renovate an old one, and you ask for politics. Go to a movie, play bridge, or get a manicure, and you brush shoulders with politics.

These, explained Mrs. Mabel Krutckoff, woman's chairman of the Cook county Republican central committee, are the real reasons for the first official conference of the Republican women of Cook county. The conference will be held next Wednesday and Thursday in the La Salle hotel.

"There are two kinds of women," Mrs. Krutckoff pointed out, "the woman who is bored with politics, who thinks it doesn't concern her, and the woman who is eager to know. She has been bewildered, often depressed by her lack of information. She seeks a philosophy to which she can cling."

Program Planned for All.

The program, Mrs. Krutckoff said, is planned for both these types. It will be a generous one, designed to appeal to the club woman, the housewife, and the professional women. Housing and taxes, public schools, labor unions, courts, the theater, all will be discussed by experts. A questionnaire will be circulated whereby women may query the speakers on confusing points.

The first session will open at 10 a. m. Wednesday. Edward F. Moore, chairman of the Republican central committee; John E. Babb, attorney and chairman of the board of governors of the Illinois Young Republicans, and Patrick Prescott Jr., attorney, will speak.

Mrs. Zereita Peace, member of the Women's Trade Union league, and Mrs. B. Fain Tucker, attorney, will speak at the afternoon session.

Three Meetings Thursday.

There will be three meetings Thursday. The first, in the morning, will be addressed by George Nixon, former president of the Chicago Real Estate board; Mrs. Arthur Rice, world traveler, and Miss Beryl Krutckoff, member of the Chicago Drama league. The afternoon session will introduce Wiley B. Garvin, nominee for state superintendent of public instruction, and Miss Kathryn M. Ford, former co-chairman of the Young Republican National federation.

Thursday evening's session will be a dinner meeting for both men and women, the official banquet of Cook county Republicans.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS HEAR KEYNOTER RAP G. O. P. CANDIDATES

John E. Cassidy of Peoria delivered the keynote address yesterday at the convention of the Young Democrats of Cook County in the Hotel Sherman. Six hundred and twenty-one delegates attended.

Cassidy said he could not tell the assembly what the issues in the fall campaign would be because "the Republicans have not made their position clear." He said the Democrats offer a group of experienced public servants, while the Republican candidates have "narrow records and limited experience."

Among other speakers were Representative Benjamin S. Adamowski, majority leader of the house in the general assembly; County Judge Edmond K. Jarecki, Sherif John Toman, Probate Court Clerk Mitchell C. Robin, and M. P. Akers, Gov. Horner's press chief, who represented the governor.

Joseph Smietanka was elected president. Other officers named are Maurice Perlin, first vice president; Cecil Meyer, second vice president; Mrs. Milo La Reau, secretary, and David Malthrop, treasurer.

Transport Plane Crashes in Panama; 1 Killed, 5 Hurt

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Six passengers were injured, one fatally, today when a Panamanian owned transport plane crashed. It had just taken off from the National airport for David, Panama. The passenger who died after the accident was Heliodoro Vilamil.

PRESIDENT ASKS N. Y. VOTERS TO WHIP O'CONNOR

Urges Support for Fay to Beat House Leader.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—[Special.] — President Roosevelt today made a final appeal for the defeat of Representative John J. O'Connor [D., N. Y.], chairman of the powerful rules committee of the house of representatives.

The President also urged the voters of the 16th New York congressional district, which O'Connor represents, to vote for James H. Fay in the primary next Tuesday.

The possibility of defeating Mr. O'Connor offers the last hope of a single success in the President's undertaking to purge the Democratic party of all but yes-men. His senate purge was a 100 per cent flop. Nine senate Democrats originally marked for slaughter in the primaries this year because of their opposition to the scheme to pack the Supreme court have been renominated.

Secretary Tells Views.

While making a final appeal for the defeat of O'Connor in a White House statement released by his secretary, Stephen Early, the President let it be known that he would not further jeopardize his political prestige by a personal invasion of the 16th New York congressional district.

Early said the President would make no speech in New York, but would stand upon his press conference statement of Aug. 16 in which he excoriated Mr. O'Connor as "one of the most effective obstructionists in the lower house." Today Early issued the following statement as "representing very clearly the views of the President":

"The President believes that every voter in the 16th New York congressional district must know by now how he feels about that particular primary election. He believes, knowing Mr. Fay, that he would truly represent the voters of his district. Of course, he hopes Mr. Fay will win."

Fay Indorsed Aug. 16.

Mr. Roosevelt first indorsed Fay in his Aug. 16 statement blasting O'Connor and Senator Millard E. Tydings of Maryland as "betrayers" who gave lip service to the President in 1936 and then knifed him in congress. The President personally put Fay in the race against O'Connor on Aug. 9, the day he arrived at Pensacola, Fla., from a fishing cruise and decided upon his "march through Georgia" against Senator Walter F. George.

Fay is a deputy collector of internal revenue. In 1934 he almost defeated O'Connor, a veteran of sixteen years' service in the house, for the Democratic nomination. In 1936, however, Fay managed O'Connor's campaign.

Allen W. Dulles, lawyer and former diplomat, is seeking the Republican nomination over O'Connor. He calls O'Connor a Democratic invader and contends a vote for him is a vote for Tammany.

Senator Joseph F. Guffey [D., Pa.], who first proclaimed the purge in a speech approved by President Roosevelt on the night of Aug. 20, 1937, returned from Europe today praising the President's "courage" in seeking the election of yes-men. It was Guffey who first denounced as traitors the Democratic senators who fought the court packing bill, mentioning three of them by name.

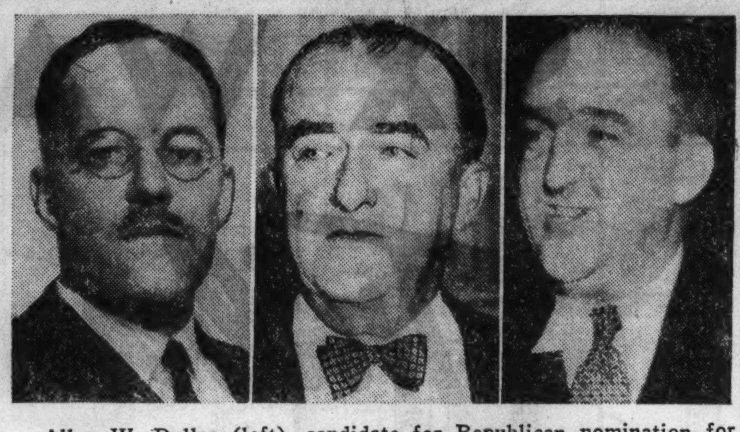
Talks of Liberal Party.

"I think the President showed great courage going into three of the most conservative states in America and leading the fight for liberalism," Guffey said, referring to Maryland, Georgia, and South Carolina. "If there is to be a liberal party in the United States the only hope is through the Democratic party and not through a third party."

The President's left wing advisers hope he will lead a third party movement and seek a third term if he cannot control the Democratic party in 1940. Guffey's statement does not necessarily mean that he would refuse to follow Mr. Roosevelt, for the Guffey political principles are noted for their extraordinary flexibility.

Mr. Guffey has an engagement next week with the senate campaign committee concerning a violation of the criminal code in soliciting funds from federal officeholders and WPA workers in Pennsylvania. He refused to talk about it today, saying he would see Chairman Morris Sheppard [D., Tex.] of the committee.

Face Final Purge Primary



Allen W. Dulles (left), candidate for Republican nomination for representative in congress from the 16th New York district; Representative John J. O'Connor (center), chairman of house rules committee and candidate for both Democratic and Republican nominations, and James H. Fay, 100 per cent Roosevelt entrant in Democratic primary.

Waits in Stranger's Car for Ride; Jailed as Thief

Raymond A. Jadrich, 21 years old, said a stranger invited him to go for a ride in Champaign yesterday. When he came out of a store and got into the car the stranger wasn't there. But police were, and they accused him of having taken the car five minutes earlier. Jandrich planned to enroll as a junior in the University of Illinois tomorrow. Police notified his father, Attorney Joseph A. Jadrich, 1628 Victoria street, North Chicago.

MASSACHUSETTS' GOVERNOR RACES HOLD SPOTLIGHT

4 from Each Party Vie in Tuesday's Primary.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 17.—[Special.] —One of the hardest fought primary battles in recent Massachusetts history will culminate Tuesday with voters nominating full state tickets for both major parties and candidates in fourteen congressional districts.

With no race for United States senator involved this year, interest centers on the gubernatorial contest. The Democratic fight is so well balanced that any one of four candidates is conceded a chance to win the seat of Gov. Charles F. Hurley. The Republican contest also involves four men.

Hurley is seeking a second term, a traditional right of Massachusetts governors. Opposing him are former Gov. James M. Curley, Lieut. Gov. Francis E. Kelly, and former Representative Richard M. Russell, whose father once was governor of the state.

Former Gov. Curley is still believed to be suffering from the setback he received last year when he stepped from the governor's chair to run for the United States senate. Curley had been grooming himself for the senate fight through two terms as mayor of Boston and one as governor. He was beaten by Republican Henry Cabot Lodge.

However, Curley has held his own in a campaign this year which has been featured by the variety of epithets candidates have used on one another. He described Hurley as a "betrayer of President Roosevelt." Other terms used in the free for all namecalling have been "moron," "plunderer," "renegade," and "faker."

While laying no direct claim to presidential support, Curley has indorsed the New Deal administration and has promised to support it.

Russell has laid extravagant claims to New Deal support, supplemented by indorsements from James M. Landis, dean of the Harvard law school and former chairman of the securities exchange commission.

Lieut. Gov. Kelly has fought Gov. Hurley at every turn since their election to their respective offices.

Probably the strongest man in the Republican gubernatorial race is Leverett Saltonstall, who was speaker of the Massachusetts assembly when he ran successfully for the lieutenant governorship in 1936. He was beaten last year by Kelly.

William M. McMasters, only advocate of the Townsend pension plan, is his most interesting opponent.

The others in the race are Richard Whitcomb and Frederick Butler. Neither has a strong political background, but Whitcomb is making a strenuous campaign as a "workingman's man."

ICKES QUASHES CITY'S HOPE FOR SUBWAY FUNDS

Lays Aside Application for 14 Million Grant.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes today virtually killed Chicago's hopes for a subway. He announced that he had "temporarily laid aside" the city's application for a Public Works administration grant of $14,238,000.

Ickes said the request for the grant for three loop subways had been shelved in order to spread the 14 million dollars among smaller projects throughout Illinois. During the last week he adopted a policy of favoring small projects over large projects.

The PWA administrator insisted that his mind is still open on the subway project. He said he might yet approve the city's application if it is found feasible from an engineering project viewpoint and if funds are available. This pledge was made to Senator James Hamilton Lewis [D., Ill.], who called to make the final plea for Chicago.

Hope Considered Dim.

This was considered to be but a faint hope, however. The special engineering committee which Ickes appointed to look into the feasibility of the project is expected to turn in a report which, while not unfavorable, will block the project. The committee will make its report next week.

The report of the committee, it was learned, will suggest so many revisions of the plans drafted by city engineers that the city will be unable to complete the work within the period required by the PWA. Under law all projects must be under way by Jan. 1 and must be substantially completed by July 1, 1940.

Over and above the question of engineering feasibility the death blow to the subway was seen in Ickes' statement about the availability of money. The 14 million dollars asked for the system represents virtually all the balance due the state.

Prospect Viewed as Dead.

If the application is temporarily laid aside in order to spread funds on lesser projects throughout the state no funds will be available for the grant even though the engineering report should be favorable.

For this reason it was generally accepted at PWA headquarters that the Chicago 28 million dollar subway project was as dead as a dodo, even though it was conceded it is faintly possible that it can be revived if Ickes should approve the application before any substantial grants are made for smaller projects in Illinois.

After his conference with Ickes Senator Lewis said he was certain the secretary was hopeful that the engineers' report might be favorable so that he could approve the project. He confessed, however, that Ickes made no definite promise.

PASTOR OUSTED AS COMMUNIST BY FARM UNION

Rev. C. C. Williams.

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 17.—(AP)—H. L. Mitchell, executive secretary of the Southern Tenant Farmers' union, today reported the ouster of the Rev. Claude C. Williams from the union's executive council after discovery of a document, which he said outlined plans for the capture of the farmers' union for the communist party.

"Williams, according to the document," the union's announcement said, "is a member of the communist party and was to lead a movement to take over the sharecroppers' organization."

Williams is director of Commonwealth college at Mena, Ark. He denied membership in the communist party.

ARMY DESERTER SEIZED IN THEFT FROM BLIND MAN

William O'Brien, who is blind, invited a pleasant young man, a casual acquaintance, into the O'Brien home at 3053 Cullerton avenue ten days ago. The young man spent a pleasant evening and left. O'Brien discovered on Thursday that $8 was missing from a dresser drawer. Yesterday the police arrested his erstwhile friend, Stanley Matyga, 21 years old, 2654 West 21st street, for questioning. Maytag denied taking the blind man's money, but admitted he was absent without leave from the United States army.

Off to Invite Legion

Mayor and Mrs. Kelly, departing for Los Angeles, smile good-by to their children through train window.

Mayor Kelly and Mrs. Kelly left Chicago on the Super Chief last evening bound for Los Angeles, Cal. The mayor is going west to extend to the American Legion, meeting in Los Angeles, his official invitation to hold its 1939 convention in Chicago. A dispatch from Los Angeles last night indicated that the invitation had been accepted in advance.

Before leaving, Mayor Kelly said his impression from reading Washington dispatches on the subject was that Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes had not officially rejected Chicago's plea for federal aid for subway construction. He said he hoped the engineers' report on the city's subway plan would be favorable.

"If my presence in Washington is in any way necessary or desirable in connection with the subway project," he said, "I'll take a plane from Los Angeles."

The report of the engineers whom Ickes appointed to study the subway proposal is to be submitted to him in Washington early this week.

CHOP UP 17 MORE BET DIVES; 2,000 PATRONS ROUTED

Raiding squads from State's Attorney Courtney's offices yesterday smashed seventeen more gambling resorts. In them they found more than 2,000 patrons, who were driven out, striving to pick winners at the race tracks. The new raids raised to 184 the grand total of places wrecked since Courtney started his war on gambling.

An elaborate handbook on the third floor of the State-Lake building at 190 North State street was the first to be wrecked. Three hundred persons were ordered out and three employés were arrested. A smaller place at 32 North State street was next. It had about 200 patrons.

Other places visited and closed were at 4708 Calumet avenue, 4714 Prairie avenue, 948 North Clark street, 22 East Randolph street, 71 East 55th street, 5 West Oak street, 5458 South Michigan avenue, 3718 Broadway, 20 East 8th street, 3318 East 84th street, 1514 East 56th street, 4835 Cermak road, Cicero; 3 North 1st avenue, Maywood; 1209 South 1st avenue, Maywood, and a tavern at Ogden avenue and the county line in Lyons township.

Chicago policemen visited and closed ten alleged gambling resorts and made arrests in each. The places are at 318 North Michigan avenue, 225 West Van Buren street, 163 North Wabash avenue, 64 West Randolph street, 33 West Jackson boulevard, 7111 State street, 1448 Madison street, 1150 East 55th street, 3951 Chicago avenue, and 3108 Rhodes avenue.

CHINA PAYS U. S. $264,887 FOR BOMB STRIKING LINER

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—The Chinese government has paid the United States $264,887 in indemnities for the bombing of the Dollar liner President Hoover off Shanghai, Aug. 30, 1937, the state department announced today. The Chinese government contended the bombing was a mistake.

The payment was made to Nelson T. Johnson, American ambassador to China, at Chungking. The check was for full settlement of damages suffered by the ship and injuries to several persons aboard.

The liner was lost last December in the east China sea, when the captain erred in estimating the flow of a current off the island of Hoishot, near Formosa.

Arthur Licicome, U. of I. Auditor, Takes U. of C. Post

Urbana, Ill., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Arthur Licicome, who has been auditor and assistant to the controler at the University of Illinois since 1933, has been named assistant controler at the University of Chicago, it was announced here today. He has been connected with the business office of the state university since 1919.

DELAY PERJURY TRIAL IN SLAYING OF BRIDE; JURY PANEL QUASHED

Pekin, Ill., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—The trial of James W. Crabb on a charge of perjury will be delayed until Thursday because Circuit Judge Henry J. Ingram today quashed a jury panel of sixty called for Monday. The panel was quashed because County Judge W. J. Reardon was present when it was drawn. He was a member of the defense staf when Crabb was tried on a charge of manslaughter for the slaying of his wife last March 1.

Law provides that the Circuit court clerk and the county judge be present when the jury is drawn. John E. Cassiday of Peoria, special prosecutor, objected to the presence of Reardon. Another judge will be summoned Monday, when thirty-six more jurors will be drawn.

The jury disagreed in Crabb's manslaughter trial.

OFFICERS OF WPA UNION ARE REDS, QUIZ GROUP TOLD

Former N. Y. Administrator Accuses Leaders.

Victor F. Ridder.
[A. P. Photo.]

New York, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Victor F. Ridder, publisher and former New York WPA administrator, today told a congressional subcommittee investigating un-American activities that he was convinced no one could hold office in the Workers' alliance unless he was a communist party member.

Ridder, publisher of the New York Staats-Zeitung, was questioned by Representative Joe Starnes [D., Ala.], chairman of the subcommittee, at the closing session of a three day hearing.

Describes Reds' Technique.

"My first interest in the question of subversive activities was aroused when I was WPA administrator in New York," Ridder said. "I was interested in dealing with the delegations that came to me, from two groups particularly, the City Projects council and the Workers' alliance.

"Through contact with these delegations I became interested in their activities. At first I dealt with them on the theory that there was no reason why WPA workers should not have an organization, but I found out after a short while that the object of these groups was not constructive. They came to me with demands they knew I could not meet. Their technique was to waste the time of the administrator.

Tells of Clash Over Reduction.

"I received copies of publications of the alliance and from them I had come to the conclusion that it was largely a communist-led organization. I have been told, and it is only hearsay and was told to me by my investigators, that you cannot be an officer of the Workers' alliance unless you hold a membership card in the communist party. I believe that to be true."

Ridder said his first real clash with the alliance came when he was ordered by Washington to reduce the number of WPA workers from 250,000 to 190,000. The alliance protested, he said, and Oscar Fuss, secretary and now vice president of the alliance, wrote to the city newspapers that Ridder was making prostitutes of single women by dropping them from the WPA rolls.

Officer Charges Lies.

During the morning session Representative Starnes made public an exchange of telegrams between himself and Fuss. The latter demanded that he be given an opportunity to "give the true picture of what excellent work the alliance is doing to help the unemployed of this city."

"This is the second time," his telegram said, "I have asked for the opportunity to answer your committee's lying smears and if it is denied again you publicly show yourself enemies of the bill of rights, of the constitution of the United States, and of all fair-minded Americans."

ADMIRALTY SUIT IS FILED AGAINST STRIKING SAILORS

Toledo, O., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—The Cleveland Tankers, Inc., today filed an admiralty suit in federal court against 17 unlicensed members of the crew of the tanker Crudoil who have been on strike since Tuesday. A hearing is being conducted by the United States steamship inspection service for the men, who are charged with misconduct and failure to obey orders.

The company asked the government to order the strikers to evacuate the ship and allow it to be moved from the Gulf Refining company dock. Judge Frank L. Koeb will hear the suit Monday.

The national maritime union said the strike was called when the company failed to sign an agreement with the union. The company said the strikers, ordered to cast off, had dropped anchor and declared they would remain in port until the strike was settled.

SCHOOL CONTRACT AWARDED.

Sycamore, Ill., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Hal Upperman & Sons of Princeton was awarded the contract this afternoon to build an annex to the Sycamore Community High school for $74,262.

Poisoning Cases Increase

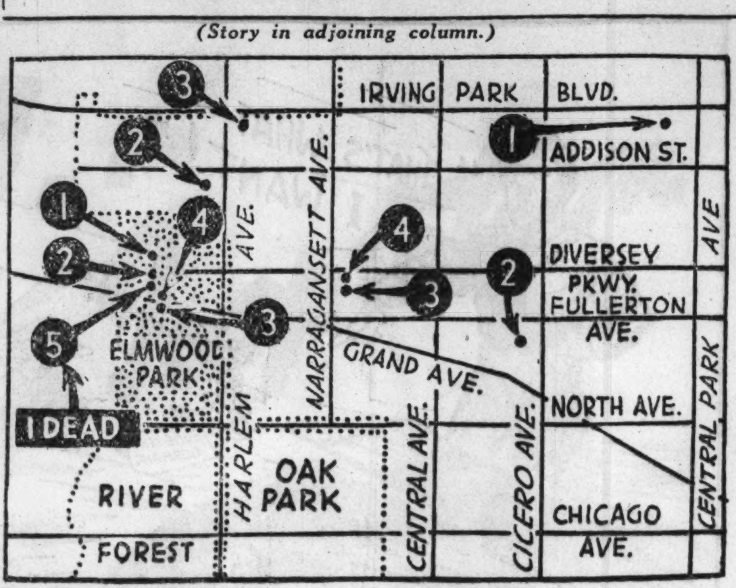
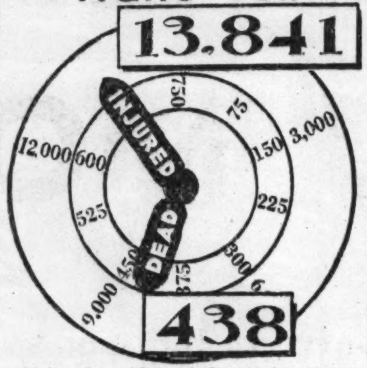


Figures indicate numbers of members of Chicago and Elmwood Park families stricken with poisoning caused by tainted food or contaminated water.

THE MASSACRE Chicago's 1938 Trafic Toll



More than 98% of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

HELD AS HIT-RUN DRIVER; BROKEN LIGHT IS CLEW

A broken headlight and an alert witness to an accident led yesterday to the arrest of Edward Youngberg, 1252 Nelson street. He was being held pending the outcome of injuries suffered by Charles Miller, 40 years old, 12 North Hermitage avenue.

Youngberg's car allegedly struck Miller and sped away at Oak and Clark streets. A taxicab driver jotted down a license number and followed the car to State and Ohio streets. Youngberg was arrested in a drug store by police who noted a broken headlight on his car.

An unidentified man, about 40 years old, was fatally injured early today when he was struck by a hit and run automobile in Madison street at Elizabeth street. He died in the County hospital. Cards in his pockets bore the names Gustave O. Gabrielson and T. R. Reynolds, with Waukesha, Wis., addresses.

Detective John Nash of the Chicago Lawn station fired three shots late last night at a hit and run driver whose car brushed him down. Nash had alighted from his squad car at 74th and Western avenue when the hit and run car threw him to the pavement. Bruised, not not otherwise hurt, Nash fired three direct shots at the driver, but failed to stop him.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 571 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 438 were killed in Chicago. In the same period 13,841 were injured in trafic accidents within the city.

BLANKETS SUFFOCATE INFANT.

Betty Outlaw, 2½ months old, was suffocated yesterday when she became entangled in blankets while sleeping in the home of relatives at 100 Washington street, La Grange. She was found by her mother, Mrs. Rose Outlaw, 606 12th street, Maywood.

GUARDS FIRE ON TOLEDO PICKETS; 14 ARE INJURED

Toledo, O., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Deputy Sherifs maintained order tonight at the Federal Creosoting company plant where fourteen persons were injured today in a clash between strikers and sympathizers and a group of company guards.

Hospital attachés said most of the injured were suffering birdshot wounds. None was seriously hurt. Deputy Sherif Donald Cochran was among the injured, eleven of whom were Negroes.

The plant was reopened by the company yesterday. The strike had been in progress since April 8. The company said workmen were ordered back to treat 400,000 railroad ties with creosote to prevent them from being irreparably damaged by weather.

Cochran said strikes and sympathizers rushed the guards, who were armed with shotguns. The wounded men, declaring they carried no arms or weapons, said the guards began firing when they were about 50 yards away.

The strike was called by the Firemen's and Oilers' union, Stationary Engineers' union, Crane Operators' union, and Millman's union, all American Federation of Labor units. They said the company failed to carry out a promise to increase wages.

A skeleton picket line remained at the plant tonight.

CONTRACTOR DIES IN CAR.

Battle Creek, Mich., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Bertrum B. Stevens, 68 years old, plumbing contractor for forty years, was found dead last night in his automobile. A garden hose extended from the exhaust pipe of the car to the seat beside his body.

FOOD POISONING SPREADS TO SIX FAMILIES IN CITY

Water Tested; Chocolate Eclairs Are Suspected.

Fifteen members of six Chicago families living near the village of Elmwood Park were added yesterday to the increasing list of persons reported ill from contaminated chocolate eclairs or tainted drinking water. One resident of Elmwood Park died on Friday and many others are sick from the same cause.

An investigation of the new cases was ordered by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health. The health department's list of persons suffering intestinal disturbances included:

Drogosz family, 2127 North Avers avenue, two persons; Grendahl, 3904 Nora avenue, three; Litena, 3319 Odell avenue, two; Nickili, 2720 North McVickers avenue, three; DeSylvester, 2739 North McVickers avenue, four, and Otto Ehemann, 2158 North Hamlin avenue.

Other Cases Reported.

Edward N. Nelson, president of the Elmwood Park health department, received reports of fifteen persons ill since Wednesday. Dr. James Moxon, village health officer, said he had reports of thirty cases, and predicted that the number may be doubled.

The majority of those stricken in Elmwood Park told of eating chocolate eclairs shortly before becoming ill. Dr. Bundesen said tainted pastry was believed to be the cause of the Chicago illnesses.

Samples of pastry from groceries and bakeries in the village are being examined by the Illinois Research hospital laboratories. Meanwhile village, city, and state authorities began a study of Elmwood Park's water supply, which comes from Chicago mains.

It was recalled that dirty, rusty water came from some water faucets in the northwest section of the village after the Mayfair pumping station was shut down for two hours Tuesday. The outbreak of illness began the next day.

Warned to Boil Water.

Nelson warned all residents to boil their drinking water pending results of bacteriological tests, expected tomorrow. He said contaminated water may have been used in making the eclairs. He also warned of the possibility of contaminated milk, and announced he would propose an ordinance banning the sale of bulk milk in containers larger than a quart.

Dr. Moxon summoned ten neighborhood physicians to assist in caring for stricken residents irrespective of their ability to pay.

Only five of the total have been placed in hospitals thus far. All are members of the family of Earl Bennison, 52 years old, 2732 76th avenue, Elmwood Park. He and five members of his family were stricken about midnight Tuesday after eating a dinner of roast lamb, potatoes, vegetables, and eclairs. Bennison died while being taken to the Oak Park hospital. Others in his family were taken to the Cook county hospital.

ALLOW FOOD TRUCKS TO PASS PICKET LINES IN NEW YORK STRIKE

New York, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Manhattan's millions were told by an insurgent labor leader tonight that they "may have to go naked," but the threat of a food shortage in the three day outlaw trucking strike was dissipated when pickets waved food trucks through an attempted blockade of bridges, tunnels, and ferry entrances.

"We don't intend to starve the public," said John Strong, a member of the strikers' rank and file committee.

Quiet prevailed tonight as acting Mayor Newbold Morris went into conference with representatives of the International Teamsters union in an attempt to settle the dispute.

Officials of the International Teamsters and Chauffeurs union declared flatly the strike was unauthorized. They said the men had been ordered to go back to work before the union would negotiate further on demands for a five day, forty hour week, with basic pay of $56.50. The men now work forty-seven hours.

Klein said 13,000 men are on strike out of 15,000 men in the three union locals involved.

BRIGGS STRIKE ENDED; 18,000 MEN TO RETURN

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 17.—[U. P.]—A strike at the Briggs Body company Mack avenue plant, which had thrown nearly 18,000 men out of work and had seriously threatened the automobile industry as it embarked on 1939 production, was ended today. Conferees representing the company and the United Automobile Workers reached an agreement providing for resumption of work Monday morning.

OUR REVOLUTION BY AN EXPERT.

Although Leon Trotzky, over ten years an exile, is the untouchable, the unspeakable, the lowest order of pond life, to the predatory communism of Joseph Stalin's addicts, his is the only mind which has survived the revolution and the purges. Early in his exile he wrote the "History of the Russian Revolution." In it he discusses the requirements and fundamentals, the strategy and tactics of mass revolt and successful overthrow of an existing order to make room for a new.

Next to Lenin, Trotzky was probably the organizing genius of the Russian revolution, recognized for his ability to convert dull masses into sharp instruments and for something which, judged by the results, approached a military talent. He also is a first rate writing man. What he wrote to explain the necessities of communist politics, direct action, and seizure of power is extraordinarily pertinent to an understanding of conditions and maneuvers in the United States today.

"The fundamental premise of a revolution," he says, "is that the existing social structure has become incapable of solving the urgent problems of the development of a nation. A revolution becomes possible, however, only in case the society contains a new class capable of taking the lead in solving the problems presented by history." It is the major premise of the New Deal that the existing social structure has become incapable of solving the urgent problems of the nation.

The process of preparing a revolution, says Trotzky, consists, first, in making people understand the contradictions which confront them. Here it would be such contradictions as the New Deal has produced—too much wheat, too much cotton, too much butter, too much of every necessity and comfort of life, and too many people who can get none of them unless the government gives them. These achievements of the Roosevelt administration constitute an appalling contradiction involving the distress of millions of people in a land which produces so much that the government must buy it, send it abroad, store it, or otherwise withdraw it from consumption and use by the people who would starve to death if the same government did not dole them out a living.

"The ruling classes," Trotzky continues, "as a result of the particularly manifest incapacity to get the country out of its blind alley, lose faith in themselves; the old parties fall to pieces; a bitter struggle of groups and cliques prevails; hopes are placed in miracles or miracle workers. All this constitutes one of the political premises of the revolution, a very important although a passive one."

The present ruling classes of this country certainly have made manifest a complete incapacity to get the country out of its blind alley. Unfortunately, they have not lost faith in themselves, although the country, if it ever consents to look at causes and effects with a clear eye, will, and this is the only hope, lose faith in them. At least one of the old parties is falling to pieces, rather it is being split into pieces. It is the dominant political party, the success of which in recent elections disorganized the Republican party as an effective means of opposition and criticism.

The bitter struggle of groups and cliques is not only political, but it is industrial. It is illustrated in the war between the American Federation of Labor and John Lewis' Committee on Industrial Organization. It is illustrated in the Committee on Industrial Organization in the furious contest between factions of communism, degrees of radicalism, and ambitions of contending leaders. It is further illustrated in the political field, not only by the division of radicals and conservatives, but by the splits caused by personal and factional appetites and ambitions.

The hopes that are placed in miracles or miracle workers have revealed themselves in the rise of visionaries and demagogues. When California nominated Sheridan Downey for the United States senate in the Democratic primaries it pointed a finger to the logical conclusions of the New Deal. Downey won because he promised persons of over fifty years $30 a week on Thursday, a miracle which would bankrupt the state. Downey is only one of a number of magic workers who have won a great following in this country in the years in which self-seeking reformists have destroyed the resources of the country and increased its demoralizing destitution.

"Bitter hostility to the existing order," says Trotzky, "and the readiness to venture upon the most heroic efforts and sacrifices in order to bring the country out upon an upward road—this is the new political consciousness of the revolutionary class and constitutes the most important and active premise of the revolution."

Mr. Roosevelt has led in a bitter hostility to the existing order. He becomes more bitter as opposition points with truth to his failures. He throws responsibility for his own errors in thought and in practice, if not in intention, upon the people whose efforts he has shackled and frustrated. As head of the government he has created class antagonisms which never before existed and has done the preliminary work which Trotzky says is necessary to create the new correlations of human forces which will arise to overthrow the existing social structure. He has created this necessary "bitter hostility to the existing order and readiness to venture" upon its destruction.

Trotzky wrote this analysis of preparation for a revolution ten years after the success of the one in which he had been engaged, and ten years before the problem was presented to the people of the United States. The ideal conditions are being created in this country purposefully by many of the agitators, and the question is: will there be such a prolonged continuance of them that the explosion will become inevitable?

THE PERILS OF MIDDLE AGE.

Los Angeles is one of the nation's centers of airplane manufacture because, when Donald Douglas was seeking support for expansion of his business, Los Angeles business men were alive to opportunity and got behind him. Capital with courage to embark on a new venture made up for whatever the city lacked in material sources and proximity to markets.

Chicago has two airplane builders. Both build good ships and have done a larger present business than Douglas had when he went to Los Angeles. Both are preparing to move their plants, one to southern California, the other to Indiana. They are moving, they say, because they cannot get the support of capital in Chicago.

Chicago is beginning to feel the premonitory creaking of middle age, and its business leaders have not been too adept at demonstrating that life begins at forty. It is facing the painful discovery that as old industries decline cities decay, unless the field is reseeded with new enterprise.

Chicago missed the boat early in this century when the infant automobile industry was looking for help. We had then a number of automobile plants that are gone today. The auto makers were looking for capital, and they got it at the price of head offices in New York. They were looking for an open shop town, and they got, eventually, the C. I. O.

We have some of the inescapable disadvantages of the middle aged big city. We have, and will continue to have, higher taxes than smaller cities. This will be true regardless of municipal corruption or purity. It is the price we pay for the complex government and manifold services necessary in a metropolis. In return we have a big and rich local market, a wide supply of readily available materials for manufacture, and a varied and flexible labor supply and employment market.

We have high labor rates, although these do not necessarily mean high labor costs. Labor unions here are strong. They also are middle aged, which means they are experienced in dealing with employers and careful in observing agreements. This is particularly true in the metal trades, from which newer industries draw most of their labor force.

And, as a perquisite of middle age, Chicago has capital. It possesses the vital resource it lacked when Ogden, Marshall Field, Swift, Armour, and Pullman were building the city as it is today. The question remains whether it has leaders with the courage for new enterprise which marked those giants.

A new business is a gamble. Ten, perhaps, fail for the one which succeeds. But better such a gamble than the certainty of loss in a decadent business. The La Salle street financiers who turned down Henry Ford put millions in interurban railroads.

THOSE MARYLAND BRIDGES.

"Full speed ahead!" was the instruction given last week by the President to Secretary Ickes, who has charge of PWA construction work, including bridges. The order followed Mr. Roosevelt's campaign invasion of Maryland where he held out nearly 9 million dollars in bait to the voters of that state. He promised a $3,926,000 bridge over the Potomac river and another costing $4,875,000 over the Susquehanna, one end of each of the bridges resting on Maryland soil. He didn't let the matter rest on his political oratory; back in the capital he told Ickes to push the projects with all haste. The bridges must be built.

The President had simultaneously given his orders to the free state electorate to defeat Senator Tydings and to nominate Congressman Davy Lewis, a 100 per cent New Dealer. As every one now knows, that order for the purge did not work; the voters renominated Tydings. But there remains one interesting subject of speculation: Will the bridges be constructed and with all the speed contemplated a week ago? Or will the presidential enthusiasm for this gift to Maryland now evaporate?

A few years ago, before an election, Mr. Roosevelt started in to harness the tides in the Bay of Fundy as a bribe to the voters of Maine. After seven million dollars had been wasted at Passamaquoddy and after the Maine election returns came in to prove that its people were not swayed by the 'Quoddy nonsense, that project was dropped cold and the White House apparently has long since forgotten all about it. Maine has again voted against the New Deal in the face of a strenuous campaign, lots of easy money, projects and "objectives." Every available force was used to break down the stalwart opposition in the Pine Tree state—everything but Passamaquoddy; that apparently was not mentioned. Will the Maryland bridges now join the Maine dam in the limbo of forgotten promises?

CALM, COOL HOLLAND

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands.—[By Mail.]—Holland, too, is between the pincers of the totalitarian states and the Franco-British lineup, but it presents, nevertheless, the appearance of an oasis in a generally tormented Europe. It reflects an orderliness and stability not seen outside the Scandinavian countries.

That is not to say the Dutch do not have their own troubles. Their prices are excessively high and at the same time they seem to have so much money in the banks they do not know what to do with it.

The present government of the country is a "Positive Christian" cabinet based on a coalition of the three conservative church parties of the right, which have fifty-six out of the hundred votes in the lower chamber. There is a sprinkling of National Socialism [Naziism] and of communism.

At the head of the government is Dr. Hendrik Colijn, chief of the Protestant Anti-Revolutionary party, former governor of the Dutch empire in the Indies, and one of Europe's most eminent statesmen.

Colijn, the prime minister, is respected by all parties. The Socialist leader, J. W. Albarda, his adversary, recently said of him, "We all respect him. He is not a man to let the Germans take our country as the Austrians did."

What the country seems to want mostly is a male heir to the throne and reports are circulating that Princess Beatrice may soon have a young brother or sister.

The peace and order which the Dutch maintain in their country in a time of general international trouble comes in large measure from the avoidance of extremes, a reputation for sound sense, and a taste for traditionalism. Neither Naziism nor Marxism ever caught on here.

Yet the country is overpopulated, with big towns, a large and well organized proletariat. The struggle to make a living is not easy and there is always a large roll of unemployed, who must be maintained permanently.

The Dutch have been moderate perhaps for one reason, that the rural element here forms the most important part of the population, despite the several large cities, and also from the fact that a strong religious spirit is dominant and the three religious parties are all-powerful. They have been successful in curbing socialism, which, however, always has been moderate in its aims.

The socialist movement in Holland since the beginning of the century has expanded vastly in the cities and towns. The Dutch say, however, that the upper middle classes and the wealthy have been very realistic and have made many important concessions to the demands of the working classes. Since the times of social stress that followed the world war the bourgeoisie has taken a long term view of things and compromised on many points to such an extent that they have taken the wind out of extremist sails and have thus remained in power.

Since the Dutch abandoned the gold standard in September, 1936, letting the florin drop from about 80 to 54 cents in value, much capital has accumulated. During 1937 the monetary holdings of the Netherlands bank about doubled. Much of it came from abroad, from those seeking a safe place for their holdings. The monetary coverage became excessive with a billion and a half gold florins against a paper circulation of 900 million florins. The equalization fund here had difficulty under these conditions to keep the florin from an undesirable rise.

An abundance of liquid money in the Netherlands bank [700 million florins in deposits without interest] quickly affected short term interest rates and enabled the government to reduce its floating debt to a minimum. The overabundance of funds also soon had its effect on the long term capital market. It was flooded last winter with conversion loans. The state started the flood with a conversion operation of 1,700,000,000 florins at from 3 to 3½ per cent. City governments followed suit.

This, however, soon turned up the reverse side of the medal. Investors and savers became uneasy. Their fixed incomes began to shrink. Insurance companies and other public institutions became embarrassed also. To prevent the collapse of interest rates on long term investments they formed actually a "Solid Front" of investors to boycott any conversion loan at less than 3½ per cent. The "front" did hinder the success of some conversions.

During the depression years the Dutch largely adopted the system of contingents in trade and today liberalism in the exchange of goods as it was practiced once has been abandoned. This naturally has led to an amount of state control of trade and business which is distasteful to many.

After two years of effort the Dutch have built up in their empire of sixty million people in the East Indies a system of defenses that enables them to feel safe from Japanese aggression. Such aggression they feared as late as a couple of years ago. Against it they hoped for British and American help.

Especially heavy reënforcements have been made to the air forces stationed in the Indies. Any Japanese attempt to grab the islands for their oil resources would now meet with a hot reception. In addition the Dutch have mined all the important harbors, stationed three cruisers in East Indian waters, and have ordered four destroyers and nine submarines to add to the fleet of twelve submarines which are already stationed there.

Much of their new air force equipment has been bought in the United States. They are using heavy Martin bombers.

Some indication of the progress the Dutch have been making in strengthening the defenses of the East Indies, which supply the Netherlands with a large element of their wealth, is revealed by the publication of the American state department's monthly statement of arms export licenses. The figure for the Dutch Indies for the month of June alone was $4,060,000, as against $1,710,000 for Japan and $1,236,000 for China. Almost all the licenses issued were for aircraft.

At the same time authorities here do not place the same estimate on Japanese military prowess that they did three or four years ago. A high Dutch colonial authority said the opinion in the far east was growing that the Japanese had shot their bolt and were more likely to slip backward from now on than they were to acquire complete dominion in the far east.

"The Japanese have shown themselves childish and bad soldiers," the colonial official said. He added the opinion that the Japanese had acquired their present position as a power through luck to a large extent and through brutalizing and lowering the standard of living of their people.

At the time of the first aggression against Shanghai a Japanese descent on the Indies was a nightmare for the Netherlands, officials here say. The Japanese took advantage of the time of crises in 1931 to 1934 to infiltrate into the Dutch Indies islands, buying up estates at places which would be considered of strategic value and making settlements in out of the way islands off main lines of trafic.

Since then legislation has been passed which practically excludes Japanese immigration to the Indies and Dutch officials say they now have Japanese spies so well watched and under control that they are no longer dangerous.

Another reason the Dutch feel relieved about the Japanese menace is that they believe the Nipponese will have their hands full with China for several years to come and will not dare to take on anything else. The only uneasiness here comes from the fact that while Singapore is completed the British have no ships stationed there because they are all required in Europe on account of the tense situation at home.

How to Keep Well By Dr. Irving S. Cutter

ABDOMINAL PAIN AND EMOTIONAL UPSETS.

APPENDICITIS, at one time termed inflammation of the bowel, is now recognized as a dangerous disease and much has been accomplished in acquainting the public with the necessity for expert care. Any pain in the stomach area which later becomes localized in the lower right side of the abdomen means that the family doctor should be notified. Meanwhile, quiet must be enforced and no laxative—of any sort—given.

But every twinge felt below the ribs is not due to this malady and many a person will visit his physician with a self-prepared diagnosis—chronic appendicitis. The question then comes to the fore, "Is there such a thing as chronic disease of this portion of the intestine? If not, whence come the symptoms?"

Many a medical man—although he is unable to spot the appendix as the offender—may, after six months or so of unrelieved attacks of sharp, darting pain—yield to the patient's urging and advise the removal of the structure. He bases his decision on the presumption that some smoldering infection may have taken up its abode therein.

A few of these sufferers may—for a time—be improved in health as a result of surgery—but within six months or a year the old ailment returns and this time the appendix cannot be blamed. Some are not benefited at all and probably 50 per cent—within a month—will be as miserable as ever. All of this means that in the presence of abdominal symptoms an accurate diagnosis must be made, including a study of the nervous reactions.

First and foremost comes the reëducation of the patient in all matters pertaining to food—the teaching of the ABC's of intestinal hygiene including the desirability of a balanced diet, thorough mastication of everything that is eaten, the taking of all meals deliberately, and—if signs point to the colon—emphasis upon bulky but nonirritating edibles. Even the cooking may need to be reorganized. It may be desirable to start these subjects out on a bland régime consisting of strained or pureed vegetables, more rest at night, and possibly some sedatives.

Then, too, we must not forget the powerful influence of emotional conflicts; the fact that "nerves" can produce distress within the alimentary tract. Scarcely a day passes without each physician finding one or more of his patients exhibiting discomfort within the digestive tube which can be traced directly to a psychic upset or personality defect. The victim frequently will place his finger upon the cause of all his difficulty by citing disagreeable experiences that have come to him in the course of his daily routine. The picture thus becomes obvious and there is not a particle of use in making numerous X-rays, giving test meals, etc.

A recent study of a substantial group of individuals—all of whom were ill—and most of whom had had a so-called chronic appendix taken out—disclosed that the three most prominent complaints were [1] constipation, sometimes alternating with diarrhea; [2] generalized abdominal distress; and [3] gas and belching. Curiously enough, none mentioned nervousness, although on careful questioning this manifestation was admitted by all.

The great majority observed that their symptoms were greatly aggravated whenever they were subject to special stress and strain or whenever more work was demanded than they seemed able to perform. A sizable number admitted habitual crying spells and a sleepless night now and then. A high percentage were discovered to be food bolters—meal grabbers—with poor bowel habits. Occasionally excessive smoking or alcohol proved to be a factor.

The duration of the indisposition varied from a few months to several years and inasmuch as no great emergency existed the physician was able to tell each individual that his trouble would disappear eventually, provided he would give strict attention to good digestive hygiene. Of course, psychological disturbances at home or in business affairs needed to be cleared up.

We must not overlook the fact, however, that now and then the appendix is responsible, but the signs of infection are so clear that errors need not be made.

USUALLY AN INFECTION.

F. I. writes: What causes the gland just below the ear to become swollen and painful?

REPLY.

Usually an infection. Look to the mouth, the teeth, the tonsils, etc. Occasionally such swellings are due to a disease of the blood or to tuberculosis [bovine type].

MAY BE HELPFUL.

T. S. writes: Is it a bad practice to wear round garters if one has varicose veins?

REPLY.

Sometimes they are helpful if the band is wide and not too tight. Moderate constriction is of value in many cases—for example, the use of the elastic stocking.

WITHIN THREE WEEKS.

H. C. writes: How long does it take for symptoms of syphilis to appear?

REPLY.

Usually within three weeks. Sometimes the primary sore is overlooked as it may be quite small.

NOT CONTAGIOUS.

H. W. writes: Is diabetes contagious?

REPLY.

No.

ESTATE FUNDS.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Father died in 1920 leaving estate of $40,000 after all debts were paid. Administrator and trustee were named in the will without bond. Estate was all cash. Will provided that all the income was to go to his invalid unmarried brother for life and after his death entire estate was to go to two grandchildren.

Trustee is in second mortgage loan business and he [1] put the $40,000 in his business and has paid the beneficiary $200 monthly for the past eighteen years, or a total of $43,200.

2. Trustee is now 75 years old and his business has been poor for ten years. Grandchildren are worried. Trustee has made no reports to the Probate court nor to the grandchildren. He is the dictator type and no one dares to ask him any questions.

3. Is the trustee handling the estate in a legal way? How should it have been handled and what should the grandchildren [who are now in their 30s] do about it? R. H.

1. You do not make clear whether you mean a purchase of an ownership interest in the business or an investment in the mortgage assets being dealt in, or some other manner of putting the money into the business.

2. You do not indicate whether there has been any default in the payments.

3. Depends on facts that you have not placed before us. We advise you to go over your facts in a personal interview with an attorney. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TRUST FUND.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A is to receive the income of a trust fund. This trust fund is to be held by a trustee appointed by deceased. Trustee is to pay the income from this trust fund to A.

1. After all of deceased's debts, etc., are paid by his estate, the balance is to be equally divided by deceased's heirs.

2. The above mentioned remaining estate is to be managed and controled by the same trustee above mentioned. A desires cash in place of the income from a trust fund.

3. Because A accepts cash in place of the income from this trust fund, does that cancel the duties of the trustee to manage and control the balance of deceased's estate? S. K.

1. In view of this statement, it is not clear where the trust fund is to come from.

2. We could advise to better advantage if the wording of the will were before us.

3. It is not clear that the trustee has any right to substitute some other arrangement for the provisions of the will. We cannot advise without having the facts more clearly before us.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DEED TO REAL ESTATE.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. What value has a real estate deed which is signed, notarized, and unrecorded at the time of the conveyor's death?

2. Can this instrument be recorded now and be in full force and effect?

3. If it cannot be recorded, can it be admitted to probate and thus pass to the desired parties? O. K.

1. Depends upon whether it has been legally delivered from the control of the grantor into that of some other person.

2. See 1.

3. No. A deed is not an adequate substitute for a will.

THE NATION'S PRESENT PLIGHT.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—May I state what I think the present condition of the United States of America is?

By the action of congress in permitting unwaranted and unusual powers to be vested in the President and by his method of exercising such powers business is at a standstill. The public debt has been increased to such an extent that it probably can never be paid. Extravagance has become a virtue and thrift a vice. Liberty of speech, consequently of thought, has become stifled and impaired and threatens to become extinct. The right of ownership of private property has become greatly limited and is in serious danger. There is a real possibility that the President of the United States will perpetuate himself in office through the use of public money, or name his own successor.

The savings of all the citizens of America are threatened. The great incentive to individual effort, which has caused the United States to be peculiarly the land of opportunity in the past, has almost ceased to exist, and in its place has come a dictatorship of planned economy, with its deadly leveling processes, operated by persons from the executive down who are not in sympathy with the American constitutional form of government. WALTER E. BEEBE.

THE PRESIDENT'S LIGHT BILL.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—The President says his dream of federal power for the poor was born at his "little White House" in Warm Springs, Ga., when he first paid 18 cents per kilowatt for light.

But he did not go on to say the company from which he purchased light was a small concern that had to buy from a neighboring municipal power company, and that when the Georgia Power company bought the small company they at once lowered the rates to 3.87 cents and steadily reduced it until now it is costing the President only 1.9 cents per kilowatt hour. No, he wasn't frank enough to tell that. It would have weakened his project to spend billions of public money to create competition against owners of private companies and so throw their employés on WPA, which is a growing menace but a pet of the President's. UNCLE TIM.

MR. FARLEY'S BILLBOARD.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 14.—In front of our impressive marble postoffice building a large, unsightly billboard has been erected, reading:

Who said a friend, a customer, or a prospect wasn't worth a stamp? No one. Then why all these extravagant billboards, with their stupid ideas, products of weak minds?

As people walk the streets hungry we doubtless will see a series of these glowing messages, which are attempts to regulate our activities—our thinking.

The billboard fails completely to state whether we should put the stamp on the envelope or the envelope on the stamp. ANOTHER GUINEA PIG.

WISCONSIN WAS FIRST.

Manitowoc, Wis., Sept. 14.—In Maryland the other day President Roosevelt said Maryland had the first workmen's compensation law in the United States and gave Congressman D. J. Lewis credit therefor. As citizens of Wisconsin, alert and loyal to the interests of our great state, we should not let that statement go unchallenged [even though it comes from the President of the United States] and thus see some other state get the credit for that outstanding, beneficial, and now universally accepted legislation, with all due respect to the President.

The fact is that Wisconsin put into actual operation the first workmen's compensation law in the United States and has administered it successfully and to the great benefit of the people of our state ever since.

The Wisconsin law went into effect Sept. 1, 1911, while the Maryland law did not go into effect until over three years later, Nov. 1, 1914.

JUDGE ALBERT H. SCHMIDT.

A SERIES OF "WHYS."

Chicago, Sept. 14.—Where does Detective Tracy get his authority to boss every one with whom he works, including federal men and his own boss, Chief Brandon?

Why do Walt and Skeezix look like father and son when we know that they are not related to each other?

Why is it that Skeezix has no nose but only a wart where a nose ought to be?

Why does Herby, a baby in size and looks, talk and act like a kid three times his age?

Why have Corky Wallet, Chester Gump, and Perry Winkle been put on the shelf [Sundays excepted]?

Why is Bim Gump penniless in America when he is supposed to have untold wealth in Australia? R. COOPER.

BOYCOTT HIS REMEDY.

Markesan, Wis., Sept. 14.—I think the present Sino-Japanese conflict concerns us doubly. First, because it is a bloody attack upon the idea on which America is built. Second, because it adds to those already existing in Spain and central Europe, another conflict that may break into world war. I believe the answer to the question of the right of Japan's Fascist military clique to invade China lies in the application of a single economic measure—boycott. Our refusal to buy Japanese goods will shut off a primary source of capital to Japan; together with boycotts in other democratic nations our boycott can starve Japanese aggression.

JAMES G. WEBER.

A LITTLE MORE INK, PLEASE.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—I believe you are hiding something from us, mister. I always save the best till the last—THE TRIBUNE editorial page—and when I come to it I can't read it. Why? Because the type lacks enough ink. Invariably it is the grayest page in tone value and the gayest page in spirit. Some good black type is needed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—British railroads apparently feel they are out of the epidemic of accidents which plagued them for more than a year, and rail schedules all through the country are being speeded up.

A streamlined Pacific locomotive set a new British record for team trains with a test run July 3, covering three miles at 120 miles an hour and touching 125 miles an hour for 300 yards. The earlier record was 114 miles an hour.

The Coronation express between London and Edinburgh is the British empire's fastest train, with an average of 65.37 miles an hour for 392 miles. On the 188 mile stretch from London to York it averages 71.9 miles an hour.

Another London-Edinburgh train is said to make the world's longest nonstop run, 392¼ miles.

Latest time tables show 112 trains with scheduled average speeds of better than a mile a minute, and British railwaymen say more main line expresses leave London stations every day than any other city in the world.

Many railwaymen believe they are not out of the woods yet as far as accidents are concerned, however, and say cuts in personnel have raised the danger factor.

A YELLOWSTONE OF THE MIDWEST IN THE MAKING

Quetico-Superior Plan Shows Results.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

The ten year Quetico-Superior campaign begins to show results, and those results are of large interest to Chicago.

Quetico-Superior is a compact, sparsely populated area of 15,000 square miles of unspoiled forest and lakes 500 miles northwest of Chicago.

By auto it is fifteen hours from this city via Eau Claire, Wis., and Duluth, Minn. By an auto route via Minneapolis and St. Paul it is seventeen hours.

This region is the last of the vast, unblemished forest areas in the central west. For Chicago it holds the possibilities of an easily reached playground and forest sanctuary of regal extent and wild beauty. It is a little more than one-fourth as large as Illinois and four times as large as Yellowstone Park in Wyoming and Montana.

Praises from an Expert.

Bob Becker of THE TRIBUNE, who has been a counselor in the ten year campaign for the preservation of Quetico-Superior for all the people of the central west, knows this region better than any other American journalist. Our readers who for years have followed his vivid writings know that he is not an excitable commentator.

But about Quetico-Superior Mr. Becker lets himself go. "It is," he says, "one of the most beautiful wilderness areas in the United States. Here is by far the most superb combination of forests, lakes, and streams for an outdoor playground that I have ever seen. For canoeing, camping, fishing, wild-life photography, and for magnificent woods as yet unspoiled by highways and hot dog stands there is nothing comparable to the great Quetico and Superior area."

Organize to Save Nature.

The aim of Mr. Becker and his scores of notable colleagues on the voluntarily organized and unpaid Quetico-Superior council is to save this potential playground from the haphazard and ruthless commercial intrusion which has desolated many such American areas without compensating industrial gain for the nation as a whole. Large tracts in Michigan provide to this day mournful proofs of the results of the unregulated exploitation which afflicted our neighbor commonwealth half a century ago. The gain was fleeting; the ruin created a problem which the state is still trying to solve—a problem growing out of shortsighted drain on natural resources, a shortsightedness that seemed wanton and desperately ignorant because it took no account of the long view in human affairs.

Two-Thirds in Ontario.

The Quetico-Superior forests and lakes extend for 175 miles on both sides of the boundary line between the United States and Canada. One-third of the area, which it is proposed to save for the people, lies in Minnesota, two-thirds in Ontario. Large sections of the 15,000 square miles are already owned by the state and the province.

What the council has been working for is the creation of a body of public opinion which will result in a treaty between the United States and Canada by which the mighty potential playground shall become a coördinated and carefully supervised reality.

Last week came heartening news of progress along those lines.

Ernest C. Oberholtzer, president and secretary of the council, makes known the fact that the American state department now is at work on preliminaries which will lead to specific negotiations with the Canadian authorities.

Free from Political Intrusion.

Up to this point the movement has been kept free from political intrusion. Racketeers have found no thoroughfare into it. The names of a few of the scores of men and women on the council will indicate its aloofness from blundering burocrats and gross politicians. Among the names are those of Ernest Thompson Seton, William Beebe, John Alden Carpenter, Walter Damrosch, Zona Gale, Ernest Ingersoll, Mrs. Edward MacDowell, Hamlin Garland, Schuyler Mathews, Willard H. Osgood, Mrs. Charles S. Pillsbury, Frederick Law Olmsted, Dan Beard, Mrs. Vachel Lindsey, Mrs. Henry Van Dyke, Willard Van Name, Phelps Wyman, Carl Sandburg, Stuart Chase, Stewart Edward White, Sir Charles G. D. Roberts—and Bob Becker.

Representative in Chicago.

The headquarters of the council are at 1218 Flour Exchange, Minneapolis, and its Chicago representative is Charles S. Kelly, 919 North Michigan avenue.

The council does not ask for your money; it asks for your interest in a plan that will preserve forever a forest empire of clean, rocky shores sentineled by pines that rise like masts, of lakes and waterfalls, of heights that rise to 1,700 feet—"the last great area of its kind," as Mr. Becker puts it, "within a short distance of millions of outdoor fans."

Wayne Schroder, U. of M. Leader Decade Ago, Dies

Battle Creek, Mich., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Wayne M. Schroder, 31 years old, a varsity guard on University of Michigan basketball teams in 1926, 1927, and 1928, and president of the university's inter-fraternity council in 1928, died last night after a year's illness. He became manager of the telephone exchange at Jackson in 1932, one of the youngest men ever to manage a major exchange for the Michigan Bell Telephone company.

SLEEP MEDICINE FATAL.

Miss Myrtle Ryden, 36 years old, 7334 Champlain avenue, died in her apartment last night, presumably after an accidental overdose of sleep inducing medicine.

Unspoiled Forest Playground in Chicagoland

Map of the Quetico-Superior region, which lies partly in Minnesota and partly in Canada. It is called the last great unblemished area which might be preserved as a playground for Chicago and the central west. It is within fifteen hours of Chicago by auto. The shaded area marks the Rainy Lake watershed, in which the region lies.

CITY WINS COURT TILT IN ROW WITH MOODY INSTITUTE

School Must Shift Back to Get $350,000.

Under a decision handed down by Judge Donald S. McKinlay, the Moody Bible institute must move its buildings back from the La Salle street line before it can collect $350,000 from the city of Chicago. The buildings extend for about 1,000 feet north of Chicago avenue.

The institute had requested an order for payment of approximately that amount, with interest of $175,000. Its attorneys contended that under an agreement with the city full payment should be made before the removal requirement became effective. Judge McKinlay ruled that interest was not collectible.

Battle for Ten Years.

The city and the institute have been in a legal fight for nearly ten years, ever since the La Salle street widening project was started. When its property was condemned the school [a tax free institution] was awarded $531,000. Maintaining this was not sufficient the institute carried on an appeal which was dropped when the city offered $350,000 additional in damages and paid the original amount.

La Salle street was widened but the buildings remained. As a result the sidewalk in front of the institute building is only two feet wide in some sections.

During the hearing before Judge McKinlay, Attorney Howard F. Bishop for the Bible school suggested that the city move the buildings at its own expense. Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph F. Grossman opposed this. He said that if the buildings beyond the fourteen foot setback agreed on were damaged the city would be liable for unlimited damages.

Cites Shylock Parallel.

"We, like Shylock, can demand our pound of flesh," he said, "but we can't take a drop of blood."

In its answer to the institute's petition the city asked that interest be paid by the Moody organization on the original amount paid. This was just, it was asserted, because of the alleged failure to carry out the removal agreement. Judge McKinlay ruled against the city on this.

Cost of the removal has been estimated at $50,000. It was indicated that the institute will appeal the judge's ruling.

Groninger, a retired blacksmith, celebrated his 95th birthday today at his home in Deer Creek, near here. He is the father of Reed Groninger, superintendent of Logansport's public schools.

Joliet Township Defeats Sanitary District Proposal

A proposal to create a sanitary district in Joliet township of Will county was defeated yesterday, 12,553 to 1,963. The city administration of Joliet opposed the plan on the ground that Joliet intends to build its own sewage disposal plant. Creation of the district, according to city officials, would duplicate the proposed sanitary project and create a new taxing body.

Mrs. Nellie Thompson, 73, Active in Rebekahs, Dies

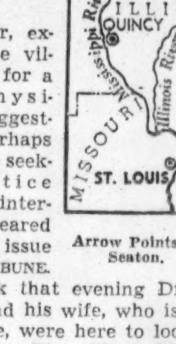
SEATON GETS ITS DOCTOR; STARTS PRACTICE TODAY

Seaton, Ill., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—When J. C. Reilly, president of the school board, wrote a letter to the Voice of the People department of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE last Thursday he started something.



Arrow Points to Seaton.

The letter, expressing the village's need for a resident physician and suggesting that perhaps some doctor seeking a practice would be interested, appeared in Monday's issue of THE TRIBUNE. By 6 o'clock that evening Dr. Paul Hochberg and his wife, who is a registered nurse, were here to look over the situation. They liked this town of 300, so they decided to stay. Tomorrow morning they will embark on their practice.

BATTLES NURSE, LEAPS TO DEATH FROM HOSPITAL

Thomas Barrett, 48 years old, a patient at St. Luke's hospital, leaped to his death late yesterday from the hospital roof after a struggle with his nurse. He had been a patient for a nervous disorder since Sept. 9.

Barrett and his nurse, Miss Bethel Insley, were in the solarium on the roof. Without warning he ran out of the door.

Reaching the edge of the roof 50 feet away he climbed out on a 2 foot ledge. Miss Insley grabbed his coat. Slipping out of the sleeves he dropped 6 feet to a ledge on the inside of the Michigan avenue courtway. Then he lowered himself by his fingers, let go, and fell six floors to the pavement. Barrett, a clerk in the city water department, lived at 7335 Constance avenue.

ROBT. STEVENSON, CHICAGO BROKER, DIES IN NEW YORK

Suffers Heart Attack on Board Air Liner.

Robert Stevenson, prominent Chicago broker, died yesterday morning in New York City of a heart attack, according to word received here. He was 60 years old.

Member of a pioneer Chicago family, his father having settled here in 1850, Mr. Stevenson was stricken while flying to New York on business. He was rushed from the plane to the Doctors' hospital, where he died.

Entered Business in 1900.

Born in Chicago and educated at Yale university, Mr. Stevenson entered business in 1900 as treasurer of his father's wholesale drug company. In 1906 he became a dealer in investment bonds, later heading his own firm for many years. Recently he had been connected with the brokerage house of Farwell, Chapman & Co.

He was president of the Saddle and Cycle club, a member of the board of managers of the Presbyterian hospital and a trustee of the Fourth Presbyterian church.

Widely Known in Work.

A former member of the board of governors of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, Mr. Stevenson was widely known in the world of finance. His home was at 1520 Astor street.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Helen Brown Husband Stevenson; three sons, George, Malcolm, and Robert Stevenson III., and a daughter, Mrs. Bruce Thorne. All are children by his first wife, the former Elizabeth Smith, who died in 1932. Two stepchildren, Thomas and Ethel Husband, also survive.

E. D. DUFFIELD, PRUDENTIAL CO. PRESIDENT, DIES

South Orange, N. J., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Edward Dickinson Duffield, 67 years old, president of the Prudential Insurance Company of America, died of a stroke this evening in his home in South Orange. He was removed to his home from his Newark office Friday afternoon after collapsing from what fellow workers believed to be acute indigestion.

His wife, Mrs. Barbara Freeman Duffield, whom he married in 1916, and other members of his family were at his bedside when he died. His first wife, Elizabeth Curtis Duffield, died in 1914.

An attorney, Duffield became general solicitor of the Prudential company in 1906 and was named its president in 1922 upon the retirement of Forrest F. Dryden.

JURY WILL HOLD EXTRA SESSIONS IN MILK INQUIRY

The special grand jury investigating alleged monopolistic trends in the Chicago dairy industry held its first Saturday session yesterday. It will hold an evening hearing tomorrow and may make a regular practice of them.

"This move is to frustrate any possible attempt to delay the investigation," said District Attorney Michael L. Igoe. "The grand jury is empowered to act only through the month of October."

Everett L. Noetzel, treasurer of the Bordon company, continued his testimony yesterday.

WPA FORGETS ITS PROMISE NOT TO TAKE AWAY JOBS

Competes with Private Industry and Labor.

[This is the fifteenth article in a series on the Works Progress administration. Three TRIBUNE reporters spent weeks investigating the gigantic political machine. This story deals with the deprivation suffered by union labor and private contractors as a result of WPA activities.]

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

When the Works Progress administration was created in July, 1935, Harry Hopkins, its national administrator, made this promise:

That the WPA would not invade the field of private industry; that it would supplant no private work no matter how small, and that its sole purpose was to end the evils of relief and put men to work.

In the month of July, 1938, a survey in the Chicago area showed that this promise is being violated in at least three outstanding instances.

1. The government owned Edward Hines Memorial hospital for disabled veterans of the world war is using WPA labor for painting and construction work that in the past has been done by private contractors.

2. Demolition work [tearing down condemned buildings], which always has been let to private contractors, now is being done by the WPA at no cost to the building owner.

3. WPA crews are supplanting private contractors in renovating and remodeling the old Criminal courts building at Hubbard and Dearborn streets.

Since the veterans' hospital at Hines, Ill., was built in 1921, painting and similar work has been done by private industry. Karr Brothers of Maywood, painting contractors, is among the concerns that have done work there in the past.

Employ 250 on New Project.

On July 18 the WPA personnel that had just finished a project at the hospital began another one. The new project involves exterior and interior painting of the hospital buildings, construction of two ten-stall garages, pointing up brick work, and construction of a loading platform for a warehouse, and landscaping.

This project — No. 9496 — employs 250 men. Specifications called for eighty painters, twenty-five brick layers, and a number of carpenters and cement finishers in addition to laborers. Under WPA regulations union men should be employed in these classifications.

Col. Hugh Scott, commandant of the hospital under the United States Veterans' bureau, is the sponsor superintendent of the project, but the details are handled by David Laidlaw, superintendent of the hospital buildings and grounds.

Laidlaw said he did not know how many of the skilled workers are union men or how many are drawing union pay. Union men work only enough days a month at the union scale to use up the $85 wage.

Keep No Union Records.

"Some of the men are union and some are not," he said. "We can't tell exactly, because we have no record."

The superintendent directly in charge of the work stated that he didn't know how many in the crew actually were union men or how many were classified as union men.

The demolition of buildings by WPA labor has not only deprived private contractors of the work, but has displaced union laborers.

"This is breaking down our working conditions," declared Anthony Dandrea, chairman of the Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers' union, district council No. 5950. "The law states that WPA shall be used for public works, but the buildings that now are being wrecked are privately owned. The work costs the owner nothing. He agrees only to keep his land vacant a year."

Charges WPA Inefficient.

Prior to the WPA era the reconditioning of the old Criminal courts building would have been done by private contract. The present work is to prepare it for use by the Chicago board of health.

A union steamfitter, whose name is withheld, said that floors in the structure were raised, making it necessary to change the height of the radiator drainage pipes.

"We were given a series of wrong orders," he added. "As a result, the steamfitters had to go over the entire building three times.

"Materials were slow in coming in. When we work for a contractor we ask for materials one day and get them the next. Over there we had to wait for weeks."

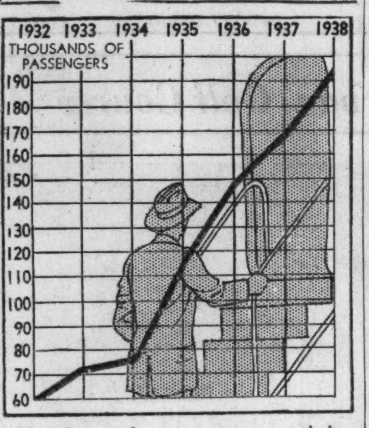
As the WPA expands, muscling into fields Hopkins said it would never touch, uneasiness spreads among business men. They fear that eventually it will overrun private enterprise. It has grown larger both in man power and in scope of operation each year. And there appears to be no end to it.

Labor, too, is alarmed. Joseph Keenan, secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor, commented on the WPA's use of untrained men at the union scale, and added:

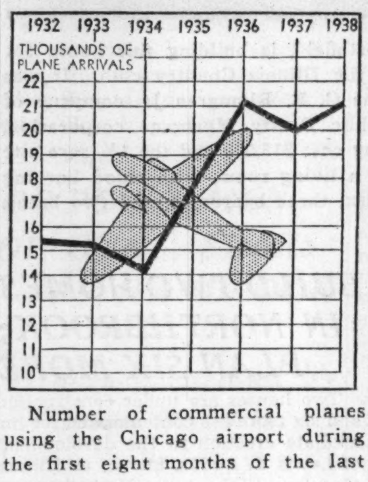
"If they start actual construction work on the WPA, I don't know where it will lead to."

At Hines hospital and on many other projects throughout the nation the WPA has started actual construction work.

Airport Busier



Number of passengers arriving or departing from Chicago airport during the first eight months of each year since 1932.



Number of commercial planes using the Chicago airport during the first eight months of the last seven years.

A sharp increase in the number of passengers using planes that land at the city airport is reported in statistics released by Commissioner of Public Works Oscar Hewitt. This increase has been steady each year since 1932. The number of planes landing and taking off has increased; but in smaller proportion—most of the passenger increase being due to larger carrying capacity of ships.

CAPTURE STREET CAR BANDIT, 18; PAL, 20, ESCAPES

Maxwell police last night solved the robbery of eighteen street car conductors and two junk men, one of whom was shot, with the arrest of John Fonzino, 18 years old, 1437 Taylor street. He was captured while robbing one of the conductors a second time.

Policemen William Hyland and Edward Cohen boarded a Blue Island street car at Aberdeen street when they saw Fonzino and another youth struggling with the conductor, Fred Reifsteck. He said they had previously robbed him on Aug. 20.

Hyland captured Fonzino. The latter's accomplice, identified as Vito Scoleri, 20, fled. Twenty minutes later the two policemen reached his home at 1320 Grenshaw street just as he fled in an automobile. Scoleri escaped again after a pistol battle. Fonzino confessed all the robberies and the shooting of Zigmund Mosielski, 50, of 14 North Aberdeen street, on Aug. 30.

YOUNG SIDLEY FINED $50 FOR TIPSY DRIVING

Racine, Wis., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—William Horlick Sidley was fined $50 and deprived of his right to drive an automobile for six months in Municipal court today when he pleaded no defense to a charge of driving when intoxicated. Sidley appeared in court with two attorneys. The attorneys did all the talking and Judge E. R. Burgess passed sentence without comment.

The charge grew out of an automobile accident in Racine the night of Sept. 6 when Sidley and a Chicago girl were riding in a station wagon that crashed into another car. Sidley spent that night in jail.

Depriving Sidley of his driving privileges will cause little inconvenience to the only son and heir of Mrs. Mabelle Horlick Sidley. A chauffeur will do the driving hereafter.

Young Sidley made a deposition here yesterday in his fight to reopen an inquest into the death of his mother last July 6. She died while a guest in the Toronto, Ont., home of W. Perkins Bull, her friend for many years. Four executors of Mrs. Sidley's will are seeking an injunction against the Toronto coroner to halt the inquest.

FIREMAN WAITS WITHOUT—TWO STOLEN UNIFORMS

If any one sees a man wearing a fireman's uniform that doesn't fit, Fireman William J. Terry of engine company 66 would like to know it.

Terry moved yesterday from the Garfield Arms hotel, 3256 Maypole avenue. A bellhop helped him to carry his belongings down to his automobile. After the last trip Terry went to the desk to leave his forwarding address with the clerk. Then Terry walked out to his car. But he came running back.

"What kind of a joke is it to take a fellow's clothes?" he asked. No one laughed. It was new to them. So Terry reported to police the theft of two new uniforms, a uniform overcoat, and civilian clothing, all valued at $350.

President's Wife Halts in Chicago on Way Home

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of the President, stopped in Chicago briefly yesterday on her way from Rochester, Minn., to Hyde Park, N. Y. She had been with her eldest son, James, who is now recuperating in Rochester after an operation for removal of a stomach ulcer. She said he was still a "pretty sick boy."

Two Chicago Area Building Programs to Provide 175 Single Family Dwellings

PLAN 120 NEW HOMES ON FAR NORTHWEST SIDE

Schedule 55 in Chatham Fields District.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Two home building programs providing a total of 175 single family dwellings were outlined yesterday for the Chicago area. Three blocks just outside the city limits on the far northwest side are to be improved with 120 homes, according to Duro-Craft Homes. Peters & Peters has finished fifteen homes in the Chatham fields area on the south side, of which twelve have been sold. The firm contemplates building forty more in a program to be completed by May 1, 1939, according to Herbert W. Grugel, 10 North Clark street, who is architect for both programs.

Victor S. Peters, of Peters & Peters, builders, realtors, and general contractors, with offices at 7923 South Park avenue and in the Field building, yesterday said that his firm had just bought the entire block bounded by 84th and 85th streets, and Indiana and Prairie avenues.

Platted Into 40 Lots.

It has been platted into forty lots, 30 by 163 feet. On these forty homes will be built, Peters said. They will range in price from $6,500 to $6,800, plus $1,500 for lots. These totals of $8,000 and $8,300 include two car frame garages, fences, black dirt and landscaping, and Venetian blinds.

If the buyer purchases before completion he will have the choice of decorating colors, the shade of tile used, color of bath room fixtures, and other privileges, Peters said.

The $6,500 house has five rooms: living room, dining room, kitchen, two bedrooms, and bath, and space where an extra bedroom can be finished later at a cost of $150, fully plastered, Peters said. The $6,800 house has five rooms and provision for two extra bedrooms which can be finished when needed.

Use FHA Insured Mortgages.

Most of them were financed with twenty year Federal Housing administration insured mortgages negotiated through the Chicago City Bank and Trust company. On the $8,000 homes a $1,600 down payment is required and the monthly payments are $58. The $8,300 homes call for a $1,660 down payment and monthly payments of $62.

On the northwest side Duro-Craft Homes has nine houses under construction. All are sold. The company does no speculative building. Houses are not started until they are sold.

These homes contain four rooms: living room, dining room, kitchen, and one bedroom and bath. There is provision in all of them for two additional bedrooms when needed. They were sold at $3,975 to $5,200 for construction alone. Lots cost from $800 to $900 additional.

Duro-Craft has 120 home sites in the four square blocks bounded by Foster avenue on the north, Harlem avenue on the east, Carmen avenue on the south, and Oketo avenue on the west.

Will Spend $50,000 More in Edgewater Beach Suites

William M. Dewey, managing director of the Edgewater Beach hotel, said yesterday that sixty-five apartments containing 100 rooms will be rebuilt from hotel suites at a cost of $50,000. On Oct. 23, 1937, the first remodeled apartments were opened. Since then 120 units have been rented on leases at an annual rental of $124,140, according to Sudler & Co., rental agents. This is an average of $85 per room per month.

A. A. LEWIS FORMS SYNDICATE TO BUILD SUBDIVISION HOMES

A. A. Lewis yesterday announced the formation of a syndicate group which will acquire for cash properties in the Chicago area suitable for apartment and home building development. To carry out this program a realty trust has been formed. It will take title to properties purchased by the syndicate.

A corporation sponsored by the Lewis syndicate, known as the Jackson Construction company, with offices at 30 West Washington street, also has been formed. This company will carry out the building program on lands acquired by the trust.

The trust has bought 200 building sites, 40 by 125 feet, in Calumet Park. They are in Vermont Heights, at 127th and Throop streets, originally subdivided by Krenn & Dato. All improvements are in and paid for, Lewis said. Six brick houses are now under construction. Sidney Fink is architect. All have been sold. The selling prices were $5,000, plus $1,000 for the lots.

This is the first of a series of developments sponsored by the Lewis syndicate group in building up areas that were previously subdivided and left undeveloped, it was said.

Part of South Side Home Building Program

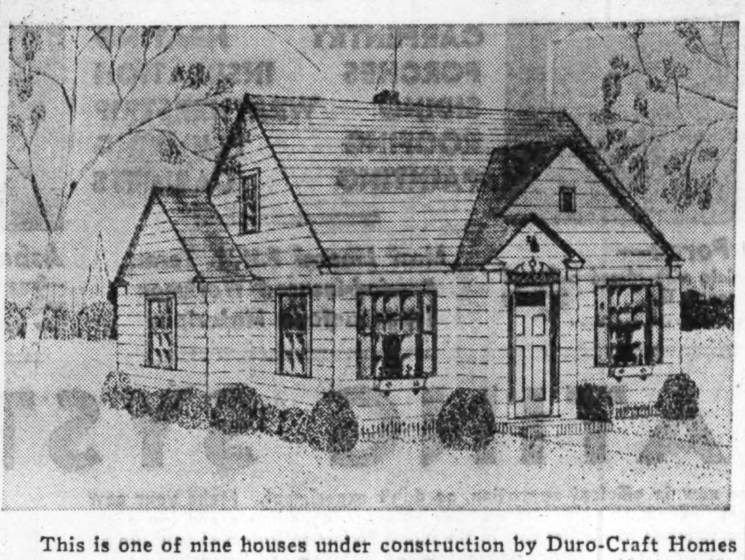
These five houses, nearing completion at 7648 to 7658 Calumet avenue, are being built by Peters & Peters. All are sold. The owners are (left to righ t) Charles E. Stewart, Harry R. Bernard, Chalmer McCalla, Joseph J. Cronin, and Fred C. Moss. The Cronin house can hardly be seen, as only the foundation walls and window frames are visible. Herbert W. Grugel, 10 North Clark street, is architect.

One of Nine Homes, All Sold



This is one of nine houses under construction by Duro-Craft Homes on Oconto avenue between Foster and Carmen avenues. Herbert W. Grugel is architect. It is at No. 5146 and is owned by Melvin Winther. It has a full basement and four rooms, with two additional bedrooms to be finished later when needed. The house cost $4,900 and the lot $900. It was financed with a $4,900 Federal Housing administration twenty-five year insured mortgage through the Greenebaum Investment company. Monthly payments, which include principal and interest, taxes and insurance, are $34.30. (Story in adjoining column.)

ST. CLAIR-GRAND CORNER LEASED FOR PARKING

After razing of the five story warehouse at the northeast corner of St. Clair and Grand, 100 by 216 feet, the property and the adjoining lot were leased to George Smith and Arthur Denham, doing business as the Old Fort garage. The lessees will operate an open air parking station.

The lease contained a clause which permits the owner, Mrs. Emmons Blaine, to use part of the lot. She is building a four car fireproof garage at the northwest corner, fronting on St. Clair street, for her own use. It will contain chauffeur's quarters and storage space. Thielbar & Fugard are the architects. Hall & Ellis represented Mrs. Blaine and the Bowes Realty company represented Smith and Denham.

30 East Adams Building Reported 60 Pct. Rented

The 30 East Adams building was remodeled extensively last year after the failure of a merchandising tenant who occupied the entire building. The failure left much of the space vacant for several years. Since Feb. 1, 1938, according to Graham Aldis of Aldis & Co., managers of the property, leases have been closed on 60 per cent of the space on the upper floors. Several new leases were reported yesterday. They are: Bennett Brothers, Inc. of New York; sales and repair departments of the L. E. Waterman Fountain Pen company; Barrie-Morrell & Co., Ann Mylins; Abrams & Fredman, Jerome Osherow, and Vincent Caico.

Asa Faust Rents Store in Walgreen Building

Asa C. Faust has leased space at 1526 East 53d street, in the new Walgreen building, through the National Commercial Leasing company. He has operated a men's store on the south side for fifteen years. His new unit will be opened tomorrow.

16 New Homes to Be Built in Niles Center

Contracts were let yesterday by Bon-Air Builders, Inc., for the immediate construction of sixteen homes in Niles Center. They will be built on both sides of Morse avenue, between Leclaire and Laramie avenues, from plans by Edward E. Baird.

According to Robert J. Stagg, of the building corporation, the homes will have five rooms with provision for an extra bedroom later over the attached garage, if needed. They will sell for $6,500, plus $30 a front foot for the lot. The sites are 40 to 44 feet wide and 125 to 160 feet deep.

It is planned to have all sixteen ready for occupancy by Nov. 15. The lower half of the houses is of solid brick and the upper part of frame. All will have wood burning fireplaces and full basements, and will be heated by gas. All will be landscaped. Street improvements are in and paid for, Stagg said.

Bon-Aire Builders, Inc., of which James T. Igoe is president, has seventeen additional lots in the neighborhood which it plans to improve later.

EDITH MASON LEASES SUITE ON NORTH SIDE

Mr. and Mrs. William Ragland [Edith Mason of the Chicago City Opera company] leased a ten room apartment at 229 Lake Shore drive, for permanent occupancy, according to Mellicent Martin. Miss Martin also negotiated a lease of the late Mrs. Hamilton McCormick's apartment in Drake Towers to Morris Mather, investment broker.

Richard Hesse Purchases Hutchinson Street House

Mrs. Theodore J. Doederlein has sold her home at 651 West Hutchinson street [formerly Kenesaw terrace] to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hesse. The price was not disclosed. Herman Mendius of McMenemy, Inc., represented the buyers and Victor A. Mingers of Hogan & Farwell represented the seller.

At the Realty Boards

Arthur Kruggel, president of the Chicago Real Estate board, yesterday announced a series of open forums on transportation. They will be held in the board's newly decorated dining room under the leadership of Paul D. Angell, chairman of the house and program committee. The first session will be next Wednesday at 12:30 p.m. The speakers will be Ald. James R. Quinn, chairman of the city council's committee on local transportation, and Philip Harrington, city traction engineer. The subject will be "The Chicago City Council's Plan for Uniform Transportation."

Hyde W. Perce, of the Chicago Real Estate board, will be speaker at the first meeting of the fall season of the Oak Park Real Estate board, tomorrow noon at the Oak Park Arms hotel. He will report real estate conditions encountered in a trip around the world.

CHICAGO'S SLUM CLEARANCE PLAN WINS APPROVAL

Real Estate Men in Many Cities Give Views.

Chicago's slum clearance plan is being praised by real estate men, architects, and property owners throughout the nation. Letters from more than thirty cities have reached the group which has been working on the plan here. THE TRIBUNE is still receiving mail on the subject more than a month after it was first published.

Most of the writers have done more than merely give the plan their blessings. Constructive criticism is offered. Many ask for more details on the project and ask to be kept informed on progress.

The proposed plan, as outlined in the Graphic section of the Aug. 14 issue of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE, provides for organization of "public service building corporations" with powers of condemnation. They would be under supervision of a state regulatory body.

Would Use Private Funds.

The corporations would be organized with private funds, as present public utility companies are organized. These companies would then buy large tracts of land in the depreciated areas surrounding the loop and improve them.

Real estate men in other cities stress the fact that the problem is not Chicago's alone. Almost every large and medium sized city in the country is faced with the same situation, they say. Chicago's proposed solution will be watched closely during its progress by other American cities.

Many writers also emphasize the need of interesting private capital in the solution of slum problems. Typical of such comment is the following from a letter received by J. Soule Warterfield, vice president of Starrett Brothers and former president of the Chicago Real Estate board.

Praises Plan for Chicago.

H. S. Kissell, chairman of the board of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Cincinnati, and head of the Kissell companies of Springfield, O., is the writer.

"The article in THE TRIBUNE makes better sense than anything I have heard of in this slum clearance proposition," Kissell wrote. "The slum clearance work which has been done by the government has in most cases been such a complete failure and has been so unintelligently done that all of that kind of work should be stopped. Private capital must do this job and it must be put on a profitable basis."

Warterfield is one of the group which has been working on the plan in Chicago. Others in the group include Arthur Kruggel, president of the Chicago Real Estate board; Herbert U. Nelson, executive vice president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, and Paul Angell, vice president of the Chicago Real Estate board.

Urges Private Initiative.

Donald T. Pomeroy, president of Pomeroy Organization, Inc., a Syracuse, N. Y., real estate firm, wrote: "I most certainly concur in the necessity of using private initiative rather than leaning on the crutch of governmental activity in solving this problem."

Joseph Laronge, the largest real estate operator in Cleveland, said: "Your suggested approach merits the commendation of all students of this problem and of all people interested in the welfare and future of Chicago. Proceeding with the idea on a large scale—and this is essential—will not only recreate values in the acquired districts, but will conserve values in contiguous areas."

Deems Proposal Sensible.

A letter from Arthur C. Holden of the architectural firm of Holden, McLaughlin & Associates, one of the largest in New York City, said in part:

"It is music to my ears to hear that the people in Chicago are continuing to work along sensible, far sighted lines. I like what you say. Let me make this comment: I think the step forward in these proposals is that stress is put on the planning powers of government, especially of the municipality. The power of planning and laying out streets is fully as broad as the police power. When streets become obsolete it is as much the right of the municipality to replan them and rearrange them as it is the right of private owners of property to replan and rebuild their buildings."

J. W. Cree Jr., a large operator in Pittsburgh, said that he had been converted in recent years to the use of power of eminent domain such as is proposed in this plan.

Favors Power to Condemn.

"It is practically impossible to assemble land without the purpose for which it is wanted leaking out," Cree wrote, "with a consequent increase in holding prices far beyond any reasonable intrinsic value. The only answer to this is the determination of real value by some method. In my opinion a commission such as you suggest, with condemnation in the offing, is as fair as can be devised.

"This attitude a dozen years ago, when the rights of property owners were sacred, would have seemed treason to me, but we have come to the conclusion that the public has some rights superior to the land owner. Certainly, nothing is more in the public interest than to salvage the slums which have been growing not only in Chicago but in every city even of moderate size in that part of the city most suited for living to those who must watch expenses very closely."

Others Approve Plan.

A letter from F. F. Robinson, secretary of the finance committee of the Libby-Owens-Ford Glass company, Toledo, O., follows:

"What you are trying to do appeals to me because local initiative seems to be its main spring. It will be an outstanding performance if your group makes progress to an extent which will eliminate the need of public housing in the Chicago area supported in part by outright capital grants under the federal government."

"I have read with interest the article which appeared in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in regard to the rehabilitation of Chicago's 'twilight' zone. It is a problem that confronts most, if not all, of the older cities of the United States and the solution proposed appears to be practical. If the plan is successful in Chicago, it will point the way for the solution of similar problems in other cities."

BUILD TWO HOMES IN NORTHBROOK; PLAN SIX MORE

Two houses are under construction and six more are contemplated for immediate erection in the development of Lewis T. Dodds, known as Illinois Country Club Acre Homesites, in Northbrook. There are twenty-three acre lots surrounding the Illinois Country club. Two homes are being built by W. T. Ledger and Dodds for their own use.

The Ledger home was designed by Frederick Hodgdon and is being built by the Walter Norris Construction company. It will cost $10,000 and occupy a $2,500 lot, according to the Republic Realty Mortgage corporation, which is financing the entire project with FHA loans. The Dodds house was designed and is being built by the C. E. Blomgren Jr. company.

DIXON TO BUILD TWENTY HOMES AT GLENVIEW

Jules Dixon, president of Jules Dixon & Co., Glenview realtors, said yesterday that he would build twenty houses in his "Glenview Terrace" development during the next twelve months. The location is west of the Skokie valley line at Glenview road. The homes will be in the $12,500 price range, with FHA financing. The first two units will be completed Oct. 1, Dixon said. One already is sold. Dixon is a former president of the Evanston-North Shore Real Estate board.

Brokers' Notes

Jules F. Fisher, for the last ten years with Baird & Warner, Inc., has opened his own office at 843 Chicago avenue, Evanston. He will conduct a general real estate business and also plans to erect a number of residences in Evanston. For several years Fisher handled investment properties for Baird & Warner and recently was manager of that concern's west side and west suburban offices. He was the immediate former president of the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards and in 1934 was president of the Evanston-North Shore Real Estate board.

AUGUST BUILDING IN SUBURBS SETS PEAK FOR YEAR

Total for Eight Months Is Less Than in 1937.

Construction in sixty-eight suburbs of Chicago during August reached a total of $4,220,436. This is the largest month so far this year and also the biggest total since April, 1937. It is an increase of $1,418,705 over July and is $118,057 larger than August, last year, when the total was $4,102,379.

The total for the first eight months of 1938 still is considerably behind the same period of last year. So far this year, according to the survey of suburban building made by the Greenebaum Investment company, there have been permits for building costing $19,602,263. For the same eight months last year there were $25,044,794 in permits.

Average Cost Lower.

The average cost of homes in the suburbs last year was $7,672. So far this year it is $6,924.

A feature of the suburban home building situation is the large amount of new construction in the Calumet region. H. C. Bainbridge of East Chicago reports eight homes to cost $25,500; Thomas G. Nason of Gary, twenty-seven for $105,300; Joe P. Guy of Hammond, forty-nine for $211,650, and Joseph Graboske of Calumet City, two for $10,375.

Building in Other Districts.

Other communities where home building is active are: Evergreen, 29, $145,000; Aurora, 6, $27,000; Berwyn, 3, $24,200; Brookfield, 8, $43,000; Clarendon Hills, 4, $25,000; Crete, 4, $32,000; Des Plaines, 7, $51,000; Elmhurst, 9, $85,000; Evanston, 4, $53,000; Flossmoor, 3, $30,000; Highland Park, 12, $81,000; Hinsdale, 2, $31,000, and La Grange Park, 2, $22,000.

Home building in other suburbs included Lansing, 11, $37,000; Lombard, 9, $47,000; Markham, 6, $30,000; Mount Prospect, 5, $34,000; Niles Center, 6, $43,000; Northfield, 6, $42,000; Oak Park, 3, $29,000; Palos Heights, 6, $32,000; Park Ridge, 5, $31,000; Prospect Heights, 6, $31,000; River Forest, 2, $21,000; Riverside, 6, $47,000; Waukegan, 4, $30,000; Western Springs, 4, $26,000, and Wilmette, 7, $61,000.

MECHANIZED U. S. CAVALRY STAGES VIVID WAR GAME

700 Vehicles Maneuver in Fort Knox 'Attack.'

BY CAPT. MAX CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Fort Knox, Ky., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—As a preliminary to the training maneuvers to take place in this territory during the coming week, the 7th cavalry mechanized brigade, under command of Maj. Gen. Daniel Van Voorhis, this morning put on a striking demonstration of a war time attack problem against stationary, silhouette, and moving targets.

In order that the 500 participating and visiting officers might view to advantage all phases of the engagement, distances that would be normal in war were greatly reduced. All commands and relayed orders were broadcast over loud speakers in order to keep the spectators posted on all unit movements.

The problem was preceded by a review of the entire brigade, numbering more than 700 vehicles.

Efficiency Is Apparent.

Training and efficiency were manifest when all distances and intervals between vehicles maintained perfect alignment at a speed of thirty-five miles an hour. Immediately following the review, three planes took the air on reconnaissance duty, returning a few minutes later to drop messages notifying the commanding general that the silhouette targets representing the enemy had been located.

Reconnaissance cars and the advance guard were sent forward immediately to engage the enemy in combat. Fire from these units was the signal for the artillery to get into the game. War as staged by the old 75 artillery pieces is always thrilling, providing it is play stuff. A few minutes of artillery bombardment, supposedly long enough to upset the morale of opposition, was followed by the dash of many combat cars going into action.

Caterpillars Do Their Stuff.

It is amazing to see how rapidly the little caterpillar tanks can cover ground. They dash for their objectives, like race horses in the stretch, except they have no smooth track and thanks to the efficiency of caterpillar tread they do not need any. Over small trees, bushes, boggs, and ditches they charge with equal ease.

Not a single vehicle got stuck in two hours high speed, cross-country maneuvering. After the smoke of battle cleared, a close examination of the many targets disclosed many hits, most of them by the smaller weapons.

Of course the artillery junior officers replied that in the interest of economy they could not afford in a sham battle to fire many shots and therefore the law of averages must apply. There always is much friendly rivalry between the branches of the service.

Problem Well Handled.

The 68th Field artillery, under Col. Marshall McGruder, is a good outfit. It was an interesting problem and well done.

In the general situation of the war games, which open officially at 6 p. m. tomorrow, the enemy, or Black forces which have captured the southeastern states from the defending Blues, move their advanced troops north of a line running east and west in the vicinity of the Hodgensville summit. The Blacks will capture and place a protecting guard around the monument commemorating Lincoln's birthplace at Hodgensville. Scouts and aerial reconnaissance report from blasting new entrances to Mammoth cave, supposedly with the intention of establishing new supply depots or airdromes.

For the first time the defending Blue army will use facsimile transmission of maps from mobile field stations, the same method used in transmitting photographs by wire and radio.

Bandits Learn 10 Minutes Too Late Means No Loot

Employés of the Brady Transfer company, 317 West 31st street, had a laugh yesterday on two young robbers. The bandits demanded the day's receipts. C. W. Harrison, the manager, smiled and said: "The armored express car got them just ten minutes ago. Sorry."

ROB POLICEMEN OF GUNS, STARS IN A HANDBOOK

2 Others Disarmed by Tavern Bandits.

It was a bad night for policemen last night. Two were held up and robbed of their guns and stars in a south side handbook. A third policeman and a retired policeman were held up and temporarily robbed of their guns in a southwest side tavern a few hours later. In neither case, it was said, did the policemen have a chance to resist.

The first victims were Anton Topinka, a veteran detective, and Frank Johnstone, a uniformed patrolman, both of the Englewood station. The second and last were Policemen Peter Dwan of the Stockyards station and Robert Irving, 3134 West 54th street, retired.

Surprise Chatting Policemen.

Topinka, who was off duty, and in street clothes, and Johnstone were chatting with Philip Winograd, 6904 Wentworth avenue, in the cigar store front of his combination cigar store-handbook at 533½ West 69th street, when three armed men entered. Since the policemen's backs were to them they entered unnoticed. The first Topinka and Johnstone knew robbers were about was when they felt the bandit's guns in their backs.

The gunmen promptly disarmed Johnstone, who was in uniform. Then they discovered that Topinka also was a policeman. They took his gun, and marched him, Johnstone, and Winograd into the rear handbook room. There they came upon George Burns, 6815 Parnell avenue, the clerk, and several patrons. The hoodlums got $85 from Winograd, and a wrist watch from Topinka. They also took the stars of Topinka and Johnstone.

Police Pursue in Vain.

The unarmed policemen attempted to pursue the three bandits after the latter left, but lost sight of them. Police investigating the robbery learned for the first time that Winograd's place was a handbook. He said he had opened up only four days ago.

Policemen Dwan and Irving were in Joseph Mach's tavern at 5443 South Kedzie avenue, when two tough young gunmen burst in. One walked up to Dwan, who was in civilian clothes, and warned: "Don't try to pull your gun. We know you're a copper." He took Dwan's revolver. His partner searched Irving and took a gun from him, too.

The bandits then robbed Mach of $25, and Arthur Higgins, 1955 West 94th street, a patron, of $75. Before leaving, they took the cartridges from the revolvers of Dwan and Irving, and returned the guns to them.

Appeals Order to Give Up $72,794 in Relief Fund

The Supreme court of the United States was asked yesterday to overrule a decision of the Illinois state courts directing W. H. Thompson, a former mayor of Chicago, to disgorge $72,794 left in his possession as part of a Mississippi flood relief fund raised in 1927. The appeal was from a ruling of the Illinois Appellate court obtained through a suit filed by Attorney General Otto Kerner. That decision directed that the money be turned over to the American Red Cross.

SEIZED AS BOY'S ANNOYER.

Erick Daniels, 35 years old, 2525 East 72d street, a laborer, was arrested by Woodlawn police last night on a charge that he had attempted to molest a small boy in the Tower theater, 1520 East 63d street.

HUNT 3 BANDITS WITH $100,000 LOOT IN JEWELRY

Police Seek Clews in Bold Holdup in Loop.

Police were searching last night for three armed bandits who kidnaped a diamond salesman at a busy loop intersection shortly after 9 o'clock yesterday morning and robbed him of jewels worth $100,000. The holdup, the police were told, occurred in front of 16 East Randolph street, a few doors west of Wabash avenue. While throngs of pedestrians passed, none was found who witnessed the robbery.

Samuel Kamsly.

The victim was Samuel Kamsly of New York City. He told police he left the Drake hotel, where he has been stopping, and took a bus to Randolph street and Michigan avenue. He was walking west in Randolph when he was accosted.

Victim Tells of Threats.

Two men seized him by the wrists and pushed him into an automobile which was being driven slowly along the curb by a third man. In the automobile the kidnapers threatened him with revolvers if he made an outcry, he stated.

Then he was driven to Hubbard and Des Plaines streets, where the bandit car stopped under the North Western railroad viaduct. There they stripped him of four pouches containing $85,000 in unset diamonds and $15,000 in rubies, emeralds, and sapphires.

Kamsly said the robbers took off his shoes and stockings while searching him for valuables. Besides the jewels, they took $60 in currency and a railroad ticket to Los Angeles. He displayed black and blue marks on his wrists where he had been seized.

Insured for $75,000.

Kamsly had been calling on customers in the city for three days and was on his way to see other customers yesterday morning, he said.

Kamsly, besides being a partner in the firm of Gray-Kamsly company, represented the Bienfeld company, both of 9 Rockefeller plaza, New York City.

The diamond salesman said that the gems were insured for $75,000 with the St. Paul Fire and Marine Insurance company. Toplis & Harding, agents for the insurance company, offered a reward of $5,000 for the arrest and conviction of the robbers. Kamsly said it was the first time that he had been held up.

TWO STRAWBERRY ROANS WIN LOAD PULLING CONTEST

A strawberry roan team of horses belonging to Otto Bartelt of Kane county won the annual pulling contest at the Lily Lake Community fair yesterday. With most of the fair's 15,000 visitors cheering them on, Bartelt's pair moved 6,000 pounds on a 1,000 pound sled nearly twenty-five feet. The Harmony farms of Elgin took second place. Their team, driven by Alfred Hint, moved 6,000 pounds but only one foot. Third place went to the team of Adolph Miller of Batavia.

Carl Shoger of Wheaton retained the plowing championship. He scored 93 points. Second place was taken by Paul Steifbolt of Naperville township, with 90 points. Carl Hageman of Plainfield, with 89.5 points, was third.

FOUND DEAD FROM GAS.

Mrs. Hortense Silbersky, 40 years old, was found dead yesterday in the kitchen of her home at 4700 Beacon street. Apparently she had killed herself by inhaling gas.

HUGHES FAVORS LOWER FEES FOR PASSENGER CARS

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Pointing to mounting revenue from automobile licenses, Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes said today he believed the scale of fees for passenger cars should be "substantially reduced."

Hughes said collections of $20,152,393 for 1938 licenses on Sept. 1 indicated an all-time high for annual receipts, in spite of the reduction in fees made by the legislature in 1935.

A $5 annual fee for all passenger vehicles is under consideration for recommendation to the legislature in January. License plates now cost Illinois motorists between $6.50 and $22 yearly, depending upon motor classifications.

TURNESA TAKES U. S. AMATEUR GOLF TITLE, 8 AND 7

ESPOSA BEATS GOLD CUP FIELD BY 3 LENGTHS

Cardinalis, Mucho Gusto Trail.

Esposa, fine racing mare from the stable of William Zeigler Jr. of New York, easily won the ninth running of the $15,000 Hawthorne Gold cup yesterday. When the mile and a quarter struggle ended, Esposa was leading by three lengths. Cardinalis, owned by Paul Kelley of Chicago, was second, a nose in front of the rugged old campaigner Mucho Gusto. Mrs. Emil Denemark's route runner Chasar was fourth and Grey Gold, a Detroit standard bearer, owned by Edward W. Duffy, fifth.

Seabiscuit, to the disappointment of the 20,000 spectators, did not run. The heavy track drove him out of the battle, although he did find time to engage in a training spin on the adjoining Sportsmtn's Park course an hour before the Gold cup was decided.

Track Found to Be Heavy.

Seabiscuit was withdrawn from the Gold cup at 11 o'clock yesterday morning after his owner, Charles S. Howard of San Francisco, had inspected the track. Howard found that the track was drying rapidly under a warm sun and a brisk wind. The surface looked good but beneath it the going was heavy and holding. Esposa's slow time of 2:13 4-5 showed best how unfavorable the running conditions actually were after eight straight days of rain.

"Seabiscuit wouldn't like it at all," Howard told Julius Reeder, Hawthorne's racing secretary. "He couldn't pack the 133 pounds assigned him and win in this sort of going. If we ran him it might cost the racing public thousands of dollars, for they would wager on him regardless of track conditions."

Seabiscuit left last night for Belmont park, where Howard, according to his own statement, "willingly will enter into a side bet arrangement with Samuel D. Riddle of Philadelphia for a match race between Seabiscuit and War Admiral."

She's Right Also Withdrawn.

The only other withdrawal from the overnight field of eleven was She's Right, owned by Paul Kelley, who still had two colorbearers in the race after She's Right was declared out. Esposa, conqueror of Seabiscuit last fall in Maryland but beaten four times this year by War Admiral in the east, became the short priced favorite for the Gold cup after Seabiscuit was scratched.

She paid $3.80 to win, $3.20 to place and $2.40 to show. Cardinalis' price to place and show was $7.20 and $4. Mucho Gusto's show price was $3.40.

Esposa is a gigantic chestnut mare. She derives tremendous power from her enormous hindquarters. Because of this power the Gold cup, except for one brief interval, was devoid of thrills. For the first six furlongs Mucho Gusto, Cardinalis, and Uneasy made the pace. It was very evident, however, that Jocky Nick Wall was biding his time with Esposa.

It's Easy for Her.

At that point Esposa would not permit Wall to hold her back any longer. She found a path next to the rail and galloped through it without a great deal of effort. In fifty long strides she sailed to the front. That ended the Gold cup battle of 1938. She stretched her lead to three lengths. Then galloping in fine, easy stride, she went on to maintain that margin and to win.

The first quarter was run in :24 2/5, the half in :50 2/5, the three-quarters in 1:16 3/5, and the mile in 1:45 1/5. The bad luck horse of the race was Mucho Gusto. Jocky George Woolf, Seabiscuit's rider, climbed into the saddle on him after Seabiscuit had been scratched. Approaching the last half mile Woolf's left stirrup broke. Mucho Gusto bore out slightly, but settled back into stride under Woolf's clever horsemanship. He missed second money by an inch.

The Gold cup had a gross value of $16,700. Esposa earned $10,835, Cardinalis $3,000, and Mucho Gusto $1,500. Esposa's earnings for the last two seasons have passed the $80,000 mark.

OLD WESTBURY AND ROSLYN POLO GAME POSTPONED

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 17.—[U. P.]—Rain forced postponement of today's scheduled game between Old Westbury and Roslyn in the Monty Waterbury cup tournament which decides the nation's handicap polo championship. The game will be played Monday on Hitchcock field.

Greentree and Aknusti will play their semi-final game tomorrow on International field. On Wednesday the winner of the Old Westbury-Roslyn game will meet the Ramblers. The final has been scheduled for Sept. 25.

Scores 1 Over Par in Beating Pat Abbott

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Oakmont, Pa., Sept. 17.—William Peter Turnesa, dapper 23 year old Italian from Elmsford, N. Y., today won the 42d national amateur golf championship by defeating Pat Abbott, 25 year old Pasadena, Cal., actor, 8 and 7, in the thirty-six hole final at the Oakmont Country club.

Thus changed the golfing luck of the Turnesas, a family in which Willie's six older brothers are professionals. Time and again they have been in a contending position to win a major title, but never have they succeeded. So today it was 130 pound Willie, the baby and the only amateur of them all, who finally made good for the Clan Turnesa. He is the youngest player to win the title since 22 year old Bobby Jones scored in 1924.

One Over Par.

Turnesa, who was graduated from Holy Cross college last June, made no mistake about the manner in which he vanquished Abbott, the dark horse of a tournament in which one favorite after another disappeared in old Oakmont's bunker studded hills. Willie was only one over par for the twenty-nine holes required for the match, while his lean, curly haired opponent was nine above regulation figures. The little New Yorker, after seeing Abbott win the second hole with a birdie, squared it on the next green, and went in front at the fifth, never again to be headed. He was three up at nine holes, five to the good at the 18th, and eight ahead at the 27th.

From a competitive standpoint, today's match lacked the drama of other amateur finals. There was no Lawson Little to finish off the show with an eagle. There was no Johnny Fischer to hole long putts on the 36th and 37th holes. There was no Ray Billows to cut a John Goodman's lead to one hole on the last tee. There were just two young men, fighting not only each other, but one of the orneriest golf courses in the world.

Abbott Misses Putts.

And fight it they did through most of the day. Abbott, winner of the National Public Links crown in 1936 and making his debut in this show, had needed only twenty-seven putts yesterday in putting out Dick Chapman, quarter final conqueror of Goodman. Today they weren't falling for the Californian. He took a total of fifty-two strokes on the green, thirty-three of them this morning.

Turnesa can attribute his victory not only to well nigh perfect iron play and grand recoveries, but also to as hot a putter as has come to the amateur in years. For the twenty-nine holes he played, Willie used up only forty-five putts, twenty-seven of them in the first round. He had twelve one putt greens, nine of them for wins.

Abbott, who registered as B. Patrick Abbott, ploughed through so much of Oakmont's sand before today, that the initial was being taken to mean Bunker. [It stands for Buell]. Pat had a better time of it today, encountering only eight of the club's 150 bunkers. On the other hand, the old course rather squared matters with Turnesa for his impertinence in last year's intercollegiate and in this amateur, in both of which he scored medal 71's. Willie explored thirteen traps in all, and was within seven feet of the pin from nearly all of those.

Qualifies With 148.

Turnesa qualified for the tournament with a 148, two shots back of Medalist Gus Moreland of Peoria, Ill. His eighteen hole victories were scored over John Burke, intercollegiate champion, 4 and 2; Arthur F. Lynch, 4 and 3; John Fischer, 1 up, twenty holes, and Chris Brinke, 5 and 4. In yesterday's thirty-six hole semi-final, he vanquished Ed Kingsley, 4 and 3.

Cards follow:

Turnesa wins, 8 and 7.

Abbott and Turnesa missed birdie putts of seven and four feet, respectively on the first green, and then the Californian took the lead for the first and only time of the morning round with his twenty-eight footer on the second. The third was conceded to Turnesa, after Abbott had bunkered his second and put his third over the green. They halved the fourth, Pat lipping the cup on a twenty foot try for a win.

Turnesa Takes Lead.

Turnesa then went into the lead at the fifth, where Abbott blew a five foot putt after he had almost holed out from a trapped second. Here Turnesa, also in a trap, dropped a three footer. He was bunkered again at the sixth, but holed a seven footer for a half. They played the seventh in orthodox fashion, then Turnesa went two up with a par on the 253

Cardinals Beat Cleveland, 7-6, on Smith's Place Kick

Cleveland, O., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—The Chicago Cardinals defeated the Cleveland Rams, 7 to 6, in a National Football league game here tonight before 7,448 when Rookie Bob Davis' attempt for extra point was blocked after the Rams had climaxed a number of marches with their only touchdown of the game in the fourth period.

Jimmy Lawrence, Cardinal half back, put the Chicagoans into the lead on the fourth play from scrimmage on a six yard plunge. Bill Smith, veteran end, place kicked the extra point. Lawrence's plunge wound up a sixty yard advance in which Dwight Sloan, rookie half back, starred.

Corby Davis, former Indian full back, scored Cleveland's touchdown after John Drake had been stopped on the 1 yard line on fourth down and the Rams had been given another chance through a Cardinal offside penalty. Virgil Deskin and Ed Cherry, Cardinal end and full back, blocked Davis' attempt to tie the score.

Cards Move Fast.

The Cardinals made only three first downs to Cleveland's 15. Cleveland gained 307 yards, the Cardinals 157. Around their goal line, however, the Cardinals were superb. Cleveland threw thirty-three forward passes, completing fourteen, and the Cardinals tried seven, connecting with five.

The Cardinals scored four plays after they received the ball the first time, marching sixty yards. Sloan passed over center to Lawrence for eleven yards. A short forward behind the line, Sloan to Tinsley, gained seven more. Sloan broke around the Cleveland left end and raced thirty-six yards down the side line to the 6 yard line, where Bob Davis knocked him out of bounds. Lawrence plunged through Cleveland's right tackle for the touchdown and Smith kicked the extra point.

A spectacular run by Bob Davis, who was chased back twenty yards trying to pass and then got away for a thirty-five yard gain, put the Rams in scoring position in the middle of the period, but Cuppoletti intercepted a pass on the Cardinals' 18 yard line.

The Cards were under way again near the end of the period, a Sloan pass to Tinsley making it first down on Cleveland's 21 yard line. Sloan and Lawrence advanced the ball to Cleveland's 13 yard line, but on the first play of the second period Tackle Conway Baker missed a twenty-three yard place kick.

Four Ram Drives Fail.

From then on, throughout the second quarter, the Rams dominated the game. A twenty-five yard run by Snyder gave the Rams first down on the 10 yard line, but the Cardinal line held and Cleveland surrendered the ball on the 9 yard line.

The forward passing of Ed Goddard, with John Kovatch as the leading receiver, brought the Rams back to the 13 yard line, where Goddard's pass on fourth down went out of the end zone for a touchback.

Bob Snyder passed twice to Nels Peterson for long gains to bring the Rams back to Chicago's 10 yard line. A fresh team of Cardinals was called and, though there was a five yard penalty on the Cardinals for too many times out, Cleveland again failed to score. Cleveland was on Chicago's 21 yard line as the half ended.

Neither team could get a sustained drive underway in the scoreless third quarter until late in the period when Lawrence kicked out of bounds on Cleveland's 43 yard line. Corby Davis smacked center for six yards and Bob Davis went twelve yards around the Cardinal left end to make it first down on the Cardinals' 39 yard line.

Bob Davis and Drake made first down by inches on the 29 yard line. Davis hit the line for six more yards as the period ended.

Bob Davis' forward pass was incomplete, but Pincura threw one to Jack Stephens for seventeen yards and a first down on the Cardinals' 4 yard line. Drake lost two yards, then Bob Davis hit tackle for two. A forward pass, Bob Davis to Pincura, gained a yard. Drake, plunging at left guard, was stopped on fourth down, but the Cardinals were offside. Corby Davis then plunged over the Cardinal left tackle for the touchdown. Bob Davis' kick for the extra point was blocked by Cherry and Deskin.

Sloan Meets Mr. Kovatch.

After an exchange of punts Cleveland started another foray that was brought up short when Goddard's pass was intercepted by Lawrence. Lawrence returned to Cleveland's 42 yard line.

Parker plunged for three yards. Sloan's long pass was batted down by Pincura, then Sloan was chased back by Kovatch and dropped by Ragazzo for a twenty yard loss on the Cardinals' 41 yard line.

Goddard, trying to pass on third down, had the ball knocked out of his hand and Blazine recovered for Chicago on Cleveland's 11 yard line. Lawrence made five yards around end, but Chicago drew a five yard penalty for too many times out. Parker plunged at tackle for two yards. Russell then went in for Lawrence and failed to gain on a wide run as the game ended.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Shut out for eight innings, Pittsburgh came from behind today to score two runs in the ninth and beat the Bees, 2 to 1, in the odd contest of the three game series.

The Pirates had made only five hits off the veteran southpaw, Milburn Shoffner—never more than one in any inning—when the break occurred that decided the game. Gus Suhr, who had made two singles, led off the ninth with a fly to right center that either Vince Di Maggio or Johnny Cooney should have caught easily, but they collided and the ball dropped for a double.

Young sacrificed Suhr to third and the first baseman scored the tying run on Handley's single to left. Al Todd then chipped in with a single, and Handley took third as Klinger forced Todd at second. Lloyd Waner's single to center drove home the deciding run.

There was no evidence of Bob Klinger's sore arm as the Pittsburgh rookie held the Bees to six hits—all singles and all made in different innings—to record his eleventh victory of the season.

Connors Hits Three Homers as Sox Beat Macks, 8-4, 7-4

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Rookie Merv Connors, originally found at Longview, Tex., but who has been touring various minor leagues at the expense of the White Sox for the last couple of years, got himself into the record book yesterday alongside a flock of illustrious big leaguers, past and present. In the course of a double triumph for the Sox over the Athletics, 8 to 4 and 7 to 4, Connors exploded three consecutive home runs in the second game.

Connors, who was called in two weeks ago from the Shreveport, La., club, personally attended to the scoring of five runs. With his first homer he drove in three runs to put the Sox ahead. The two others, one in the fourth and the next in the sixth, all of them off Jim Reninger, were made with the bases bare.

In his fourth appearance he missed a home run by a few feet. The ball hit the left field score board for a double, robbing him of the chance tie Lou Gehrig, the only player of modern times who has hit four successive home runs in one game.

Connors Saves Knott.

Connors wasn't permitted to perform in the first game because Manager Jimmy Dykes wanted to provide the best possible talent for the veteran Ted Lyons. Ted started as if nothing could help him except relief, but his mates put him back into a 3 to 3 tie in the third inning and from there on he was able to take care of himself. Meanwhile his fellow workers put on a three run rally at the expense of Randall Gumpert in the seventh and sealed his eighth victory of the year with two more runs in the eighth off Ralph Buxton.

The work of Connors in the second game was of great assistance to Jack Knott, the ex-Brownie, whose consistency seldom is supported with many runs. After being given a handsome lead, Knott showed his appreciation by breezing through the last five innings on a yield of two hits.

FIRST GAME

The Athletics were a bit rough on old man Lyons in the first inning of the first game. They uncorked three hits in a row for two runs. Moses opened with a single and went to third on a single by Lodigiani. The latter thought he could reach second on the throw in, but was nipped. Finney tripled off the right center field wall, scoring Moses. Then Finney dashed home on Etten's fly to Walker. The Sox took back one of these runs in their half on Walker's 15th home run which dropped into the left field pavilion.

Bartling's triple and a scratch single by Gumpert gave the Macks another run in the second, but the lead lasted only until the Sox could get at Gumpert for the tying runs in the third. After two were out, Owen walked and Walker singled to right. Radcliff also singled to right, Owen scoring and Walker taking third. Appling singled to center, Walker counting and Radcliff moving to third. The inning ended on Kreevich's grounder to Werber.

Sox Break Tie.

One was out in the seventh when the Sox began to dissolve the tie. Radcliff and Appling walked. Kreevich grounded to Bartling, whose toss to Lodigiani forced Appling at second. Lodigiani tried for a double play, but tossed the ball into the Athletics' dugout, Radcliff scoring and Kreevich going to second. Meyer singled to center, scoring Kreevich. Sewell caromed a single off Bartling's glove and before Johnson could get the ball back to the plate, Meyer had scored from first.

A pass to Owen started the Sox in the eighth, which was pitched by Buxton. The pass was followed by Walker's single to center. Radcliff singled to the same spot and Johnson was in such a hurry to capture the ball that it rolled past him, the error permitting Walker to score behind Owen.

Athletics Get One.

The Athletics scored their last run in the ninth when Appling fumbled on Wagner, who scored on singles by Moses and Lodigiani. The latter was

Cubs Are Ready for Applications to World Series

Applications for world series tickets are now being accepted by the Cubs for games 1, 2, and 6 in the event the north side club wins the National league championship. The tickets will be sold only in blocks of three, and two sets will be the limit to each purchaser. If played in Chicago, the games will be on Oct. 5, 6, and 12.

Applications will be received by mail only. They must reach the Chicago National League Baseball club, world series office, before Sept. 27. Should the Cubs win the pennant, tickets for the Chicago games will be sent by registered mail on or about Oct. 1. Money orders, cashier's checks, or certified checks must accompany applications.

The prices are:

One set of three box seats, $19.80.

One set of three grandstand seats, $16.50.

General admission tickets will be sold on the day of each game.

By playing little better than .500 ball—nine victories and eight defeats—the Pirates would force the Cubs to win eleven and lose five to tie for first place or win twelve and lose four to take the title. Then the third place Reds would have to win fourteen of fifteen to beat out the Cubs

TRAIL BY 2½ GAMES AFTER ROUTING GIANTS

Lee Hurls Shutout; Bryant Victor.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 17.—The Cubs, despite all the Pirates' ninth inning victory heroics in Boston, this afternoon gained a half game on the National league leaders when they whipped the Giants in both ends of a rainsoaked double-header. The score was 4 to 0 in the first contest and 4 to 2 in the seven inning darkness number.

The Cubs again moved up to within 2½ games of the Pirates as they completed their season's business against the New Yorkers with a 12 to 10 ratio for the summer.

Manager Gabby Hartnett poured it on the Giants with his two pitching aces, Bill Lee and Clay Bryant, and their successes were enhanced by the knowledge that the Giants were thwarted in a snide trick which caused the postponement of yesterday's game on a completely phony weather pretext. Lee, though he yielded 13 hits in his game, was superb, as was his support in the frequent jams.

Lee's Third Straight.

It was Big Bill's third successive shutout, his eighth of the season, and the Cubs' fifteenth. He now has a string of 28 1-3 scoreless innings. Lee also has nineteen triumphs for the season.

Johnny Wittig pitched the first four innings of the first game and held the Cubs' hitting to a double by Bill Herman. The first and winning run scored when Wittig walked Gabby Hartnett with the bases full in the fourth. The second run was Rip Collins' No. 13 homer and two runs were produced in the ninth on Herman's second double.

Bryant, who rang up victory No. 17, spotted the Giants two runs in the second inning of the second game, but Stan Hack's No. 4 homer with Bill Jurges on base tied the score just before the contest was suspended because of rain which continued through most of the gummy afternoon. Collins scored the winning run on Hack's single in the fifth and Hack scored the final marker on Frank Demaree's single after singling and stealing second in the seventh inning.

The Pennant Race.

So the Cubs move on to Brooklyn tomorrow with the pennant race standing as follows:

	W.	L.	Games behind.	To play.
Pittsburgh	80	57	...	17
Chicago	78	60	2½	16
Cincinnati	76	62	4½	15
New York	75	64	6	15

FIRST GAME

The Cubs' one hit rally in the fourth inning, in which the winning run of the first game was accomplished, was preceded by nine straight Cub outs and six Giant hits. Hack walked and stole second. Herman got a double when Ott was handcuffed by his liner, putting Hack on third. Demaree nudged one of those cute little bouncers to Haslin and was out at first while the runners held their bases. Galan was given an intentional pass, filling the bases. Reynolds whiffed for the second out, but Hartnett walked, forcing Hack across the plate. Collins flied to Seeds.

Lee's Biggest Jam.

The Giants' half of the fourth really was something to behold. The first three batsmen loaded the bases on successive singles to lift the Giant total to nine. Though he was pitching in a downpour, Lee struck out Kampouris. Leslie batted for Wittig and lined to Lee. Bill knew there was a double play around some place but couldn't figure where. So he hastily threw the ball to Capt. Herman at his regular fielding position between second and first. Capt. Bill located the double play. He tossed to Collins, doubling McCarthy off first.

Collins smacked his No. 13 off Walter Brown at the start of the seventh. It was a good shot which was rising when it crashed into the seats on the upper deck of the right field grandstand. It would have been a good hit in a real ball park.

SECOND GAME

Hack's two run homer with two out in the third, just before the second game was suspended for 48 minutes, tied the score that the Giants had made in much activity in the first two innings.

With one out in the home first Myatt walked. Moore apparently slammed into a double play, but Umpire Pinelli ruled O'Dea had tipped Moore's bat. So Myatt was called safe on second and Moore first on

GREENBERG HITS NOS. 52 AND 53 AS TIGERS WIN, 7-3

Ties Foxx's New Record to Beat Yanks.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Hank Greenberg went out in front of Babe Ruth's record home run schedule again today with a pair of round trip hits that gave the Tigers a 7 to 3 victory over the New York Yankees.

The drives were his 52d and 53d of the season. The first came in the opening inning with one on base and the second in the fifth with two aboard. Hank rounded out the day with two singles for a perfect batting afternoon, against Monte Pearson.

The game was the Tigers' 139th in the league standings, or 140th if a tie is included. Ruth, back in 1927 when he set the all-time high of sixty homers in one year, did not hit his 53d until the Yankees' 142d game of that campaign. He had hit No. 52 in the 139th game.

In clouting his homers, Greenberg also equaled a major league record Jimmy Foxx of the Boston Red Sox broke only a few weeks ago. This was for hitting two homers in one game nine times during a season.

Despite the defeat, the Yankees gained ground in the American league pennant race. Since Boston's second place Red Sox were defeated in Cleveland, the Yanks now need only one victory—or a loss for Boston—to clinch their third straight championship. Score:

Jimmy Foxx also collected four hits, including his 45th home run in the first inning, a double and two singles. Hal Trosky, who rounded out the 11-hit attack on Jack Wilson with three safeties, doubled in the seventh to score Heath with the winning run. Score:

SECOND GAME

Moses' home run into the right field seats in the first inning gave the Athletics a jump on Knott in the second game, but it wasn't long before the Sox were even. Radcliff opened the second inning with a single. Rosenthal walked. Then Connors hit the first of his homers, giving the Sox a 3 to 1 lead.

Wagner's triple and a fly ball gave the Athletics a run in the third, but this merely inspired the Sox. They scored twice in their half on a single by Berger, Steinbacher's triple over Johnson's head and Radcliff's fly ball. The Athletics came back with a run in the fourth on Johnson's single and Newsome's double. Connors restored the Sox's three run lead in the home half by drilling another homer into the left field seats.

Connors was up again in the sixth, this time with none out. He went after the first pitch and lined it into the left field seats for his third homer of the game. Just for this Lodigiani hit his No. 6 homer into the same sector to start the seventh, making the score 7 to 4.

The gold flaked Boston Red Sox will be at Comiskey park today for a double-header starting at 1:30 o'clock. Monty Stratton and Thornton [Lefty] Lee will pitch to the visitors. Boston's starters will be two old men—Bill Harris and Joe Heving.

* * *

Luke Appling yesterday resembled a ball player handed down from the gay nineties. He wore high baseball shoes instead of the orthodox low cuts. Luke wanted to find out if the extra casing would make him less timid of the ankle he fractured during spring training.

* * *

Dario Lodigiani, the Athletics' second baseman for the moment, committed a social as well as a fielding error in the seventh inning of the first game. He threw the ball into the dugout, which wasn't bad, but it was aimed at Connie Mack's head. The venerable Connie had to leap to avoid being beaned.

HOUSE OF DAVID, MILLS TO MEET IN DOUBLE-HEADER

John Tucker, popular first baseman-manager of the House of David baseball team, will lead his club against the Chicago Mills in a double-header this afternoon at 4700 West Lake street. The Spencer Coals will play two games with the Colored All-Stars at 4200 North Central avenue. First games at both parks start at 1:30 o'clock.

The bearded visitors from Benton Harbor will pitch Merritt Hubbell, a brother of Carl, and Cliff Clay, former Cub rookie, against the Mills this afternoon. Eddie Lick and Hubby Hanson, former Mills' infielders, will be in the Israelites' lineup.

The Colored All-Stars, who meet the Coals on the North Side, have been recruited from the Negro American and National leagues. George Houston, American Giants' star, and Norman Cross, hurling star of the Birmingham Black Barons, will pitch for the colored invaders.

V. M. I. BEATS ELON.

Lexington, Va., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Virginia Military institute avenged a 1937 defeat with a 33 to 7 triumph over Elon college today in its opening football game of the season.

CUBS WIN TWO; PIRATES' LEAD REDUCED TO 2½

Ken's error. Ott struck out and Myatt was doubled going into third, O'Dea to Hack.

The Cubs didn't get out of the woods so neatly in the second inning. Danning singled off Herman's shins, but Seeds fouled to Collins. McCarthy doubled to left, Danning stopping at third. Kampouris was given an intentional pass, loading the bases. Then Lohrman lined to Galan, Danning scoring. Haslin bounced a double off Hack's glove, McCarthy scoring. Myatt struck out.

Cubs Solve Lohrman.

With one down in the Cub third Jurges singled to right, the first hit off Bill Lohrman. Bryant flied to Moore, then Hack tied the score with his fourth homer of the season, a drive into the lower deck of the right field stand. Time was called and for a long time it appeared play could not resume. At the end of 48 minutes, however, the boys went back to work. Herman ended the Cub third with a grounder to Lohrman.

A fine play by Herman prevented the Giants from taking the lead in the fourth. With two out Lohrman singled and took second on a wild pitch. Haslin then singled over second and Lohrman had rounded third for an expected easy trip home when Herman dived for the ball, knocking down the hit and holding Lohrman to third. Myatt flied to Demaree.

Collins beat out a hit to McCarthy to get the Cubs' fifth under way. Jurges failed in one attempt to sacrifice, fouled off one on a full swing, then lined a single to right center, Collins stopping at second. Bryant flied to Moore after one attempt to bunt. Hack singled to right, scoring Collins and putting Jurges on third. Herman fanned and Moore jumped against the left field wall to pull down Demaree's fly.

Gumbert Also Suffers.

Harry Gumbert went in at the start of the seventh and the Cubs frisked him for a run. With one out Hack beat out a bunt and stole second. Herman fanned for the second successive time, but Demaree singled to right, scoring Hack. The rain broke loose again and Galan walked. Reynolds flied to Ott.

PLAY DODGERS TWO TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 17.—The Cubs will cross the bridge tomorrow for a pair of games with the Brooklyn Dodgers. Charley Root is to pitch one of the engagements and maybe Larry French will pitch the other.

* * *

Yesterday was a perfect day for baseball. Today wasn't.

* * *

The Cubs now have only three games to play against first division competition. The three, against the Pirates, will be played in Wrigley field on Sept. 27, 28, and 29.

* * *

The Cubs had a big scare at the start of the sixth inning of the first game today when a foul tip got Gabby Hartnett on his meat hand. Everybody thought of Gabby's none too firm busted thumb. But it turned out to be just a crack on the knuckles. Gabby resumed after hopping about a bit.

PORTER'S MITE, CRAVAT WIN IN BELMONT UPSETS

Record of 1:14.4 for 6½ Furlongs Set.

New York, Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Cravat at 12 to 1 and Porter's Mite at 20 to 1 scored stunning surprises before 15,000 at rain swept Belmont today. Cravat reached home first in the $6,800 Jerome handicap; Porter's Mite in the $5,700 Champagne stakes. They left in their wake a new world's record and a new discussion as to 1938 3 year old honors.

The new world's standard of 1:14 2-5 was set impressively by the son of The Porter and Minima, who races for W. E. Boeing of California. Leading practically from start to finish of the six and one-half furlongs, Porter's Mite finished out powerfully under Basil James. He defeated Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Impound by a length and a half. A head farther back, Mrs. Ethel Mars' No Competition barely missed the place. Eleven others trailed.

Cravat Comes Up from Last Place.

In the Jerome handicap, leading event, Menow was established as the public choice. He set the six and a half furlong world's mark of 1:15 1-5 last year as a juvenile when he won the Futurity—the time Porter's Mite lowered by four-fifths of a second today.

In the Jerome, Menow was confidently counted on to again show his speed. Cravat, however, carrying Townsend B. Martin's silks, came from last position to score by half a length over Can't Wait. Four lengths farther back was The Chief. He was three in front of Menow. Magic Hour and Bull Lea finished next. The mile was run in 1:36 2-5, the fastest of the meeting. Cravat's performance gave him added consideration in the competition for 1938 3 year old honors.

TIME ALONE WINS

Havre de Grace, Md., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Time Alone, a bay colt making his second start, flashed through the mists today ahead of fifteen 2 year old thoroughbreds to a length and a half victory in the twenty-sixth running of the eastern shore handicap.

The son of Time Maker and Gladys McClain held the lead throughout the six furlongs to pay $12.70, $6.50, and $8.70. Norman W. Church's Sweet Nancy was second at $34.10 and $21.40, and T. M. Dorsett, owned by Joe W. Brown, was third at $8.70. Calumet farm's Beau James and Yale O'Nine, owned by T. D. Taggart, ran a dead heat for fourth.

Time Alone had not stepped on a track to race since last May 30, when he ran second in a four and a half furlong dash at Tanforan and earned $400 for Owner Mrs. F. A. Carreaud. Today's victory poured $11,525 into Mrs. Carreaud's purse.

The crowd of 12,000 made Maeline, owned by Maemere farm, the individual favorite, at $5.45 to 1. Maeline, which formerly ran as Hireling, managed to move up menacingly on leaving the backstretch, but weakened and finished seventh.

LINCOLN PARK ARCHER WINS MEN'S TITLE

George Olin of Lincoln park scored 549 points, shooting 36 arrows from a distance of 60 yards, to win the target shoot medal in the men's division of the open archery tournament yesterday in Ogden park.

The highest score of the day was made by Renette Yanke of the Chicago Archery club. She totaled 616 in the women's target shoot, using 96 arrows from 50 yards. Summaries:

Lenert Anderson of Gompers park won the boys' class A target shoot with 523 points. Charlotte M. Clark of the Chicago Archery club won in the girls' division with 577 points.

MIDGET DRIVERS RACE TONIGHT ON RIVERVIEW TRACK

Forty-three pilots, headed by Harry MacQuinn, Emil Andres, Jimmy Snyder, Ted Duncan, Wally and Johnny Zale, and Harry and Marshall Lewis will compete in the nine race midget automobile program in the Riverview speedway, Western avenue and Addison street, tonight. Racing begins at 8:30 p. m.

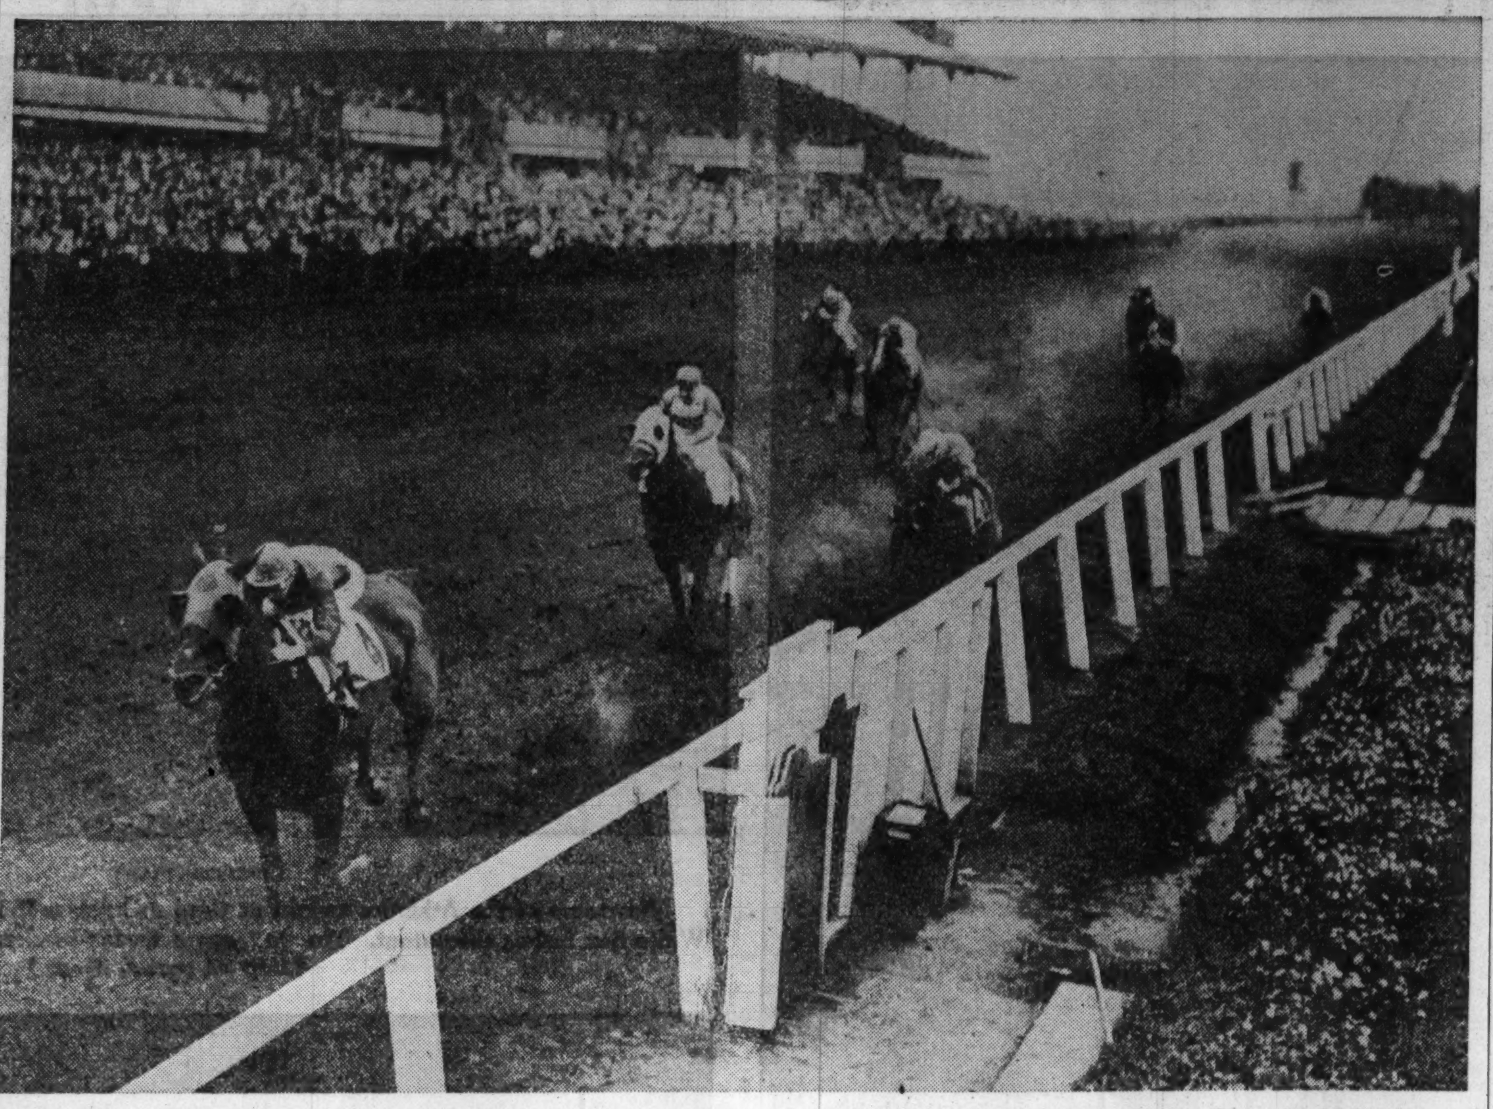
Only twenty-five of the drivers entered will be eligible to compete in the nine race program. Those turning in the fastest qualifying trials will be eligible. The pilots finishing one, two, and three in the handicap elimination heats will be allowed to compete in the forty lap feature. Eighteen are expected to race in this event.

MacQuinn, last year's midget automobile champion and this year's midseason title holder, is expected to meet his toughest opposition tonight. Wally Zale, Chicago, will drive a new car which is the same type as that of MacQuinn's.

BELLOISE MEETS WACH.

New York, Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Mike Belloise, former featherweight champion of the world, will tackle Joey Wach, New York youngster, in an eight round bout in the St. Nicholas palace Monday night.

RUNNING OFF WITH HAWTHORNE'S BIG PRIZE



Esposa, owned by William Zeigler of New York, gallops up to the finish line three lengths ahead of her nearest rival in yesterday's Hawthorne Gold cup race. Cardinalis (on the rail) is coming home second and the veteran campaigner Mucho Gusto is third. A crowd of 20,000 gathered at Hawthorne to watch this stake event, which is the biggest feature of the meeting. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

HUNTERS NOTICE CHANGE IN GUN STYLES THIS YEAR

BY BOB BECKER.

There are shiny new guns on display in sporting goods store windows. Brand new duck decoys sit complacently among the hunting coats, the shotguns, rubber boats, and other hunting equipment in these window displays. The fellows who are lucky enough to be looking for a new shotgun for the coming hunting season are now doing their shopping. All of this activity is a reminder that an army of outdoor fans numbering between 6,000,000 and 7,000,000 is getting ready to enjoy the sport of hunting wild game.

Sportsmen who are looking at shotgun displays this fall are noticing considerable stress on double barreled guns. For several years there has been a definite trend toward this type. In the old days we had large bag limits and the five shot repeaters [rugged, popular shotguns and inexpensive guns] had their inning. Now waterfowl limits are down.

Not Much Difference.

Moreover, the law requires that repeaters be plugged so that they will take no more than three shells. Consequently there now isn't much difference between the standard double and the repeater as far as load is concerned, whereas in former years the ratio was 5 to 2. Undoubtedly these changes have turned many shooters to double guns.

Sportsmen also see this change in types of guns being used in hunting. Some years ago when we bought shotguns no one would think of anything but 30 inch barrels, full and modified choke [in a double]. Most of the repeaters had long barrels with full choke.

Today this trend in shotguns is very noticeable. . . . the 26 inch barrel shotgun for upland game shooting and the 28 inch barrel gun for duck shooting. We now shoot nothing but a 26 inch barrel shotgun at quail, jacksnipe, doves, rabbits, and pheasants. Early in the season when ducks are decoying well this gun also can be used to get birds. And we have noticed how our score has improved in field shooting when using this gun.

In hunting it's a case of every fellow to his favorite shotgun with no questions asked. But for us, after many years of hunting, both in North and South America, we believe we are going to get the most fun out of one shotgun [an over and under] with two sets of barrels—one set 26 inches long for upland game, and the second set 28 inches long for ducks and geese. If we can't get birds with this outfit we'll take up the slingshot right away.

Seabiscuit Misses Gold Cup Race; So Does His Owner

William Zeigler Jr. of New York came to see his Esposa run for the Gold cup at Hawthorne. After Seabiscuit had been declared out of the race Charles S. Howard, the Pacific coast champion's owner, did not remain to see the race. He left early in the afternoon for Boston.

All available box and reserved seats were occupied by the time the horses went to the post in the first race. The crowd also jammed the aisles and lawns and started wagering in spirited fashion long before the first race was run.

Veloz and Yolanda and George Jessel and his wife, the former Norma Talmadge, were among the Gold Cup visitors. Charley Bidwill, chairman of the Hawthorne board of directors, missed the race. He was in Cleveland where his Chicago Cardinals were playing the Cleveland Rams.

Frank Hoffman, the widely known painter of horses, was on hand to see if he could find any new horse beauty spots on the Gold Cup winner.

Total betting at Hawthorne yesterday was $468,159. Last year the betting on Gold Cup day was slightly more than $500,000. The betting on the Gold Cup race yesterday was $76,000.

NANCY WYNNE IN FINALS OF U. S. TENNIS TOURNEY

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Nancy Wynne of Australia defeated Dorothy May Bundy, but the rain won today over the other semi-final survivors in the men's and women's national singles tennis tournament at the West Side Tennis club.

Overcoming her tendency toward erratic play, Miss Wynne had to beat herself to beat Miss Bundy, 5-7, 6-4, 8-6, and reach the final round for the second time in the two tournaments in which she has played in this country. Their match was interrupted by rain for twenty minutes with the score 2-1 in the Australian's favor in the third set. As soon as their match was over, the day's program also was at an end.

Miss Marble vs. Mrs. Fabyan.

Tournament officials hung on against the rain as long as they could, for there was a capacity crowd of 14,000, but at 3 o'clock the rest of the matches had to be put over until tomorrow and the finals until Monday.

At 11:30 a. m. tomorrow, the 1936 champion, Alice Marble, will meet her doubles partner, Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan of Cambridge, Mass., for the right to meet Miss Wynne in the title round. At 12:45 p. m. Gene Mako of Los Angeles will face John Bromwich of Australia, and at 2:30 it will be Defending Champion Don Budge against Sidney Wood, the often brilliant New Yorker who is making a comeback at the age of 26.

Miss Wynne Brilliant in Spurts.

Miss Wynne, winner of 12 out of 13 Australian tournaments in one 20-month stretch, twice No. 1 in Australia, and finalist against Miss Marble at Essex, played brilliant tennis today, but only in spurts.

After having rattled off 15 placements to take the second set, Miss Wynne frittered away two games in the third on her own service, either one of which would have given her the match.

MARE RACES TO MARK OF 1:57½ FOR MILE PACE

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Her Ladyship, E. J. Baker's outstanding mare, today took undisputed possession of the world's record for pacing mares when she did the mile in 1 minute 57½ seconds over the Indiana state fair grounds track.

Driven by Sep Palin, the mare stepped the quarter in 30 seconds, the half in 59¾ seconds, and turned the final half in 57¾ seconds. The last quarter, and the fastest, was in 28½ seconds. Sharing the former record of 1:58¼ with her were Miss Harris M. and Margaret Dillon.

JUST YOUNGSTERS—BUT WATCH THEM GO

Abersen of Senn attempts to evade Loyola academy tacklers during yesterday's game on Loyola field. Senn scored midway in the second quarter when Bob Fredrick passed to Bill Milliken, who ran fifteen yards to the goal. Senn protected this margin to win, 6 to 0. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

SOPHS STAND OUT AS PURPLE HOLDS 1ST SCRIMMAGE

Sophomores shared honors with veterans in Northwestern's first football scrimmage yesterday in which the first team beat the second team, 7 to 6. Jack Ryan, left half back, scored for the regulars by going over from the 10 yard line after taking a lateral pass from Full Back Jay Laskay. Laskay kicked the extra point.

Shortly afterward the second team engineered a fifty yard drive with Oliver [Red] Hahnenstein, sophomore half back, leading the attack. He ripped off numerous long runs and climaxed the march by tossing a twenty yard pass to Ted Grefe, letterman end, for a touchdown. The placement for the extra point was wide.

McGurn Shows Promise.

The ball carrying of George McGurn, full back on the second team, was one of the bright spots of the workout. Other backs who turned in impressive performances were Bernie Jefferson, veteran right half, and Al Butherus, sophomore right half.

The first and second string lines played each other to a standstill and gave promise that the Wildcats will be well supplied with forwards. The regular line was made up of Capt. Cleo Diehl and Tom Eby, ends; Bob Voigts and Nick Cutlich, tackles; Don Guritz and John Goldak, guards, and John Haman, center.

Reserve Line Has Its Fun.

The second team line which shoved the regulars around on occasion included Ted Grefe and Bob Daly, ends; Frank Young and Tom Irving, tackles; Dick Wells and Art Niedbalski, guards, and Paul Heimenz, center. In the back field were Hahnenstein and Iggy Mesec, half backs; Jerry Saperston, quarter back, and McGurn, full back.

SECRECY AT MICHIGAN.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Michigan's football team went behind the guarded gates of the stadium this afternoon for its first secret scrimmage. The scrimmage was the fifth of the week for the Wolverine squad as Coach H. O. [Fritz] Crisler employed his entire repertoire. Passing has been emphasized for the last three days.

Injuries broke up the back field combinations as full backs Ed Christy and Howard Mehaffey joined Half Back Norman Purucker on the sidelines for two day rests. With Christy absent, the back field was made up of Forest Evashevski at quarter back, Wallie Hook at full back and Paul Kromer and Tom Harmon at the halves.

FOUR OHIO TEAMS PLAY.

The Red team made up of possible starters, ran over the fourth string Whites, 20 to 0, and the Greens [third stringers] beat the Blues [second stringers], 7 to 6, on a 70 yard run back from a kickoff by Jilly Strausbaugh, sophomore half back, who carried the ball to the 30 yard line. The score came just six plays later when Zuchengo, another sophomore, went over center for the touchdown with Strausbaugh adding the point.

PURDUE GOLDS WIN.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Purdue football fans got their first glimpse of the 1938 Boilermakers in action this afternoon. In an intrasquad game, the Golds, whose lineup included the most regulars, beat the Blacks, 28 to 12.

The play of both teams was spotty, but fine performances were turned in by Lou Brock and Jack Brown in the back field. Both are veterans.

The lineups were shifted with such rapidity that it was difficult to judge accurately the strength of the teams. Co-Capt. Joe Mihal, tackle, was cut under the left eye in the second period and was forced to the sidelines.

Play Walther League's Softball Finals Today

Postponed last week on account of rain the playoffs of the Walther league softball tournament will be held today at Weber field, Ashland and Wellington. St. Luke's and Hope meet for the title and St. Andrews and Ebenezer for third and fourth places.

Michigan State Eleven Has Everything--Except Tackles

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

East Lansing, Mich., Sept. 17.—Michigan State's Spartans, who have defeated the University of Michigan for four consecutive years and who last year won eight of their ten engagements from coast to coast, must find a pair of tackles as they advance again to Thermopylæ, else they may be carried home on their shields.

Michigan State, except for this important position, will have a veteran team. At left end will be Walter [Ole] Nelson, the lad who never played football until he went to East Lansing. Nelson's exceptional ability as receiver of passes made him the team's 1937 leading scorer. Lyle Rockenbach of Crystal Lake, Ill., State's greatest guard in a score of years, again is ready for the campaign.

At left half State will parade John Pingel, long distance kicker, who averaged 5.7 yards for each time he carried the ball in 1937 and averaged .441 on his passes, and Gene Ciolek, who just fell short of Pingel's gains from scrimmage but bettered his forward passing mark.

But, They Need Tackles.

However, Michigan State needs tackles and no one knows this better than Charlie Bachman, under whose coaching genius, in the last five years, the Spartans have won thirty-two games, lost eight, and tied four.

Perhaps, by midseason the group of tackle candidates may have gained experience to rival the play of their predecessors, but with Wayne university coming here next Saturday and with a revived Michigan eleven waiting for the Spartans on Oct. 1, there is no time to experiment.

Michigan, of course, is the immediate objective of the Spartans. Seventy-two thousand saw last year's Michigan State victory, 19 to 14, and 15,000 went from Lansing to that game. Michigan now reports its advance ticket sale has surpassed the sale in 1937 on the day before the game which is equal tribute to Michigan's renaissance and to the Spartan veterans.

Against the play of Michigan's sophomores and veteran linemen, Bachman has marshaled the following tackles:

Bachman Seeks Speed.

Michigan State is worrying over Michigan despite the fact that no player on this squad had matriculated when the Wolverines last won from their intra-state foes. But Michigan's long continued success still is tradition.

Speed was the keynote of the State attack last fall. Yet the Spartans, when they met and lost to Auburn, 6 to 0, in post-season play, found themselves outspeeded. Consequently Bachman is seeking to improve the precision and pace of his backfield. To this purpose he is in process of reorganizaing the full back group. Usif Haney of Kingsport, Tenn., and George Kovacich of Whiting, Ind., both seniors, may be supplanted by a sophomore, Jack Amon from Union High school, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Squad's Condition Is Good.

In addition to Amon, another sophomore, Edward Abdo from Detroit, Mich., is making a determined bid for a regular right guard position. Now he is preceded by Darwin Dudley, a senior from Christopher, Ill.

The Spartans' chances are based, according to the staf, on [1] whether the tackles measure to desired standard, [2] speed at least equal to that in 1937, and [3] excellent physical condition. All players, and the squad now numbers 68, returned to the campus in the best condition since the Bachman régime began.

The tentative lineup and order of substitution follows:

Madison, Wis., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Wisconsin's football squad got its first taste of actual scrimmage in a two hour session at Camp Randall this afternoon. A cold steady rain fell during the workout.

Three sophomores, Al Lorenz of Oak Park, Ill.; Gordon Gile of Shorewood, and Ed Wegner of Cudahy, continued to wage an even battle with the veterans Bob Weigandt and Ralph Moeller for the varsity end positions. Coach Harry Stuhldreher indicated that he will start the regular 1937 back field against Marquette in the opening game of the season two weeks from today.

This means that Vince Gavre will be at quarter back, Bill Schmitz and Roy Bellin at the halves, and Howard Weiss at full back.

Bellin shared offensive honors during the long scrimmage with George Paskvan, husky La Grange, Ill., sophomore full back. Both scored, Bellin racing eighty-seven yards over slippery turf for his touchdown and Paskvan going eighty-five yards to cross the goal line. Vince Cibik, junior right half back from Milwaukee, scored a touchdown after an eighty yard sprint.

Alabama Is Off for Game with Trojan Eleven

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Sept. 17.—[U. P.]—The Alabama Crimson Tide was rolling toward Los Angeles tonight minus the services of Heywood Sanford, star end, who sustained a fractured leg in a practice before the team left.

Sanford, who kicked Alabama to victory with field goals on two occasions last year, had been counted on heavily for the opening game with Southern California in Los Angeles next Saturday. The break, just above the ankle, was expected to keep Sanford out for the season.

Coach Frank Thomas and a squad of thirty-two players made the trip. The team will hold daily workouts en route.

IRISH CHOOSE UP SIDES.

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Notre Dame's first, second, and third teams defeated the fourth, fifth, and sixth teams, respectively, by a combined score of 27 to 9 today.

Harry Stevenson Jr., junior left half back, passed to Steve Sitko, junior quarter back, for 32 yards and the first team's first touchdown. Mario Tonelli intercepted a fourth team pass on his 37 yard line to start the second touchdown march. Stevenson passed to Earl Brown Jr., left end, for 25 yards and first down on the 14 yard line and Tonelli went over from there. Stevenson added two extra points from placement.

Joe Thesing, varsity full back last year, now operating with the shock troops, scampered 44 yards off left tackle to make it 20 to 0. He missed the placement for extra point.

Chicago Backs Score 7 Times on Reserves

Chicago's varsity backs scored seven touchdowns in a two hour offensive scrimmage against reserves yesterday. The scrimmage, climaxing a long day of drill on fundamentals, was the first of the season for the Maroons, and they survived without injuries.

Capt. Lew Hamity, left half, and Ed Valorz, right half, scored two touchdowns each. Jack Davenport, Big Ten sprint champion, counted once and so did John Polajner and Wallace Ottomeyer, newcomers.

The scrimmage opened with Sherman, Valorz, Goodstein and Davenport in the back field. Littleford and Harlan were at the ends, Weideman and Wilson at tackles, Sass and Maurovich at guards and Plunkett at center.

Make Long Gains.

The first touchdown was scored on a pass, good for 50 yards, from Hamity to Valorz. The second resulted from a 55 yard forward lateral, Sherman to Valorz to Hamity. The third was made by John Polajner on a 10 yard drive after he had led a march down the field. Goodstein and Valorz collaborated on the fourth in a series of smashes, the latter going over. The fifth was scored by Ottomeyer and the sixth by Hamity, both on short plunges, and the seventh was made by Davenport on a thirty ard sprint off tackle.

IOWA SCRIMMAGES AGAIN.

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Although rain halted afternoon practice Coach Irl Tubbs this morning continued the vigorous scrimmage routine he has been ordering for his University of Iowa football squad daily.

Henry Luebcke, 200 pound right tackle, was shifted to the left side of the line in today's drill, but it was not known whether the change would be permanent.

INDIANA VARSITY WINS.

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—The Indiana varsity defeated a reserve squad, 20 to 0, in the first scrimmage this afternoon.

Two of the three touchdowns were scored on passes from Joe Nicholson, Evansville sophomore, to Capt. Paul Graham of El Dorado, Kas., and Eddie Herbert, Gary sophomore. Herbert ran forty-five yards to score after catching a twenty yard pass. Vincent Oliver of Whiting, senior back, ran seven yards around right end for the final touchdown. Six sophomores were among the first string starters.

GOPHERS EASE UP.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Scrimmage was eliminated from today's football program at the University of Minnesota. The ten touchdown spree by the varsity yesterday and a growing hospital list were reasons for the letdown.

Dr. George Hauser, line coach who has been ill for two weeks, will resume his work Monday.

KENOSHA RIDER LEADS IN A. A. U. BICYCLE RACES

Los Angeles Cyclist Wins Ten Mile Test.

James Matthews of Los Angeles yesterday won the National A. A. U. ten mile road cycling championship on the mile and a quarter course in Garfield park. The coast youngster finished a few seconds ahead of Furman Kugler, Summerdale, N. J. Albin Jurca, Kenosha, Wis., was third; Harvey Spiegelhoff, Milwaukee, fourth, and Stanley Gadrin, Southtown Wheelmen's club, Chicago, fifth. There were seventy-six starters. The time was 22 minutes 49 seconds.

Matthews finished fourth in the five mile event, which was won by Jurca in 13.34 8-10. Gadrin finished second and Robert Cass of the Catholic Youth organization third.

Jurca took the lead in the competition for the all around title with a total of 7 points for the two events. Matthews is second with 6 points. Gadrin and Kugler each scored 3 Cass 2, and Spiegelhoff 1.

Final Races Today.

The competition will end today with a series of races which will include the one mile and twenty-five mile national championship events.

There were three spills during the ten mile race. Several contestants received minor injuries. Earl Kelly of Austin, defending champion, was taken to an emergency aid station for treatment of a knee cut. He will be able to compete in today's finals, however. Others treated at the station were Norman Snodgrass, Portland, Ore., for leg cuts; Richard Suever, St. Louis, who suffered a hip injury, and Gil Milstine, Pittsburgh, whose leg was cut.

Dolores Amundson Wins.

The five mile open final for girls was won by Dolores Amundsen, Belgian-American Athletic club, Chicago. Marie Deitch, St. Louis, was second; Laura Prebeck, Chicago, unattached, third, and Norma Hyerdall, also of Chicago and unattached, fourth.

SIX DAY RACING SEASON OPENS IN GARDEN TONIGHT

New York, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Two months earlier than usual, thirty international bicycle stars start their six day ride tomorrow night over Madison Square Garden's board bowl.

The fifteen teams, representing seven countries, will get underway at 8 p. m., eastern standard time, with Sonja Henie, figure skating champion and movie star, firing the starting gun. Gustav Killian and Heinz Vopel, the German stars who have won twenty-six six day races as a team, figure to be the combination to beat.

FOLKS — WE'LL CAMP HERE FOR THE NIGHT
I NEVER KNEW ANYTHING FILLED WITH HAY COULD BE SO HARD—ALL I WANT IS TO GET THOSE CIGARS UNPACKED AND SIT IN A QUIET SPOT!
OH, DARLING—I'M AFRAID I FORGOT TO PACK YOUR CIGARS—
WHAT NO CIGARS—AND WE'RE 100 MILES FROM ANYWHERE!
STOP SHOUTING—I WANTED IT TO BE A ROMANTIC TRIP—
AS YO' FO'KS' GUIDE MAYBE I CAN SUGGEST YO' SHARE SOME O' MY WHITE OWLS—AND LADY, THEMS THE EASIER-ON-THE-BREATH SEEGARS
LARRY—YOU'RE A LIFE SAVER!
I JUST HOPE IT'S TRUE!
HONESTLY, TOM—I CAN'T TELL YOU HOW GLAD I AM I FORGOT YOUR CIGARS—JUST THINK—WE HAD TO TRAVEL 2000 MILES TO LEARN ABOUT WHITE OWLS!

WHITE OWL
Vintage WHITE OWL 5¢

Smokers' Test showed Vintage Tobacco was EASIER ON YOUR BREATH

WHITE OWLS are definitely easier on your breath—scientific tests proved it. And there's a good reason why, too. Every White Owl always has a Vintage-tobacco filler. Nature—not artificial factory processing—made this tobacco exceptionally mild.

We maintain a vast crop-inspection system—the only known organization of its kind—to locate Vintage tobacco. Even in Vintage years we classify all filler tobaccos into at least seven grades—and use only tobacco of the quality of the top three grades for the filler of our WHITE OWL cigars.

Have you tried a White Owl lately? It's refreshing to find a cigar that tastes so good . . . and to have it approved by the ladies, too. Light up a Vintage cigar . . . taste the difference.

The Metallic Nose Knows

Scientists use a sensitive osmoscope to measure odor . . . to record its intensity and lasting power. Ten popular brands of 5¢ cigars were tested by this machine. White Owl was easier on the breath than all the others. After 30 minutes, all trace of tobacco odor disappeared from the breath of White Owl smokers.

GOSSOON WINS EIGHTH YACHT RACE IN A ROW

Fleet of 62 Competes in Clark Regatta.

Gossoon II., Malcolm Vail and Sterling Morton's champion R class sloop, won its eighth straight race yesterday in the annual Commodore Sheldon Clark regatta, sponsored by the Chicago Yacht club. In addition to winning the R class event, Gossoon, a Chicago Yacht club entrant, completed the twelve mile course in the shortest corrected time.

Southern Cross, Robert P. Benedict Jr.'s 55 foot yawl of the Jackson Park Yacht club, won in class A of the cruising division and the cruising division time prize.

Lively Lady Wins.

A fleet of sixty-two yachts, representing the South Shore [Milwaukee], Sheridan Shore, Chicago Corinthian, Chicago, Columbia, and Jackson Park clubs, competed. The course was laid off Navy pier in a moderate south wind.

The only entry not flying a Chicago flag was Lively Lady, Otto Dreher's Milwaukee sloop, which won the Q and 8 meter class event. Rubaiyat, Nathaniel Rubinkam's 44 foot cutter, sailed by Henry Robinkam, and Betty Bro, Commodore Milton Friend's flagship, won in B and C classes of the cruising division, respectively. Both fly the Columbia Yacht club flag.

Alcor Wins in Star Class.

Alcor, the winning Star class sloop, was sailed by Bert Williams, skipper, and William Coveney, crew. It is owned by Mrs. L. L. Karas. Summaries:

The Jackson Park Yacht club's annual lady skippers' race, postponed from last June due to inclement weather, will be started this morning at 11 o'clock off the outer Jackson park harbor entrance.

Sailors of all Chicago clubs may compete, but each craft must have a yachtswoman at the wheel or tiller. Men may trim sheets or halyards, but the rules do not permit them to touch the steering gear during the race. The course will be announced by Race Committee Chairman William Moore before the start.

The second and final of two special races for the Commodore George Roosevelt trophy will be sailed today on the Chicago Yacht club's course off Belmont harbor. Thirteen picked yachts are competing in the series.

GERMAN YACHT PIMM RETAINS LEAD OVER GALE

San Diego, Cal., Sept. 17.—[U. P.]—The German star boat Pimm maintained its lead in the International Star boat regatta today by beating out the second place Gale of Chicago by 1 minute 45 seconds.

Pimm previously had won a first, second, and third place for a total of 63 points, two more than that compiled by the Gale. Third place went to Mercury of the West San Francisco Bay fleet, while Rambunctious of Santa Monica finished fourth.

Other finishers were: Fachem, fifth; Lechy, sixth; Stormy, seventh; Pharlap, eighth; Joy, ninth; Three Star Two, tenth; Draco, eleventh; Black Roger, twelfth; Stardust, thirteenth; Cenetro, fourteenth; Seadler, fifteenth; Yaca, sixteenth; Kurush, seventeenth; Streve, eighteenth; Nassay, nineteenth; Sparkler, twentieth; Nomana, twenty-first; Peggy Wee, twenty-second.

TURNESA BEATS ABBOTT IN U. S. AMATEUR FINAL

yard eighth, Abbott's tee shot falling short of the green.

The shorter hitting Abbott was straight all the way to the uphill 477 yard ninth for a par, but lost the hole, despite the fact that Turnesa faded his drive to the rough, and spilled his second into a trap. Willie exploded out to four feet and holed the putt for a birdie, leaving himself three up at the turn.

Abbott appeared to have the tenth cinched, but Turnesa earned a half by dropping a twenty-five foot chip shot from the back edge of the green. A six footer fell for another Turnesa half at the 11th, where he was in a ditch and in another trap. They shared the long 12th in bogey sixes, both catching traps along the 621 yard route. Abbott failed to take advantage of a fine tee shot to the short 13th, missing a putt of less than five feet for a deuce.

Turnesa Drives Into Trap.

A deep trap off the tee cost Willie the 14th, and he three putted the 15th, giving Abbott a half there. The little New Yorker then dropped an eighteen footer for a deuce at the 16th. Abbott drove a fairway bunker at the 17th, and then made the best shot of the morning, and one of the best of the tournament. His seven iron recovery left him only thirty inches from the pin, but he missed that and Turnesa got a half. Another bunker off the 18th tee for Abbott and an eight foot putt by Turnesa sent Willie to lunch 5 up.

Abbott found himself six down after the 19th, first of the afternoon round, despite a good par. Turnesa won the hole by chipping up to five feet and holing the putt for a birdie. Pat won his third and last hole of the day at the 21st, where Willie's ball struck a spectator and hopped into a trap. The Turnesa putter clicked again for a birdie at the 22d, this time from twenty feet.

Spectator Is Hit.

Willie struck another spectator and found himself in another trap at the 187 yard 24th, but blasted out to a foot and holed the putt for a win. Abbott blowing a twenty inch chance for a half. The New Yorker earned still another magnificent half at the 25th. He hit his poorest drive of the day into the rough, then saw his recovery strike the green and kick into another bunker. His sand wedge therefrom stopped four feet away and he dropped the putt to match his opponent's four.

Abbott went eight down by missing a mean sidehill four footer on the 26th. Pat hit his best shot of the afternoon at the long, uphill 27th, but it got him no more than a half. It was a niblic try which struck the pin and stopped a yard from the flag. Turnesa, after hitting another gallery customer with his drive, was on with a brassie and a niblic, eight feet away and down in one for a birdie four.

Match Ends On 29th.

Willie missed an eight foot try for the birdie that would have ended the match on the 28th, but his half on the 29th proved to be sufficient. Both were on in two, but Abbott's thirty foot putt was a difficult one, and Turnesa was down in two from six feet for the four that made him champion.

PLATTMER, TOMAN WIN IN MODEL YACHTS' MEET

Bob Plattmer and Elmer Toman of Gage park won the model yacht competition held under the auspices of the Chicago Park district at 51st street and Outer drive yesterday.

Plattmer's 30-inch sloop and 50-inch boat in the Marnlehead class won first places and Toman took first with his 18 and 36-inch sloops.

Other winners were Keith Ongman, Gage park, for Catamaran's; Ray Meyers, La Follette park, 12-inch catboats, and Paul Penny, Gage

Stroke by Stroke Account of U. S. Amateur Golf Final

FIRST HOLE [492 yards, par 5]—Halved in fives. Match even.

SECOND HOLE [363 yards, par 4]—Turnesa's drive skinned the corner of a trap, while Abbott was 250 yards down the middle. Turnesa's second went into a trap before the green. His explosion went over the green to the bank at the back. Abbott was on twenty-eight feet above the pin and holed for a birdie. Abbott, 3; Turnesa, 5. Abbott led, 1 up.

THIRD HOLE [428 yards, par 4]—Turnesa was straight all the way, his third shot rolling five feet from the pin. Abbott drove into a trap and put his second in another near the green. His third struck a movie car. He was on in four, missed a nine footer, and conceded Turnesa's putt. Turnesa, 4; Abbott, 6; match even.

FOURTH HOLE, [536 yards, par 5]—Halved in fives. Match even.

FIFTH HOLE, [386 yards, par 4]—Both were straight off the tee, with Turnesa fifteen yards ahead. Abbott's second was in the right trap, while Willie's struck the green and kicked into the left bunker. Abbott's recovery rimmed the cup and rolled five feet away. He missed the putt after Turnesa had sunk the three footer remaining after his explosion shot. Turnesa, 4; Abbott, 5. Turnesa 1 up.

Turnesa Increases Lead.

SIXTH HOLE, [187 yards, par 3]—Halved in threes. Turnesa, 1 up.

SEVENTH HOLE, [395 yards, par 4]—Halved in fours. Turnesa, 1 up.

EIGHTH HOLE, [253 yards, par 3]—Abbott was short at the left of the green, and after getting on, missed a seven foot try. Turnesa sank a fifteen foot putt. Turnesa, 3; Abbott, 4; Turnesa, 2 up.

NINTH HOLE [477 yards, par 5.]—Turnesa's 250 yard drive was on a path in the rough to the right. Abbott was on the slope of the fairway, 30 yards back. Pat was 60 yards short of the pin with his second, while Willie's dropped into the trap just before the green. He made a grand shot within four feet and holed out for a winning birdie. Abbott, on in three, took two putts from fourteen feet. Turnesa, 4; Abbott, 5. Turnesa 3 up.

TENTH HOLE [461 yards, par 4.]—Turnesa hooked a 230 yard drive into a trap, while Abbott was down the middle at 225 yards. Pat was short with his second. His third rolled 20 feet over the pin. Turnesa's recovery was in the rough, about 75 yards ahead of the bunker he drove. The New Yorker's third hopped over the green, 25 feet past the pin. He chipped in from there for a par, Abbott missing his putt. Turnesa 4, Abbott, 5. Turnesa 4 up.

Abbott Takes Another.

ELEVENTH HOLE [395 yards, par 4]—Halved in fours. Turnesa, 4 up.

TWELFTH HOLE [621 yards, par 5]—Halved in sixes. Turnesa, 4 up.

THIRTEENTH HOLE [164 yards, par 3]—Halved in threes. Turnesa, 4 up.

FOURTEENTH HOLE [349 yards, par 4]—Abbott was 225 yards down the center and on with his second, 15 feet from the cup. Turnesa's drove into a deep trap at the right. After playing out to the fairway he was 18 feet away with his third and needed two putts. Abbott, 4; Turnesa, 5. Turnesa, 3 up.

FIFTEENTH HOLE [475 yards, par 4]—Halved in fives. Turnesa, 3 up.

SIXTEENTH HOLE [234 yards, par 3]—Turnesa drove the green, 18 feet from the cup. Abbott was 40 yards short of the pin. He was up to seven feet, but Willie dropped his putt for a deuce. Turnesa, 2; Abbott, 3; Turnesa, 4 up.

SEVENTEENTH HOLE [302 yards, par 4]—Halved in fours. Turnesa, 4 up.

Turnesa Goes Five Up.

EIGHTEENTH HOLE [473 yards, par 4]—Abbott pushed his drive to a right bunker and was on in three, 18 feet past the flag. Turnesa, 250 yards straight, was short 50 yards with his 3 iron, then got on 8 feet away and holed out for a winning par. Turnesa, 4; Abbott, 5; Turnesa, 5 up.

NINETEENTH HOLE [482 yards, the center, while Turnesa hooked to the fairway edge. Pat was short in two and chipped on to 15 feet. Willie smacked a 2 iron 30 yards in front of the green, flicked it up to five feet and holed out for a bird. Turnesa, 4; Abbott, 5. Turnesa, 6 up.

TWENTIETH HOLE [363 yards, par 4]—Halved in fours. Turnesa, 6 up.

TWENTY-FIRST HOLE [428 yards, par 4]—Abbott was short with his second, dropped a niblic shot five feet from the flag and holed out for a winning par. Turnesa's spoon shot struck a woman spectator and ricocheted into a bunker. He blasted out to ten feet, but missed the putt. Abbott, 4; Turnesa, 5; Turnesa, 5 up.

Turnesa Loses One.

TWENTY-SECOND HOLE [536 yards, par 5]—Turnesa hooked his drive to a trap and Abbott pushed his into similar difficulty. Pat was still short in three and was on in four, six feet away. Turnesa made an excellent recovery and was on in three, 20 feet away. He dropped the putt for a birdie four. Turnesa, 4; Abbott, 5; Turnesa, 6 up.

TWENTY-THIRD HOLE [386 yards, par 4]—Halved in fours. Turnesa, 6 up.

TWENTY-FOURTH HOLE [187 yards, par 3]—Turnesa hit another spectator and the ball bounced into a deep trap. He exploded to within a foot and holed out after Abbott, approaching to twenty inches, missed his putt. Turnesa, 3; Abbott, 4; Turnesa, 7 up.

TWENTY-FIFTH HOLE [395 yards, par 4]—Halved in fours. Turnesa, 7 up.

TWENTY-SIXTH HOLE [253 yards, par 3]—Both were short with their tee shots. Pat chipped up to three and a half feet, leaving himself a side hill putt which he missed. Turnesa chipped two feet past the flag and holed out. Turnesa, 3; Abbott, 4; Turnesa, 8 up.

TWENTY-SEVENTH HOLE [477 yards, par 5]—Halved in four. Turnesa, 8 up.

TWENTY-EIGHTH HOLE [461 yards, par 4]—Halved in fives. Turnesa, 8 up.

TWENTY-NINTH HOLE [395 yards, par 4]—Halved in fours. Turnesa

Youthful Willie Warms Hearts of Six Turnesas

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Oakmont, Pa., Sept. 17.—Three fellows named Joe and Mike and Phil telephoned the Oakmont Country club this afternoon, all of them demanding the same party. That party was Willie Turnesa, little brother of Joe, Mike, and Phil. Willie had just won the forty-second amateur championship of the United States Golf association.

After the telephonic congratulations of Joe, Mike, and Phil came wires from the other three brothers, Jim, Frank, and Douglas. All six of them are golf professionals. And Willie had plenty of personal support through the 29 holes of his 8 and 7 victory over Pat Abbott. In the gallery following him were his girl friend, May O'Connor of Elmsford, N. Y., and his two sisters, Rose and Mildred.

The new champion is the first of the Turnesas to bring home a big league title. Brother Joe came closest of the others, losing the 1926 National Open by a stroke to Bobby Jones and the 1927 professional crown, 1 down, to Walter Hagen.

Turnesa is the youngest champion since Jones won at Merion in 1924 at the age of 22. Turnesa was born in Elmsford Jan. 26, 1915. He won his first title, the Westchester caddy championship, when he was 13. Currently he is the New York state and Westchester amateur titleholder and he was runnerup to Frankie Strafaci in the Metropolitan. He also won the medal in the last two national intercollegiates, playing for Holy Cross.

Willie, one of the most popular players in golf, tonight pointed out the good omen contained in his locker number during this tournament. That locker, 191, was used by Tommy Armour when he won the 1927 National Open here, and again by Sam Parks, when he won the 1935 Open.

John D. Ames of Glen View shot a 39—35—74 to win the Laigh and Langy trophy at Glen View's fortieth Twa Days invitational golf tournament from a field of 150 yesterday. John H. Victor Jr., club champion, won the Bonnie Braes trophy with 39—37—76.

The Auchtermuchty award went to Champ Carry, of Onwentsia, who posted the best low net score, a 77—11—66. The foursome of O. W. Clifton, George Victor, John H. Victor Jr., and Rube Markward won all of the foursome honors. They took gross honors with 318, low net with 318—10—308, and best ball of 68.

The prize list:

BLACK HORSE TROOP SHOW TO BE HELD TODAY

The Chicago Black Horse troop will hold its annual horse show in the corral adjoining the troop headquarters at 333 E. Erie street this morning. A program of four events has been arranged by the committee, which is headed by Private Albert E. Gage Jr.

The show will open at 10 o'clock with a spear running contest open to troopers only. A trooper's jumping event will follow. Third will be a jumping event for ladies. The fourth event, for troopers, will include saddling and unsaddling a horse and

WOMEN GOLFERS BEGIN NATIONAL PLAY TOMORROW

Patty Berg Shoots Record 75 at Westmoreland.

They've been saying all summer as she won tournament after tournament that Patty Berg was the one to beat in the national women's golf meet which opens tomorrow on the Westmoreland course. Yesterday the Minneapolis girl, runnerup for the United States championship in 1935 and last year, gave further proof that she is ready by playing Westmoreland in 37—38—75, four strokes under women's par and the same number below the women's record.

This round, coming on top of a brilliant summer campaign which has seen Miss Berg win nine of the twelve tournaments in which she has competed, made her the favorite over one of the finest fields ever gathered for the event.

Holes All Putts.

Miss Berg played yesterday in a foursome which included Jane Cothran of Greenville, S. C.; Laddie Irwin, Glen Ridge, N. J., and Virginia Guilfoil, Syracuse. She holed all putts and was over par only once, taking a bogey five on the fourth hole. Her round included five birdies, three of them on the first three holes.

Miss Berg's card:

Par—Out	455	434	455—39
Par—In	455	445	535—40—79
Miss Berg—Out	344	534	455—37
Miss Berg—In	445	445	534—38—75

Birdies at the second, third, 11th, and 18th came as the result of nice putting. On the second she sank an 8 footer, a 12 footer on the third, an 8 footer on the 11th, and a 10 footer on the 18th.

A large portion of the field was out yesterday for practice. The best card turned in aside from Miss Berg's was by Beatrice Barrett, another Minneapolis girl, who had 80. Miss Margaret Russell, Birmingham, Mich., shot an 83, and Mrs. Charles Newbold, Wichita, Kas.; Hilda Livengood, Danville, Ill.; Dorothy Foster, Springfield, Ill.; Mary Wilder, Skokie, and Harriet Randall, Indianapolis, had 86s.

Miss Miley Has 39.

Marion Miley of Lexington, Ky., one of the strong contenders, played the first nine in a par 39. Mrs. Opal S. Hill, Kansas City, and Marion McDougall, Portland, Ore., had 40s, and Mrs. Dan Chandler, San Antonio, and Edith Estabrooks, Dubuque, 41s.

A change in the tournament plans was announced yesterday. The double round scheduled for Tuesday will be played Wednesday, leaving single rounds on the other days with a 36 hole title match for Saturday. An 18 hole qualifying round will be held tomorrow, with the low 64 scorers entering match play.

This event is the first major national tourney to come to Chicago since 1933, when Virginia Van Wie scored a home town triumph at Exmoor by defeating Helen Hicks in the final. The 1938 field appears even better than the talented entry at Exmoor, for not only are all of the best of the native players on the Westmoreland premises, but with them have come the members of the British Curtis cup team whom they defeated recently in the international matches.

Mrs. Page Defends Title.

The British Curtis cup squad consists of Mrs. Andrew Holm of Troon, Scotland, present British champion; Jessie Anderson of Perth, Scotland; Nan Steel Baird of Prestwick, Scotland; Elsie Corlett of Lytham, England; Clarrie Tiernan, Dublin, Ireland; Phyllis Wade, Ferndown, England, and Mrs. J. B. Walker of Dublin, Ireland.

Defending the title will be Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page Jr. of Chapel Hill, N. C. Last year Mrs. Page defeated Patty Berg, 8 and 7, in the final match. She also has won the qualifying medal in the last two nationals, in 1936 with a 78 and last year with a 79.

Chicago's delegation will be paced by Virginia Ingram of Sunset Ridge, present district champion; Shirley Ann Johnson, also of Sunset Ridge; Mrs. Charles Dennehy of Onwentsia; Rena Nelson of Exmoor; Miss Estabrooks, western closed runner-up, who will register from Ridge; Eleanor Dudley of Ridge; Ellamae Williams of Medinah, Miss Livengood, Mrs. Vilas Norton of Glenview, and Mary Louise Gardner of Shoreacres.

RISING SUN POLO TEAM WILL PLAY RANGERS TODAY

Weather permitting, Rising Sun Ranch will play the Rangers this afternoon in the Central Polo association trophy tournament at 4 o'clock on the Oak Brook stadium field, York road and 22d street.

The game will replace the twelve goal title match between Santa Barbara of California and Austin Polo club of San Antonio, Tex., which was finally canceled after several postponements.

the north country to play a National Football league game against a team called the Green Bay Packers. Chicago papers carried no reports of the departure or predictions on the outcome of the impending encounter. The National league and the Packers were precocious infants then, one struggling for recognition as a bona fide organization in a legitimate pursuit, the Packers just emerging from the status of a homespun, sand lot aggregation to that of a full blown professional outfit.

The Bears, as Player-coach Halas and his sixteen teammates called themselves, were amazed at their reception. Old Bellevue park, long since abandoned as an athletic field, was jammed. Fully 2,500 were there. A herculean struggle raged throughout the afternoon, finally ending with a spectacular place kick by Dutch Sternaman which gave the Bears a 3 to 0 triumph.

Bears Return Today.

Today the Bears make their annual pilgrimage to Green Bay. Halas again leads them, this time as owner and coach. On the opposite bench will be Curley Lambeau, who coached the first Packer outfit from a full back position. Aside from the presence of these two old friends and rivals, the entire scene is changed.

The National league has established itself as a reliable and respectable organization. Professional football has been accepted as a major sport. And around the gridiron, now encircled by a trim, well planned little stadium, 25,000 fans, the capacity, will look down on two of the outstanding football teams in the country.

Both teams have come through their opening games successfully, the Packers defeating Cleveland and the Bears turning back the Cardinals. Today's contest is extremely important to each team, for it brings together the two elevens considered the strongest contenders for the western division championship. Success in the race for each depends a great deal on ability to defeat the other.

Green Bay Improved.

Green Bay, fortified by the addition of nine outstanding players from last June's college graduating class and two veteran National league linemen obtained in trades, is vastly improved over the eleven which lost to the Chicago Tribune's All-Star team last fall and bogged down in the stretch after making a desperate attempt to rally in defense of its championship.

CHICAGOANS LOSE OPENER IN U. S. BASEBALL MEET

Battle Creek, Mich., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Chicago's Kordecki Orioles, Illinois champions, were defeated, 7 to 3, by Chattanooga, Tenn., today in the first round of the American baseball congress amateur tournament. St. Paul, Minn., 1937 national amateur baseball champion, won its first game, defeating Coshocton, O., 9 to 4.

Other first round results: Battle Creek, 9; Claremont, S. D., 0. Omaha, 5; Charlotte, N. C., 3. Des Moines, Ia., 15; Jackson, Mich., 3. Galveston, Tex., 10; Mount Sterling Ky., 8. Oklahoma City, Okla., 4; South Bend, Ind., 0.

The fourteen competing regional champions will enter the second round today. Two defeats are necessary to eliminate a team.

Campbell Raises Water Speed Mark to 130 M. P. H.

LUCERNE, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Sir Malcolm Campbell of England, former holder of the world land speed record, broke his own world record for speed on water today by drivng his motorboat, Bluebird, more than 130 miles an hour over a mile course on Lake Halwil. He made the outward run at 131.86 miles an hour and the return at 129.96. His average, which becomes the new record, was 130.91 miles an hour. Campbell set the previous record of 129.50 at Locarno

MINERALITES GET 3,195 RANDOLPH LEAGUE SERIES

Joe Fliger Scatters Pins for 732 Total.

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

The Mineralites, always one of the top teams in the Randolph Bowling league, were fully prepared for the organization's twenty-eighth inaugural on the 29 West Randolph alleys Thursday night. All the boys did was to total 3,195, one of the most impressive scores of the infant season.

Such hot shooting naturally brought three victories at the expense of the Whitecaps, whose 1,054 in the third game was dwarfed by the Mineralites' 1,102. The Mineralites' other games were 997 and 1,096, quite respectable for so early in the season.

Joe Fliger was the head man in the big bombardment with 732 on games of 220, 255, and 257. Joe Burke contributed 599; Babe Bunning, 659; Harry Steers, 609, and Bud Wright, 598.

Last year's champions, the Birk Brothers, also got off to a good start with three victories over the Joseph L. Gills. The Birks, 1938 A. B. C. champions, shot three consistent games of 1,037, 1,040, and 1,037 for 3,114.

North End Traveling League.

The North End Traveling league will enter its third week tomorrow night with the Joseph L. Gills, Kruse Stations, and Michelobs tied for first place at four won and two lost. Among the leading scorers last week were Wally Freitag, 659; John Munch, 652; Joe Traubenik, 643; Lloyd Strouse, 639; Mel Kriete, 614; Bill Zelasko, 610, and Jack Farwick and Al Wang, 609.

Windy City League.

The champion Budweisers received two setbacks at the hands of the Whitecaps as the Windy City Major league started its thirty-fourth season. The Mineralites also had their troubles, losing two out of three to the Blazek Tailors. Lenzen of the O'Keefe Coals had second high series of 645, but Darling, his teammate, was low for the league with games of 128, 139, and 152 for a snappy 419. High series went to Plewa of the Meister Braus who totaled 647.

On South Side Alleys.

De Young Fuel, Eden Insurance, and the Swendsen Decorators continued their fast pace in the Stevenson Major league and each now has 8 victories and one defeat. Bill Lenzen of the Sexauers helped himself to a 726 series, 26 more pins than Bill Smith of the De Young Fuels registered. Other leaders were Marlow Thompson, 654; Ernie Schanz, 653; Hank Kluge, 643; Art Myers, 642; Tony Unhoch, 634, and Mickey Michaels, 630. . . . High scores were marked up in the South Shore Chamber of Commerce league on the Cheltenham alleys. Let It Rain won three games from Gerds Motors by piling up a 2,997 total. Rosenblum Drugs were next with 2,958, good for two victories over Standard Refrigeration. Bill Devine collected a 683 series that included a 283 game.

On North Side Alleys.

Scores were not very high in the Gold Coast Major league. The Keeley Beers were high with 2,880, of which Jules Sowa had 623, to help the Keeleys win three from the Neuman Tailors. The Joseph L. Gills grabbed three games from the Gold Coast Recreation, with Bill Hargadon getting 172, 242, and 255 for 669, high for the league. Lloyd Strouse, anchoring for the Gills, had 245, 212, and 204—661. Pete Peterson's 665 series featured the Triangle Shirts' two victories over the Budweisers.

About the Women.

The Budweiser Girls won three games while rolling 2,568, second to the Pabst Blue Ribbons' 2,639, which was good for two games from the Logan Square Buicks. Newart Credit Clothiers were third high with 2,566, and took three games from the Belows. Grace Martin and Carrie Enders tied for high series with 565.

FEDERAL DEBT SETS NEW PEAK, 38½ BILLIONS

Burden Is $296.89 for Each Person.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—Uncle Sam's debt to his citizens has reached an all-time high mark of more than 38 billion 400 million dollars, the treasury disclosed today in its statement for Sept. 15. The debt is the culmination of a rapid rise through indiscriminate spending.

The exact figure of $38,407,012,443 represents a burden of $296.89 for every man, woman, and child in the nation. It can be paid off only through taxes collected from those who can pay or partly through settlement of the war debts of more than 13 billion dollars owed this country by foreign nations.

Pre-war Debt $1,282,000,000.

The pre-war debt on March 31, 1917, was 1 billion 282 million, or $12.36 per capita. The debt was 26 billion 597 million, or $250.18, on Aug. 31, 1919, when the war debt was at its peak. The lowest post-war debt was 16 billion 26 million, or $129.66 per capita, on Dec. 31, 1930.

In succeeding years the debt grew as follows during the Hoover and Roosevelt administrations: 1931, $16,801,000,000; 1932, $19,487,000,000; 1933, $22,539,000,000; 1934, $27,053,000,000; 1935, $28,701,000,000; 1936, $33,779,000,000; 1937, $36,400,000,000.

The preceding all-time peak was reached on March 12 of this year when the government's debt totaled $37,814,477,017 as the Roosevelt administration continued its spending spree.

Gradual Reduction Follows.

There was a gradual reduction then through the release of approximately 1 billion 400 million dollars of gold from sterilization. At the end of the fiscal year on June 30 the debt had declined to $37,164,740,315.

But the administration's new spending-lending program then got under way in earnest. The new high of 38 billion 400 million results from the treasury's borrowing of 803 million in cash to help finance the recovery and election priming program.

Between now and the end of the fiscal year it will be necessary for the treasury to borrow additional cash. It is estimated that the debt will be pushed beyond the 40 billion dollar level for the first time by the end of the year.

What Makes Up Present Debt.

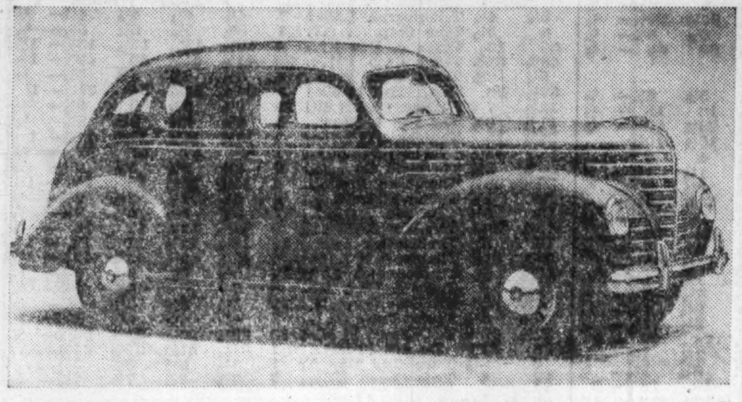
The present debt consists of approximately 24 billion 500 million of bonds, about 11 billion of notes, including 733 million of special old age reserve and railroad retirement fund obligations, 978 million of special certificates of indebtedness, including 954 million in unemployment trust fund obligations, 1 billion 304 million in short term bills, and more than 540 million in other securities.

Up to Sept. 15 the deficit for the current fiscal year amounted to 716 million dollars, compared with only 386 million in the corresponding period of last year. It is estimated that the deficit for the fiscal year will run close to 5 billion dollars, compared with a deficit of only 1 billion 525 million in the preceding fiscal year.

Bonds Decline Further on Fear of War Abroad

New York, Sept. 17.—(AP)—The bond market declined further today on renewed liquidation by traders unwilling to maintain active positions over the week-end. United States governments were 4-32 to 7-32 of a point lower in most cases, domestic corporate issues yielded major fractions to 2 and 3 points, and foreign loans gave up an equal amount on the average.

New Plymouth Car



The new Plymouth car for 1939 has been completely restyled. It has a new Vee-type windshield which adds more than six inches to the interior body length. The car has a 114 inch wheel base.

Plymouth Car for 1939 Is Put on Market

Public announcement was made yesterday of the 1939 line of Plymouth automobiles. This division of the Chrysler corporation is the first automobile company to place its 1939 product on the market.

The 1939 Plymouth has a 114 inch wheelbase, or two inches longer than last year. It is an entirely new car in appearance. The hood is larger. The grille work in front of the radiator is treated in a horizontal manner instead of vertical, as in the 1938 line.

The fenders are much broader. Horizontal grille work joins the fenders to the hood, emphasizing the broad appearance of the front of the car. The headlamps and tail lights have been streamlined into the fenders.

Gear Shift on Steering Post.

Among the mechanical changes is the location of the gear shift on the steering post, which makes the front compartment more roomy. This gear shift, known as remote control, is standard equipment on the de luxe models. The gear shift's control mechanism is inside the steering column. Thus the gear shifting lever travels in the same arc as the rim of the wheel.

The Plymouth gear shift is manually operated. It works in the conventional "H" of the old gear shifts, so there is nothing new to learn.

The instrument panel is entirely new. A feature is the new safety speedometer. When the car is traveling at speeds up to 30 miles an hour a bright colored light on the indicator is green. When the car is traveling between 30 and 50 miles an hour the light is orange. At speeds of 60 miles an hour or more the light shows red.

Fuel Indicator Holds Steady.

The car is equipped with a new fuel gauge of the thermostatic type which eliminates the fluctuations of the pointer that occur with changes in the fuel level caused by bumps. The cowl ventilator on the Plymouth de luxe model is equipped with a rain trap which enables occupants to get a constant supply of fresh air regardless of the weather.

New spiral springs developed by the Plymouth engineers cushion each front wheel independently. There are a number of refinements in the engine. The piston rings and exhaust valves are new.

The steering mechanism has been improved. There is a new "automesh" transmission. The clutch and brake pedals have a softer action and require less pressure from the foot.

Some of the models retain the trunk and others are streamlined at the rear.

CHICAGO BANK STOCKS RECEDE IN LAST WEEK

Chicago bank stocks slumped last week. First National shares finished the week with a net decline of $12 at $206 bid, $211 asked. Harris Trust and Northern Trust shares closed $10 below the close of the preceding week. Continental Illinois National stock was off $7 at $59 bid, $61 asked.

Chicago Title and Trust slipped $4 a share to $128 bid, $132 asked. Lake Shore Trust and Savings and Terminal National shares declined $2. City National stock eased $1. Mercantile Trust stock moved against the trend to finish $3 higher.

BANK CLEARINGS RISE IN CHICAGO, BUT RUN BELOW LEVEL IN 1937

Last week's bank clearings in Chicago increased from the preceding week, the Chicago Clearing House association reported yesterday. The total still was below a year ago, however. The clearings were $304,400,000, compared with $214,800,000 in the preceding Labor day holiday week and $376,500,000 in the 1937 week. The clearings follow:

Date.	Clearings.	Balances.
Monday	$ 39,500,000	$ 3,700,000
Tuesday	50,400,000	4,200,000
Wednesday	50,600,000	3,700,000
Thursday	49,800,000	5,200,000
Friday	62,400,000	8,700,000
Saturday	51,700,000	3,600,000
Total for week	304,400,000	29,100,000
Corresp. last year	376,500,000	37,300,000

The New York Clearing House association reported the week's clearings were $3,829,377,296, compared with $2,539,295,257 in the preceding week.

ARMOUR UNION TO STUDY ORDER FOR DISSOLUTION

Members of the Armour & Co. Employés' Mutual association will meet at 3 p. m. today at 5239 South State street to discuss an order of dissolution. The order was issued by the National Labor Relations board.

The board ruled that the association was company dominated. This was denied by Robert H. Cabell, president of Armour & Co., and Euclid Louis Taylor, attorney for the association. Taylor said last night that the order was seemingly designed to force the men to vote for a C. I. O. union as bargaining agent.

"We were not summoned as an interested party to the labor board hearings," Taylor said, "and have had no day in court. The order is unfair and in my opinion illegal."

The attorney added that it was possible court action would be taken to halt enforcement of the order and the holding of an election to select a bargaining agent by Armour employés within thirty days, which the labor board required.

ANOTHER BOOST IN STEEL OUTPUT IS INDICATED

Another boost in steel ingot production this week was indicated by preliminary mill schedules announced yesterday. Chicago mills will begin operations 1.9 points higher tomorrow at 44.8 per cent of capacity. The Chicago rate will be the highest since the week ended Oct. 25, 1937.

Pittsburgh mill schedules indicate a starting rate of 36 per cent of capacity. This is one point higher than last week's beginning rate, according to the Dow, Jones & Co., financial news agency. The report said production in Pittsburgh reached a peak of 37½ per cent of capacity late last week and predicted that figure would be reached again by the end of this week.

Charges Procter & Gamble Infringed Patent on Soap

The Procter and Gamble company yesterday was charged with patent infringment in the manufacture of its "bead" soaps. The charge was made by Bertrand W. M. Coltman of Kenilworth, Ill., in a suit filed in the federal District court. He asked for an accounting of Procter and Gamble's profits. Coltman's bill asserted that he applied for a patent on the "bead" process in 1921 and that it was granted in 1928.

COAL BOARD FAR FROM READY TO SET NEW PRICES

Dig Data 16 Months, Cost 4 Millions.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—For sixteen months 1,200 federal workers who comprise the national bituminous coal commission staf have been digging into statistics at a cost of more than four million dollars. Yet today they are still months away from fixing a scale of prices for the ailing soft coal industry.

The first set of prices, a structure of more than 30,000 individual items, was set by the commission in star chamber sessions. The prices brought an internal war within the commission and a nation-wide uproar from producers and consumers.

Under legal attacks against czarism in the fixing of prices, the commission was forced to suspend its price structure and begin the fixing of new minimum prices. In the new study the commission was forced to grant public hearings which had been denied previously.

Records Are Voluminous.

To date the record of six months of hearings, tabulations, and investigations is so voluminous that the mass of documents would overflow a coal car. Commissioner Thomas S. Haymond of Kentucky said that it would be impossible for a single man to read the entire record in a lifetime.

The commission, which is dominated by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers union and czar of the C. I. O., points to the collapse of its former prices last February in justifying its slow progress on the new prices. Members of the commission say they are moving at a snail's pace in order to prepare a schedule of prices that will stand up in court.

Commissioners bristle with resentment against any suspicion of politics in the delay, although they are aware that publication of a schedule of prices, which will increase the price of coal, would not advance the administration's cause at the November election.

Deny Playing Politics.

The commissioners indignantly declare they would not play politics. However, they and the 1,200 workers in the commission, owe their jobs to politics because the commission was created through the efforts of Senator Joseph P. Guffey [D., Pa.] at the behest of C. I. O. Boss Lewis to advance the Democratic party in coal mining regions, particularly those of Pennsylvania.

The commission spent nine months in fixing its first minimum prices. The price fixing led to patronage rows among the commissioners when the rule of Lewis and Guffey was challenged. Lewis purged Chairman Charles P. Hosford and non-C. I. O. employés, and put Percy Tetlow, a C. I. O. leader, in Hosford's place. The purge came after the first price structure collapsed like a house of cards.

The structure was rocked when the price of coal rose sharply in Chicago and fell in cities farther from coal mines. It was found that the board had favored C. I. O. mine areas and raised barriers against coal mined in areas hostile to Lewis' dictatorship. Cleveland and New York joined with Chicago in pressing the fight against the prices in behalf of consumers.

Attacked on Many Fronts.

Methods of the seven man board were attacked on a dozen legal fronts. The chief ground of attack was that the commission had set prices without full and open hearings as required under the act which created the commission. Lower courts sustained objections, but it was not until Federal Circuit Court of Appeals sustained the decisions of lower courts that the commission suspended its prices.

When the new price structure is created, it will be a pattern of 800,000 individual items. These are to be fixed from 90,000 cost forms filled out by 10,000 producers and adjusted to freight rates, marketing areas, and pleas of both producers and consumers.

The commission looks forward to no easy time when the new prices are promulgated. There is no guarantee that the new schedules will have an easier time than the old. Any consumer or producer may provoke a prolonged hearing by object-

Chicago Bank Stockholders Held Liable

More than two hundred stockholders of the closed Chicago Bank of Commerce were held liable for an estimated $2,500,000 under a final decree entered yesterday by Judge James F. Fardy in the Cook County Superior court. Depositors, who brought the suit which resulted in the decree, so far have received 35 per cent of their deposits. The suit was brought in the name of Armin F. Hillmer, depositor.

Vincent Bendix.

Some of the larger stockholders held liable under yesterday's decree are: Harley L. Clarke, former president of the Utilities Power and Light corporation, for $276,621; Vincent Bendix, president of Bendix Aviation corporation, $209,621; Henry S. Henschen, former president of the Chicago Bank of Commerce, $109,217; Francis E. Matthews, attorney, $63,350; Leopold E. Block, chairman of Inland Steel company, $10,000, and P. D. Block, president of Inland Steel, $10,000.

Par Value Made Issue.

Attorneys for the stockholders, who have been defendants in the case, had argued that the stockholders' liability should be $50 a share, the par value of the stock at the time the bank was closed. Yesterday's decree, however, held the stockholders liable for $100 a share, the par value of the stock prior to February, 1931.

At that time the par value was reduced from $100 to $50 a share, making the total capital of the bank $1,500,000 instead of $3,000,000 as formerly. In the procedure stockholders were paid $50 a share in cash the amount by which the par value was reduced, plus $30 a share, making total cash payments of $80 a share. In the following year the bank closed.

Montana Case Is Cited.

Judge Fardy's decree quoted from the report by the court's master in chancery, who found that the reduction in par value did not relieve the stockholders of their full liability of $100 a share. The master's report quoted from a Montana case in which it was held that "reduction of capital stock will not be permitted to the injury of creditors, and where a reduction is made to the prejudice of existing creditors, they may proceed to enforce liability as though no reduction had been made."

Settlements of about $500,000 on the $3,000,000 of capital stock already have been made. An appeal of the decree to the Appellate court by stockholders is expected.

CROSLEY RADIO CORP. LAYS PLANS TO ENTER AUTOMOBILE FIELD

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 17.—(AP)—The Crosley Radio corporation called a special meeting of stockholders Sept. 23 to vote on a proposed amendment of incorporation articles to permit possible entry in the automobile field.

Letters sent to shareholders said the purpose of the amendment was to "broaden the activities in which the company is authorized to engage, so that the company will be able if conditions warant, to enter the automobile industry, when such entry appears desirable."

The amendment proposes to drop the name "radio" from the company's title.

STERLING EASES; OTHER EUROPEAN CURRENCIES FIRM

Foreign currency values were more stable in international exchange dealings yesterday. The British pound fell ⅜ cent in terms of American money, but French, Swiss and Belgian currencies were firm.

The pound was steady in early transactions. The quotation was marked down ⅜ cent just before the close of business. The final quotation of 2.69125 cents on the French franc represented no change from the preceding day.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York announced engagements of $6,600,000 gold in England for shipment to the United States.

Yesterday's engagements were made in face of the uncertain ties of war risk insurance rates. No blanket rate applies under ruling of underwriters this week. Special insurance was arranged on each individual gold shipment. This has restricted the movement of gold to this country in the last few days.

Gold rose 1 penny [about 2 cents] an ounce to 144 shillings 9½ pence on the London market yesterday. The London price was equivalent to $34.74.

Big Bull Stock Market Ended 9 Years Ago

The great bull market in stocks that made history in 1929 came to an an end nine years ago tomorrow. One of the stock price averages, which covered fifty issues, set its highest mark, 311.90, on Sept. 19, 1929.

In the depression that soon followed, this average tumbled, reaching its low point of 33.98 on July 8, 1932. From the record high to the 1932 low was a drop of 277.92 points, or 89 per cent.

After the 1932 low was reached, a long but slow recovery carried the average back up to 144.44 on Nov. 10, 1936. Then the average receded and later climbed back to 142.93 on March 8, 1937, the high for that year. By Nov. 24, 1937, it had fallen to 82.07, which was the low for that day. The close was 82.51. Yesterday it stood at 92.65.

Value Falls 74 Billions.

The extent of the slump in the market value of listed shares from the 1929 high to the 1932 low was disclosed in compilations made by the New York Stock exchange. These showed that the value of all listed shares on Sept. 1, 1929, was $89,668,276,854. On July 1, 1932, the aggregate value was $15,633,479,577. This was a drop of more than 74 billion dollars. By Feb. 1, 1938, the total value had recovered to $39,242,676,837.

Comparison of Prices.

A comparison of the market prices of some of the leading stocks is given in the following table:

INDUSTRY STEPS HALTINGLY ON RECOVERY PATH

Some Lines Livelier, Others Duller.

Industry, viewed as a whole, improved last week. Some phases of activity were the liveliest this year and others fell behind, reaching new lows. The gains were extensive enough, however, to overbalance the losses when the conflicting trends were averaged. In some cases the indices covered the week ended Sept. 10, that being the latest for which compilations were available.

The most spectacular gain was in residential building. This index not only reached a new 1938 high mark, but established the best level since May, 1931. Engineering construction awards also expanded, moving up for the ninth consecutive week to $53,569,000. This compared with $52,456,000 a week earlier and $47,347,000 in the corresponding 1937 week.

Steel Production Increases.

Steel mill production was at the highest level this year, with operations at 45.3 per cent of capacity. This was a gain of 5.4 points over the preceding week's 39.9 per cent rate.

Automobile production was one of the important indices showing a loss. It fell to the lowest point this year on a seasonally adjusted basis. The output was 16,100 cars and trucks, against 17,485 in the preceding week, and 30,150 in the comparable 1937 period. Seven manufacturers are now making 1939 model cars.

The inventory position of the automobile industry was reported to be highly favorable. There are virtually no 1938 models to carry over and second hand stocks have been reduced.

Sloan Becomes Optimist.

Alfred P. Sloan Jr., chairman of the board of General Motors corporation, said in a speech at Pontiac, Mich., on Friday that he has become an optimist. He had maintained a pessimistic view of the automobile sales outlook for some time.

The Associated Press composite index of industrial activity for the week rose to a new high for the year at 78.2 per cent of the 1929-'30 average. A year ago it stood at 103.0. The index, with its seasonally adjusted components, compared as follows:

	Last wk.	Prev. wk.	Yr. ago.
Automobile prod.	†30.7	32.8	101.0
Steel mill act.	*60.8	59.3	107.9
Cotton mfg. act.	110.4	110.6	118.8
Electric pwr. prod.	112.6	113.6	120.8
Residential bldg.	*76.4	70.2	62.3
Total car loadings	61.7	61.0	77.1

Cotton manufacturing and electric power production declined. The number of freight cars loaded on the nation's railroads dropped to 568,887 in

COMING WAR-CRASH

A political, economic and military analysis, with special reference to the American stock market by

Major L.L.B. Angas

Author of "Germany and Her Debts"; "Reparations, Trade and Foreign Exchange"; "The Problems of the Foreign Exchanges," etc.

In this timely analysis, which should be read by all American investors, Major Angas, who has already written two books on Germany, finds himself unable to agree with those who assert that no early war is likely. After marshalling the evidence, pro and con, he is forced to a conclusion which he presents in his usual pungent and uncompromising style.

This analysis is about to be issued in the form of a Digest (No. 21) of which single copies may be obtained for the sum of $2, if and only if application is made direct to: New Era Printers, 47 West Street, New York City. (Payments must accompany orders.)

Now Ready, a NEW BOOK
By William J. Baxter
"AMERICA FACES A COMPLETE BREAKDOWN of Government and Business"

One year ago this organization published "America Faces Its Greatest Business Depression," a book which excited more comment on the part of investors and business men than probably any other publication of recent years.

Today, after studying the events of the past twelve months, Mr. Baxter sets forth in his new book, what appears to be incontrovertible evidence that this country is faced with the most revolutionary change the nation has ever experienced.

In 60,000 words the author presents facts, and conclusions drawn from them, which are of the utmost importance to every intelligent American. The coming breakdown, the "Ray of Hope" for revival, the international situation and the outlook for the "Four Horsemen," Capital—Labor—Management—Government, are all clearly discussed.

STOCKS SLUMP; FEAR WEEK-END EVENTS ABROAD

Traders Show Desire to Get Out of Market.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 17.—Stock prices tumbled again this morning in the final two hours of trading for the week Losses of a point or more were scattered liberally throughout the list. Some of the higher priced, more volatile issues lost 3 to 6 points.

Still highly sensitive to the tense European situation, traders are jittery about the prevailing air of uncertainty. The desire to lighten holdings over a week-end which they feared may bring almost anything was one of the reasons for further dumping of securities today.

The market opened irregular—which was considered fairly steady, in view of conditions abroad. But in a few minutes a wave of selling sent prices tumbling.

Mild Rally Marks Close.

A total of 420,000 shares changed hands before the end of the first hour. Then prices steadied. Before the final gong a mild rally was on. It was able to lift prices a little from their lows.

Trading amounted to 743,790 shares during the two hours. A total of 714 issues put in an appearance on the tape. Only 35 scored advances and 581 declined and 98 held unchanged.

The Dow-Jones industrial average closed off 3.03 at 131.82. This was a little above the 131.03 low but far from the day's best level of 133.87. Rails and utilities were off only a little less. The rail average dropped 0.66 to 24.01. The day's low was 23.71. Utilities slumped 0.60 to 17.34, near the 17.28 low touched earlier.

Chrysler Rallies From Low.

Chrysler was outstanding among the few issues to stage a sharp recovery from lows. After being beaten down to 65, it came back to 67¼ for a loss of only ¼ point. General Motors, off 2¼ at one time, finished with a 1⅛ decline.

Steels were hard hit in the selling. U. S. Steel, worst hit and down 2⅝ at one time, however, managed to close a point above its low. Bethlehem lost 1¼.

International Harvester led farm equipments down with a loss of 2⅛. Caterpillar Tractor and J. I. Case each dropped about a point.

Nonferrous metal shares, despite recent price increases, slumped with the rest of the market. Phelps Dodge, Anaconda and Kennecott recovered sharply, however, to hold losses for the day to fractions.

Building Shares Join Retreat.

Building shares joined the retreat. Issues declining a point or more included Johns-Manville, U. S. Gypsum, and Holland Furnace.

Westinghouse issues weakened badly, the common losing 3¾ and the preferred 4⅞. General Electric slipped a point. American Telephone dropped 2⅛. Radio was off a fraction. None of these showed any response to the later rally.

Among the aviation issues, Douglas took a 2⅝ point tumble. Boeing held its loss to 1 point. Others were down fractions to about a point.

Chesapeake corporation was one of the hardest hit rail shares, losing 4½ points. Atchison lost 1¾, and Union Pacific, Pennsylvania, and New York Central were down about a point each.

CHICAGO STOCKS SLUMP.

Chicago stocks, unsettled again by the war scare, slumped yesterday to their lowest level in nearly three months. The Tribune average of twenty stocks finished at 9.57, the lowest close since June 22, when it stood at 9.21. On the preceding Saturday the close was 10.79.

Yesterday's volume of 43,000 shares, including 25,300 Commonwealth Edison rights, compared with 22,000, including 6,500 rights on the preceding Saturday. Of eighty-seven issues traded, four advanced, sixty declined and twenty-three held unchanged.

Yesterday's declines ranged from fractions to nearly 2 points. Zenith Radio, volume leader with 1,050 shares traded, was off 1¼. Bendix Aviation lost 1⅞. Borg-Warner finished 1¾ lower. Commonwealth Edison lost ⅜ and Houdaille Hershey B was a point lower.

WHEAT CLIMBS ON NEWEST WAR THREATS ABROAD

Prices Advance in Chief World Markets.

CHICAGO GRAIN PRICES

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Yr.ago.
Wheat	$0.66¾	$0.65⅝	$1.03⅝
Corn	.51⅞	.51¼	.62¾
Oats	.26⅛	.25⅝	.30⅝
Rye	.45⅛	.43⅝	.78⅝
Soy beans	.80⅛	.79⅛	.95⅝

More alarming war threats in Europe yesterday brought about a higher level of grain prices. Wheat futures on the Chicago Board of Trade closed with net gains of ⅞ to 1⅛ cents a bushel. Advances of ¾ to 1 cent were recorded in Liverpool. Rotterdam was 1⅜ to 2⅜ cents higher. Winnipeg gained 1¼ to 1⅝ cents a bushel.

Most of the activity in the wheat market took place during the first thirty minutes of the session. A rush of general buying disclosed lack of pressure, but the market quickly quieted. The bulk of the trading in December wheat on the board of trade was at 67 cents a bushel to a small fraction of a cent below that figure.

Exporters Buy Canadian Wheat.

Brokers who frequently act for exporters were reported to have been good buyers of wheat futures at Winnipeg. This led to the belief that a liberal amount of cash grain had been sold for shipment to Europe. Confirmation could not be obtained.

Traders had estimates yesterday that between 7,500,000 and 10,000,000 bushels of North American cash wheat had been sold for export in the last week. A Kansas City report said about 2,000,000 bushels of domestic grain was sold for export on Friday.

Brokers yesterday showed more disposition to even up their positions in the wheat market than to make new commitments. Public interest in the market was said to be below normal, although showing a tendency to increase.

Export Corn Demand Revives.

Reports of a revival in the foreign demand for American cash corn had some effect on prices of futures. The deferred deliveries closed ⅝ to 1 cent a bushel higher.

A sharp advance in the price asked for Argentine corn was said to have brought American grain in line with the views of European buyers for the first time in about two weeks.

Efforts by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace to reduce the domestic wheat acreage are apparently being taken advantage of by other countries to expand production.

The Argentine government yesterday estimated 20,007,000 acres of wheat had been seeded for the crop to be harvested in November and December this year. This compared with 18,908,000 acres seeded the preceding season. Australian acreage is officially estimated at 14,101,000 acres, against 13,735,000 acres in 1937.

AIR LINES FACE BIG PROBLEM IN GETTING CAPITAL

Young Industry Needs Expansion Cash.

The nation's airlines face the perplexing problem of obtaining new capital. They had a combined loss of some $3,000,000 in 1937 and may lose that much or more in 1938.

The companies are young and need money for expansion. They want cash to build new planes, but losses have cut into their working capital.

But an industry whose earnings statements show losses is not in a good bargaining position to get new funds. On top of that, the market for new industrial financing is not favorable now.

Outlook Governs Capital.

Air transport officials say that the industry needs new capital to go ahead. New capital can be obtained, they assert, if the lines have reasonable assurance that with efficient and economical operation, they can earn a reasonable return on invested capital.

To get this assurance, they are looking to the newly created Civil Aeronautics authority for help. They are looking also to their own operating costs and to their job of selling the public on air travel.

The air lines contend that air mail payments by the postoffice department are in many cases inadequate return for the service rendered. This has been a factor in their losing money. Another cause has been the rapid expansion of service, which leaves the lines carrying only slightly more than 50 per cent of capacity on an average passenger run.

Operating Costs Higher.

Higher operating costs, including labor, materials, and taxes, have hit the air lines just as they have hit other businesses.

Speed of technical advances has brought early obsolescence of equipment. The modern airplanes of last year may be on the side lines this year. The result is heavy depreciation charges, eating into revenues.

The CAA, created by the last congress to supervise the nation's aeronautics, has the power to fix rates of mail pay. In doing this, according to the act, the authority is to make it possible for the "air carrier under honest, economical, and efficient management to maintain and continue the development of air transportation."

If this aim is to be carried out, the air lines say, mail pay rates will have to be revamped. This was one of the chief subjects of discussion at an informal conference between the CAA and leading air transport officials in Chicago early this month.

The 1934 Slash in Funds.

In the government's fiscal year ended June 30, 1933, the air lines were paid $19,400,000 for transporting air mail. Then along came the air mail act of 1934. In the 1934 fiscal year, payments dropped to $5,738,000. In the fiscal year ended last June 30, they had climbed up to $14,788,000, still nearly $5,000,000 short of the 1933 payments.

In the meantime, the government's estimated postage revenues from air mail users has been mounting. In 1933 these revenues were only $6,116,000, or less than one-third of payments to air lines by the government. In the 1938 fiscal year, they were estimated at $13,725,000, or only about a million dollars less than payments to the carriers.

One needed change, according to air transport authorities, is a revision of the basis for payments. Under the present scale, some lines are carrying more mail proportionately than they are being paid for, and vice versa.

Payment System Unequal.

The following table shows examples of this on the basis of the 1937 fiscal year:

United Air Lines	36.15	26.03
T. W. A.	21.16	13.77
Wyoming Air Service	.24	1.26

Larger carriers, such as United and TWA, appear to be underpaid on the basis of the mail they carry. One reason for this is that the government pays a maximum rate of 40 cents a mile, no matter how much mail is carried.

At the same time, the lines are required to take all mail that is ready to go. Sometimes this means extra weight which reduces the passenger capacity. In some instances, they lose one or more 6 cent a mile passengers, and carry the extra mail with no additional pay.

Urge Pound-Mile Basis.

A fair method of paying the larger carriers, many officials contend, is a pound mile basis, so that they are paid for what they carry. Smaller lines operating shorter mail routes in sparse territories such as Wyoming will have to be paid more than the government gets from air mail users, if the service is to continue. This is not necessarily "subsidy" to the air line, because the cost to the air line of carrying the mail may be as great as the payment received. It is, however, a subsidy to the users of air mail in that area, who pay less than the cost of carrying the letters.

The air transport companies argue that the government can afford at this time to pay more than it receives for air mail. In doing this, they contend, it will encourage the development of air transportation.

Air transport is an arm of national defense. The fostering of technical developments in equipment and facilities and the increase of trained technicians add potential strength to the nation's defenses.

It is expected that within the next few months the CAA will take steps to revise mail pay rates to help the carriers reduce their losses.

The lines themselves are going after the problem of more business to help cut their losses. A few years ago, they would scarcely speak to each other. Recently, however, they have seen that coöperation may help them all to get more travelers.

FAMILY INCOME REPORT ASSAILED BY TRADE GROUP

Result of Survey Termed Statistical Mirage.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—[U. P.]—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States, in its weekly review, today charged that the national resources committee report of American consumer incomes was a "statistical mirage."

"Statistical fantasies continue to be the order of the day in some quarters," the review said. "The latest proof is in the press statement of the national resources committee on a thick and costly document issued at public expense under the title of 'consumer incomes in the United States—their distribution in 1935-'36.'"

Family Figures Criticized.

The report placed the income of one-third of American families at less than $780, two-thirds at less than $1,500, and 89 per cent less than $2,500. Concerning this the review said:

"Such assertions are pretty far from figures earlier used in attempts to impress upon us how poor we are."

The review charged that conclusions in the report were based on random samples of less than 1 per cent of the population, and "every one experienced in collecting such data knows what this method means—not samples from average families in each classification, but samples from the worst examples."

No Data from Southwest.

"There is not a single sample from important areas for which completed data are solemnly proclaimed," it said. "For instance, there is not one sample from all of Texas or from any other part of the great southwest.

"The result is a statistical mirage, for the generation of which there can be no justification."

"Fair Trade" Laws—I.

"Fair trade" laws are now operative in forty-three states. They apply to commodities [not services] which carry a trade-mark, brand, or name of the producer or distributor. They make it possible for the producer or distributor voluntarily to set minimum prices at which the commodities may be resold.

California, the first state to adopt such legislation, did so in 1931. Before that time courts had in most cases held that attempts to control the resale price of any item was illegal after title had passed from seller to buyer. The constitutionality of state fair trade laws was upheld by the Supreme court of the United States in December, 1936, in a unanimous decision.

State laws, however, apply only to commodities sold in intrastate commerce. In August, 1937, after forty-two states had "fair trade" laws, the Miller-Tydings enabling act was passed by congress. It legalized price maintenance in interstate commerce provided the state in which the product is resold has such fair trade legislation.

Study Data 16 Months at Cost of 4 Millions.

The new schedule will not be made public until after the election, probably about the first of the year.

The commission is carrying on its work under a sword of Damocles which may drop to end its existence. The constitutionality of the act, which created the commission, is under attack in the Supreme court in an action brought by the Carter Coal company.

Company to Challenge Again.

The company brought the suit which successfully challenged the first Guffey coal act of 1935. It filed a second suit when the new act was passed. The suit was withdrawn last winter when the commission withdrew its first price structure. However, it is to be pressed again when the new rate structure is evolved.

Though conscious of these troubles the commission is tunneling through statistics to set its new prices in an attempt to revive an industry which last year lost 47 million dollars, according to commission estimates.

For the massing of cost data, 1,200 workers have been hired. Most of these have been passed upon by Lewis or Guffey. They are spread in statistical bureaus throughout the country. In Washington the workers have overflowed from a ten story office building into the McLean mansion, once the scene of lavish parties.

Begins Big Job in Denver.

The commission began its first big job this week in Denver, where producers and board members are attempting to reach a proposed price scale for the Rocky mountain region and the Pacific coast. A hearing is to be held in the east for price fixing in the middle west and east. Later the final hearings will be held here.

The toughest job before the commission is to align more than 20,000 truck line producers to its policies. All of these do not give a rap for price fixing and many of them have never heard of the coal commission.

Commission agents have been tramping into isolated regions trying to enlist men who earn $2 or $3 a day trucking coal to nearby cities from small mines which they own.

PACKERS TURN OUT MOST MEAT SINCE JANUARY

Larger Supplies of Live Stock Received.

The expected fall increase in meat production got under way abruptly last week with the arrival on the markets of larger supplies of live stock of all species. The output from Chicago packing plants for the week was the largest since January, and the greatest for this season of year since 1934.

It was estimated that receipts of meat animals at the Chicago stockyards represented more than 43,700,000 pounds of beef, veal, pork, lard, and lamb meat. This was a rise of 12,376,000 pounds, or 39 per cent, over the preceding week, which included a Monday holiday.

Beef at 24,350,000 pounds was up 36 per cent. Veal at [illegible]00,000 pounds showed a gain of 47 per cent; pork and lard at 15,080,000, 38 per cent, and lamb meat at 3,581,000, 32 per cent, over the preceding week.

Receipts Above Average.

Aggregate receipts of 206,500 cattle, calves, hogs, and sheep compared with 151,416 the previous week and a three year average of 181,629 for the corresponding weeks in 1937, 1936, and 1935.

In number of head the largest increase was in ovine stock. Sheep and lambs at 77,600 head stood largest for any week since April, 1935, and greater than any corresponding week since 1933. This compared with 58,412 the preceding week and 67,609 a year ago.

Pork production was stepped up sharply by the sudden selling of many thousands of spring pigs. These swelled receipts for the week to 74,000, the largest since June, and above any corresponding period in four years. In the preceding week 53,273 arrived and a year ago only 48,634. The cattle run increased to 47,800, the largest since January. Calves at 7,100 were largest since May.

Chicago Receipts Compared.

	Last week.	Prev. week.	1937.	1936.	1935.
Cattle	48	35	50	53	55
Calves	7	5	7	9	8
Hogs	74	53	49	61	44
Sheep	78	58	67	71	70
Total	207	151	173	194	177

The markets, as a whole, were lowest for this season of year since 1934. They held up well, however, compared with recent weeks despite pressure of the sudden selling by farmers. A possible exception was lambs, which established new low price levels for the season, the week's average dipping 50 cents to $7.90.

Final rates for lambs were 55 to 65 cents under a week earlier. Dressed lamb carcasses in wholesale channels were off mostly 50 cents per hundred pounds.

Cattle and Hogs Irregular.

Trends in cattle and hogs were mixed, but both averaged higher than during the preceding week. Steers averaged $10.55, up 15 cents and within 20 cents of the 1938 high week. Top grades of steers at $13.35 equaled the year's peak.

Hogs averaged $8.35, the highest since July and 10 cents above the preceding week. However, the average was below any corresponding week since 1933. The smaller proportion of extremely heavy butchers and sows selling at the bottom of the price list and the larger portion of young hogs in the run helped to boost the week's average.

Final rates on 300 pound hogs and down were 5 to 20 cents lower than a week ago. Butchers over 325 pounds showed declines of 35 to 60 cents.

COTTON

Uneasiness created by the political situation in Europe caused fairly heavy selling of cotton futures yesterday in American markets. At no time did the market show a disposition to rally. Closing trades were at net losses of .08c to .11c a lb.

Sales of cotton goods by mills last week were estimated at about 90 per cent of the current production.

Spot cotton closed .08c to .10c lower, with New York 7.84c; New Orleans, 7.78c; Houston, 7.75c, and Galveston at 7.72c a lb. Prices follow:

INDUSTRY STEPS HALTINGLY ON RECOVERY PATH

Some Lines Are Livelier, Others Less Active.

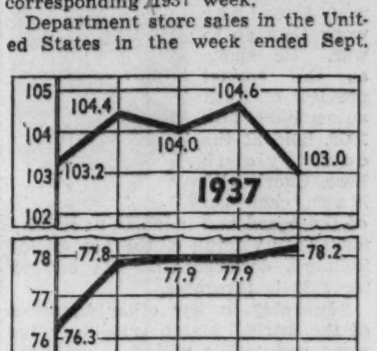
the week ended Sept. 10, from 648,039 in the preceding week. This represented a slight improvement when seasonal factors were considered.

Bank clearings in twenty-two cities in the week ended Wednesday rose to $5,164,437,000, a gain of $1,005,832,000 over the preceding Labor day holiday week. However, the total was 11.6 per cent less than in the corresponding 1937 week.

Department store sales in the United States in the week ended Sept. 10 were 7 per cent less than a year earlier. The decline in the seventh [Chicago] federal reserve district was 9.6 per cent, and in Chicago it was 11.6 per cent.



The chart traces the course of industrial activity in the last four weeks, as measured by the Associated Press seasonally adjusted composite index, and shows the corresponding 1937 activity (1929-'30 average equals 100).

Retail Trade Irregular.

Retail trade, all lines considered, was as good or better than a year ago in several cities but lagged in others. The department of commerce said "an increasing number" of cities reported trade "either definitly above or on a par with last year's comparatives."

The New York wholesale market, the department said, reported "a growing influx of new business, while the reorder trade accounted for a steady and widening flow of requisitions."

Increased wholesale demand was noted for apparel, home furnishings, sundries, business and industrial equipment, building supplies, metal articles, and most other raw, finished, or semi-finished commodities, the department added.

The European war scare kept the financial and money markets upset last week. One result was a flood of gold to the United States. Frightened holders of funds in European countries rushed to get their money into United States dollars as the safest medium.

The British pound sterling and other principal European currencies plunged to the lowest in three years.

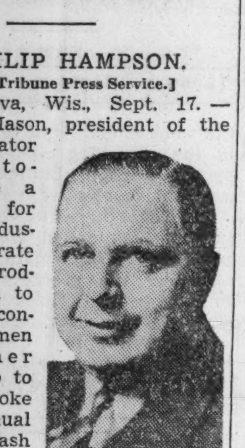
NASH PRESIDENT URGES INDUSTRY HELP AVOID WAR

Mason Speaks at Preview of 1939 Models.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lake Geneva, Wis., Sept. 17.—George W. Mason, president of the Nash-Kelvinator corporation, today made a strong plea for American industry to coöperate in creating products for men to sell, in the conviction that men would rather work than go to war. He spoke at the annual preview of Nash automobiles for 1939, held at the country club here. Charles W. Nash, chairman of the board and forty year veteran of the automobile industry, declared that the outlook for 1939 is favorable.



George W. Mason.

"Probably in few other countries of the world," Mason said, "are the press and public wiling to consider that, at this critical moment in world history, industry may be important. But in this country, thank God, there is still the conviction that men would rather work than fight.

Job Is to "Arm" Salesmen."

"As I see it, industry's job is to arm her salesmen with many new and better products; products which contribute to fuller enjoyment of life. Then the sales which must be made to create those jobs vitally needed today will surely come.

"In Nash we are attempting this year to attain this objective. In this year's automobiles we have tried to combine qualities which will be hard to resist. As a result I believe we are going to have a good auto year."

If all other industrial organizations join the automobile men to arm their salesmen well, America can show the best way to peace, Mason said.

America Can Set Example.

"I believe," he added, "America can set an example for those factions in the old world which are seeking to hurry their peoples to the chaos of the battlefield. In this critical period, the people of America beg the nations of the world to recognize that men indeed would rather work than fight."

Details of the new models, in three lines differing in size rather than in styling, will not be revealed for several weeks.

New Type of Security.

A New York investment banking firm has devised a new type of security which is intended to fulfill demands of conservative investors and to eliminate the danger of a maturity during a depression for the issuing company. The new security has been named "interest bearing convertible sinking fund debenture share" and will be sold for an oil company.

The debenture shares are a cross between a stock and a bond. Because there is no maturity date, they are like stock. They are like bonds because they pay interest and have a sinking fund plan. In some respects they are similar to the "debenture stock" of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., Inc. Du Pont debenture stock, however, has no sinking fund plan.

The debenture shares are a direct obligation which pays interest at a specified rate and which will be retired through operation of a sinking fund. They can be converted into stock if called for payment.

The advantage to the issuing corporation in such a security is that there is no fixed maturity date. During the recent depression years, a number of corporations have been embarrassed or actually forced into receivership because of debts falling due at bad times. The Nickel Plate railroad, for example, recently had to notify security holders that it would be forced into bankruptcy unless holders of $15,000,000 of its notes maturing Oct. 1 consent to an extension of that maturity.

Also interesting to corporations is the fact that issuers of the new debenture shares will save on taxes because interest charges are deducted before computing net income for income tax purposes. Income tax is computed on earnings after deduction of interest charges but before payment of dividends on either common or preferred stock.

The manner in which the sinking fund works is particularly interesting. The issuing oil company will pay 10 per cent of its annual gross sales into a sinking fund for retirement of the shares. This helps protect the investor because a percentage of sales—not profits—goes into a sinking fund, thus assuring retirement if the company remains in business. At no time, however, is the corporation forced to retire more of the shares than an amount equal to 10 per cent of the year's sales. If sales are small the amount retired will be small.

METAL DEMAND EXPANDS, PRICES CLIMB IN WEEK

Copper Leads Upturns on 'War' Buying.

Heavier export demand and a step-up in domestic buying carried prices of nonferrous metals upward last week in cash markets. Leading the advance was copper, which climbed 0.25 to 0.30 cent a pound in the export market on "war" buying by Europe and heavier Japanese purchases.

Reflecting higher cash prices, metal futures advanced. Other commodities were irregular in futures trading. Gains were made by hides, rubber, cottonseed oil, and sugar. Moving lower were cocoa and coffee contracts. Silk and wool tops showed little change.

Domestic Price Advanced.

The markup in export copper to a range of 10.45 to 10.50 cents a pound was an influence in an advance of ⅛ cent in the domestic spot price to 10¼ cents a pound. It was the first advance in the domestic price since July 27. The low price of the year was 9 cents.

Last week brought the most active market in several months to lead producers. The spot quotation for lead was boosted 0.10 cent to 4.85 cents a pound, E. St. Louis. Heavy bookings also were reported by zinc producers, with many sales made after the advance of 0.10 cent a pound to 4.85 cents for prime western, E. St. Louis.

Copper futures rose 0.40 cent a pound in the week. Tin contracts gained 0.70 to 1 cent a pound, and the spot price was marked up ⅝ cent at 43⅜ cents. Lead futures finished 0.10 cent higher and zinc futures gained 0.03 cent.

Rubber Contracts Higher.

Rubber contracts advanced 0.25 cent a pound. The spot price of smoked ribbed rubber sheets was boosted 0.23 cent a pound to 16.08 cents.

Hides, cottonseed oil, and wool tops were the only futures markets open at New York yesterday. All were quiet. Hides, finishing unchanged to 0.02 cent lower for the day, were up 0.10 cent a pound in the week. Cottonseed oil, with gains of 0.01 to 0.06 cent yesterday, was up about 0.25 cent a pound for the week.

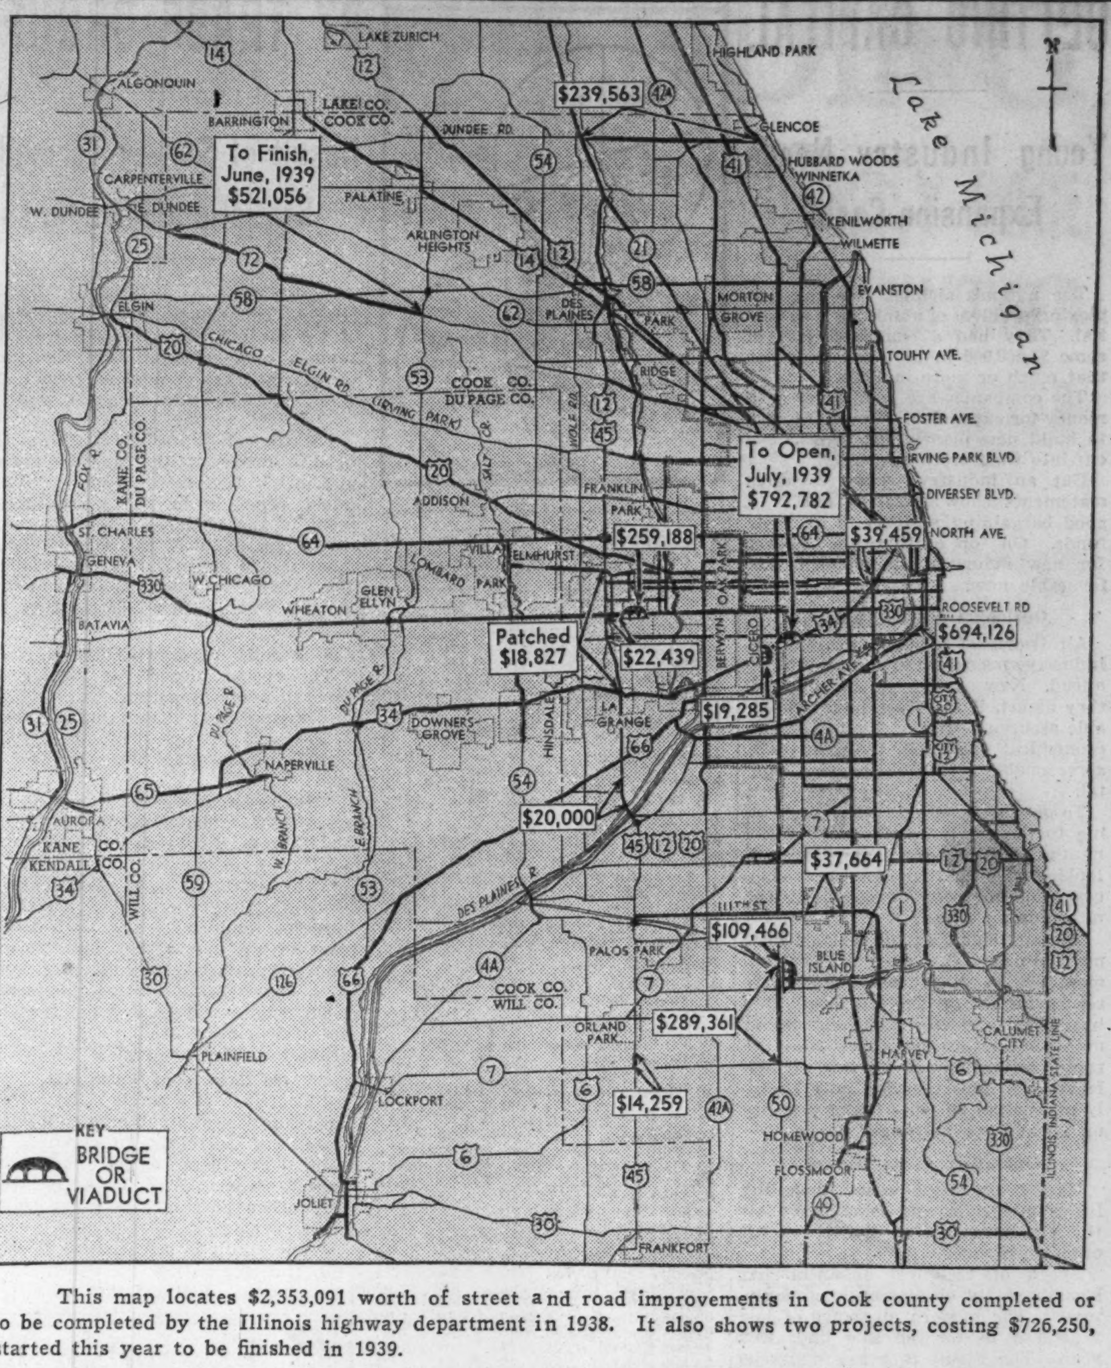
State Spends Three Million Here



This map locates $2,353,091 worth of street and road improvements in Cook county completed or to be completed by the Illinois highway department in 1938. It also shows two projects, costing $726,250, started this year to be finished in 1939.

STATE SPENDING 3 MILLIONS ON COOK HIGHWAYS

BY HAL FOUST.

With the 1938 construction season drawing to a close, the Illinois highway department announced yesterday that it will complete $2,353,091 worth of street and road improvements in Cook county this year. Other Cook county jobs costing $726,250 were started this year and will be finished in 1939.

The largest single undertaking was a $742,782 viaduct in Ogden avenue over Cicero avenue and over the Burlington railroad enbankment. The structure, eliminating a bad bottle neck, is to be opened to trafic next July.

Other Grade Separations.

A railroad grade separation finished this year was a $259,188 viaduct for Roosevelt road over the Indiana Harbor Belt tracks on the boundary of the suburbs of Westchester and Broadview. This was a dangerous crossing with heavy rail trafic causing frequent delays to a heavy motor trafic.

A third grade separation job was the $19,285 reconstruction of the Laramie avenue viaduct over Ogden avenue. This structure will receive additional trafic next year after completion of a $675,000 viaduct being built by the city over the Great Western railroad between Roosevelt road and Lexington avenue.

A single bridge on the state's 1938 program for Cook county was the $109,465 span for Cicero avenue over the Calumet sag channel. Paving and widening of Cicero avenue north from the bridge to 111th street and south to 159th street cost an additional $289,361.

Archer Big Paving Job.

The largest paving job was in Archer avenue from State street to 35th street. The cost was $694,126. This will facilitate trafic between the loop and the Chicago airport, but it will not reduce accidents. Other widening in Archer increased accidents.

Other pavements, completed or to be completed this year, are as follows:

111TH STREET—Pulaski road to California avenue, $37,664. [Cook county highway department is also working on this section.]

ASHLAND AVENUE—Widening and reconstruction, Lake street to Warren boulevard, $39,459.

Under way for completion next June is the paving of Higgins road from near Dundee to route 53, $521,056.

Chicago Will Open Bids on South Side Breakwater

Bids for construction of a breakwater to protect the new south side filtration plant while it is being built will be opened tomorrow by the city. Commissioner of Public Works Oscar E. Hewitt said the work must start by Wednesday to comply with the Public Works administration grant of $5,415,750. The plant will be constructed in the lake on an 85 acre artificial peninsula between 75th and 79th streets.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

A MELROSE PARK ARREST.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—A sample of justice as applied by Police Magistrate George Bosco of Melrose Park:

At 1:30 a. m. one of our trucks entering Melrose Park on highway No. 20 was stopped by a police officer and the driver informed his lights were out. The driver looked over his truck and found the headlights and three green lights on front were burning, but the rear lights were out. He informed the officer lights were all burning a short time before when he stopped for gas, but asked to be directed to a garage to have the defect repaired.

The officer took him to a garage and the attendant could not find the trouble. The driver then proposed he stay at the garage until daylight, then proceed on his way. Instead officer placed him under arrest and kept him in jail until 1:30 p. m. that afternoon, although the truck has Illinois license and city of Chicago stickers on windshield.

After the above testimony was given to Police Magistrate George Bosco in his office he stated that it was unfortunate that we had trouble with the lights, but that $15 would take care of it to cover fine and court costs.

How long are the people of this state going to be left at the mercy of shakedown artists on every highway?

M. J. DOOLAN.

TO WATCH OR DIRECT TRAFIC?

Chicago, Sept. 12.—I have made several trips this summer driving in the country and have seen policemen on motorcycles standing at crossroads watching for motorists who violate any law. I wonder whether it is more important for them to arrest violators or to prevent an accident? I suppose they want to see the accident first and then make the arrest.

At crowded intersections they do the same thing, stand by but do not direct trafic. I think they should prevent accidents as much as possible and protect the public, not try to see how many tickets they can issue.

THEODORE KOTLOWSKI.

IOWA COP PICKS CHICAGOAN.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—I wish to warn Illinois motorists to avoid driving through the town of Wyoming, Ia. On Aug. 25 I drove through this village at a speed of 30 miles an hour. A motorcycle officer, who was hiding beside a building in a side street, arrested me for speeding. It is very interesting to note that an Iowa car was ahead of my automobile and another following, but the Illinois car was the one selected for arrest.

U. S. 41 BYPASS IN WISCONSIN ENDS CONGESTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Appleton, Wis., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—A $1,500,000 bypass for U. S. 41 has been opened to trafic around Appleton, Neenah, Menasha, Kaukauna, and three smaller cities in this industrial group of 56,000 population on the Fox river at the head of Lake Winnebago. The congestion through these communities on this main tourist route is familiar to many Chicago drivers. It is 193 miles from here to the loop.

Frank Appleton, Outagamie county highway commissioner, said that the 24 mile belt line relieves city streets of through travel running as high as 5,000 cars a day. The driving time of through trafic, he said, was cut from half to three-fourths of an hour.

The risk to local trafic and to pedestrians has been reduced, he added, pointing out that there were twenty-five fatalities on the old route in five years, including eleven lives lost at McCarty's crossing north of Kaukauna.

J. J. Plank, chairman of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce highway committee, said that the removal of through trafic from the cities enables the business centers to cater better to shoppers from their normal trade areas.

Three and a half miles of paving and two viaducts over railroads remain to be built to finish the belt route. Contracts are expected to be awarded this month for completion of the improvement next year. At present, and to continue during construction, there is a good temporary route around this three and a half mile section.

The county voted $400,000 bonds to contribute to the cost. The balance of $1,100,000 is being paid by the state and federal government.

NEWS AND VIEWS

De Soto's 1939 automobiles will have their gear shifts located on the steering columns, L. G. Peed, vice president of the De Soto division of the Chrysler corporation, said yesterday. Called the "handy shift," Peed said the device will make gear shifting easier, safer and more dependable. The gear shift lever movement is transmitted by a tube located inside the steering column. No new driving habits are necessary in using the device. It will be standard equipment on all the 1939 De Sotos.

START FIGHT TO HALT U. S. SPENDING

FUND RAISING IS THEME FOR CHARITY MEET

Hospital Unit First to Organize.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Dr. M. P. MacEachern.

Mobilizing for an aggressive drive to increase benevolent giving in order that the religious, educational, and welfare institutions of the nation may survive, the hospital group is the first of several subcommittees to complete its organization for participation in the national stewardship convention to be held Nov. 1 to 3, at the Stevens hotel. Working in conjunction with the Chicago executive committee, of which John D. Allen is chairman, the hospital group is headed by Dr. Malcolm P. MacEachern, president of the International Hospital association.

Hospital leaders are arranging special conferences for representatives of the hospital field on the afternoons of the convention's last two days. Public relations and fund raising will be discussed in forum form, led by Dr. Claude W. Munger, administrator of St. Luke's hospital in New York City and past president of the American Hospital association.

Chicago members of the Chicago hospital committee include Alden Mills, managing editor of Modern Hospital; Dr. Bert W. Waldwell, executive secretary of the American Hospital association; Dr. Rufus Rorem, executive director of the committee on hospital service, and Clinton F. Smith, president of the Protestant Hospital association.

Representatives of churches, schools, and colleges, community chests and councils, youth organizations and other institutional bodies are also organizing to participate in this national stewardship convention.

At the sessions an attempt will be made to discover the best methods of reviving and increasing voluntary efforts in behalf of the particular group. A fact finding committee will present a summary of the financial situation as it applies to each group and this will be the basis for the section's discussion. More than 5,000 delegates from all parts of the United States are expected to attend.

G. O. P. NOMINEES FOR CONGRESS ASK ECONOMIES

Say Nation's Future Lies in Vote.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Congressmen who are chosen in the November election will hold the fate of the United States in their hands, voters of southern and southwestern Chicagoland were being warned last week by the Republican nominees in the six congressional districts that serve this territory.

Because the country cannot stand much longer against administration extravagance, and because a Republican recapture of the senate is not immediately possible, the salvation of America depends on a G. O. P. majority in the house of representatives this year, party leaders are arguing.

Defeat of the spending radicals is possible, but only if conservatives unite in the campaign and go to the polls in sufficient numbers two months hence, according to these workers.

G. O. P. Claims 11th.

Republicans feel certain of retaining the 11th district, which includes Will county and which has never elected a Democrat. Chauncey W. Reed of West Chicago, the incumbent, is seeking reëlection against William J. Bossingham, Joliet Democrat.

Comparatively small vote switches could unseat the Democrats in the 1st and 2d districts, and determined effort could win the 3d, 4th and 6th districts for the G. O. P., leaders say.

William L. Dawson, Republican alderman of the 2d ward who is seeking the congress seat now occupied by a fellow Negro, Arthur W. Mitchell, Roosevelt Democrat, declared last week that the people of his race are revolting against relief handouts and will welcome regular employment. They are convinced that steady work cannot come while the administration is frightening business and industry, Dawson said.

Noble W. Lee, Republican aspirant for the seat of the 2d district's Democratic congressman, Raymond S. McKeough, criticizes all campaign promises of additional relief, and promises to help men and women to get off the relief rolls by a reassuring government attitude toward employers.

Sees Threat to Democracy.

Lee, an attorney who is secretary of the John Marshall Law school, in his ward meetings charges the present administration is deliberately attempting to wreck the present form of government.

"Our government is actually the oldest one on the face of the earth," Lee said. "The only important attacks against American democracy have been made by men who were sworn to defend it. Even the traitors of our history did not direct their efforts against the form of our government.

"It remained for the President and his cohorts to set out deliberately to overthrow the structure of our democracy by concentrating power in the executive branch."

Fights for Peace.

Goodwin L. Dosland, Republican candidate for congress in the 3d district, is attacking the present foreign policy as tending to involve us in aggressive war. Dosland promises to "fight for peace" by opposing the sending of American troops outside our borders.

Congress holds the controling hand where actual war is concerned, according to Dosland.

"I pledge myself to vote against war unless our homes are threatened by a foreign power. I will also oppose any action or expenditure to send American boys to fight on foreign soil."

Dosland workers are employing an unusual means of reaching voters not attracted by ordinary political thunder. They accomplish this by supplementing their regular political gatherings with "basement meetings."

Small Meetings Are Brief.

These smaller meetings are being held, two or three each evening, in unpretentious quarters in each ward and township in the district.

The gatherings are brief and the speakers address their little knots of auditors in an ordinary conversational manner that is more effective than oratory of the inspired variety, according to workers.

In the 4th district, Congressman Harry P. Beam withheld his heavy fire last week while his Republican opponent, Dominic M. Janec Jr., was moving into action.

Calls Rival a "Yes Man."

Janec asserted that the congressman's voting record stamps him as a Roosevelt yes man, and promises if elected to vote in accordance with his own conscience. Janec is appealing for the large Polish and Czechoslovakian vote in the 4th by pointing out that his father is a Czech and his mother a Pole.

In the 6th district, which reaches down into the southwest, the Democrat, A. F. Maciejewski of Cicero, and the Republican, Robert Isham Randolph of Riverside, were strengthening ward and township organizations for their battle for the seat that is being vacated by Congressman Thomas O'Brien, Democratic candidate for sherif of Cook county.

PETER V. BURKE, 8004 Justine street, is a real friend of the boys. Attest his record and his latest project. Some years ago he formed the Highland Boys' Softball league to keep his sons and their friends off the streets. Last year he persuaded six American Legion posts to sponsor the league. Their enthusiasm for the idea couldn't be limited. They provided lights for night playing and all sorts of equipment, and conducted a successful season of youth activities this summer. Now the Southtown Legion Posts' Boys' league, with Mr. Burke as general chairman, has sent out appeals to business men, seeking employment for youths who are financially unable to enter college, but who wish to work and finish their education at night schools. "We have a list of boys," Mr. Burke said, "over 18 years old who we are very proud to recommend for ability and ambition. Would you assist us in the promotion of our Americanism plan by placing one of these boys in your organization for at least a trial period?"

ASSEMBLY RACE IN 5TH WATCHED AS BAROMETER

BY EDWARD WILSON.
[CHART ON PAGE 2.]

Two south side state senatorial districts are being watched as political barometers during the present campaign preceding the Nov. 8 election. They are the 5th, which includes the 5th ward and parts of the 2d, 4th and 6th, and the large 13th district, which includes four wards and parts of three others on the far south side.

William C. Henry.

In the 5th district the struggle is definitly marked by an effort to swing an old Republican district back to Republicanism. At the last session it was represented by a Democratic senator, two Democratic representatives and one Republican.

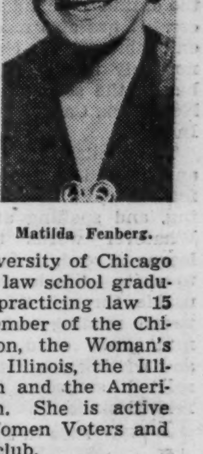
The district went Democratic in 1934. However, in both the general elections of 1934 and 1936 the Republicans polled more votes for representatives than did the Democrats.

How Tallies Compared.

In the 1934 primary the total votes cast for representatives were: Republican, 65,051, and Democratic, 59,644. In the general election of that year the vote was: Republican, 115,036, and Democratic, 113,575, but bad distribution of the votes sent one Republican and two Democrats to Springfield.

In 1936 the general election total was: Republican, 177,966, and Democratic, 177,534, but again two Democrats were elected.

Miss Mathilde Fenberg, attorney, and Rep. William J. Warfield, colored, are campaigning for the two Republican positions, telling voters to vote for two candidates.



Matilda Fenberg.

According to the system of voting for representatives, voting for two candidates gives each candidate one and one-half votes, while to vote for one would give that candidate three votes.

Miss Fenberg has lived in the district for 20 years. She is a University of Chicago and Yale university law school graduate and has been practicing law 15 years. She is a member of the Chicago Bar association, the Woman's Bar Association of Illinois, the Illinois Bar association and the American Bar association. She is active in the League of Women Voters and the Women's City club.

If elected she will be the first woman lawyer to be a member of the legislature.

Ending Fifth Term.

Rep. Warfield is colonel of the 8th regiment, Illinois National Guard, and is ending his fifth term in the house.

The Democratic candidates for the house in the 5th are Prof. James Weber Linn of the University of Chicago, and Rep. Louis G. Berman. During the primary the two were rivals in the bitter struggle between the Nash-Kelly and Horner factions of the Democratic party but it is reported they will campaign on a harmony basis in the general election.

Bernard M. Epstein, lawyer, is the Republican candidate for the state senate from the 5th district, opposing John B. Geary, son of Joseph F. Geary, city civil service head.

Bernard Epstein.

Epstein claims that although Republican votes totaled 14,362 in the primary and Democratic 50,148, he will be able to gain a majority in November. He points to the fact that many Republicans voted Democratic in the Jarecki-Nash-Kelly fight.

On the senatorial side of the 13th district Grenville Beardsley, attorney and former assistant state's attorney, is making an active campaign among Republican ward and precinct meetings. He says that if elected he will keep in close touch with community and civic organizations in his district.

Sen. Francis J. Loughran, the Democratic candidate for reëlection had served two terms in Springfield. While he has not started his campaign he reports he may supplement the regular party organization work with some campaigning of his own.

In the large 13th district the Republicans have started their cam-

NEW TECHNIQUE AIDS PUPILS TO LEARN WRITING

'Manuscript' System Is Big Advance.

BY DR. WILLIAM H. JOHNSON.
[Superintendent of Schools.]

Reading, writing, and arithmetic, the traditional three R's of our American schools, are as important today as they have ever been. But the methods of teaching these basic skills have changed. Following new and approved methods of teaching reading, we have introduced the teaching of manuscript writing to the first and second grade children of the Chicago public schools.

The use of manuscript writing in these grades has many advantages. Children enjoy manuscript writing because they learn it more quickly and can use it while they are learning to write.

The mechanics of manuscript writing are simple compared to the muscular skills necessary for controling the swing between the letters of ordinary script writing. Straight lines and circles are easily made by children.

These simple strokes can be controled so that their attempts to express themselves on paper are successful from the start. The child takes greater pleasure in writing compositions when he can give more thought to what he wants to say, and less effort to the actual muscular work of writing.

Interested in the Present.

Young children are vitally interested in the present. Now is the important time. Today Tommy got a new dog. He would like to write that for all the world to read. He can, if he is using manuscript writing. If, on the other hand, he must labor hard to write a sentence which is scarcely legible in script or cursive writing in order to express his pleasure in his new dog, he becomes discouraged and may actually dislike writing.

The child experiences success when he can express his pleasure to his classmates legibly so that all may read. The pupils need to learn only one form of letter in order to be able to read and write. Since Tommy can read, "I have a dog," he can also write it for his classmates.

Uninteresting drill and tedious writing exercises are no longer necessary. The recent improvement in primary composition work is evidence that the use of manuscript writing is a distinct advantage to young pupils.

Used for Years.

Manuscript writing has been used for many years in the sight-saving classes in the Chicago public schools because the simple manuscript letters are very legible and tend to reduce eye strain.

With deaf children, also, learning has been simplified by the introduction of manuscript writing. It saves time and effort for these handicapped children by removing the necessity of teaching them two forms of letters.

With whatever groups manuscript writing has been used, it has had the enthusiastic indorsement of teachers. It has also made learning more enjoyable for the child. This is true not only in the schools of Chicago, but in the schools of other cities in New York, California, Minnesota, and Indiana.

The similarity between manuscript and printed letters makes it possible for the child to learn reading, writing, and spelling at the same time. Whatever words the first grader learns to read, he is immediately able to write. This knowledge is directly usable through this close tie-up between reading and writing. To the first grade child of today, reading and writing are not two distinct unrelated subjects. They are interrelated skills.

Aids in Spelling.

Tests have been conducted in the public schools of Mishawaka, Ind., which show that the use of manuscript writing is helpful in learning to spell.

The same spelling words were given to two matched groups of first grade children, only one of which had been taught to write by the manuscript method. The results showed that the average score for the group using manuscript writing was almost three times as high as that for those who were taught to use the regular script. Thus, it has been shown that primary children more easily learn and use the newer writing technique.

The capacities and needs of younger and older children are considered separately. Educators have found by watching movies of children in the act of writing, and by arranging speed tests in writing, that while younger children write more rapidly and more legibly by using the manuscript technique, the older children use cursive writing with greater facility.

We change, therefore, from manuscript to the cursive form at the beginning of the third grade. The transition is accomplished in about four weeks. Teachers have found that children make this change easily.

Home on South Side

Miss Olive Collier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Collier, 1558 East 61st street, and Wayne W. Norris, 1558 East 61st street, were married recently in the Church of Our Redeemer. They took a wedding trip to Yellowstone park and now are making their home at 1558 East 61st street. Mrs. Norris attended Carbondale Teachers' college and Mr. Norris the University of Illinois. ASSEMBLY RACE IN 5TH WATCHED AS BAROMETER

G. O. P. Sees Former Vote as Aiding Party.

paigns while the Democrats were still deciding last week whom to nominate for the representative positions.

Rep. Elmer J. Schnackenberg, who has completed nine terms at the house with a good record, and Attorney William C. Henry are the two Republican candidates. They have announced they are campaigning on a "vote for two" Republicans" basis and have high hopes of gaining two seats in the house.

Rep. Schnackenberg.

The district lost its two Republican seats when two Democrats were elected in 1932. In 1936 general election the Democrats polled 302,399 votes for representatives and the Republicans 227,180. The Republicans claim now this difference can be wiped out in November partially because the Democratic ward committeemen delayed too long in naming their candidates to be nominated.

Primary Ruled Illegal.

The Democratic primary was declared illegal by Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski, in Circuit court, because many Republicans switched their votes to the Democratic primary. Adam S. Mioduski, the Horner candidate, had received the greatest number of votes and a recount was asked by Rep. James Ryan, Nash-Kelly candidate.

The Democratic ward committeemen from the 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 6th, 17th and 19th wards were to select the two men. It was rumored last week that Ryan and Mioduski would be named to carry on the idea of Democratic party harmony. Ald. William Rowan, also 10th ward committeeman, objected on the grounds that Powers had held the positions for a long time while being 10th ward committeeman and that one of the jobs belonged to that ward.

Delta Kappa Omega Frat Gives Dance on Saturday

Delta Kappa Omega fraternity will present its first open dance of the fall season Saturday night at 9 o'clock in the Red Lacquer room of the Hotel La Salle. The affairs committee, under the leadership of Milton Kaplan, 2315 East 70th place, and Robert Loeb, 6809 Cornell avenue, has charge of the arrangements. Alfred Kraus, 5452 Ellis avenue, is the president.

Former Vote

Chart shows how districts were represented politically in the state legislature from the Fifty-fifth through the Sixtieth general assembly. On the representatives' chart a party square indicates two of that party were selected and one from the opposing party, either Democratic or Republican.

OPEN REDEEMER CHURCH AFTER REDECORATION

The Episcopal Church of the Redeemer, 56th street and Blackstone avenue, will reopen its doors and begin the fall program today after complete redecoration of the interior.

Full choirs, under the direction of Robert Birch, will sing during the first festival service of the season at 11 o'clock. The Rev. Edward S. White, rector, will occupy the pulpit. Children's work will be resumed at 9:30 o'clock.

During the summer the interior has been recalcimined, painted and waxed. The chancel has been redecorated. Funds for the work are being raised through the bishop's pence program which will be five years old Sunday.

Linnae Aid Society Visits Home for Aged on Friday

The Linnae Aid society will visit the Augustana Home for the Aged, 7542 Stony Island avenue, at 1:30 o'clock Friday, in accordance with its custom of visiting such institutions semi-annually. The Rev. Carl A. Olsson of the Englewood Swedish Baptist church will give an address and the Linnea quartet and Mrs. Victor Jackson, contralto, will sing. Refreshments will be served to residents and visitors.

SEEK 1,000 NEW MEMBERS FOR JEWISH GROUP

Women of Council Hold Teas Wednesday.

Two of the twenty-five membership teas scheduled by the National Council of Jewish Women, Chicago section, at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon will be held in the homes of Mrs. Morton Hoffman, 6826 Merrill avenue, and Mrs. Meyer Solomon, 5426 East View park.

The simultaneous teas in all sections of Chicago and its suburbs will initiate a drive for 1,000 new members, Mrs. Harry J. Myerson, chairman of the membership committee, said. The 1,800 members are insufficient to carry on the increased philanthropic and social service program.

Mrs. Hoffman will be assisted by Mrs. Fred Bernstein, 7025 Cregier avenue; Mrs. Mark Davis, 7034 Paxton avenue; Mrs. Joseph Einhorn Jr., 7100 South Shore drive; Mrs. Michael Hammer, 6815 Crandon avenue; Mrs. Harry Krinsky, 2315 East 68th street, and Mrs. Moses Leviton, 6925 Crandon avenue.

Co-hostesses aiding Mrs. Solomon will be Mrs. A. A. Abelson, 5314 Drexel avenue; Mrs. Herman Franz, 1359 Hyde Park boulevard; Mrs. Nathan Metzger, 5212 Ingleside avenue; Mrs. Albert G. Spiegel, 1311 Madison Park; Mrs. Louis Wangersheim, 1223 Hyde Park boulevard, and Mrs. Milton Wolfson, 6714 Paxton avenue. Mrs. I. J. Reis, 4752 Ellis avenue, past president of the organization, will be the speaker of the afternoon.

Guests at all the teas will hear a radio broadcast over station WAAF from 2:45 to 3 o'clock by Mrs. Hannah G. Solomon, 80 year old founder of the council, who will enumerate some of the highlights in the forty-six years of existence of the organization.

Mrs. Benjamin I. Morris, president, has one of the leading places in the membership campaign.

The South Shore Junior congregation will hold its third annual installation and dance at 8 o'clock tonight in the South Shore temple, 7215 Jeffery avenue. David Jay Orman, who was an active member of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation at the University of Illinois and former editor of the Hillel Post, will be installed as president.

Others who will be inducted are Lois Strauss, vice president; Al Goldblatt, treasurer; Doris Vodianoy, corresponding secretary, and Juliette Cohn, recording secretary.

Permanent committee chairmen, who together with the officers comprise the board of directors, are Avrum Andalman, publicity; Sheldon Reiter, ways and means; Dorothea Siskin, entertainment; Irving Soudek, membership, and Janet Morris, happy day fund.

The first meeting of B'nai Brith Junior council of district 6 will begin at 10 o'clock today in the Standard club, 320 Plymouth court, and continue until 5 o'clock. Miss Annettee Goldstein, 852 East 57th street, newly elected corresponding secretary of the council, will handle all reservations for the luncheon. Miss Edith Miller, 1538 South Trumbull avenue, is president.

The Alpha Mogon David fraternity will present its sixth annual dance Yom Kippur night, Oct. 5, at the Shoreland hotel. Proceeds will be given to the day and night nursery of the Daughters of Jacob, 6401 South Peoria street. Herbert Jacobs is general chairman. Other committee heads are Dr. D. A. Schwartz, publicity, and Edward Ehrlich, tickets.

Registration will take place all week for the cultural and educational programs which begin tomorrow at the South Side Hebrew institute, 4548 Drexel boulevard, Al Abrams, president of the institute announced.

Subjects which will be taught include journalism, piano, music appreciation, public speaking, English, bookkeeping, typing, and shorthand. Hebrew, Sunday school and citizenship classes will be conducted also and instruction will be given in dancing, choral singing and orchestra. A modern library has been established and a game room is available.

Maxwell Abbell was elected president of the newly organized south side Zionist district recently. Other officers are Benjamin Levinson, Bernard Jadwin and Samuel D. Schwartz, vice presidents, and Arthur D. Schwartz, secretary.

Success of the Zionist membership drive, inaugurated six weeks ago to obtain 1,000 new members, has encouraged the officers to continue the campaign until a minimum of 5,000 members in Chicago has been reached.

Mr. Abbell was assistant executive director of the Jewish charities of Chicago, director of the South Side Hebrew congregation and director of the Young Men's council for Boys' clubs, in addition to holding other positions in community work.

Activities of the South Shore Temple sisterhood will begin for the season with the meeting of the board at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning in the temple, 7215 Jeffery avenue.

Officers who will serve this year are Mrs. Lewis L. Brown, president; Mrs. George Spencer, first vice president; Mrs. Carl Cohen, second vice president; Mrs. Louis A. Gordon, financial secretary; Mrs. Harry Diamond, treasurer; Mrs. Ruth Mayer, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Edward Hershenson, recording secretary, and Mrs. Frank Katlin, chaplain.

Dr. G. George Fox will review "The Tyranny of Words" by Stuart Chase at the first regular meeting of the organization at 1:30 o'clock, Sept. 28. Miss Beatrice Eppstein, concert pianist, will play.

New pupils for the Sunday religious school of the South Side Hebrew congregation, 74th street and Chappel avenue, will register today and next Sunday. Sessions will begin Oct. 2. Dr. Irving Barkan is the principal of the school, which is affiliated with the Board of Jewish Education. Hebrew school classes are now in session, but new students may enroll throughout the month.

Celebrate 50 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Bohrn, 8133 Ellis avenue, will celebrate their golden anniversary with a wedding mass at 9:30 o'clock Saturday morning in St. Francis de Paula church, a wedding breakfast afterward in the Hotel Windermere East, and a family reception next Sunday evening. The entire original wedding party will be present. Mr. and Mrs. Bohrn have lived in Chicago for more than fifty years and have two sons, Leonard and Edward, and one grandson.

PET AND HOBBY SHOW SCHEDULED IN FULLER PARK

In conjunction with national pet week and the schools of the area, Fuller park will hold its first annual pet and hobby show Saturday in the fieldhouse, 4600 Princeton avenue.

Pets will be judged on general physical condition and the understanding shown between them and their exhibitors. Awards will be given to the most intelligent dog, the the best all around dog, the largest and the smallest full grown dogs, the best all around cat, the largest and the smallest full grown cats, the most novel pet, and the pet best suited to a girl and to a boy. In the hobby division thirty awards will be given.

Mrs. Christine Engstrom, humane chairman of the Graham P.-T. A., will be chairman of arrangements and Dr. W. A. Young, manager of the Anti-Cruelty society and chairman of the Chicago area for national pet week, will be the chief judge. The last entry date is set for 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Whiting Elks Club Holds Its Annual Fall Festival

The annual fall festival of the Whiting Elks club will be held tomorrow to next Sunday in the lodge hall. The proceeds will be given to charity, including the Christmas basket fund. Edward L. Kosior is the general chairman, other members of the committee in charge are George Hite, Edward Bartuska, William Daly, Herbert Brown, and Robert Spillar.

Aiding Dance

START BUS LINE ON HALSTED ST. ON MONDAY, OCT. 3

Chicago Surface Lines buses will operate on Halsted street from 87th street to 123d street starting Monday morning, Oct. 3. A community celebration will be held at 103d and Halsted streets at 3 p. m. the day preceding. Neighborhood civic organizations will take part. Mayor Kelly and Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th] and John J. Duffy [19th] will talk. Ald. lindell and Duffy worked together in promoting the passage of a city ordinance and an Illinois commerce commission order authorizing the buses.

OLD LAKE COUNTY SETTLERS PLAN RALLY SATURDAY

Prizes Await Claimants to Residence Records.

Taboo may be the word for nobility and caste in America, but it would pay to have the right ancestors and birth place Saturday at the Lake county fair grounds, Crown Point.

There 600 persons will meet for the 63d annual session of the Lake County Old Settler and Historical association, and prizes will be awarded among those present to the oldest man and woman born in the county, the largest family with one common ancestor born in the county, and the youngest person with the longest ancestral line of Lake county citizens.

Other Prizes Listed.

Other title holders who will receive $2 bills also are the oldest man and woman present, the couple wed in Lake county who have been married for the longest period, the oldest twins, the school teacher who has taught the longest and has the largest number of former pupils present, the oldest civil war veteran, and the oldest Spanish-American war veteran.

Registration of members at the picnic will begin at 10 o'clock. Every one who ever has lived in Lake county has been invited to attend, according to Frank Borman, county recorder and president of the organization.

Christopher D. Coleman, secretary of the Indiana State Historical society, will be the principal speaker.

School Band to Play.

The Rev. Thomas H. Adkins, pastor of the Presbyterian church in Crown Point, will open the afternoon program with the invocation at 1:30 o'clock. The Crown Point High school band will play, and Mayor W. Vincent Youkey will give the address of welcome to which Mr. Borman will respond.

Mrs. Genevieve Mybeck will present a solo, and then Mrs. Alice Mundell Demmon, historical secretary; Arthur G. Taylor, secretary, and Foster Bruce, treasurer, will give their reports.

Election of officers and music by the high school band will follow, and then Mr. Coleman will speak. The program will be completed by a solo by Mrs. Mybeck; the presentation of the history of the Crown Point post office, prepared by Postmaster Oscar Sauerman; reminiscences by Schuyler C. Dwyer, Cyrus Hayden, Mrs. Jennie Ward Wheeler, and Jay Doak, and the award of prizes.

Members of Committee.

The committee in charge of arrangements is comprised of Mr. Borman, Mr. Taylor, Mrs. Demmon, Mr. Bruce, and Allison Dibler, vice president.

OAKLAND TRADE GROUP SPONSORS FALL FESTIVAL

Expect 10,000 to Join in Homecoming.

More than 10,000 persons are expected to attend the fourth annual homecoming celebration at 8 o'clock, Sept. 30, at 43d street and Drexel boulevard, sponsored by the Oakland Business Men's association.

The program, which will culminate the New Century sales week in which Oakland merchants will participate, will include an amateur vaudeville show by local talent followed by a street dance. "The association will award prizes totaling $100 to the acts judged first, second, and third, and to all other finalists.

A platform and lights will be erected at the corner, and the whole business district will be decorated with bunting and flags.

Members of Committee.

Dr. W. Jerome Heather, president of the association, will serve as master of ceremonies for the program. George Erkert, treasurer, is the general chairman for the celebration. Others on the committee on arrangements are Charles L. Leindecker, William H. Daemicke, Henry Herbrand, C. H. Daemicke, Ernest Wilson, Clarence Puffenberger, R. E. Kidwell, and A. G. Nelson.

Plan Amateur Tryouts.

Amateur performers will be restricted to residents of the Oakland neighborhood, and finalists will be selected for the homecoming show after tryouts.

Last year about 10,000 attended the celebration and one of the contestants, Marijilou Weisenberg, 12 years old, attracted so much attention that a five year movie contract followed. She is living in California now.

The Oakland Business Men's association will have its annual golf tournament Wednesday at the Ridge Country club, 103d street and California avenue.

ENGLEWOOD M. E. HOST TO MISSION SOCIETY RALLY

250 Women Expected at Conference Wednesday.

As one of the final observances of the 70th anniversary of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church, the Chicago southern district of the society will hold its annual meeting Wednesday in the Englewood Methodist Episcopal church, 64th street and Stewart avenue. Two hundred fifty women from 38 south and southwest side churches will make up the assembly.

Mrs. H. G. Stephenson, 3300 Lake Shore drive, president, will call the meeting to order and Mrs. William H. Matheny, 1437 Estes avenue, conferencee corresponding secretary will install the new and reëlected officers. "India," the topic for study in all units of the organization throughout the year, will be the theme of the conference.

Surgeon To Speak.

Dr. Oscar B. Nugent, treasurer of the American unit of the International College of Surgeons and head of the Chicago Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat hospital, will be the principal speaker in the afternoon. He will lecture on "As a Doctor Sees India" and will show films taken during his travels in the service of the British government. Dr. Nugent has lectured before medical groups throughout the country and is known for his invention of surgical instruments and his books on eye surgery.

Part of the discussion at the conference will be given over to the proposal that the American unit and the inter-denominational departments form a world organization with 4,000,000 members at the general executive convention this year in Pasadena, Cal.

HARDIN SQUARE OPENS INDOOR SPORT PROGRAM

Business Men Donating Contest Prizes.

Initiating the fall and winter indoor gym program, the first annual carnival of sports and recreation will be held in the fieldhouse of Hardin Square park, 26th street and Wentworth avenue, beginning tomorrow and continuing through next Monday.

Prizes for the amateur, dance, and other contests and for the ping pong, checkers, and card tournaments have been donated by community business men who are sponsoring the festival in coöperation with the Chicago park district.

Begins Tomorrow.

The program will begin tomorrow afternoon with the ping pong and checkers tournaments in the afternoon and a get-acquainted dance at night. Auditions for the amateur contest will be held Tuesday afternoon and the Dixie orchestra, a federal music project unit led by Zilner T. Randolph, will present a swing concert that night.

The amateur contest will be the attraction Wednesday night. An all-star junior football game is listed for Thursday afternoon and a boxing show for 8 o'clock in the evening.

Old timers will match wits in a card tournament Friday afternoon and movies of Chicago park district activities will be shown that night. Tests in football passing, punting and drop kicking are on the schedule for Saturday afternoon and finals in the ping pong, checkers, and card tournaments, for Saturday night.

Play Softball Sunday.

All-star teams will meet in a senior softball game Sunday morning, and a La Bocce tourney will be held in the afternoon. A dance contest in waltz, fox trot, and eccentric steps will complete the week of activities the following Monday night.

On Honeymoon

Mrs. Anna Meyers announces the recent marriage of her daughter, Elaine, to Emanuel J. Davis of Washington, D. C. The wedding and reception were held at the bride's home, 5423 Hyde Park boulevard. Mr. and Mrs. Davis will make their home in Washington on their return from a honeymoon at Lake Louise and Banff.

NEW PROFESSOR JOINS ACADEMY STAF THIS TERM

Maj. Pillsbury Replaces Maj. Franson.

Maj. Dennis C. Pillsbury, U. S. A., will act as professor of military science and tactics this year at Morgan Park Military academy it was announced last week by Col. Harry D. Abells, superintendent of the academy. He succeeds Maj. Paul O. Franson, who is being sent to Fort McClellan, Ga., for duty after a six year tenure at the academy.

Maj. Pillsbury, whose home is in Portland, Ore., comes to the academy from Fort Francis E. Warren in Wyoming.

In Army Since 1917.

He was graduated from the infantry school at Fort Benning, Ga., in 1921, and from the advanced infantry course at the same headquarters in 1930. An alumnus of Cornell university, he entered the United States army service in 1917.

Another addition to the staf this year is Lieut. John Storr, marine fleet reserves, who has been appointed tactical officer and instructor of social sciences. A native of St. Paul, Minn., Lieut. Storr is returning to the academy after an absence of two years spent as an instructor at other academies.

Principal Is Honored.

Hugh G. Price, principal of the academy, was elected president of the Chicago Denison University Alumni association at the association's annual meeting at the River Forest Tennis club recently. Mr. Price is the son of Enoch J. Price of Welsh Hills, O., and one of a family which has been represented on the university's roster since 1873. He is a member of the class of '25.

FEDERAL MUSIC PROJECT GIVES THREE CONCERTS

Three concerts will be presented by the federal music project this week on the south and southwest side.

The Dixie orchestra of twelve Negro musicians will be heard at 8:30 o'clock Friday evening in Fuller park, 45th street and Princeton avenue, with Zilner Randolph as director. The orchestra will also play Wednesday evening at a celebration in Hardin square, 26th street and Wentworth avenue.

A free music appreciation concert will be presented by the 30-piece Columbia Concert band at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Morrill school, 6011 Rockwell street. Norman L. Black will conduct the program of overtures, marches, and popular numbers and make explanatory remarks about the composers and the compositions.

'Y' COLLEGE TO OFFER COURSE IN PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE WORK

Dr. Edward J. Sparling, president of the Central Y. M. C. A. college, 19 South La Salle street, announces that three new courses have been added to the curriculum for the semester which opens tomorrow. They are in public administration, American culture, and personnel administration. All three will be available to day and evening students.

Dr. Edw. J. Sparling.

"It is the first time that such a comprehensixe program has ever been offered in Chicago," Dr. Sparling said, discussing the public administration course. "The country needs more thoroughly trained public servants and this course will give students an understanding of the problems and the basic technique in this field. The four year program in the day school leads to the B. A. degree and the two year evening program to a certificate."

Among the new instructors assigned to the faculty are Dr. Paul J. Hartsuch as professor of chemistry, who comes from St. Luke's hospital, where he has a research fellowship; Gordon Bronfenbrenner, who is transferring from Washington university, St. Louis, to be instructor in economics, and Joseph Creanza, on the faculty of Lewis institute since 1931, who will be acting chairman of the department of modern languages.

—Fenger—

An enrollment of 410 cadets, 80 in excess of the allotment from R. O. T. C. headquarters, will have to be cut down this week by Sergt. William P. Robinson, military instructor at Fenger High school. Ninety of the 410 registered are recruits.

Company comamnders chosen by Sergt. Robinson last week were: Company A, Lieut. Kent Cox; Company B, Lieut. Stephen Van Clay; Company C, Lieut. William Helligonds, and Com pany D, Lieut. James Demetry. Either C, Lieut. Van Clay, Lieut. Helligonds, or Lieut. Demetry will be selected battalion commander within the next few weeks. Lieut. Carl Ekstrom and Lieut. James Morrill have been named band leaders.

Sergt. Robinson also said that Sergt. Kenneth Filley will head the ushers' club this year. He expected to name 20 aditional officers in the near future to complete his roster.

Beverly Service Council Honors Past Presidents

The first seasonal meeting of the Beverly Service council in tribute to its past presidents will be held Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles Farwell, 9631 Vanderpoel avenue. Mrs. Thomas Carlisle, program chairman, will introduce Mrs. Florence Duller, dramatic artist, in "A Glimpse of Japan." A Japanese luncheon will be served under the chairmanship of Mrs. Frederick Cardy and Mrs. Frank M. Lambin, hospitality chairman, will be hostess. Mrs. Oscar T. Bloom is the newly elected president.

SOUTH SHORE 'Y' READY TO MAKE SEASON'S PLANS

Dinner Meeting to Get Summer Reports.

The board of directors of the South Shore Y. M. C. A. will attend a dinner meeting Tuesday at the "Y," 2320 East 75th street, to hear reports of the summer activities and to make plans for the fall and winter.

Fred B. Childs Jr., will report on the annual Hi-Y congress held this summer at Berea, Ky., which he attended as delegate from the South Shore.

Richard Eddy has been added to the staf, he will have charge of the Gra Y clubs and will assist Waldo Toevs, assistant boys' work secretary with the Friendly Indian groups. Mr. Eddy has supervised handicraft work at Camp Channing for the South Shore boys the last two seasons. He will continue part time study at the Central Y. M. C. A. college.

Arrange Two Meetings.

Two other organizations of the Y. M. C. A. will have their first meetings of the season this week and one early next month. The women's auxiliary has a luncheon at 1 o'clock Wednesday in the "Y," Mrs. Leo Frederick, president, announced, and the men's fellowship club will hold a rally Thursday night. Paul L. Anderson is president of the group.

The men's glee club will meet at 8 o'clock, Oct. 3, according to Arvid J. Chalbeck, president. There will be several openings in the group, Philip Jones, the director, has indicated.

The eight old Hi-Y clubs and several new ones are beginning a new season under the leadership of volunteers. Philip Scheid, who attends the Chicago Normal college will replace Jack Reed as leader of the Luster Hi-Y since Mr. Reed will attend Massachusetts State college this year.

New Council Officers.

The new officers of the Hi-Y council, to which each of the clubs sends its representatives, are Eugene Bouchard, Sawin Hi-Y, president; Eddie Gustafson, Wanzer Hi-Y, vice president; Edward Lord Jr., Luster Hi-Y, secretary, and Robert Trovillion, Pulling Hi-Y, treasurer.

The Sawin Hi-Y will give a party Sept. 30 at the South Shore Community church, and all the clubs will participate in the basketball league which will open in November.

Archery, nature lore and handicraft, which proved popular during the summer camping, will be continued in the fall program at the Y. M. C. A. The craft shop will be under the direction of Mr. Eddy, assisted by R. E. Boehme, Phil Scheid, Nick Bridge, and others.

—Kelly—

The new rifle range at Kelly High school, installed during the summer months by the board of education, is expected to be complete this week with the arrival of bullet traps and a firing platform. Sergt. John G. Hickman, military instructor, predicts that the R.O.T.C. enrollment at Kelly this year will be the largest in the history of the school.

2 P.-T. DISTRICTS JOIN FOR PARLEY ON WEDNESDAY

Unit Leaders to Confer on Year's Program.

In preparation for parent-teacher work during the new school year, districts 1 and 23 will hold their annual conferences as a joint meeting Wednesday in the Hotel Sherman for the instruction of officers and chairmen of local units. Other members have been invited to attend also.

Mrs. Walter S. Anderson, director of district 1, and Mrs. Charles A. Clauss, head of district 23, together with their boards, have planned the conference. Mrs. David Fechheimer, district 1, and Mrs. Marcus Colberg, district 23, have charge of arrangements.

Registration will begin at 9:30 o'clock. The Rev. T. K. Vogler, pastor of the Bryn Mawr Community church, will give the invocation. Highlights of the morning session will be a message by Mrs. Harry M. Mulberry, president of the Illinois congress, and the presentation of an educational platform for Chicago by Mrs. F. Russel Lyon, first vice president.

The delegates and guests will have an informal luncheon at noon, and the afternoon session, consisting of round table conferences, will start at 1:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Newton E. Turney, president, announced the new officers and board members of the Horace Mann P.-T. A. at the first board meeting of the season last week in the school library.

The officers are Mrs. Elmer Luehr, first vice president; Miss Gretta Brown, second vice president; Mrs. G. W. Bonner, recording secretary; Mrs. Guy Luster, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Ward Farwell, treasurer. Mrs. Foster McMillan is the southeast council representative, and Mrs. D. M. Lockett is the room mother.

Chairmen are Mrs. E. W. Fassett, membership; Mrs. Clarence Shrack, parent education; Mrs. H. R. Blanning, ways and means; Mrs. Fred Pernod Jr., publicity; Mrs. Howard A. Herder, social; Mrs. T. Reed Liggett, music; Mrs. R. P. Sanford, national parent-teacher magazine; Mrs. Carl Block, school beautiful; Mrs. Herbert Spierling, citizenship and legislation; Mrs. G. B. Wanzer, reading and library; Mrs. C. E. Mathews, student art; Mrs. H. V. Cork, school education; Mrs. M. J. Fulbrath, teacher representative; Mrs. A. E. McKnight, revisions, and Mrs. Luehr, and Mrs. Clifford Randall, auditors.

"This Parent-Teacher Movement, What Is It All About?" will be the subject of a talk by Mrs. Edward Jackson, state membership chairman, at the first meeting of the Avalon Park P.-T. A. at 1 o'clock Tuesday in the school auditorium, 81st and Dorchester avenue.

"Enrichment of Child Life" will be the theme of the Warren P.-T. A. which will begin its fall activities soon under the leadership of Mrs. Harry Tiedt, president. Mrs. Richard Mendelson, program chairman, chose the theme.

Members of the board will assist the hospitality chairman in welcoming old and new members at the first meeting of the Walter Scott P.-T. A. at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow in the school auditorium, 6435 Blackstone avenue. Mrs. R. A. Nash is president of the organization.

Mrs. Elsie H. Urist, assistant director of children's work of the Chicago Public library, will speak on "New Books for Young People" at the first regular meeting of the Bret Harte P.-T. A. at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the auditorium. Mrs. Albert H. Kern, president, will welcome the old and new members.

The board of the Hyde Park High School P.-T. A. will meet for the first fall session at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning in the home of the president, Mrs. Milton L. Weiner, 4752 Ellis avenue. She will serve a buffet luncheon, and the session will continue throughout the afternoon.

The introduction of committee chairmen, the presentation of the garden medal, and a skit by Mrs. T. J. Huffman and Mrs. Mabel Anderson will compose the program of the Wadsworth P.-T. A. at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon in the library of the school, 64th street and University avenue.

Now at Home

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sommer are at home at 9045 Aberdeen street after their recent wedding trip. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Goforth, Brownsville, Tex., and he is the son of Fred Sommer, 935 East 42d place. Mrs. Sommer was graduated from the University of Texas last June with honors. She is a member of Gamma Phi Beta sorority and Phi Theta Kappa honorary society. Her father is the United States consul for northeastern Mexico. [Paralta Photo.]

NORMAL COLLEGE EXPANDS COURSE TO FOUR YEARS

J. A. Bartky Becomes New President.

Chicago Normal college is no more. In its place is the Chicago Teachers' college with a four year curriculum, new faculty, new students, new president, and a renovated building.

John A. Bartky, who in 17 years has held many positions in the Chicago school system, is the new president. Born in Chicago, Mr. Bartky received his bachelor of science, master of arts and master of education degrees from the University of Chicago and Northwestern. He has been principal of the Harrison High, Rogers, Pasteur, Calumet High, and Barton schools. Last year he was appointed superintendent of the 7th district by the board of education.

Offer Work for Degree.

Under his régime, a four year college curriculum has been introduced into the school this fall permitting completion of a minor sequence in biology or history and qualifying students for a bachelor of education degree. A semester course in the teaching of ungraded division work again will be available and students completing the course will receive special certificates.

The work of remodeling the college and modernizing it for degree work began at the close of last semester. Renovation plans include the establishment of all offices in the college building, redecoration of the auditorium, and construction of a stage room, two new gymnasiums with lockers and dressing rooms, teachers' offices, a social room with a modernized kitchen in the Arts building, new music practice rooms, redecoration of the men's lounge, and rehabilitation of the lunch room.

Big Enrollment Increase.

The enrollment of the college has been increased by 400 freshmen, three hundred high school graduates, 50 college graduates and 50 other students.

Recently Wed

[Koehne Photo.]

Miss Helen Beverly Stevenson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Wallace Stevenson, 7642 Luella avenue, was married recently to William W. Weatherston, son of Mrs. Christina Weatherston, 7216 Princeton avenue, in the South Shore Community church. A wedding reception was held in the Hotel Windermere East and the couple left on a trip to northern Wisconsin. They will return this week.

PARK POLICEMEN LEARN SHOOTING AND COURTESY

Taught Civics and How to Handle Insane.

Park district policemen soon will be able to chat at ease with almost anyone, meanwhile giving valuable tips on such subjects as the origin of government, how to handle the violently insane and what to do until the doctor comes.

Because more than 700 officers and men of the Chicago Park district have begun school. Their courses for the next month, it is true, are restricted to instruction in swift and accurate pistol shooting, but after that they will cover civics, law, first-aid and classes in such intangibles as courtesy and their relation to the public.

Each member of the force, with the exception of three captains, who usually drop in anyway, and six policewomen, will have had about forty hours of instruction when the classes end. And even the policewomen take lessons in pistol shooting.

School in Third Year.

The school has been held in two previous years. It is in charge of Lieut. John Leonard, aided by Policeman George Murphy and unpaid outside lecturers. It was started by Robert J. Dunham, park district president.

"We teach the men how to deal with the insane and how necessary it is to avoid violence and to use soothing tactics," Lieut. Leonard said. "We tell them what to do with lost children, where to take the homeless and destitute and how to give first aid while waiting for an ambulance and doctors to arrive.

"They are taught to be courteous to one another and to the public. A motorist is a potential member of a jury in some important criminal case and it may become a question of whom that juror would believe, a criminal or a policeman whom he distrusted. When they make arrests they are to do so in an impersonal manner, and they are told how to make the best impression in court.

"For example, they must not seem to be angry with the defendant. They must not chew gum. They must be neat and careful of their posture. And our law classes teach them how best to prepare a case."

A Story on Courtesy.

Lieut. Leonard even has a favorite story to show how courtesy pays. It concerns a citizen who had told the lieutenant he disliked the attitude of arresting officers. He was stopped by a park district policeman for running a stop sign. And the officer said:

"I beg your pardon. Did you notice that you failed to observe that stop sign? We're soliciting your coöperation in preventing accidents and failure to observe stop signs is one of the biggest contributing causes to accidents. . . . Have you any identification? . . . Thanks. Now this is an arrest ticket. If you don't understand it any officer will be glad to explain it to you. Good day."

The motorist, dazed by this experience, drove promptly to Lieut. Leonard's office to congratulate the force on having such pleasant members. That's what the school is for.

NEIGHBORHOOD CLUB REOPENS DRIVE FOR CASH

The volunteer board of directors of the Hyde Park Neighborhood club, 1364 East 56th street, this week will reopen the campaign to obtain funds to continue the recreational and educational activities of the community center.

The organization, which has a resident staf of five, serves the area bounded by 35th and 63rd streets, Cottage Grove avenue and the lake. During August activity attendance in the playgrounds in this territory was 71,000, and 52 WPA workers were obtained to supervise the activities during the summer.

John Guinnessy is the resident director. Donald Stone is president of the board of directors, which is composed of 20 volunteers. They will handle the solicitation drive.

Recently Married

TO INSPECT OUR NEW HOME IN HYDE PARK

The many friends that we have made during our 18 years on the South Side will be glad to learn of the opening of our new, modern store. We hope, too, that many new friends as well will take this opportunity to inspect our store and furnishings.

Our reputation for a high grade of men's wear together with a policy of giving value-plus has made us a leader in Hyde Park's men's circles.

Such names as Knox, Kingley, Croydon, Manhattan Shirt Co. and its products and many other nationally known manufacturers from whom we draw our styled-right merchandise has built our following through the years.

Come in and see our new location, browse around if you like and remember, Men: In Hyde Park, it's Asa C. Faust for Men's furnishings of quality.

CHANGES BRING TOWERING HOUSE DOWN TO EARTH

Sunroom Replaces Two Outmoded Porches.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Not so many months ago Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Int Hout had the courage and the imagination to undertake the modernizing of a large home at 214 Ashland avenue, Park Ridge.

The architect, William F. McCaughey, had the problem of a house which was in no way decrepit, in many ways comfortable enough, and in all ways structurally sound, but which needed a great deal done to it to put it in the position of one of the "desirable" houses of the community.

No spectacular transformation took place such as is sometimes seen when a century old barn becomes a Cottswold cottage or a home in the Monterey style, but a worth while remodeling, the sort of remodeling which cannot help but inspire many owners of sound but drab and aging houses to consider giving them fresh countenances—and many added conveniences; the type of renovation, in brief, which proves that just because a house is "dated" it need not forever remain so.

Height Is Reduced.

In this instance the work was carried out on a well founded, well managed basis. Imagination was brought into play, and every effort was made to combine the beautiful with the practical.

Since many of the older homes around us stand "too high" above the ground, and this home had just this trait, the property was regarded to give the renovated structure the appearance of growing out of the ground.

The two front porches, one on the first floor and one on the second, had a common fault—they were too long and narrow. So these porches were removed and in their place a new entrance was built, with iron rail and brick steps and walk.

Besides this change, a nicely proportioned sunroom was added, a room 14'x16', which gives breadth to the house, provides space for a roof deck above, and lends to the whole exterior a dignity of mass it lacked before.

White for Exterior.

After these exterior changes were made the house was painted white, with a rich touch of color in the terra cotta red blinds.

Inside the changes made were quite as transforming.

The new sunroom, which is reached from the living room, has walls of a soft, turquoise blue, and a cement floor painted a terra cotta red. There are Venetian blinds at the windows [and throughout the house], and the light and spaciousness of this room contribute to the charm of the entire first floor.

No structural change was made in the living room, for a number of years ago two parlors had been thrown into one. However, a change was made in the dining room. Originally this room had an old clothes closet, which was thrown into the discard. And now the room has an intriguing corner cupboard in the colonial tradition. The wainscoting is white and wall paper in Dubonnet red is seen on the upper wall.

New Wardrobe Closet.

Likewise the large front hall now has a wainscoting of white which is carried up the new stairway to the second floor. And by way of acquiring more closet space, where none existed before, a commodious closet wardrobe was built in the wall as the left of the front entrance door.

Back in the beginning, the kitchen had two pantries. One, a butler's pantry, is now a lavatory with walls and floor of linoleum, and the second pantry has had its former purpose in life just as definitly changed. It is now a sunny breakfast nook. As for the kitchen, modern cabinets and cupboards do the duty of those one time "indispensable service rooms." In this kitchen the walls are of plywood, painted an intriguing gray, and the ceiling is blue.

On the second floor, one of the bedrooms opens onto the roof deck over the sunroom. The bathroom has been completely modernized, and walls and floors alike redecorated and reconditioned. The floors on the first floor have been carpeted, and the walls papered, excepting in the service portions and the sunroom.

Mardi Gras.

The Young People's League of the German Evangelical Zion church, 8326 Green street, will stage a Mardi Gras Wednesday evening in the social rooms of the church. There will be sideshows, refreshments, and free souvenirs.

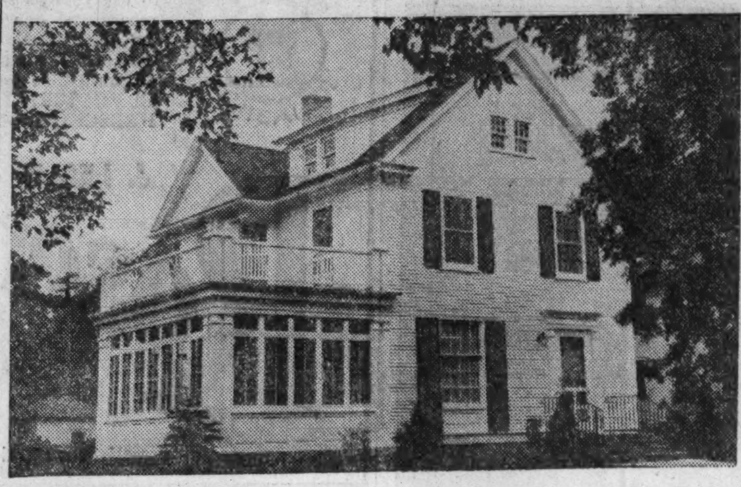
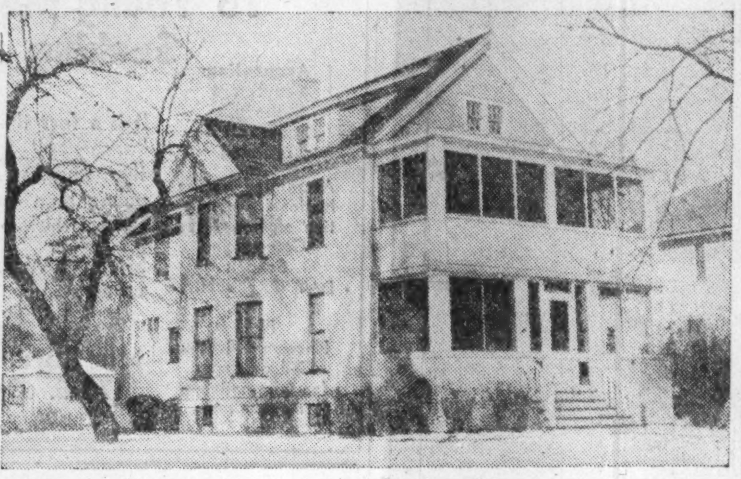
Accomplishment in Modernization



Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Int Hout of 214 Ashland avenue, Park Ridge, are the owners of a finely modernized home. Inside and out there are to be found in this piece of work many points of general interest. Architect, William F. McCaughey, Pickwick building, Park Ridge.



No signs of decrepitude were visible in this house before modernization started; but it was frankly middle aged, and lacking in house appeal. The changes wrought were as practical as they were dramatic.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Sept. 19.

This is the best month for moving evergreens or conifers plants, such as pines, spruces, hemlocks, junipers, yews, and arborvitæs. Be sure to replace poor soil with good soil or the plants will be handicapped at the very start. Buy baled and balled plants to reduce any likelihood of injury. Work the soil well in contact with the ball and water thoroughly at time of planting. Never allow the plants to suffer for want of water until the ground freezes. A combination planting of evergreens and deciduous shrubs often is desirable, the selection including those which harmonize well together. Shrubs like the Japanese barberry, Regel's privet, potentilla, snowberry, coralberry and St. John's wort are suitable. Make arrangements for mulching all newly planted stock after the ground freezes.

Tuesday, Sept. 20.

Wild flowers planted in fall will bloom the following spring. Many of them are suitable for naturalizing in a woodsy spot or among shrubs whose foliage is not too dense. These include the trillium, hepatica, Virginian bluebell, violet, asarum, mayapple, windflower and many others.

Wednesday, Sept. 21.

Order perennials for October or late September planting. Do not overplant. Some perennials require more room than others. The peony should be at least three feet apart. If the peonies have failed to bloom it may be due to too much shade, crowding, poor soil, or too deep planting. Lift and divide the plants, but if they are doing well do not disturb them. Peonies will endure for years without removal if given rich soil and proper planting. For perennials, be sure the soil is well drained. Incorporate some organic matter, such as spent mushroom manure, in the soil by spading it under. Plant the tall kinds in the background, the low growing plants in the foreground.

Thursday, Sept. 22.

If large flowers are wanted on the hardy chrysanthemums remove a number of the buds. Some liquid manure applied when the buds show well will give larger flowers. Easter lily bulbs may be potted from now until the middle of November. Hardy lilies should be planted whenever they can be procured. For late bulbs, have a space ready for them and mulch the spot where they are to go to keep out frost. A few pots of late annuals will furnish many choice blooms for indoor use. Discard them when they have flowered. Do not feed roses out of doors late in the fall. Plant a few pots of freesias for they will give fine blooms for indoor use.

Friday, Sept. 23.

Pull all annual weeds to prevent the spreading of seeds for next season's growth. Make a coldframe in which to protect plants that are not quite hardy. Pansies should be protected as soon as the ground freezes by covering, not too deeply, with loose straw or hay. It is a good time to purchase bulbils of choice gladioli. They should be kept in a cool, dry place until early spring and then planted in rows in the garden.

Saturday, Sept. 24.

Cut the lawn before freezing weather or the long growth will mat down and be injured during the winter. Save all fallen leaves and pile them, a layer of leaves and a layer of soil. Wet down to hasten decay. There is nothing more useful than leafmold for pot plants. Plant narcissi and crocus as soon as they can be obtained. Potted chrysanthemums will do well for a long time if given a spot on a light, enclosed porch.

PATRIOTISM KEY NOTE IN AREA'S FALL FESTIVAL

Fete in Eighth Ward Will Last for Week.

To the music of bands and fife and drum corps, members of civic and patriotic organizations will march Wednesday night, Sept. 28, in the 8th ward fall festival parade.

Former soldiers, sailors, and marines will represent the Yankee, Chesterfield, Grand Crossing, Eaton Priddy, Illinois Central, and other 3d district posts of the American Legion and units of the Spanish-American War Veterans and the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Auxiliaries and other organizations also will participate.

One section of the parade will form at 73d street and Cottage Grove avenue under the direction of Edward G. McMahon; the second unit will meet at 79th street and Stony Island avenue under the supervision of Russell H. McBride, and a third will form at 90th street and Cottage Grove avenue under the direction of Herman Golder.

Pass in Review.

The three sections will converge at 83d street and Cottage Grove avenue and pass before a reviewing stand between Cottage Grove and Evans avenues.

Rowland Rawson will marshal the entire parade. William Hottinger, past commander of Eaton Priddy post, and Bud Singman, past commander of Grand Crossing post, have charge of the Legion activities.

The drum and bugle corps of Square post squadron, No. 232, Sons of the American Legion, will perform under the direction of Jess Bedford, former light heavyweight champion of the United States navy.

Americanism Program.

The 3d district council of the Legion will sponsor an Americanism program at 8:30 o'clock Friday night, Sept. 30, in Avalon park.

In another event stressing patriotism, the newly naturalized citizens of the 8th ward will be awarded an American flag and a copy of the constitution. This program will be held Tuesday, Sept. 27, in the Grove theater, 76th street and Cottage Grove avenue. Grand Crossing post will present the colors, and Mrs. Lawrence Leonard, past president of the Cornell P.-T. A., will sing the national anthem.

Community-wide church observance and a football game at 3 o'clock in Tuley park will open the fall festival week next Sunday. Monday has been designated as Stars and Stripes night, and Tuesday as All Nations night in Tuley park.

Plan Safety Night.

The parade of fifteen organizations in floats and marching units will be the chief event Wednesday. Thursday has been set aside as safety night and a program of education and entertainment has been scheduled.

The Illinois Concert band of the federal music project will play a concert from 8 to 10 o'clock Friday night in Tuley park under the direction of Max Bendix. Saturday will mark the end of the celebration.

Main streets of the ward will be decorated during the week, business men decided at a meeting last week under the leadership of Dr. W. R. Johnson and Andrew C. Metzger.

Dollar day sales will be conducted during the whole celebration.

Meet in Library.

Naturalized citizens in Chatham, Grand Crossing, Chesterfield, and Avalon will contribute to the exhibition of arts and crafts Sept. 27 at the Chatham branch library under the direction of Miss Marie Antoinette de Roulet, librarian. There will be a reception at the library also.

Old settlers will be guests of the Rhodes theater from 7:30 to 9 o'clock Thursday night. Marlowe Conner and officials of the Grand Crossing-Chatham Chamber of Commerce will introduce them.

The first fifty applicants from each of the sections south and north of 83d street will be entered in the healthy boy and girl contest. Those between the ages of 4 and 8 years will be examined under the rules of the American Medical association by Dr. H. B. Fox, chairman; Dr. H. W. Schwab, Dr. J. B. Sanovic, Dr. H. E. Mehmert, Dr. A. W. Morriss, and Dr. M. H. Walsh. The Jackson Park hospital will donate a prize for the boy and girl judged healthiest.

Other Events Listed.

Some of the other events of the week include a Grand Crossing amateur show, a variety musical, sponsored by the Parent-Teacher associations in the ward, and a style show sponsored by the junior recreation committee.

Auditions and tryouts for the amateur show will be held Monday night. Those who wish to compete should apply to the committee, comprised of Al Mitchell, assistant director of Grand Crossing park; Mrs. Daniel Foreman, Miss Helen Steinnman, William Reese, Mrs. Agnes Kemph, Stephen Fitzgerald, Katherine Glazier, Ethel Murphy, and Mrs. Loretta Anderson.

Mrs. M. W. Pratt, 8034 Eberhart avenue, and Mrs. L. E. Northshield, 8116 Ingleside avenue, are co-chairmen of the P.-T. A. musical.

Sorority.

Gamma Zata Mu sorority of Illinois will hold its first meeting of the coming year at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the home of Miss Margaret Anderson, 11360 Forest avenue.

Wins Award

[Doose Studio.]

Miss Adelaide Majewski, 5132 S. Carpenter street, sophomore at De Paul university, was awarded a half scholarship last week in the annual activity awards granted to upperclassmen outstanding in academic work and prominent in extra-curricular activities on the campus.

LORING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS HAS AN OPEN HOUSE

Celebrates Purchase of Its Property.

At the beginning of each school season a reception and open house are held at Loring School for Girls, 10650 Longwood drive. This afternoon, in observance of the tradition and in celebration of the purchase of the school property, the fourth annual open house will welcome friends and patrons.

Since 1935 the school has occupied the building and grounds on Longwood drive, its fifth home since its founding sixty-two years ago. Last March the property was purchased but the announcement was withheld until the new school term.

The first location of the school was an old square house on Michigan avenue. This was in 1876, but a few years later the "academy for young ladies" was moved to 2535 Prairie avenue, in the heart of the then fashionable district "accessible by steam and horse cars."

Members of the board who arranged the sale were Dr. Nathan E. Van Stone, president; S. E. Thomason, Edward R. Goble, Walter Barker, George W. Reed, Earl E. Moore, Mrs. W. R. Blend, Mrs. James E. McBurney, Benjamin Clarke, A. V. Higgins, and Miss Cecilia Russell, principal.

Several of the board members will be present this afternoon in the reception line with the faculty. Students who will act as hostesses are Loraine Blend, Frances Pearse, Jeannette Strandberg, Gloria Oosterbeek, Natalie Barker, Camilla Pillsbury, Betty McAfee, Jean Davidson, Marjorie Davis, and Virginia Knapp.

The new curriculum will stress gymnasium work and group games.

FLOCK OF NEW PROGRAMS READY FOR LISTENERS

October to Bring Return of Favorites.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

With the forthcoming shift back to standard time, radio's new season will be at hand. Several of the bigger programs have already returned and a few new ones made their bow. But many others are just around the corner and by mid October the new season will be in full swing.

A lot of details have been ironed out the last week or two. What the future holds can now be seen with considerable more clarity than a fortnight ago.

Tommy Riggs and Betty Lou have made some progress at rounding out their new Saturday evening radio company. Larry Clinton's orchestra will hang the musical backdrop and Bea Wain do the singing. Dan Seymour is to be the master of ceremonies. There will be guest artists and Zasu Pitts of the movies will be the first. Rudy Vallee, who gave Tommy Riggs and his gal friend their network start, may also have a few words to contribute on the opening night, Saturday, Oct. 1. This program will be aired on NBC.

Fred Waring's New Family.

Same evening and on the same chain Fred Waring will launch his New Pennsylvanians Family Party. Fred will present as his new girl star Donna Dae, who was formerly with Frankie Masters here. Fred also has a new trio, Two Bees and a Honey he found at the College Inn here. And he has a complete new glee club of twenty voices—not members of his orchestra as so many of them used to be.

Prof. Quiz goes to work on CBS Oct. 1 for a new sponsor. He will continue on CBS but a half hour earlier than now. Wally Butterworth and Parks Johnson are to move to Saturday evening with their Vox Pop series on the same date, Frank Crumit and Julia Sanderson having supplanted them with "The Battle of the Sexes" for the last Vox Pop sponsor.

Bob Hawk's Mutual Show.

Bob Hawk, whose B. O. B. club has long been a favorite with W-G-N morning listeners, is going on to bigger things. Bob and John B. Kennedy are to alternate as masters of ceremony and nonsense on a new sponsored audience participation show over Mutual from New York.

This program will have W-G-N as a local outlet at 2:30 p. m. Sunday afternoons starting Oct. 9.

Bob Hope's revue from Hollywood is to get under way at 9 p. m. Tuesday, Sept. 27, with Skinney Ennis' band supporting him. Ennis is the lad who warbled for so long over W-G-N with Hal Kemp's crew from the Blackhawk restaurant. He now has Maxine Gray, formerly with Kemp, singing with him. There will be guests each week but the first has not yet been announced.

Shadow Coming Back.

The Shadow comes back to Mutual on Sunday, Sept. 25. Bill Johnstone has been picked to replace Orson Welles this year. Welles is to continue his Mercury Theater series on CBS on Sunday evening opposite the Charlie McCarthy hour.

The food concern that has Jack Benny and the M-G-M Good News hour on the air, and shortly will have Kate Smith back, too, also has shows coming up that will feature Al Pearce's gang and Joe E. Brown. Brown will headline a half hour from 6:30 to 7 Saturday nights, starting Oct. 8, on CBS.

A new daytime show on NBC is to be the Smile Parade, featuring Ransom Sherman of Club Matinée and People I Have Known fame, Songstress Fran Allison, the Cadets quartet and Rex Maupin's music. This show will be aired from 8:30 to 9 a. m. Fridays starting Sept. 30.

Benchley Due in November.

Probably inspired by the swing version of "Tisket-a-Tasket," one sponsor is bringing on a new quiz show called "Ask-It-Basket" with Uncle Jim McWilliams, veteran vaudeville performer, asking the questions. This one comes along on CBS at 6:30 Wednesday nights starting Oct. 5.

The Robert Benchley brand of humor will be on the air over CBS at 9 p. m. Sundays, starting Nov. 20. A number of other names are to be added starters on the Benchley show.

Frank Parker has been hired by George Burns and Gracie Allan to do the singing on the first few programs of their new series which will be aired Friday evenings at 7:30 o'clock over CBS. Later Tony Martin will rejoin their company. Ray Noble will be back as band master.

"Kobar the Wizard" Is Next Curtain Time Play

"Kobar the Wizard," a weird drama of the supernatural, will be presented over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Friday. This was announced by Blair Walliser of the W-G-N production staf, who is in charge of the show. Hugh Studebaker will be starred in the title rôle—that of a mystic. Marjorie Hannon will appear opposite him.

Olympe Bradna and Autry to Face Charlie McCarthy

Olympe Bradna, screen ingénue, and Gene Autry, filmland cowboy star, will present themselves for introductions to Edgar Bergen's Charlie McCarthy during the broadcast at 7 p. m. C. D. S. T. over WMAQ-NBC. Miss Bradna, whose father is ringmaster of the Barnum and Bailey circus and who herself is a one time circus performer, will be heard in a dramatic sketch with Don Ameche. Nelson Eddy and Dorothy Lamour, singing with Robert Armbruster's orchestra, and the conversational Stroud Twins will complete the program.

Earl Wilkie to Be Northerners' Soloist

Earl Wilkie, baritone, will be the featured soloist on The Northerners' program on W-G-N Tuesday at 9:30 p. m. Mr. Wilkie's solo offering will be "I Hear You Singing." The male octet and the string ensemble will be heard in "Rose of Tralee."

W-G-N TO OFFER 'LOHENGRIN' IN ONE HOUR FORM

Baggiore Will Sing Title Role in Opera.

When W-G-N presents a streamlined version of Wagner's "Lohengrin" from 9:30 to 10:30 p. m., Monday, Sept. 26, over W-G-N-Mutual, its archaic language will be kept intact. Director Henry Weber has insisted on this course.

"Although it has been our policy," he said, "in the other operas we have presented to bring the language of the characters up to modern 1938 idiom, this cannot be done in 'Lohengrin.'

"We found that the colorful language of the opera is so much an integral part of the whole that too much would be lost should we attempt to change it. The scene is laid so far in the past that, in this particular case, the process of streamlining will be best served by leaving things alone."

◆

In the title rôle of Lohengrin will be Attilio Baggiore, W-G-N staf tenor. Other principals are Kathryn Witwer, soprano, who will be heard as Elsa; Margery Mayer, contralto, who will be heard as Ortrud; and Mark Love, basso, who will portray the king.

Mr. Weber said that there will be more music in "Lohengrin" than in any of the other operas presented to date. He estimated that approximately 75 per cent of the production will be music, with only 25 per cent dialog.

The radio in the past has been about 55 to 45 per cent, he said.

◆

A narrator will be used to tell the story, Mr. Weber added.

"So much of the story of 'Lohengrin' is so fantastic and so far removed from reality that we found it necessary to use the narrator more to keep the essential dramatic effect. In other words, we are relying on the imagination of our listeners to a greater extent than heretofore."

Barbers Spell Manicurists.

Paul Wing's Spelling Bee will bring to the microphone teams representing hotel barbers and hotel manicurists on the second broadcast of the NBC spelling master's new series at 4:30 p. m., over WMAQ-NBC.

Meets Missus!

[Seymour Photo.]

Jim Fleming, W-G-N announcer and commentator, who will be the master of ceremonies on "Meet the Missus," an interview show starting on W-G-N next Wednesday. The program will be heard Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays from 1:30 to 1:45 p. m. Fleming will interview club women on a variety of subjects.

SMALL BUSINESS MAN TO OCCUPY ROUND TABLERS

"What Is Going to Happen to the Small Business Man?" is the subject to be discussed by three University of Chicago professors when they gather around their triangular table for the regular University of Chicago Round Table broadcast over WMAQ-NBC at 9:30 tonight.

Taking part in the broadcast will be Howard C. Greer, professor of accounting at the university and director of the Institute of Meat Packing of Chicago; William H. Spencer, dean of the school of business, and Maynard C. Krueger, assistant professor of economics.

MISS SWARTHOUT TO BE CONCERT SOLOIST TODAY

Efrem Zimbalist Guest on Magic Key Hour.

Gladys Swarthout, popular contralto of the Metropolitan Opera company, will be guest soloist on the Sunday Evening hour over WBBM-CBS at 8 p. m. today. A 76 piece symphony orchestra and the 26-voice chorus for the concert, which will originate in Detroit's Masonic auditorium, are to be under the direction of Eugene Ormandy.

Miss Swarthout's selections will be the notable aria, "Che faro senza Euridice," from Gluck's "Orpheus and Euridice"; Dowland's "Come Again, Sweet Love"; "Velvet Shoes" by Thompson; Bridge's "O That It Were So," and, with the chorus, Page's "Plantation Days."

Orchestral music will consist of Von Weber's Overture to Euryanthe, the interlude and dance from de Falla's "La Vida Breve," the Farandole from Bizet's "L'Arlesienne Suite," and Sibelius' familiar tone poem, "Finlandia." The concluding hymn, featuring the orchestra and chorus and the entire audience, will be the traditional "God That Madest Earth and Heaven."

◆

A recital by Efrem Zimbalist, the world-famous violinist; a working demonstration of a Seeing-eye dog maneuvering in heavy trafic; the network debut of a young and talented singer, Joan Briton, and swing by an expert, Artie Shaw, with his orchestra and popular vocalist, Billie Halliday, will be the attractions of the Magic Key broadcast at 1 p. m. today over WENR-NBC.

◆

Demonstration of the methods used by the famous Seeing-eye dogs in guiding blind people through crowded thoroughfares will be conducted by Elliott S. Humphrey, head of the division of training and research of the Seeing-eye. Humphrey, walking through New York trafic with one of the institute's dogs, will be interviewed on the spot by George Hicks, NBC announcer.

Sanity in Art Talk.

Mrs. Frank G. Logan, noted patron of art and poetry, will speak on "Sanity in Art" during a special broadcast over WENR from 3:45 to 4:00 p. m. today. Mrs. Logan is a leader in the campaign for "sanity in art" and is donor of the Logan prize of $1,000 which is awarded annually to the best painting of the year.

Concert Soloist

Gladys Swarthout of operatic, movie, and radio fame, who will be guest soloist on the Sunday evening concert hour at 8 o'clock tonight over WBBM-CBS.

Conflict in Europe to Be Reviewing Stand Subject

Latest developments in the European conflict will be analyzed by Dr. S. N. Stevens, dean of Northwestern's university college, and Dr. Paul Hutchinson of Christian Century magazine, on the Northwestern University Reviewing Stand at 10:15 a. m. today over WGN-MBS.

—80 Years of Success—
SEELEY'S 140 N. Dearborn St., Chicago

Only 35 . . . YET She Looks 50!
BEWARE OF ADDING YEARS TO YOUR LOOKS!
YOUR own good common sense will tell you there are many things you used to do in your younger years that you shouldn't do today. For example, you should think twice before taking the same quick-acting laxatives you took in your youth. For today your digestive system is probably weaker, and can't stand the exhausting strain of laxatives that contain harsh drugs. These habit-forming medicines frequently irritate and inflame delicate digestive membranes . . . strain and weaken intestinal muscles, and interfere with their normal rhythm (peristaltic action). Thus making constipation worse . . . instead of better; affecting how you look—as well as how you feel!
WHAT IS THE ANSWER? What you need for regularity is something to help strengthen the large intestine, and gently stimulate the muscles to maintain their normal rhythm. Serutan, made only of natural ingredients, is specifically designed to help accomplish this purpose. That's why it is ideally suited for those past 35 whose digestive system cannot stand abuse.
Be wise! Play safe! Don't take chances with habit-forming remedies that may do more harm than good. Serutan contains no harsh drugs, roughage, or irritants. This statement is vital, and is plainly printed on the label!
RESULTS GUARANTEED OR MONEY BACK
Serutan has brought grateful relief from constipation to thousands who had literally "tried everything else without success." Why not let it help you? Get a can at any good drug store. If Serutan does not meet with your fullest expectations, your money will be immediately refunded.
FREE! Revealing 40-page booklet "THE TRUTH ABOUT CONSTIPATION." Tells all! Mailed in plain envelope. Absolutely free. Address Serutan, Dept. CT4, Jersey City, N. J.
BE AS Regular as a Clock
You know that when the rhythmic motion of a clock's pendulum becomes irregular, it will not work properly. Likewise, when the "normal rhythm" of the intestinal muscles (peristalsis) is interrupted, your digestive system does not function properly, and you cannot expect to be internally clean.
SERUTAN "READ IT BACKWARDS" HELPS RESTORE NORMAL RHYTHM

DICK TRACY
GANGWAY, BOYS-WE'VE GOT A COUPLE OF STICKY CUSTOMERS HERE.
CHESTER GOULD
SET THEM ON THAT BENCH. AND YOU, GILLIS, TURN ON THE SHOWER— THEY NEED BATHS.
WHAT'RE THE DETAILS, DICK?
JOJO NIDLE, WHOSE BODY IS ON ITS WAY TO THE MORGUE, HAD IMPRISONED JUNIOR AND BRIGHTON IN A TANK CAR.
TELL THE CHIEF ALL ABOUT IT, KID.
JOJO THOUGHT WE WOULD SMOTHER FROM THE GASOLINE FUMES —BUT THE TANK CAR DIDN'T HAVE GAS IN IT.
INSTEAD, IT HAD JUST BEEN EMPTIED OF A CARGO OF SORGHUM MOLASSES. THERE WAS ABOUT A FOOT OF MOLASSES STILL IN THE CAR.
YOU MEAN YOU LITTLE SQUIRTS LOCKED HORNS WITH A PROFESSIONAL ROBBER AND GOT TOSSED INTO A TANK CAR?
RIGHT.
HERE'S TWO GLASSES OF WARM MILK. GET THEM INTO YOUR STOMACHS AS SOON AS YOU'RE OUT OF THE SHOWER.
MR. TRACY— THERE'S A LADY IN THE FRONT OFFICE TO SEE YOU.
A LADY??
YES, SHE'S WAITING RIGHT IN THERE.
HELLO. DO YOU WISH TO SEE ME?
I DO. LISTEN CLOSELY—I HAVE ONLY A FEW SECONDS.
IN CLOSING A RECENT CASE AGAINST A RING OF FREIGHT CAR THIEVES, YOU ACCIDENTALLY CAME ACROSS A TANK CAR THAT HAD BEEN FILLED WITH MOLASSES.
YES—TWO RUNAWAY YOUNGSTERS HAD BEEN TOSSED INTO THAT CAR —BUT NO HARM WAS DONE.
DIDN'T IT STRIKE YOU RATHER ODD THAT MOLASSES SHOULD BE SHIPPED IN BULK BY TANK-CAR?
WHO ARE YOU? WHAT DOES THIS TIE UP TO?
IT DOESN'T TIE UP! I'M JUST GIVING YOU THE BIGGEST TIP OF YOUR CAREER! INVESTIGATE THE CONSIGNEE OF THAT TANK CAR OF MOLASSES. YOU'LL BLOW THE LID OFF THE BIGGEST RACKET YOU EVER DREAMED OF. GOODBYE NOW.

TINY TIM by —STANLEY LINK—
CAPTAIN SPARR- MARGIE IS MISSING - SHE'S NOWHERE AROUND-
WHAT!
COME ON, BOYS! WE MUST SEARCH FOR HER-
GOSH - I HOPE NOTHING HAS HAPPENED TO HER-
HEY, FELLERS- HERE'S THE PAIL- SHE MUST'VE GONE FOR WATER-MARGIE!
MEANWHILE
LET ME DOWN! LET ME DOWN!
GO AWAY! PLEASE GO AWAY!
HE'S GONE- NOW IF I COULD ONLY GET DOWN OUT OF THIS TREE- BUT I'LL NEVER BE ABLE TO FIND MY WAY BACK TO CAMP-
BOO! HOO! WHAT'LL I DO? HOW WILL I EVER GET BACK TO TIM AND BOB AGAIN?
WHY- HE'S BACK! AND I HONESTLY BELIEVE HE WANTS TO BE FRIENDLY- HE'S OFFERING ME A BANANA!
SO YOU WERE THE ONE WHO SAVED ME FROM THAT HORRIBLE SNAKE- HOW CAN I EVER THANK YOU?
EEK!
LATER- THE SEARCH FOR LITTLE MARGIE STILL GOES ON-NO SIGN OF HER HERE, CAPTAIN!
WHAT COULD HAVE HAPPENED TO HER?
AW! THAT'S WHAT WE GET FOR TAKING A GIRL WITH US- I TOLD YOU SHE WOULD CAUSE US A LOT OF TROUBLE-

WELL, WATCH TH' ROAD. I AIN'T IN ANY HURRY TO GET THERE - WATCH OUT!
CRASH!
NOW DON'T GO HOLLERING AT ME! IT ALL HAPPENED SO QUICK I DIDN'T KNOW WHAT TO DO.
YOU ALWAYS DO WHEN I'M DRIVING, DEARIE-
WELL, I FIGURE YOU JUST DID ABOUT FIVE DOLLARS DAMAGE ON THAT FENDER, FATTY.
DID YOU HEAR WHAT HE CALLED ME, WILLIE?
NO.
HE CALLED ME FATTY. ARE YOU GOING TO STAND THERE AND LET THAT IGNORANT THING INSULT YOUR WIFE, WILLIAM?
NO - HOLD MY COAT, I CAN'T AFFORD TO BE BUYING A NEW ONE.
WHAT?
I SAY, SIR, THIS IS NO PLACE TO BANDY WORDS. LET US STEP OVER BEHIND THAT FENCE AND SETTLE OUR DIFFERENCES.
OKAY, BUDDIE, BUT I GOTTA ADMIT YOU GOT MORE NERVE'N SENSE
NOW, LISTEN, PAL, NO USE OF US HAVING ANY I'LL FEELINGS. HOW MUCH DID YOU SAY IT'D COST TO FIX YOUR FENDER?
TEN BUCKS!
I HEARD YOU THE FIRST TIME - HOWEVER I AIN'T ONE TO QUIBBLE OVER A FEW DOLLARS.
I GUESS THE GUY DIDN'T KNOW WHO I WAS. HE APOLOGIZED PROFUSELY.
WELL, HURRY UP AND FIX OUR FLAT TIRE - I WANTA GO HOME.
FLAT TIRE? HUMM SAY THAT RUNS INTO WORK.
WELL, SO LONG, FATTY!
YOU HEARD THAT, WILLYAM. YOU GO WHIP THAT WHELP OR I'LL WHIP YOU.
HEY HALT!

Procter & Gamble Announces

A Revolutionary New Advance in "No-Scrub" Laundry Soap...

The New HIGH-TEST OXYDOL

GETS CLOTHES UP TO 15% WHITER

IT'S TRUE! HIGH-TEST OXYDOL WASHES CLOTHES FAR WHITER THAN THOSE OLD FASHIONED SOAPS I'VE BEEN USING!

Now expect new things! For new High-Test OXYDOL marks the dawn of a new era of easier washdays—of WHITER, brighter clothes!

Developed and perfected by Procter & Gamble to revolutionize washday performance, High-Test Oxydol contains an amazing new ingredient that soap chemists have been working on for years. A new ingredient that increases its white-washing powers to a truly astonishing degree.

Scientific tests proved that High-Test Oxydol washed white clothes shades whiter—actually as much as 15% whiter than old-fashioned bar and package soaps tested. Yet you'll find it safe as can be for washable colors—safety itself for washable fabrics—safe for hands.

For whiter, brighter washes than you ever dreamed possible with less modern soaps, get a package of High-Test OXYDOL today! You'll be glad you did!

IT GOES FARTHER, TOO

HIGH-TEST OXYDOL = OLD-STYLE PACKAGE SOAP

• A single cup of High-Test OXYDOL goes up to one-fourth again as far, does up to 25% more work—than the same amount of old-style package soaps . . . Remember this when buying. Save time, save clothes, save MONEY —with High-Test OXYDOL!

Remarkable New Ingredient Now Added to America's Most Improved Laundry Soap Enables It to Do These Amazing Things in Scientific Tests Against Old-Fashioned Bar and Package Soaps:—

1— GIVES WHITEST WASHES EVER up to 15% whiter by scientific Tintometer tests

2— MAKES UP TO TWICE THE SUDS that stand up 2 to 3 times longer, even in hard water

3— COLORS STAY TRULY BRIGHT in hard or soft water, wash after wash

SOAP'S GREATEST ADVANCE
in whiter washing with safety

NOW comes a sensational new advance in soap-making to prove again that "the wonders of science never cease." When first you try it, we believe you will change all the previous ideas you ever had about washdays. About whiter-washing soaps and whiter clothes.

For High-Test OXYDOL actually washes clothes up to 15% whiter, as proved by scientific Tintometer tests. Not only far whiter than old Oxydol—but as much as 15% whiter than old-fashioned bar and package soaps.

In addition, you'll find that High-Test Oxydol makes up to twice the suds, cup for cup, that you get from less efficient soaps. Richer, livelier suds that stand up 2 to 3 times longer.

Saves Time—Saves Clothes

High-Test Oxydol is extremely rapid in action—soaks dirt loose SAFELY, without scrubbing or boiling, in as little as 10 minutes! Thus ends those hours of tedious rubbing with old-fashioned soaps that shortens the life of your clothes.

This is important. Because scientific research demonstrates that clothes washed the scrubless Oxydol way "stand up" much longer. Actually last 2 to 3 times longer from the standpoint of "washday wear-and-tear," compared to clothes washed by old-fashioned methods.

Colors Stay Fresh—Bright

But these things alone were not enough—women demanded utmost color safety, too. And this amazing High-Test Oxydol has passed every test for safety to washable colors. For instance—crisp, colored prints washed 175 consecutive times showed no perceptible sign of fading. Thus, wash after wash, you will find colored things stay fresh and bright . . . in hard water, even.

High-Test Oxydol is now on sale at all dealers in the familiar orange and blue bull's-eye package. (No change in the box—the difference is in the soap.)

For whiter, brighter washes than you ever dreamed possible with less modern soaps—try new High-Test OXYDOL without delay. We guarantee that you'll be thrilled as you've never been thrilled with any soap before! Procter & Gamble.

MORE SUDS MEANS BETTER DISHWASHING, TOO

CLOTHES LAST LONGER

CLOTHES LAST 2 TO 3 TIMES LONGER —THERE'S SO MUCH LESS WEAR AND TEAR!

OXYDOL soaks dirt loose in as little as 10 minutes. Thus ends the washboard scrubbing that shortens the life of your clothes.

The picture on the left shows a brand-new sheet (highly magnified) washed 84 times with old-fashioned soap. Note fraying in weave, due to "harsh action" and scrubbing. On the right, a similar sheet washed 84 times the scrubless OXYDOL way. Note the perfect alignment of the threads.. the utter freedom from the wear and tear of old-style washing methods.

COLORS STAY FRESH AND BRIGHT

WASH AFTER WASH, COLORS STAY SO CRISP AND BRIGHT YOU'LL BE AMAZED!

ORIGINAL COLOR SWATCH

TEST SWATCH AFTER 175 OXYDOL WASHINGS

High-Test OXYDOL is amazingly safe for washable colors. Even in hard water, you will find colored things stay fresh and bright, wash after wash.

No perceptible color fading after 175 consecutive washings. Just think of it!—No perceptible sign of fading after more than three years' normal washing. Try it and see for yourself.

Trade Mark Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

YOUR DEALER NOW HAS THE NEW HIGH-TEST OXYDOL. THE SAME ORANGE AND BLUE BULL'S-EYE PACKAGE — THE ONLY CHANGE IS IN THE SOAP!

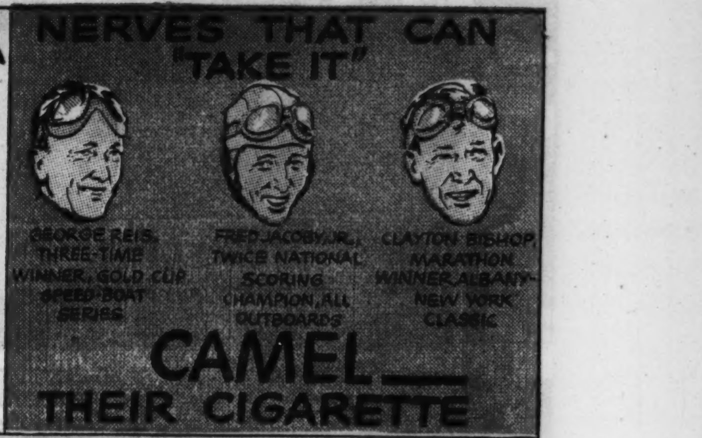
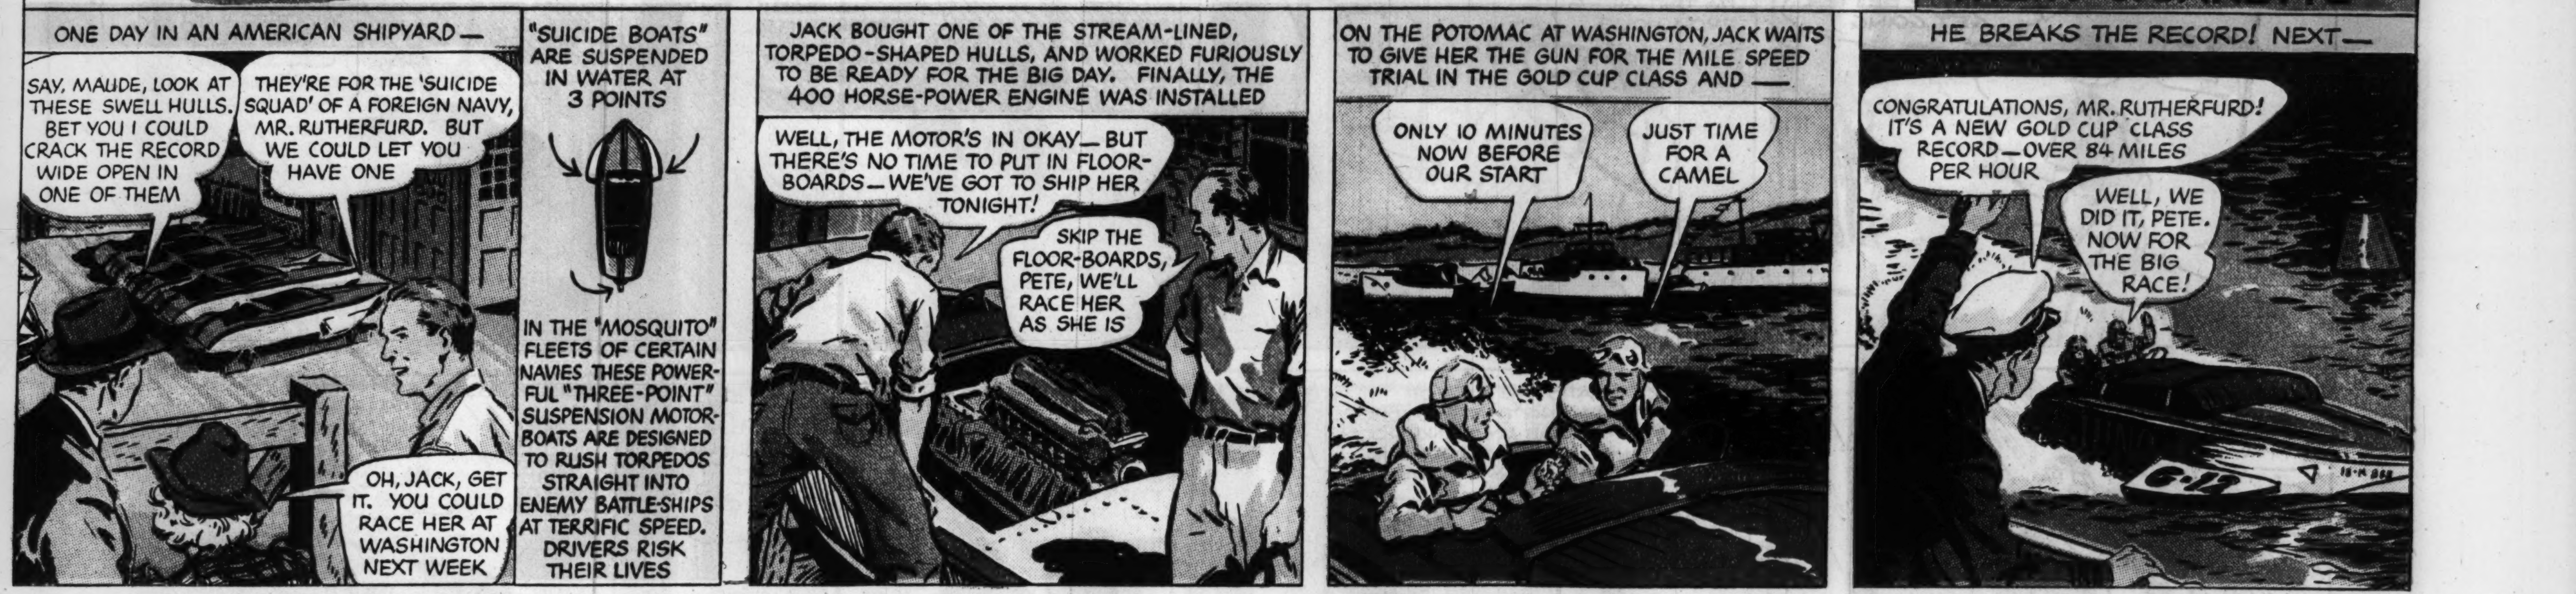
The RUTHERFURDS ROCKET to NEW RECORDS

FAMOUS MOTOR-BOAT DRIVERS SET MARINE SPEED MARKS WITH DANGER RIDING IN THE COCKPIT!



NERVES THAT CAN "TAKE IT"
GEORGE REIS, THREE-TIME WINNER, GOLD CUP SPEED-BOAT SERIES
FRED JACOBY, JR., TWICE NATIONAL SCORING CHAMPION, ALL OUTBOARDS
CLAYTON BISHOP, MARATHON WINNER ALBANY-NEW YORK CLASSIC
CAMEL — THEIR CIGARETTE



ONE DAY IN AN AMERICAN SHIPYARD —
SAY, MAUDE, LOOK AT THESE SWELL HULLS. BET YOU I COULD CRACK THE RECORD WIDE OPEN IN ONE OF THEM
THEY'RE FOR THE 'SUICIDE SQUAD' OF A FOREIGN NAVY, MR. RUTHERFURD. BUT WE COULD LET YOU HAVE ONE
OH, JACK, GET IT. YOU COULD RACE HER AT WASHINGTON NEXT WEEK
"SUICIDE BOATS" ARE SUSPENDED IN WATER AT 3 POINTS
IN THE "MOSQUITO" FLEETS OF CERTAIN NAVIES THESE POWERFUL "THREE-POINT" SUSPENSION MOTOR-BOATS ARE DESIGNED TO RUSH TORPEDOS STRAIGHT INTO ENEMY BATTLE-SHIPS AT TERRIFIC SPEED. DRIVERS RISK THEIR LIVES
JACK BOUGHT ONE OF THE STREAM-LINED, TORPEDO-SHAPED HULLS, AND WORKED FURIOUSLY TO BE READY FOR THE BIG DAY. FINALLY, THE 400 HORSE-POWER ENGINE WAS INSTALLED
WELL, THE MOTOR'S IN OKAY — BUT THERE'S NO TIME TO PUT IN FLOOR-BOARDS — WE'VE GOT TO SHIP HER TONIGHT!
SKIP THE FLOOR-BOARDS, PETE, WE'LL RACE HER AS SHE IS ON THE POTOMAC AT WASHINGTON, JACK WAITS TO GIVE HER THE GUN FOR THE MILE SPEED TRIAL IN THE GOLD CUP CLASS AND — ONLY 10 MINUTES NOW BEFORE OUR START
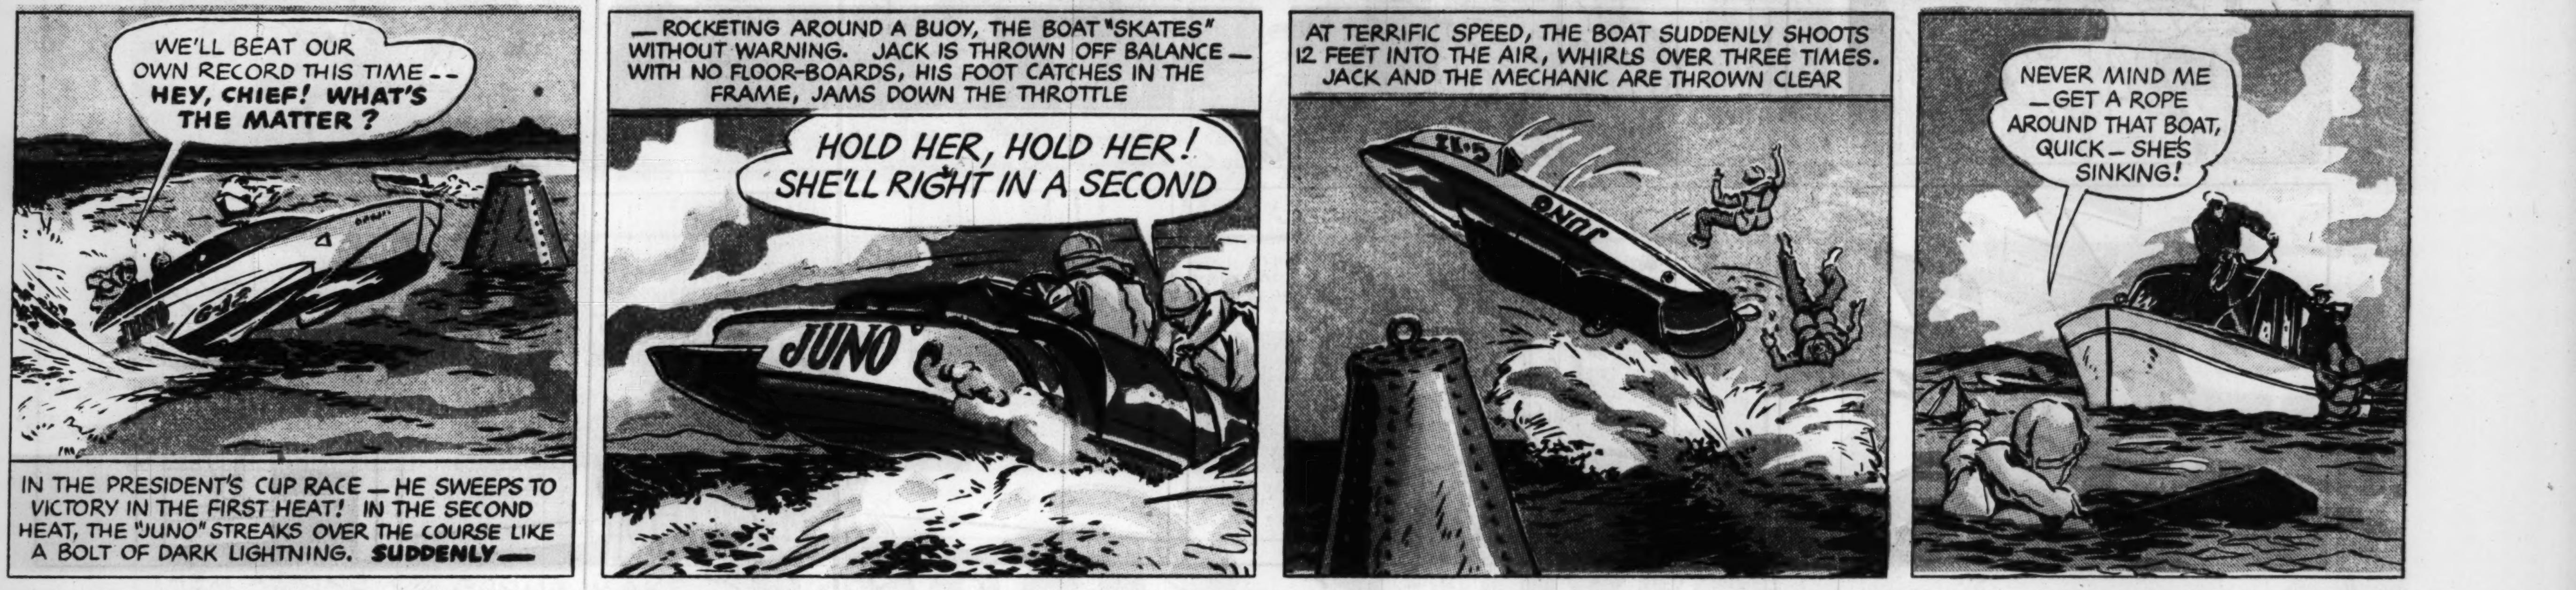
JUST TIME FOR A CAMEL
HE BREAKS THE RECORD! NEXT —
CONGRATULATIONS, MR. RUTHERFURD! IT'S A NEW GOLD CUP CLASS RECORD — OVER 84 MILES PER HOUR
WELL, WE DID IT, PETE. NOW FOR THE BIG RACE!
G-12



WE'LL BEAT OUR OWN RECORD THIS TIME -- HEY, CHIEF! WHAT'S THE MATTER?
JUNO
G-12
IN THE PRESIDENT'S CUP RACE — HE SWEEPS TO VICTORY IN THE FIRST HEAT! IN THE SECOND HEAT, THE "JUNO" STREAKS OVER THE COURSE LIKE A BOLT OF DARK LIGHTNING. SUDDENLY —
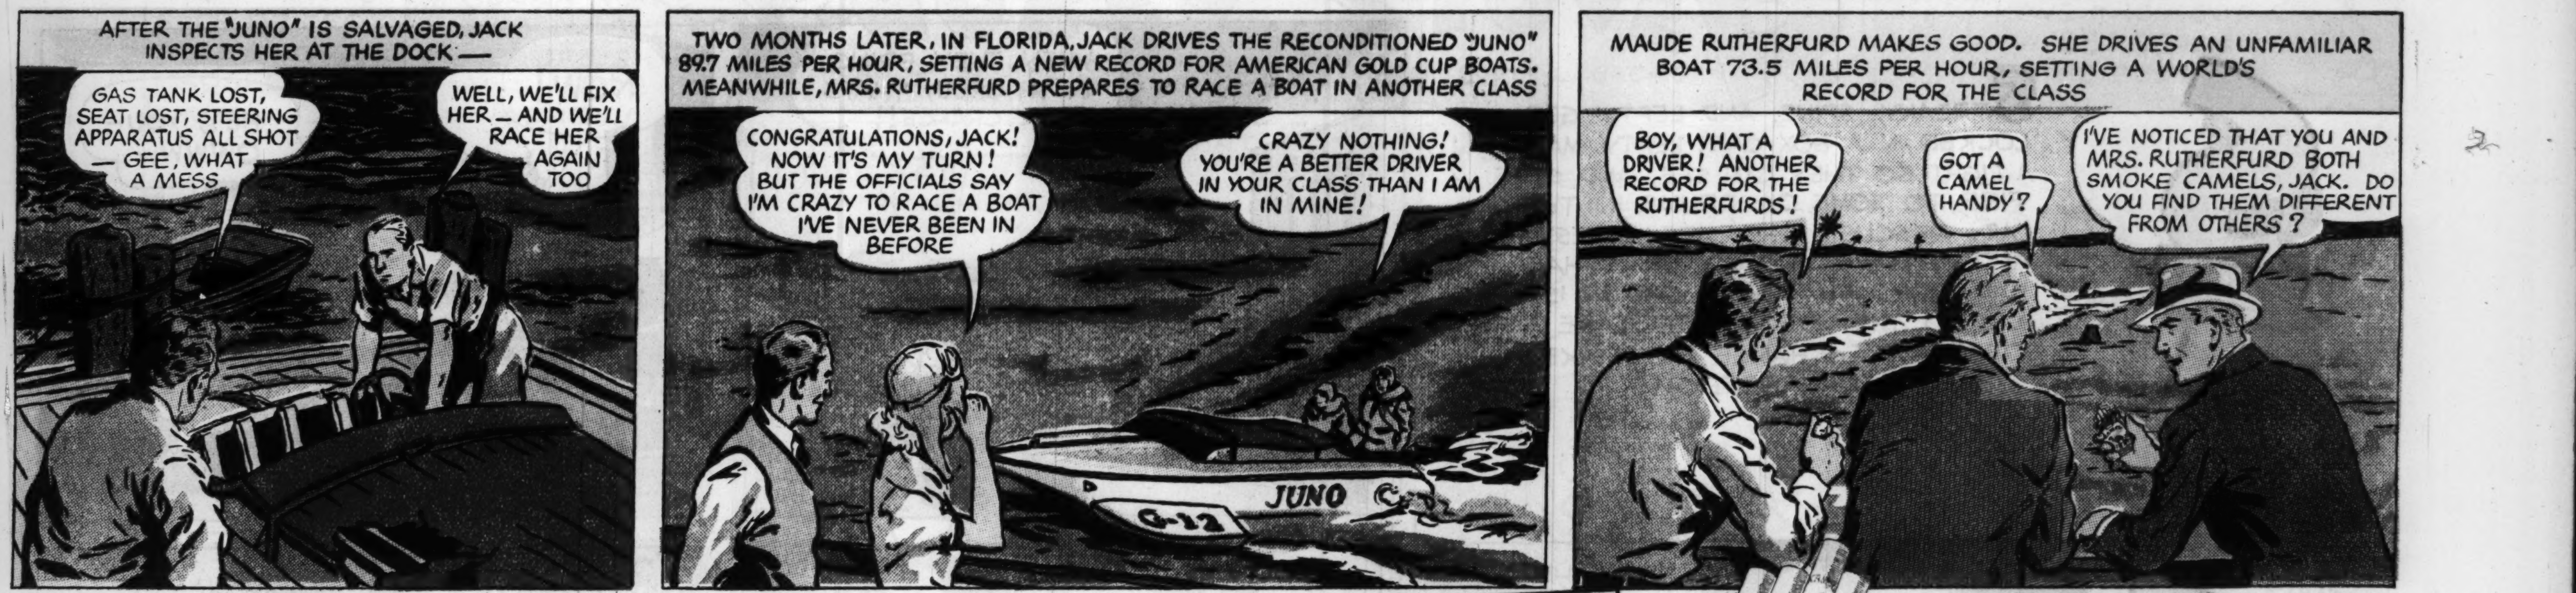
HOLD HER, HOLD HER! SHE'LL RIGHT IN A SECOND
JUNO
AT TERRIFIC SPEED, THE BOAT SUDDENLY SHOOTS 12 FEET INTO THE AIR, WHIRLS OVER THREE TIMES. JACK AND THE MECHANIC ARE THROWN CLEAR
JUNO
NEVER MIND ME — GET A ROPE AROUND THAT BOAT, QUICK — SHE'S SINKING!



AFTER THE "JUNO" IS SALVAGED, JACK INSPECTS HER AT THE DOCK — GAS TANK LOST, SEAT LOST, STEERING APPARATUS ALL SHOT — GEE, WHAT A MESS
WELL, WE'LL FIX HER — AND WE'LL RACE HER AGAIN TOO
TWO MONTHS LATER, IN FLORIDA, JACK DRIVES THE RECONDITIONED "JUNO" 89.7 MILES PER HOUR, SETTING A NEW RECORD FOR AMERICAN GOLD CUP BOATS. MEANWHILE, MRS. RUTHERFURD PREPARES TO RACE A BOAT IN ANOTHER CLASS
CONGRATULATIONS, JACK! NOW IT'S MY TURN! BUT THE OFFICIALS SAY I'M CRAZY TO RACE A BOAT I'VE NEVER BEEN IN BEFORE CRAZY NOTHING! YOU'RE A BETTER DRIVER IN YOUR CLASS THAN I AM IN MINE!
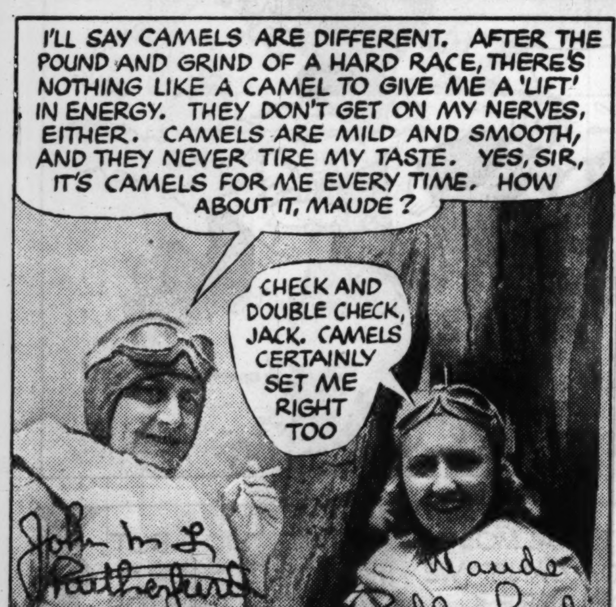
JUNO
G-12
MAUDE RUTHERFURD MAKES GOOD. SHE DRIVES AN UNFAMILIAR BOAT 73.5 MILES PER HOUR, SETTING A WORLD'S RECORD FOR THE CLASS
BOY, WHAT A DRIVER! ANOTHER RECORD FOR THE RUTHERFURDS!
GOT A CAMEL HANDY?
I'VE NOTICED THAT YOU AND MRS. RUTHERFURD BOTH SMOKE CAMELS, JACK. DO YOU FIND THEM DIFFERENT FROM OTHERS?



I'LL SAY CAMELS ARE DIFFERENT. AFTER THE POUND AND GRIND OF A HARD RACE, THERE'S NOTHING LIKE A CAMEL TO GIVE ME A 'LIFT' IN ENERGY. THEY DON'T GET ON MY NERVES, EITHER. CAMELS ARE MILD AND SMOOTH, AND THEY NEVER TIRE MY TASTE. YES, SIR, IT'S CAMELS FOR ME EVERY TIME. HOW ABOUT IT, MAUDE?
CHECK AND DOUBLE CHECK, JACK. CAMELS CERTAINLY SET ME RIGHT TOO
John M. L. Rutherfurd
Maude Rutherfurd

WHAT CIGARETTE IS PREFERRED BY THE PLANTERS WHO GROW AND GRADE TOBACCO?

"The Camel people bought the best of my last crop," says T. N. Williams, tobacco planter. "They paid the highest prices too. More expensive tobaccos go to the Camel people all right. I prefer Camels, the same as most tobacco planters do!"

"I know the difference between tobaccos that go into various cigarettes," states planter Joe R. Galloway "Year in, year out, my extra-fine grades go to Camel, including the best of my last crop. Camel is my smoke — most other growers' too!"

You have to know tobacco to raise the choice grades Joe Brewer grows every crop. He says: "Again last year my best lots went to Camel. I smoke Camels too. So do most planters I know. They know the finer tobaccos that Camel buys."

WHAT'S THE CONTRACT CALL FOR? HOW LOW WILL I HAVE TO BID?
HERE'S THEIR LETTER GIVING ALL DETAILS---AND HERE I'VE JOTTED DOWN SOME FIGURES---YOU BID THIS AMOUNT TOMORROW AND YOU WILL GET THE JOB-
GREAT! WONDERFUL! IT'LL RUIN JACK SURE-AH, MY BOY, I KNEW YOU'D COME THROUGH-
WHY, YOU DIRTY R------
SH-H-H! QUIET, ANNIE-WAIT TILL GUDGE GETS FARTHER AWAY-
ULP!
OH, IT'S YOU, SHANGHAI--AND ANNIE!
I DIDN'T KNOW YOU WERE LISTENIN', TOO-BUT YOU, TOO, HEARD HIM--- HE'S SOLD OUT TO GUDGE-HE'S DOUBLE-CROSSED JACK---HE'S--- EASY, ANNIE-YOU DON'T UNDERSTAND---HM-M-M---AND I'M NOT SO SURE I DO, ENTIRELY-
I FIGURED YOU WERE GIVING GUDGE PHONEY INFORMATION-BUT TO TIP HIM OFF SO HE CAN UNDERBID JACK--LET'S GET THIS STRAIGHT RIGHT NOW, ACE-
SURE-JACK ISN'T BIDDING ON THAT JOB, AND I DIDN'T SAY HE WAS-HE DOESN'T WANT IT-
WHAT? HM-M-M--I DON'T UNDERSTAND-EXPLAIN FULLY-TREMENDOUS TRANSFER CO. IS A GYP OUTFIT-GUDGE WILL GET THE JOB, TIE UP ALL HIS TRUCKS AND MEN FOR 30-60 DAYS BEFORE HE FINDS OUT HE CAN'T COLLECT-HE'LL BE RUINED-NOT JACK-SEE?
HM-M-M--YES-I BEGIN TO SEE-DOES JACK SUSPECT ANY OF THIS?
NATURALLY NOT, AND HE MUST NOT-HE'S HONEST AND STRAIGHT-HE'D TRY TO STOP ME AND I'LL NOT BE STOPPED! BY ANYBODY!

IS MISTER HOIMAN WILFRED HANEY HERE?
WHO?
WOT'S THE GAG, WHEEZER—ARE YOU TRYING TO BE FUNNY?
WHY, NO, BUCK—THE PHONE OPERATOR ASKED—
OKAY, THEN—SHE ASKED FOR HERMAN WILFRED HANEY—SHE SAID CALIFORNIA WAS CALLIN'—!!
I'M NOT ANSWERIN' ANY PHONES!
—AND FURTHERMORE—YOU CAN FORGET THAT HERMAN WILFRED DEPARTMENT. I DIDN'T ASK FOR THAT HANDLE!
HEY! JUSTA MINUTE—HERMAN WILFRED!
WHO DO YOU THINK YOU ARE? WHY DIDN'T YOU ANSWER THAT PHONE—THAT WAS JUDY WHO CALLED.
SHE SPENDS TWENTY-SIX BUCKS TO FIND OUT HOW YOUR HAND IS—AN' YOU AIN'T COURTEOUS ENOUGH TO ANSWER HER CALL—JUSTA GENTLEMAN!
I SPOKE TO HER—SHE SAID IF YOU FEEL THAT WAY ABOUT THINGS—SHE'D BETTER FORGET YOU'D EVER MET. SHE ASKED ME IF SHE SHOULD RETURN YOUR RING—AND I SAID——........
HAW-HAW! MY LITTLE PLAN WORKED—I SENT HER A WIRE; SAID I WAS BADLY HURT—SIGNED YOUR NAME TO IT. NOW I CAN TAKE OFF THE BANDAGES!
O'YEAH!
A WISE GUY, EH? WELL, I SAID TO HER—IF I WUZ IN HER PLACE, AND YOU WANTED TO ACT SO CHILDISH—I'D KEEP THE RING. LAUGH THAT OFF!!

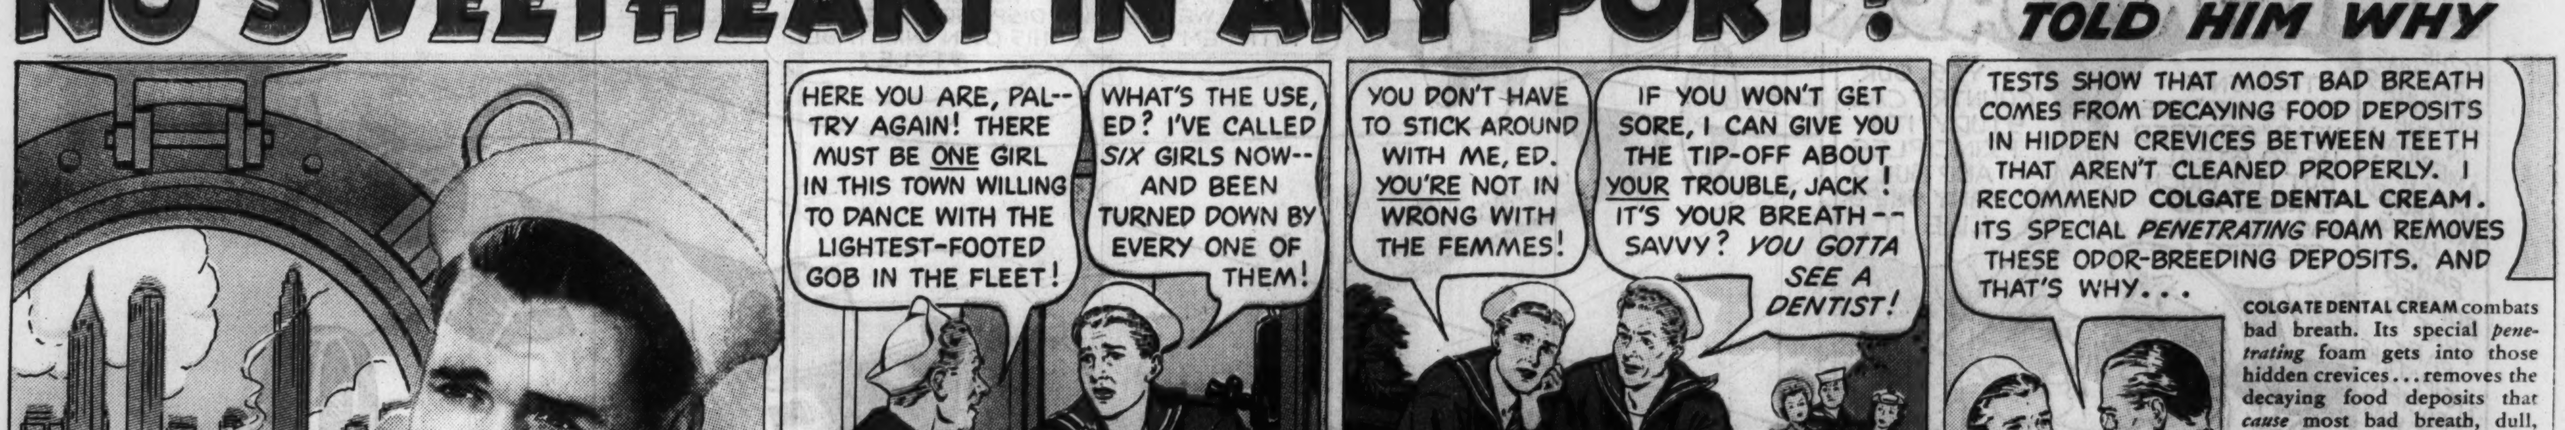
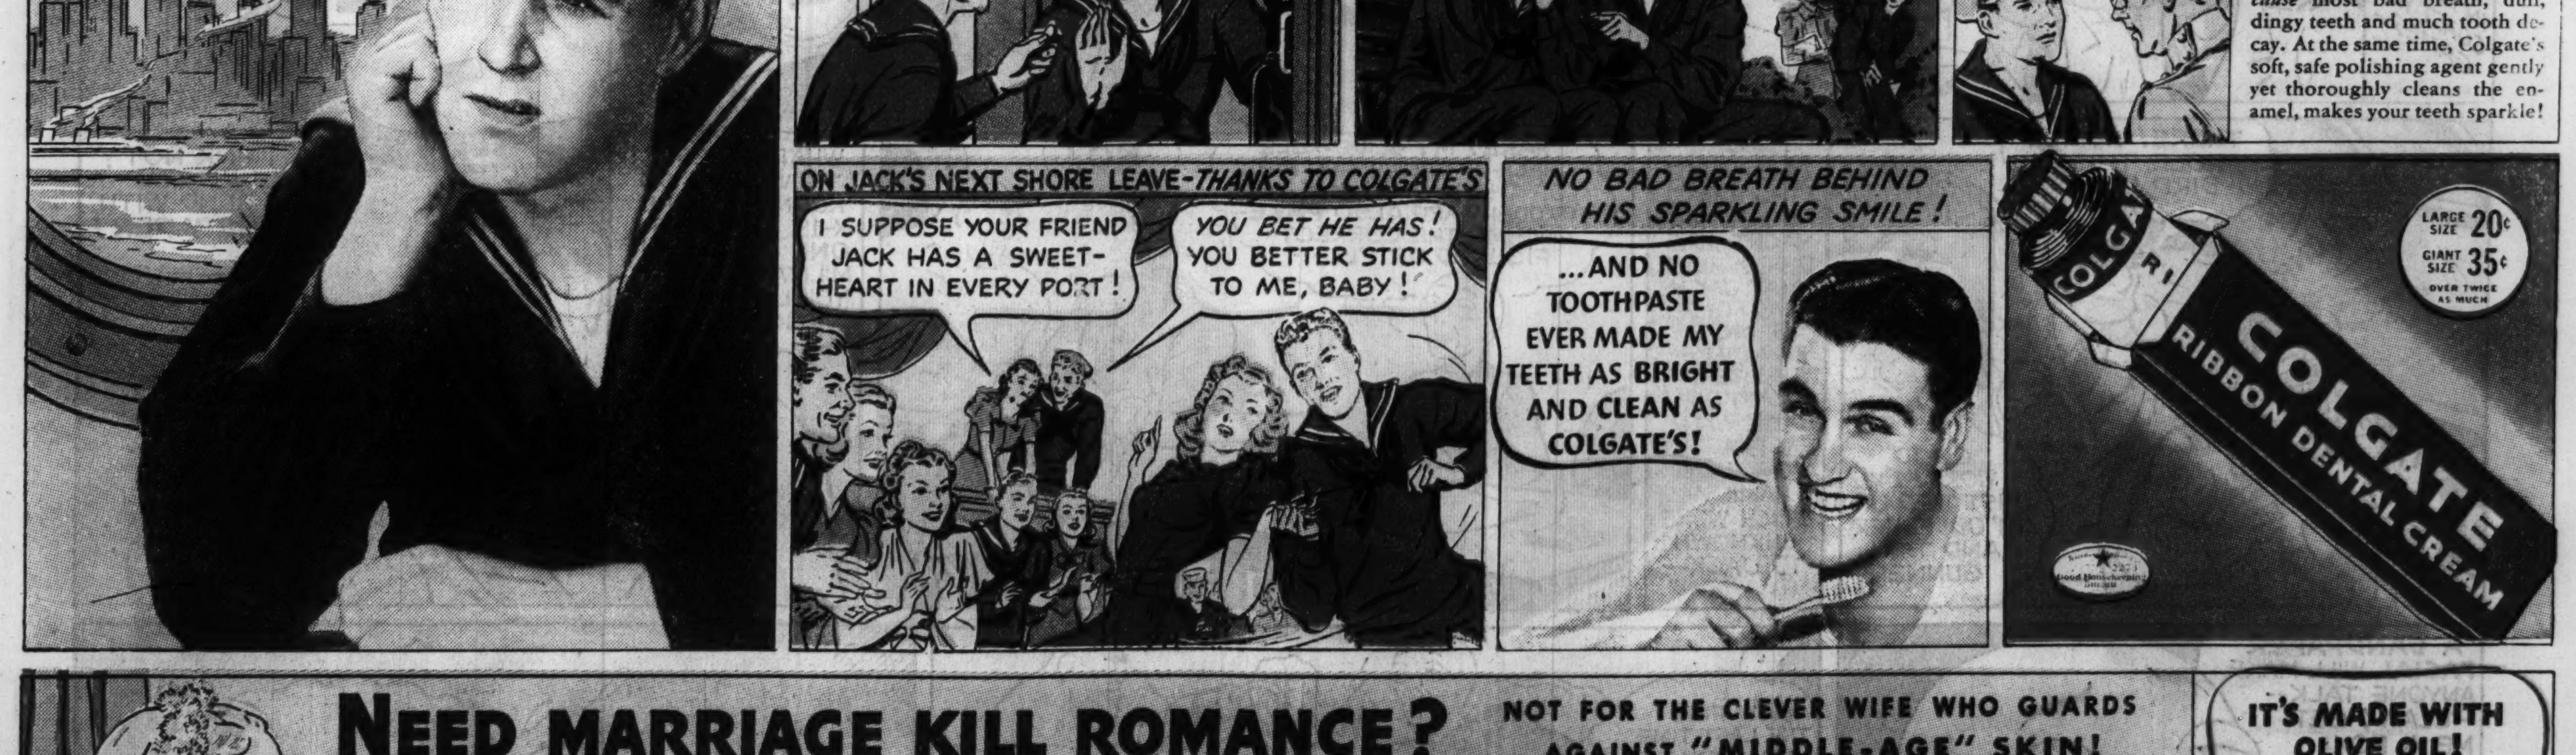
NO SWEETHEART IN ANY PORT! — UNTIL A DENTIST TOLD HIM WHY



HERE YOU ARE, PAL -- TRY AGAIN! THERE MUST BE ONE GIRL IN THIS TOWN WILLING TO DANCE WITH THE LIGHTEST-FOOTED GOB IN THE FLEET!
WHAT'S THE USE, ED? I'VE CALLED SIX GIRLS NOW -- AND BEEN TURNED DOWN BY EVERY ONE OF THEM!
YOU DON'T HAVE TO STICK AROUND WITH ME, ED. YOU'RE NOT IN WRONG WITH THE FEMMES!
IF YOU WON'T GET SORE, I CAN GIVE YOU THE TIP-OFF ABOUT YOUR TROUBLE, JACK! IT'S YOUR BREATH -- SAVVY? YOU GOTTA SEE A DENTIST!
TESTS SHOW THAT MOST BAD BREATH COMES FROM DECAYING FOOD DEPOSITS IN HIDDEN CREVICES BETWEEN TEETH THAT AREN'T CLEANED PROPERLY. I RECOMMEND COLGATE DENTAL CREAM. ITS SPECIAL PENETRATING FOAM REMOVES THESE ODOR-BREEDING DEPOSITS. AND THAT'S WHY...
ON JACK'S NEXT SHORE LEAVE – THANKS TO COLGATE'S
I SUPPOSE YOUR FRIEND JACK HAS A SWEETHEART IN EVERY PORT!
YOU BET HE HAS! YOU BETTER STICK TO ME, BABY!
NO BAD BREATH BEHIND HIS SPARKLING SMILE!
...AND NO TOOTHPASTE EVER MADE MY TEETH AS BRIGHT AND CLEAN AS COLGATE'S!
LARGE SIZE 20¢ GIANT SIZE 35¢ OVER TWICE AS MUCH
COLGATE RIBBON DENTAL CREAM

COLGATE DENTAL CREAM combats bad breath. Its special penetrating foam gets into those hidden crevices... removes the decaying food deposits that cause most bad breath, dull, dingy teeth and much tooth decay. At the same time, Colgate's soft, safe polishing agent gently yet thoroughly cleans the enamel, makes your teeth sparkle!

NEED MARRIAGE KILL ROMANCE? NOT FOR THE CLEVER WIFE WHO GUARDS AGAINST "MIDDLE-AGE" SKIN!



LOOK AT HAPPY MARY MOORE
HELLO, JANE! CAN I GIVE YOU A LIFT? I'M ON MY WAY TO PHIL'S OFFICE. HE'S TAKING ME TO LUNCH!
IMAGINE! MARRIED FIVE YEARS, AND YOUR HUSBAND STILL TAKES YOU TO LUNCH! THAT'S WHAT COMES OF BEING BLESSED WITH A "SCHOOLGIRL COMPLEXION"!
I'M PRETTY DISCOURAGED ABOUT MY COMPLEXION! IT'S GROWN SO DRY, LIFELESS, COARSE-LOOKING, REGULAR "MIDDLE-AGE" SKIN!
MAYBE YOU'RE USING THE WRONG SOAP, JANE! WHY DON'T YOU TRY PALMOLIVE? I NEVER USE ANYTHING ELSE
BECAUSE PALMOLIVE IS MADE WITH OLIVE AND PALM OILS, NATURE'S FINEST BEAUTY AIDS! THAT'S WHY IT'S SO GOOD FOR DRY, LIFELESS SKIN. ITS GENTLE, DIFFERENT LATHER CLEANSES SO THOROUGHLY, SOFTENS AND REFINES SKIN TEXTURE... LEAVES COMPLEXIONS RADIANT!
4 WEEKS LATER – JANE IS HAPPY, TOO!
WHY, JANE! HOW MARVELOUS YOU LOOK! YOUR COMPLEXION'S SIMPLY RADIANT!
I OWE IT ALL TO YOU, MARY DARLING! TOOK YOUR ADVICE AND CHANGED TO PALMOLIVE ...AND GOT RID OF THAT "MIDDLE-AGE" SKIN!
IT'S MADE WITH OLIVE OIL! THAT'S WHY PALMOLIVE IS SO GOOD FOR KEEPING SKIN SOFT, SMOOTH, YOUNG!

THIS BEAUTIFUL BOOK "JUST OFF THE PRESS!

The Newer Knowledge of CANARIES

History Of The Canary—Types Of Canaries, Breeding For Pleasure and Profit, Canaries For Companionship, Canaries As A Hobby

DO YOU KNOW••

••That in an Aviary located in the heart of one of the world's most famous canary-raising centers, experts constantly study the growth, habits and feeding of canaries? That their discoveries, by actual tests with generations of canaries, have resulted in a newer knowledge of canary care and treatment? It's a fact! It was these experts who first discovered the health importance of yeast in the canary's daily diet. This discovery, which changed the feeding routine of millions of canaries, is described in this new Canary Book—just off the press.

••That breeding canaries is not only a fascinating hobby which is becoming more widespread every day, but also that it is a source of profit? That you can breed canaries at home—at little expense—either for sale or for the family's enjoyment? You can—and this authentic Canary Book tells you how and when to mate canaries; how to make breeding cages and nests; what type of birds to select; their care and feeding; what to do when the first egg is laid and after the hatching; where to place the breeding cage and a host of other expert breeding suggestions.

••That canaries bring joy and sunshine into millions of homes; that canaries are important factors in child training; a source of happy companionship in the schoolroom, in hospitals and sick rooms; in homes where folks are lonely and where there are shut-ins? Learn about the joys of canary ownership and canaries as holiday and anniversary gifts, from this fascinating Canary Book.

••And not only that! This attractive volume tells you how to select a canary; how to care for canaries—their food, how to raise them and how to keep them healthy and in song. In fact, it is the last word on the newer knowledge of canaries—a book that should find a place in every home, regardless of whether you now own a canary.

12 pages in natural colors, featuring various types of canaries. Many other illustrations. Informative. Educational. Ideal for schoolroom, library and home.

FREE to users of French's Bird Seed and Biscuit or French's Bird Gravel.*

There is gladness in the living, loving, happy companionship of a canary in the home. Its joyous song helps to brighten lonely hours. A Canary helps to build character in children. It teaches kindness. Its care gives children a feeling of responsibility. Interest in Nature is encouraged. Imagination is developed. Children acquire a protective instinct that overcomes their tendency to mischievous cruelty, fostered by ignorance.

Tricks in All Trades.

You've often seen those shops that sell all sorts of trick gadgets, many of them made in foreign lands. Well, this fellow made his living importing such things. Individually they cost little but paying for big shipments requires ready cash. Collections had been so poor that he was faced with the necessity of refusing a shipment and ruining his credit abroad. Then his wife thought of her fine rings. We loaned money enough to save the situation. The one ring that is left is a beautiful 1.60 Ct. Blue-White Wesselton diamond of extraordinary brilliancy, set in a lady's all platinum exquisitely designed ring with 12 large diamonds and we will sell it for only..........$210

Gone with the Wind.

This salesman had bought a car on time payments. The last note was known as a "balloon" and carried a larger amount than the others. Getting the extra money together was not easy since sales were off in his line, but he made the grade. When he stepped up to the cashier's window, however, he reached for his wallet—and it was gone. Either it had been lost or stolen. Sick at heart he returned home with the bad news. To cheer him up his mother suggested getting a loan on some of her jewelry. Fortunately, she had plenty—perhaps more than she needed, for some of it was not redeemed. That's why you can secure this gorgeous all platinum diamond studded flexible bracelet, with 40 Blue-White matched brilliant diamonds and 80 Blue Sapphires at a price far below what we consider to be its actual value. As BURNHAM'S
Trained Others
Now Making
$50 a Week in Beauty Culture

—Burnham's Will Train You.

There's money — BIG MONEY — in Beauty Culture if you're trained right and are started right. For instance, within a hundred yards of Burnham's there's a graduate whom we trained in 1936 who now earns over $50.00 a week regularly. And we can name you many others doing as well.

To Make the Most Money Out of Beauty Culture.

—You should get into a smart shop where the established operators frequently make $50.00 a week and up. Burnham's is in a position to help you. For months we have been unable to supply demand for our graduates. With such a large number of shops to choose from, we place our graduates in the choicer spots. That means more money from the start, greater prestige, faster progress.

Investigate the Exclusive Advantages Causing More Students to Enroll AT BURNHAM'S Than Any Other.

You owe it to your future to learn about the Burnham methods of training—the result of 67 years of knowing how to teach. Of how you're trained under ACTUAL BEAUTY SHOP CONDITIONS on living models under supervision of experts. Of how you not only become a skilled all-around operator but also an artistic Hair Stylist. Of how you're drilled in the psychology of pleasing selling customers. The reputation of our graduates for always being superbly trained and always profitable for the shop is why Burnham trained operators are in such demand why we can place our graduates to such splendid advantage.

Only $5 Enrolls You

Complete Beauty Outfit Given If You Act Now.

Every future student who mails coupon below or who phones or visits school is eligible for splendid beauty kit without extra cost. Don't let lack of money hold you back. HELP WANTED—MEN.

Salesmen.

A Business of Your Own.

In Illinois and Indiana I have placed over 300 men in a business of their own, and am now ready to interview men for the South Side of Chicago and suburbs, where we have thousands of customers.

All office rent, girl hire, phone service, and even merchandise stock is financed by our company. You do not invest 1 cent.

Naturally, in a business as successful as ours, where many of the above men earned last week $25, $50, and as much as $75 in a single day in percentage alone there are certain requirements. You must be between the ages of 25 and 50, absolutely honest and reliable, a hard worker, and teachable.

I will grant you a personal interview at 1:30 p. m. Monday, after which I will tell you whether or not we will finance a business for you on our electrical devices. George Buckley, 4th floor, 841 E. 63d-street, or 12950 S. Western-av. [over Lyric theater].

SALESMEN.

When you offer a line of Sanitation Products such as we have to the buying public, you are offering products that the law and city ordinances compel them to use. There are more than 50 items in our line which of course gives you an opportunity of making every call a sale. To men who have sold such products this line should have a special appeal. We are also interested in other men who know and who can prove their ability as salesmen. Our unique method of placing these products on a trial basis reduces sales resistance to a minimum. Compensation commission basis.
Call at 538 So. Clark-st., Room 994, at 10 a. m., Monday. J. H. Boone.

SALESMAN.

Executive type, $5,000 a year caliber, accustomed to meeting major executives, to contact such men with a service covering the fields of economics, social science and political activities; protected territory; new and repeat business makes this a permanent connection; commission and bonus arrangement at start. See Mr. Conrad, Suite 1816, 58 E. Washington.

WE ARE BUILDING HOMES IN OUR Broadview development that cost less than rent. We want a married man, over 35, who is willing to learn, obey orders and work according to our sales plan on a small drawing acct. If you are such a man we'll go along with you to the limit and send you home every Saturday with money in your pocket. Apply by letter or in person, Monday 10-12. John Cummings Lindop, Inc., 212 S. Marion-st., Oak Park.

LIVE MEN.

SALARY AND COMMISSION.

Owing to increased business activity we are adding another sales unit to our organization creating an opportunity for 5 additional energetic, neat appearing men, between 30 and 50, to interview prospective R. E. purchasers. Names and addresses furnished. Apply 9 a. m. to noon, or 2 to 5 p. m., Suite 425.
ROBT. BARTLETT REALTY,

"BARGAINS
IN ONE RM. APARTMENTS!"

Newlyweds made this statement in the Bryn Mawr the other day:

"Before our marriage we came to the conclusion that we would have a much greater chance to find true happiness in a 1 rm. apartment in a clean, well-managed building in a good district than if we took a 3 room apartment in a mediocre building in a less desirable neighborhood.

"With that thought in mind we started on the near north side and worked on out to Evanston. At the Bryn Mawr we found a bargain in a 1 rm. apartment—what we believe is the most for our money. As we sat in the apartment that has now become our first home, these features 'trotted out' one by one. The size of the living room [some 22 ft. long], the separate kitchens, the extra large closets, the newness and cleanliness of the carpet, the colorful furnishings and decorating, and the high type of people we saw in the lobby."

If your budget calls for a 1 rm. furnished apartment between $50 and $60 a month, come and see ours—compare them with others you have seen.

The Bryn Mawr also has 1½, 2 and 3 rm. furnished and unfurnished apartments.

"He has always had a fine home. He has very definite ideas about home decorations and furnishings and wants them carried out to his own tastes. He demands solid comfort in a quiet and restful atmosphere, yet he wants to be close to his business and downtown activities. That's why we chose the Seneca for our permanent residence."

Here is truly luxurious living in rooms and suites decorated and furnished to your individual taste. Sparkling, ultra-modern G. E. electric kitchens. Smart appointments—popular cocktail lounge, unique Blackmoor Room. And all at moderate rentals—just 5 minutes from the Loop.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

More Birds Are Banded.

September 17, 1938.

THE towhee [or ground robin] and a brown thrasher were added this week to the list of birds banded on the farm. When we visited the wire ground traps especially made to catch songbirds we found a pair of towhees in one and a brown thrasher in another. A cardinal that paid us a visit a week ago also dropped in for another call. The small aluminum band on its right leg told us that this particular bird had got into one of the traps a few weeks ago and was back again as a "repeater."

We have been wondering why a towhee hadn't been around before because the inclosure in which the traps are located is ideal for these beautiful birds. They are ground feeders and they like brushy areas and thickets. The trapping spot is a thicket with some open ground around the shrubs and weeds—just the kind of a location that a towhee would frequent when feeding.

Known as a Bustler.

The towhee, or chewink, is known to most outdoor fans and bird lovers because he's a bustling, vigorous type of bird that makes the leaves fly when he scratches the ground for food, and also because he is such a handsome songster. The birds bander on the farm doubtless will carry their markers as far south as Florida, Teaxs, and the gulf coast. Many of the birds migrate that far every fall.

The brown thrasher which was lured into one of the traps by sunflower seeds, millet, and canary seed scattered around and in the wire inclosure is a rather close relative of another famous songster, the catbird, several of which were banded several weeks ago. Both are common on the farm. They find many desirable nesting places in the ungrazed woods where there are numerous thickets. The thrasher is another songster that does not leave the United States during its migration season. It goes to the gulf or into Florida when the weather turns cold here.

Frog Trapped with Bird.

The most interesting visitor to the farm traps this week wasn't a bird at all. It was a frog! This curious visitor was found in a trap with a cardinal. After we had recovered from the surprise of seeing a frog in a bird trap we picked up the cardinal and found it already had been banded on Aug. 30 with number 236314. So we released it. The frog also was given his freedom after being placed on the ground outside of the thicket where all the traps are located.

During the next few weeks a new kind of bird trap will be given a test on the farm. This is a large wire inclosure placed close to the side of one of the big ponds. It's for the purpose of catching wild ducks so that these migrants may be banded and then released to continue their flight southward.

Corn on the Cob!

The first of these duck traps had been in use only a short time when a couple of bluewinged teal came into it, attracted by a generous meal of grain distributed inside the trap. They were banded and then tossed into the air so they could join the rest of the bluewings which are resting on the farm.

The turkeys that are free to roam around the farm as they please this week conducted very profitable raids on the cornfields. They have the idea of harvesting early. When we walked along the edge of one of the cornfields we could see that the turkeys had been helping themselves to some of the ripening ears. Although the big birds pass most of their time picking up grasshoppers and other insects, it's quite evident that they vary this diet with corn on the cob.

LOAN CORRESPONDENT. The Minnesota Mutual Life Insurance Co.

MR. N. HAD A BIG LOAN ON HIS HOME. 12 long years he paid 6%, but nothing off his loan. He fell behind; the home being old, needed repairs, 4 years' taxes were due, and to cheer him up a lawyer wrote him "to pay up or else."—Mr. N. saw us. In 6 weeks we got him a top loan; got $1,353 cut off the old mortgage, had the home repaired. No more worries or headaches nor renewal expenses for him; $34.81 a month pays our loan off completely.

We lend top on homes; 2, 3, or 4 flats—brick, stucco, frame—up to 25 years old. We place F. H. A. loans up to 90% to buy, build, repair. Whatever your mortgage problem—see us. We will not fail you. MILWAUKEE-WESTERN MORTGAGE CO., 1976 MILWAUKEE-AV. BRUNSWICK 6200. Tuesday and Thursday till 8 p. m.

HOTELS FOR SALE.

A NEW YORK CITY BANK OFFERS FOR SALE two modern, completely equipped, going hotels centrally located in the midtown section of Manhattan between Grand Central Station and Times Square and close to Radio City. The larger of the hotels extends through from street to street. On one street it is eleven stories and on the other twelve stories and penthouse. There also is a five-story annex. This hotel contains 242 rooms. 150 baths, three dining rooms, cocktail lounge, two stores, and seven storage rooms. There are four elevators. The price is $700,000. The smaller hotel has 12 stories and penthouse providing 137 rooms and 110 baths, lobby office, dining room and cocktail lounge. It has two elevators. The price is $475,000. The owner will sell these hotels separately and will arrange terms. No bid will be considered, however, which fails to include a substantial cash payment and suitable amortization of the balance. For further particulars write to BANK P. O. Box 12. Station J. New York City.

HOTEL INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITY: AM offering a good, safe, paying investment in a Hotel Apartment with 65 units, over 90% of which are rented to a good established clientele. Well organized and managed. Present income, $33,000, which can be increased. Rental and land value increasing. Land value has increased over 300 times since building was built, and will continue to increase, as it is in a fine location, close to theatres and shopping district in Cleveland, Ohio.

Has large piece of extra land for expansion, and for larger building Corner property, size 113' x 166'. This property has never changed hands or ever been refinanced Planned and built by the owner as a lifetime investment, with intention of expanding it. Reason for selling: Owner wants to be relieved of management of it, because other business does not permit necessary time to take care of it. $125,000.00 cash required—no property taken in exchange Investigation will prove every statement and claim

They speak of

ZENOGRAPHY
"The Modern System of Office Reproduction."

A ZENOGRAPH installed in any office makes ZENOSTATS [the perfect photoprint] right on the premises . . . in 3 minutes . . . at one-fourth the cost. ZENOSTATS are exact duplicates of anything typed, printed, written, or drawn. Compact as a small table. Exciting, the demonstration . . . enthusiastic the response. With the ZENO-DEMONSTRATOR prospect makes ZENOSTATS himself right on his own desk. He is instantly convinced. Installation cost a fraction of high priced reproduction machines. Substantial discounts on equipment and steady income on "repeat" orders for ZENOPAPER and supplies. Nominal initial order—from $600 to $1,500, depending upon territory. Not a new business, but a new INDUSTRY. If you are the man . . . here lies your future. Write or wire territory interested in.

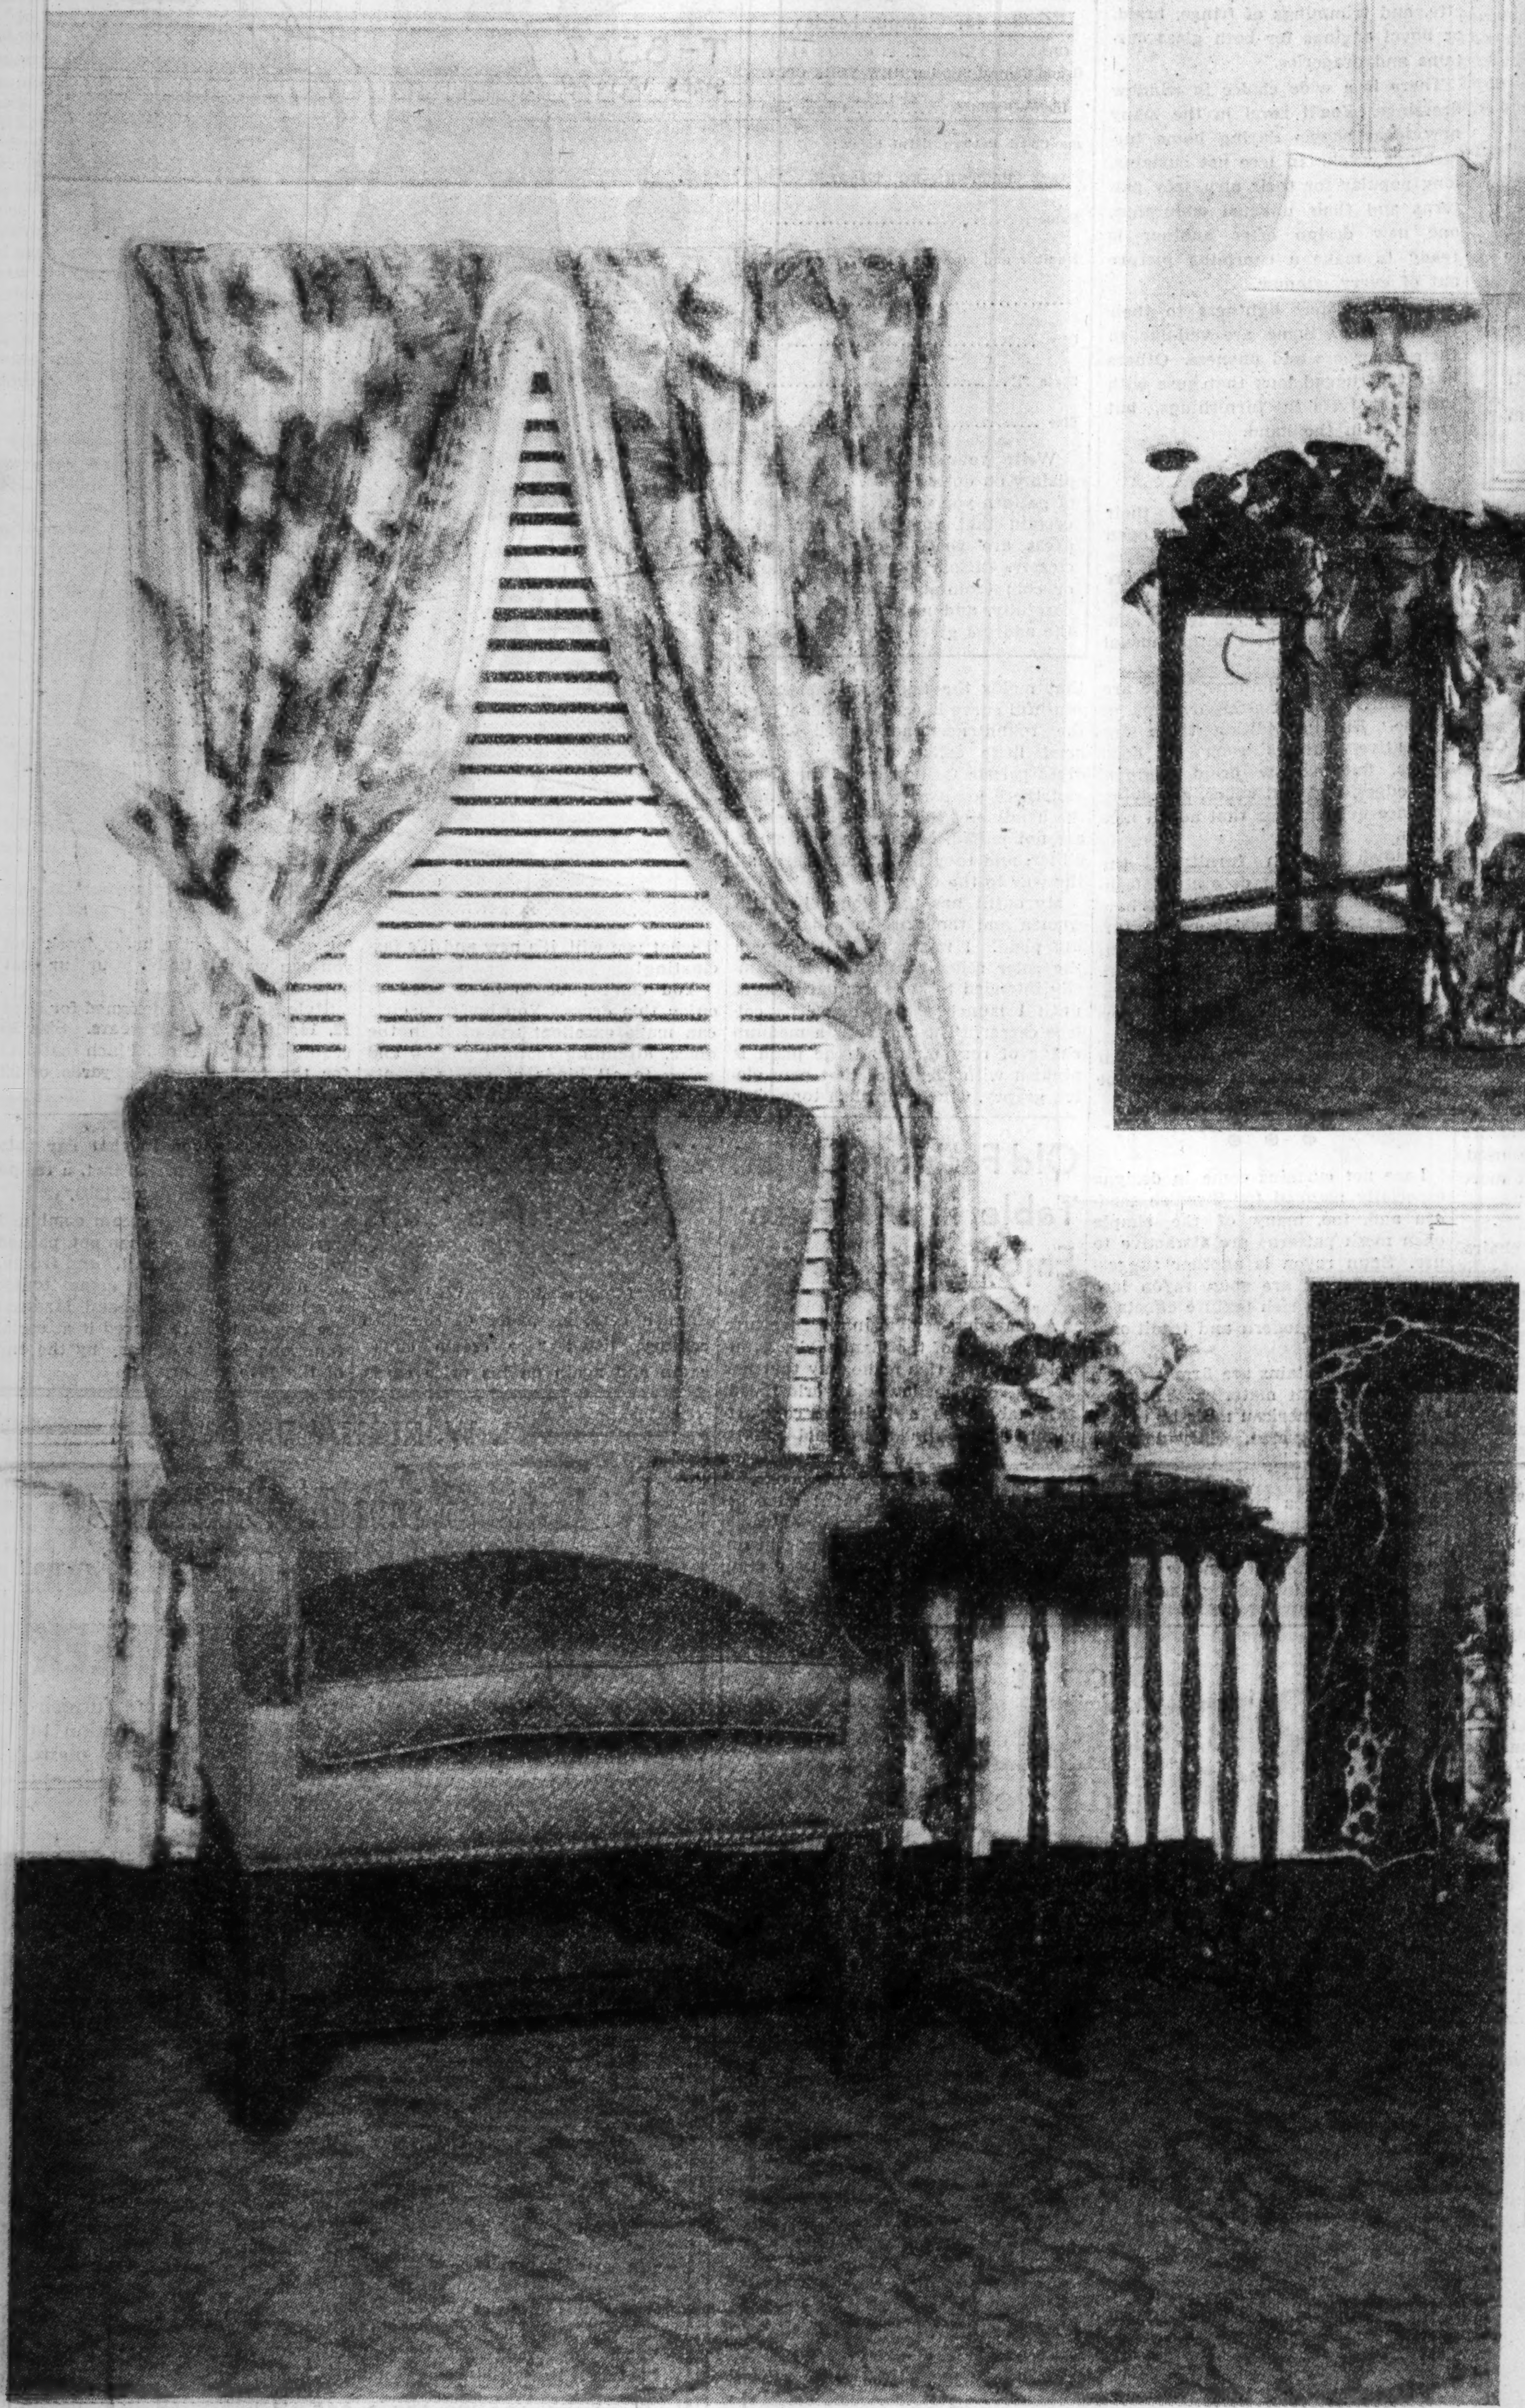
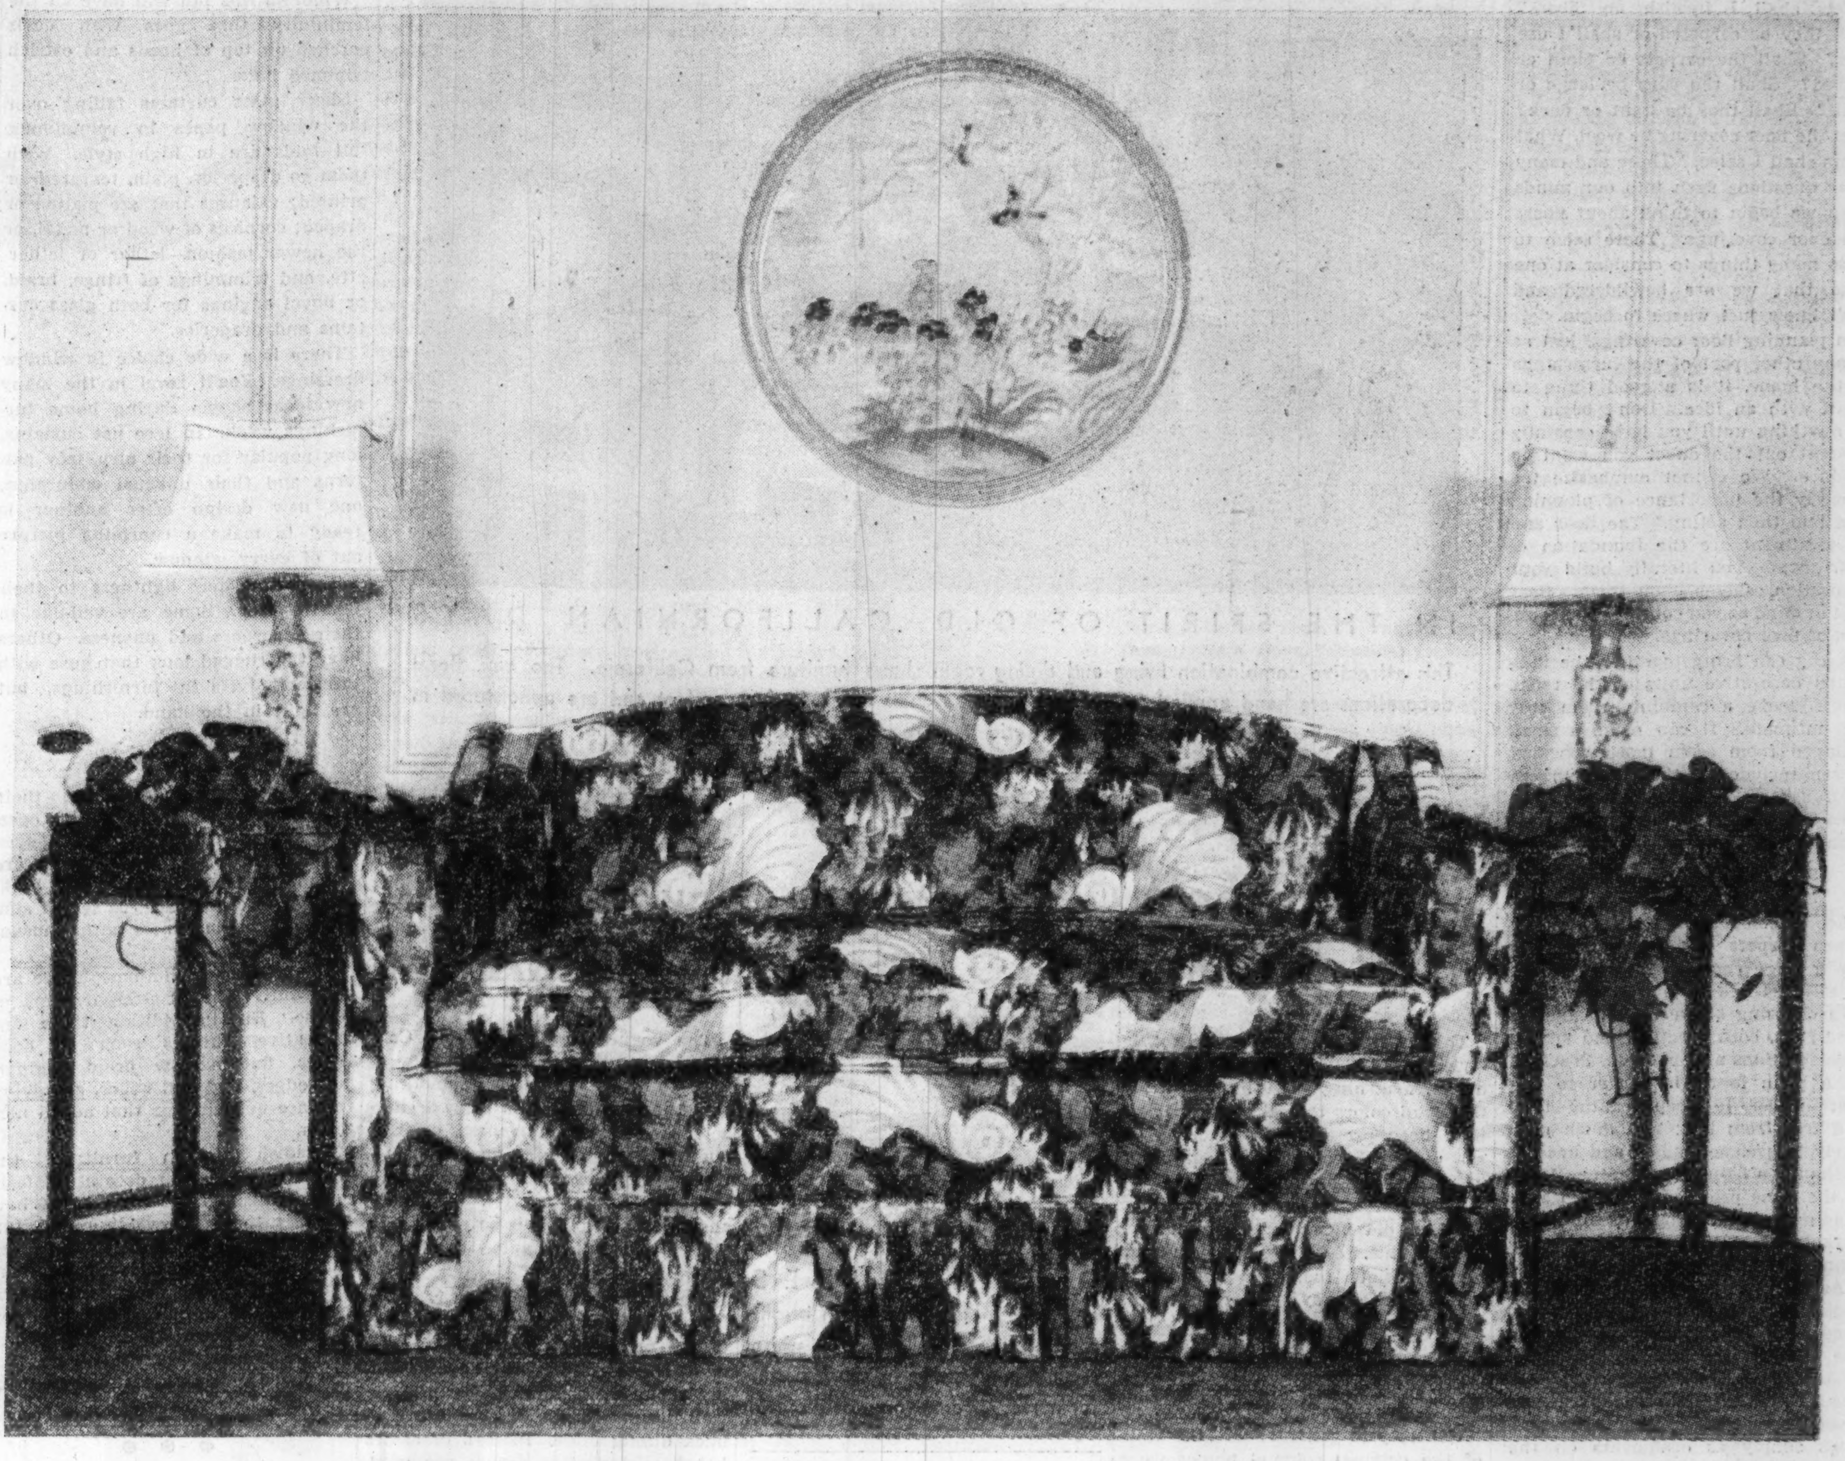
Home Furnishing Week Opens with a Flare





Above: Blue in a soft grayed tone, one of the smartest colors for upholsteries this fall, is seen on this handsome mahogany wing chair. The nest of tables has been given an old-world finish. ● Upper right: The popular eighteenth-century English period is typified in this chintz love seat and plant tables. Both of these photographs were taken at the American Furniture Mart.

New and Old Styles Join Hands in Exhibits

By Edith Weigle

THIS week will be an excellent time for home owners and apartment dwellers to survey all the new furniture styles, as well as the latest designs in floor coverings, wall papers, draperies, lamps, and other accessories, for it is Home Furnishings week in stores the country over. The prospective purchaser has a whole furnishings fair laid out before her. In model rooms, budget houses, and special displays planned expressly for this autumn event she can look over the whole field and become acquainted with the merchandise produced to make her home more beautiful and more convenient.

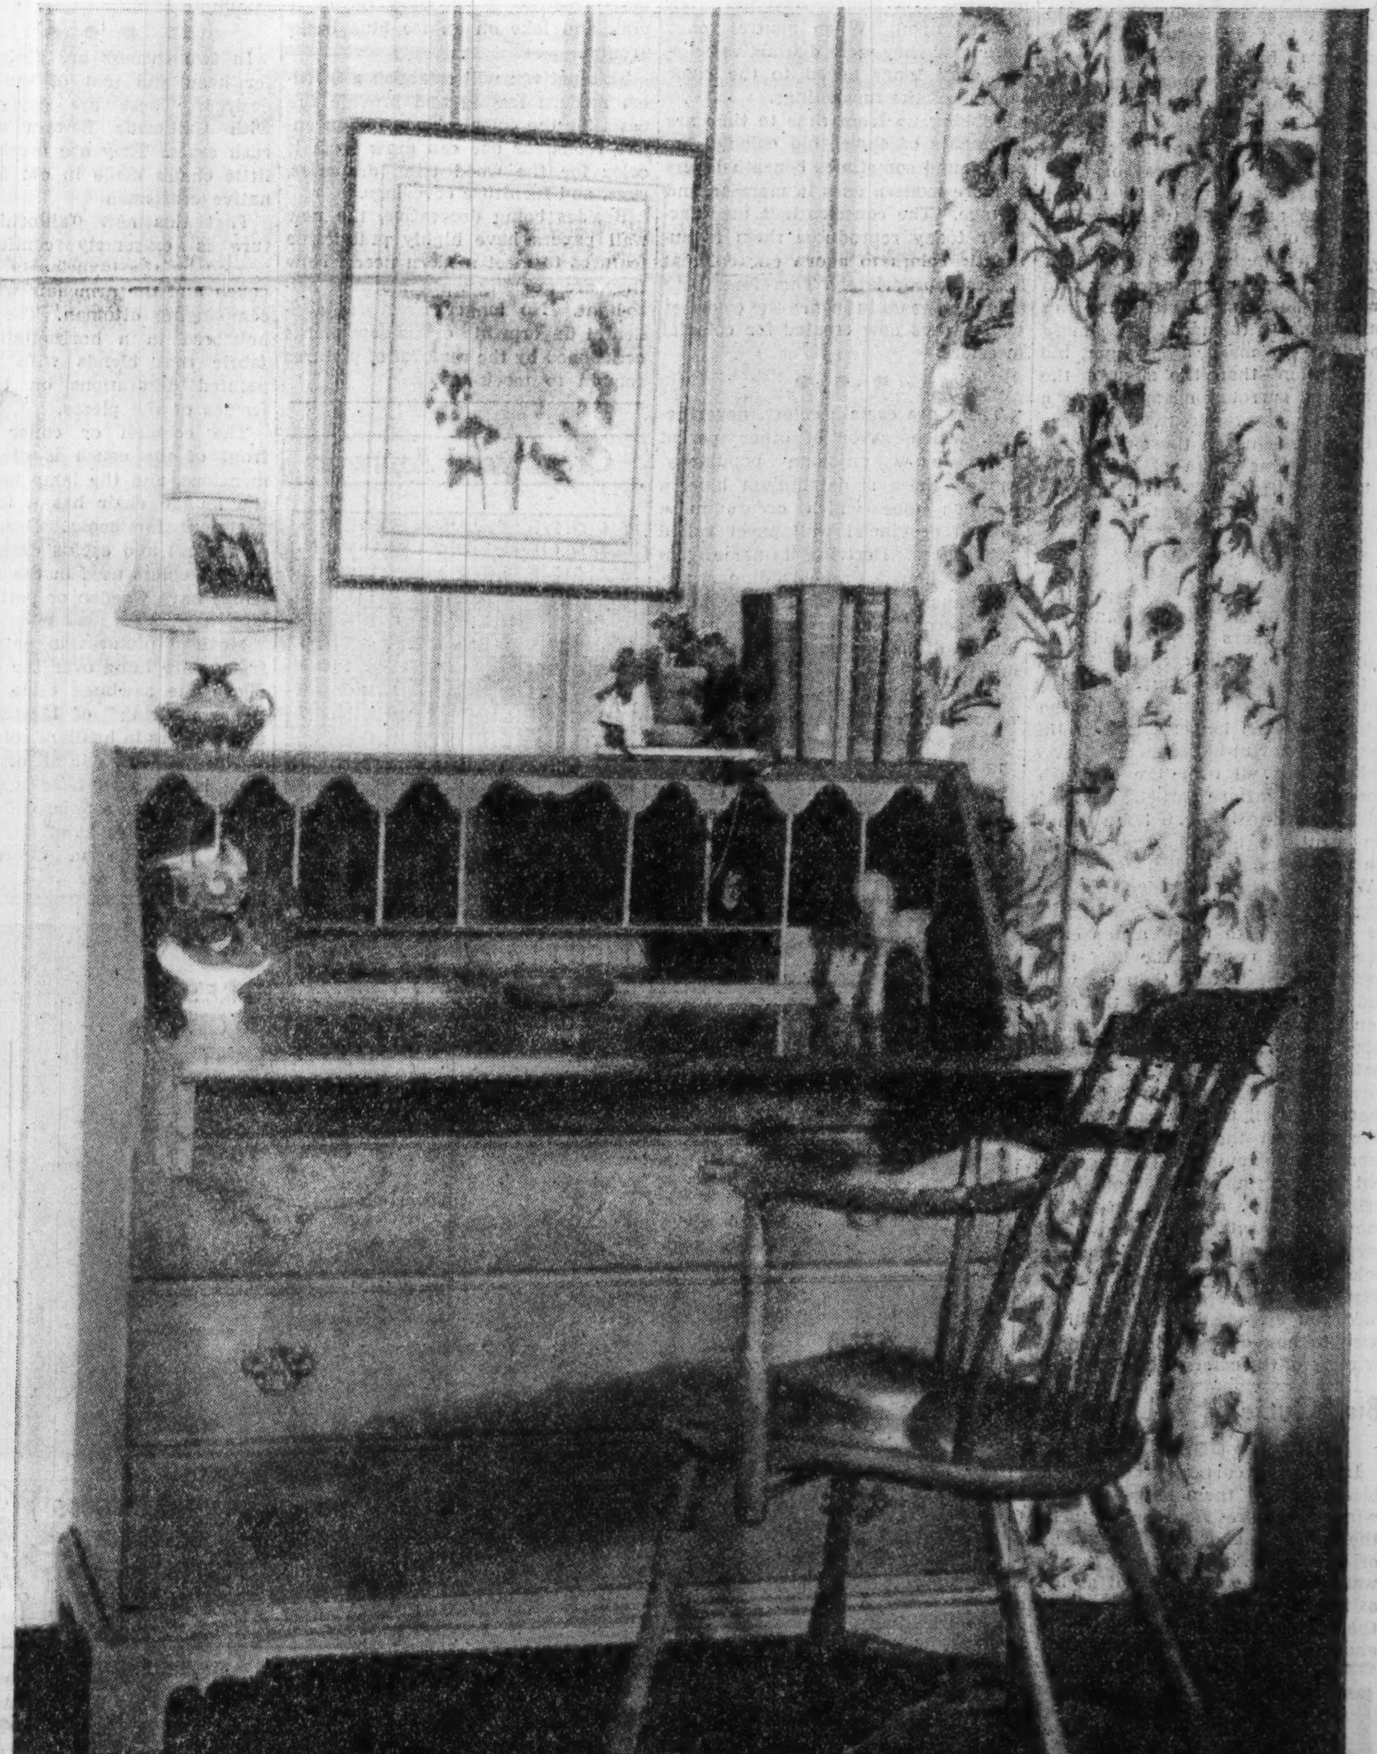
Not one store, but all, are uniting in this worth-while exhibition. The pictures on this page, taken with the Tribune natural color camera, are typical of the attractive set-ups you'll be seeing this week. The most popular styles this winter will be eighteenth-century English, as illustrated in the two upper photographs; early American in the new light honey finish, as seen in the group at the lower right, and Swedish modern and French.

To make the eighteenth-century English furniture seem doubly authentic, many of the best mahogany pieces have been given a "distressed" or antique finish. Surfaces have a rich, mellow tone, with corners that appear to have been rounded by years of polishing and of use. There are even slight marks on the wood such as come inevitably with wear.

Notice the charming copies of English plant tables in the picture at the upper right. They are in for a revival in fashion, as are slip covers and permanent covers of beautiful glazed chintz.

Blue is one of the smartest colors for upholstery and for rugs and draperies as well. In the photograph at the left you see it in the handsome silk upholstery of a comfortable wing chair. The nest of tables has been given an old-world finish.

It is a joy to see the right sort of finish on maple again. Instead of that harsh red-brown color there is a return to the real colonial finish like that of beautiful old pieces found in New England homes. This is a honey-beige tone that serves to bring out the loveliness of the wood. The desk and chair illustrated are faithful copies of antiques, the former being a reproduction of a piece found in a private residence in Vermont and the latter of a chair in the Wyeth house in Essex, Mass.



Early American furniture, delicately scaled, and finished in the authentic old honey-beige tone, is nicely suited to apartment use as well as to that in a Cape Cod cottage. This grouping was photographed in the Merchandise Mart.

Here Are Rules to Guide You in Selecting Rugs

How shall I furnish my floors? Shall they be carpeted or shall I use rugs? Shall the carpets be plain or figured? Shall the rugs be large or small? Shall they be light or dark? Must the floor covering be wool. What colors shall I select? These and many other questions flash into our minds when we begin to think about floors and floor coverings. There seem to be so many things to consider at one time that we are bewildered and don't know just where to begin.

In planning floor coverings, just as in any other part of the furnishings of the home, it is a good thing to begin with an idea. Don't begin to do anything until you have carefully thought out the effect you want to produce. We cannot emphasize too strongly the importance of planning first and then acting. The floor and its treatment are the foundation of your room. You literally build your decoration scheme upon them. Bear that in mind as you consider the selection of floor coverings.

A rug can bring together the individual decorative units of the room. It can make a rambling room cozy and intimate. It can make a small cramped room seem more spacious. It can include all the colors in our color scheme bringing out wall finish. It can make a proper background for furniture.

• • •

Let us consider first the choice between carpets and rugs. Shall we use a large rug, several small ones, or a carpet laid from wall to wall?

In choosing between plain and figured rugs, both practical and artistic considerations are involved. Practically, a plain fabric is harder to care for; harder to keep looking fresh and free from lint; and much more likely to become shabby and unsightly than is a figured or two-tone fabric of the same price. It will also show shading, or variations of light and dark tones in the trafic lanes, while figured rugs will not.

As to arrangement, it should be remembered that a single large rug, used alone in a room, is accepted by the mind as the base, or foundation of the room. In the case of several small rugs the mind regards the hardwood floor as the base and the small rugs simply as ornaments on that base. The small rugs must be placed straight, exactly as a picture must be hung straight. Small rugs should be related to the fireplace, or other openings; to important pieces of furniture, as the davenport; or to a group of furniture as in the case of two chairs and a small table. Place them, whether close to the wall or far from it, so their edges or their ends are parallel to the wall. Do not place them at angles to the wall—cross-wise or cater-cornered.

Where a single rug is used it should be large enough to seem to dominate the room. That is, the rug should seem to the mind to be more important—to make a stronger bid for attention—than the sum of the uncarpeted surrounding space. As a rough rule of practice, we may say that the margins on the side should not exceed one-fourth of the width of the rug itself. The end margins are much less important.

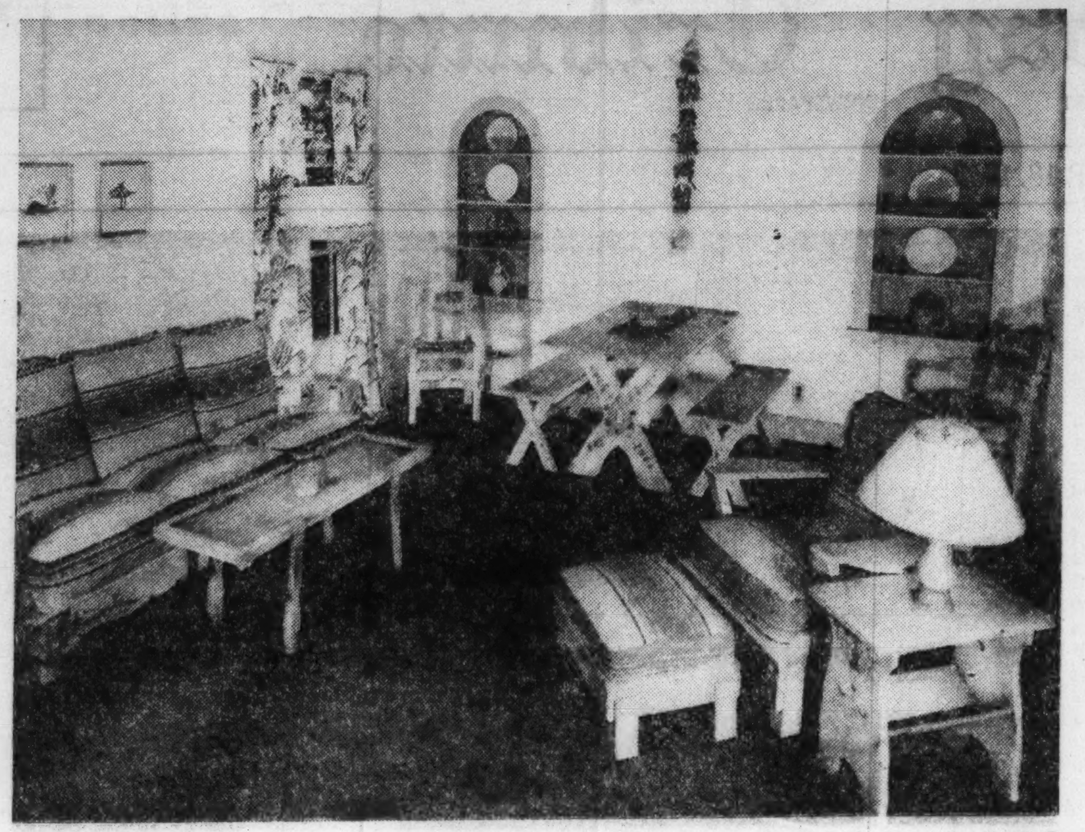
• • •

We may have tired of the busy, floral patterns of the rugs and carpets our mothers used, and turned with relief to plain carpets. But it is not long before what is merely restful becomes tiresome in its monotony. We no longer tread on the startling colorful blossoms and leaves which vined all over the old fashioned floral pattern carpets, but with a little patience we can learn to use the beautifuly figured carpets which are now being extensively shown.

When we have decided between rugs and carpets, plain and figured, we are ready to think about color. One thing is certain: the floor must appear darker in tone than the walls and ceilings. Beyond this the selection of color is a matter of taste. In case you doubt the ability of your taste to guide you unerringly to the correct choice, you might remember that it is well to have some connection between the rugs in adjoining rooms. You would not want a bright red rug in your living room and a brilliant blue rug in the dining room. You will want your rug or carpet to live happily with the other colors in your rooms. If you are buying a rug to go with the furniture you already have, it would be wise to buy one which repeats two or more of the colors in the furniture.

Buy Curtains a Little Long to Beat Shrinkage

In buying curtains it is a good idea to select them longer than the window requires, and put a tuck at the top just above the rod pockets or headings, so that after they are washed they can be let out as much as is necessary to bring them back to the correct length. Curtains shrink about 5 per cent in laundering.



IN THE SPIRIT OF OLD CALIFORNIAN DAYS

This attractive combination living and dining room shows furniture from California. The gay, floral decorations are hand applied. Couch and lounge chair are built for comfort and are upholstered in a horizontally striped fabric that repeats the colors in the scheme.

Walls Take to Colors of Soft Pastel Tones

The eighteenth century English style so thoroughly dominates the home furnishing picture right now that wall colors typical of the period have been pretty much absorbed in all present decorations, regardless of period.

Most outstanding of these colors are soft old blue, dusty peach, turquoise blue, Adam green, emerald green, antique red, sage green, corn yellow, dove gray, and rose beige. Colors are rich and full bodied, but never dirty. The pastels are subdued, dusty in effect.

• • •

Contrary to general belief, the walls of the original colonial homes were gloriously colorful and not the monotonous tans and creams too often insisted upon. When neutral tones were used they were distinctive beige and gray tones keyed to the color scheme of the furnishings.

Bobbing up from time to time are fragments of choice old colonial papers found sometimes beneath layers of more modern ones in mansion and cottage. The conscientious manufacturer today reproduces them in authentic colors to adorn our colonial homes appropriately. Therefore, these old wall papers influence the colors of wall papers now created for colonial interiors.

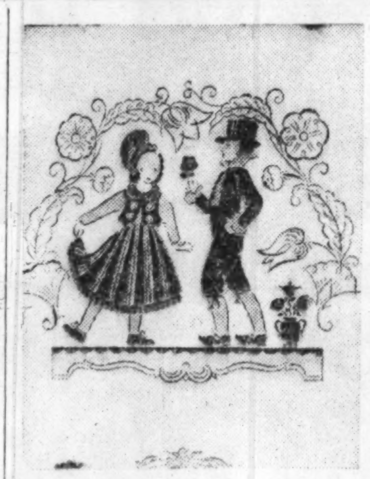
• • •

There are certain colors, nevertheless, which savor of other period styles now enjoying popularity. Among these is delphinium blue, a purplish tone which occurs in a French provincial wall paper called "Quimper." Deriving its name from the famous French dinnerware, "Quimper," is one of the new clever wall decorations for a French provincial dining room, breakfast room, or kitchen.

The Swedish modern style has brought an entirely new color palette to the season. These colors, including blush pink, ice blue, lake [which is a reddish wine tone], and evening [which can be described as a rosy cocoa] are all typical Swedish colors and combine with one another happily in a room scheme. "Stockholm," a wall paper with floral, swag, and tassel motifs, is executed in blush pink and lake on an ice blue background.

This pattern will establish a Swedish modern feeling and provide the basis for the color scheme for an entire room, for one can draw from it color for the wood trim, draperies, rugs, and furniture coverings.

Besides being decorative, the new wall papers have highly practicable features to meet modern needs. Now they are actually washable and fast-to-light. No longer need the accidental fingerprints or shadow marks occasioned by the removal of pictures remain to mock us.



GAY FIGURES

Mexican Type Furniture Has Long Life Ahead

The vogue for Mexican and Californian furniture and decoration is here to stay. There is something about its simplicity, its rugged character and its attractiveness, colorful quality that appeals to an increasingly large number of home owners and apartment dwellers. It's refreshing and different, and it is so reasonably priced that it is adapted to slender budgets.

See it to advantage in the recently furnished five room home now open to the public on the furniture floor of a Chicago store. Living and dining room are combined. Against one wall is placed an interesting sawbuck dining table. Instead of chairs benches of similar design are used. These save space and also seat more people.

• • •

In two corners are dining chairs, for head and foot of the table, if desired. These are gayly painted with California flowers and have rush seats. They are much like the little chairs made in old Mexico by native craftsmen.

That this new Californian furniture is extremely comfortable is proved by the luxuriously cushioned couch and the armchair with its accompanying ottoman. They are upholstered in a horizontally striped fabric that blends with the hand painted decorations on the maple frames of the pieces.

The cocktail or coffee table in front of the couch is of ample dimensions, and the lamp table beside the lounge chair has a lower compartment for books. Draperies are of a floral and cactus design repeating the colors used in the room. The lamps have wooden or pottery bases.

• • •

Mexican pictures in natural wood frames are hung over the couch and above the sawbuck table is a long "charm string" of Mexican gourds and peppers in brilliant colors.

The wood used in all of this furniture is northern hard maple which has been given a finish called "yucca." Decorations are hand applied. Each piece is made in California and shipped here.

New Curtains of Lace Net Are in High Style

Windows this fall will have all the femininity that goes with curls perched on top of heads and ostrich trimmed hats.

Sheer glass curtains falling over the window panes in voluminous, full folds are in high style. With them go draperies, plain, textured, or printed; valances that are plaited or draped; cornices of wood or metal, or the newer fashion—lether or letherette, and trimmings of fringe, braid, or novel edgings for both glass curtains and draperies.

There is a wide choice in window dressings. You'll revel in the many new ideas shown during home furnishings week. In lace net curtains, long popular for their airy, lacy patterns and their unusual endurance, one new design after another is ready to make a charming picture out of every window.

There's a new lightness to their textures, too. Some are veil-like in their sheerness and fineness. Others have the rugged look that goes with informal styles in furnishings, but are light in the hand.

• • •

Wide open weaves, enticing in their airy laciness, vie with smaller open mesh designs. Finely etched all-over patterns of foliage and flowers are woven on fine textured net backgrounds. Border patterns set off simply designed lace nets with unusual prettiness.

Then, to the trimmings. There are beautifully tailored straight hems, of course. But in addition there are decorative finishes such as deep fringe, fine narrow braid edgings, lace edges, and ball edges, all giving the lace net curtains that added nice touch.

Swedish modern furniture, the smart newcomer in decorating fashions, brings up the problem of how to treat the windows in rooms furnished with blond, slenderly graceful furniture. Bright clear colors are best, and they can be used in draperies of homespun effect for informal settings, in stylized floral prints, and even in rich spun rayon satins if the mood of the furnishings is to be formally modern.

• • •

Lace net curtains come in designs especially planned for Swedish modern and, too, many of the simple open mesh patterns are attractive to use. Spun rayon is another suggestion, for there are spun rayon lace net curtains in rich texture effects to go with both modern and traditional furnishings.

Lace net curtains are firmly woven and of excellent materials. They are all made in American mills by expert American craftsmen. They do wear well and will look like new after each of many washings. If the sewing of headings is a bugbear, these curtains can be purchased with ready to hang tops and many of them are adjustable to different window lengths without need for taking one stitch!

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

By Carolyn Ramey.

Two piecers have captured the campuses! Never in all my college experience have I seen so many skirt and topper combines, and such an infinite variety. There's no danger of monotony, because every co-ed seems to have an individual idea about wearing her two piece outfit. I have one or two in my wardrobe, of course, but the flurry about jacket and skirt ensembles swept me off my feet, so I designed another, just to be prepared for the competition!

The illustration shows what my dress is like. The snugly fitted jacket, that molds the figure so that every youthful curve is revealed, has a high the round neckline topped with a brief little collar. Buttons march dress parade fashion down the front, and there are two vest pockets near the hemline of the jacket. The sleeves are not puffed, but they aren't sleek, either, and they fit rather loosely all the way to the wrists.

My outfit has the blouse in plain woolen and the skirt in a harmonizing plaid. I might as well tell you the color scheme although I originally intended to keep it a dark secret until I launch the frock on its college career. The topper is a medium shade of rosy pink and the plaid is pinkish with plenty of that new violet, grapey, winey, purplish tone. Call it what you will, it's new and it's fascinating!

You don't have to be a co-ed to enjoy this dress. You business girls can make excellent use of it in the office, attending football games, and going to all kinds of sports events when the crisp autumn days arrive for good. It's not a bulky frock and you can wear it under your fur coat without discomfort.

Style No. T-8588 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years. Size 16 requires 1¾ yards of 39 inch material for the blouse and 2⅛ yards of 39 inch fabric for the skirt.

Old Fashioned Plant Table in Mahogany Enjoying a Revival

A charming revival in old furniture styles is that of the plant table. Available now in a rich mahogany that has been given a mellow, old world finish, this table has a built in compartment, copper lined, to hold plants. There is ample top surface left for the usual lamp, or for a few books.

So popular has this plant table become for the living room, or entrance hall that it is also being made in unfinished style. You paint it or stain it to suit yourself.

Wedgwood Sold Ice Cream Cups

The famous Josiah Wedgwood, English ceramic maker of the 18th century, listed "ice cream cups" again and again on his price cards, showing that even in that day this dessert was known. In fact, a recipe for making it was dated 1669.

Fruits, sugar, and cream combined were placed in an earthen pot, packed with ice and "much salt," and frozen, much as we freeze ice cream today. Washington, Jefferson, and Madison are known to have served it at social functions in this country by the end of the 18th century.

The Costume in All Black Is Indispensable

By Rhea Seeger.

Black holds its own season after season, as the smartest choice of the well groomed woman. Whether you live in town or country, whether you're a career girl or luxuriate at home, no well assembled wardrobe for any season is complete without a perfectly fitted black costume. So important is the black outfit that entire departments are devoted to the cause of black.

In one well known haven of black clothes there isn't a single color to take your mind away from the sleek sophistication of all sable toned beauties hanging around for your predilection. Thin black dresses for the office, clever two-piece outfits in thin wool, or combines of crêpes and wool, taffeta and wool, or stunning novelties in jersies, are all grand buys for any clothes collector. Here you always will find the most interesting new things, the most daring of new silhouettes, and the most unusual of combines, all-black clothes for every hour of a well fitted day, suits, and coats, and the newest of black dinner clothes.

• • •

Such superlative outfits can be worn for seasons without a hint of their original purchase date. Models are designed to remain as distinguished and smooth after months of wear, for only the finest of fabrics are used, the best of detail featured, and the most flattering of silhouettes.

Among the numerous simple and deceptively simple daytime dresses you will find trig little tailleurs that are to be worn with or without furs, for dress parade or with gay flirtatious ascots and gloves of sulphur yellow velvet or accents of velvet in other daring colors. You'll find one-piece outfits that appear to be two-piece suits, also ready for accents. Stunning crêpe afternoon dresses, miracles of smoothness, have fine French details of hand workmanship, or boast tailored details such as stitched bands, braid trim and the like. Short jacketed suits are the last word in sophistication whether they are trimmed with Persian lamb or other flat black furs, or untrimmed using the fabric in smooth and rough textures as the only contrast.

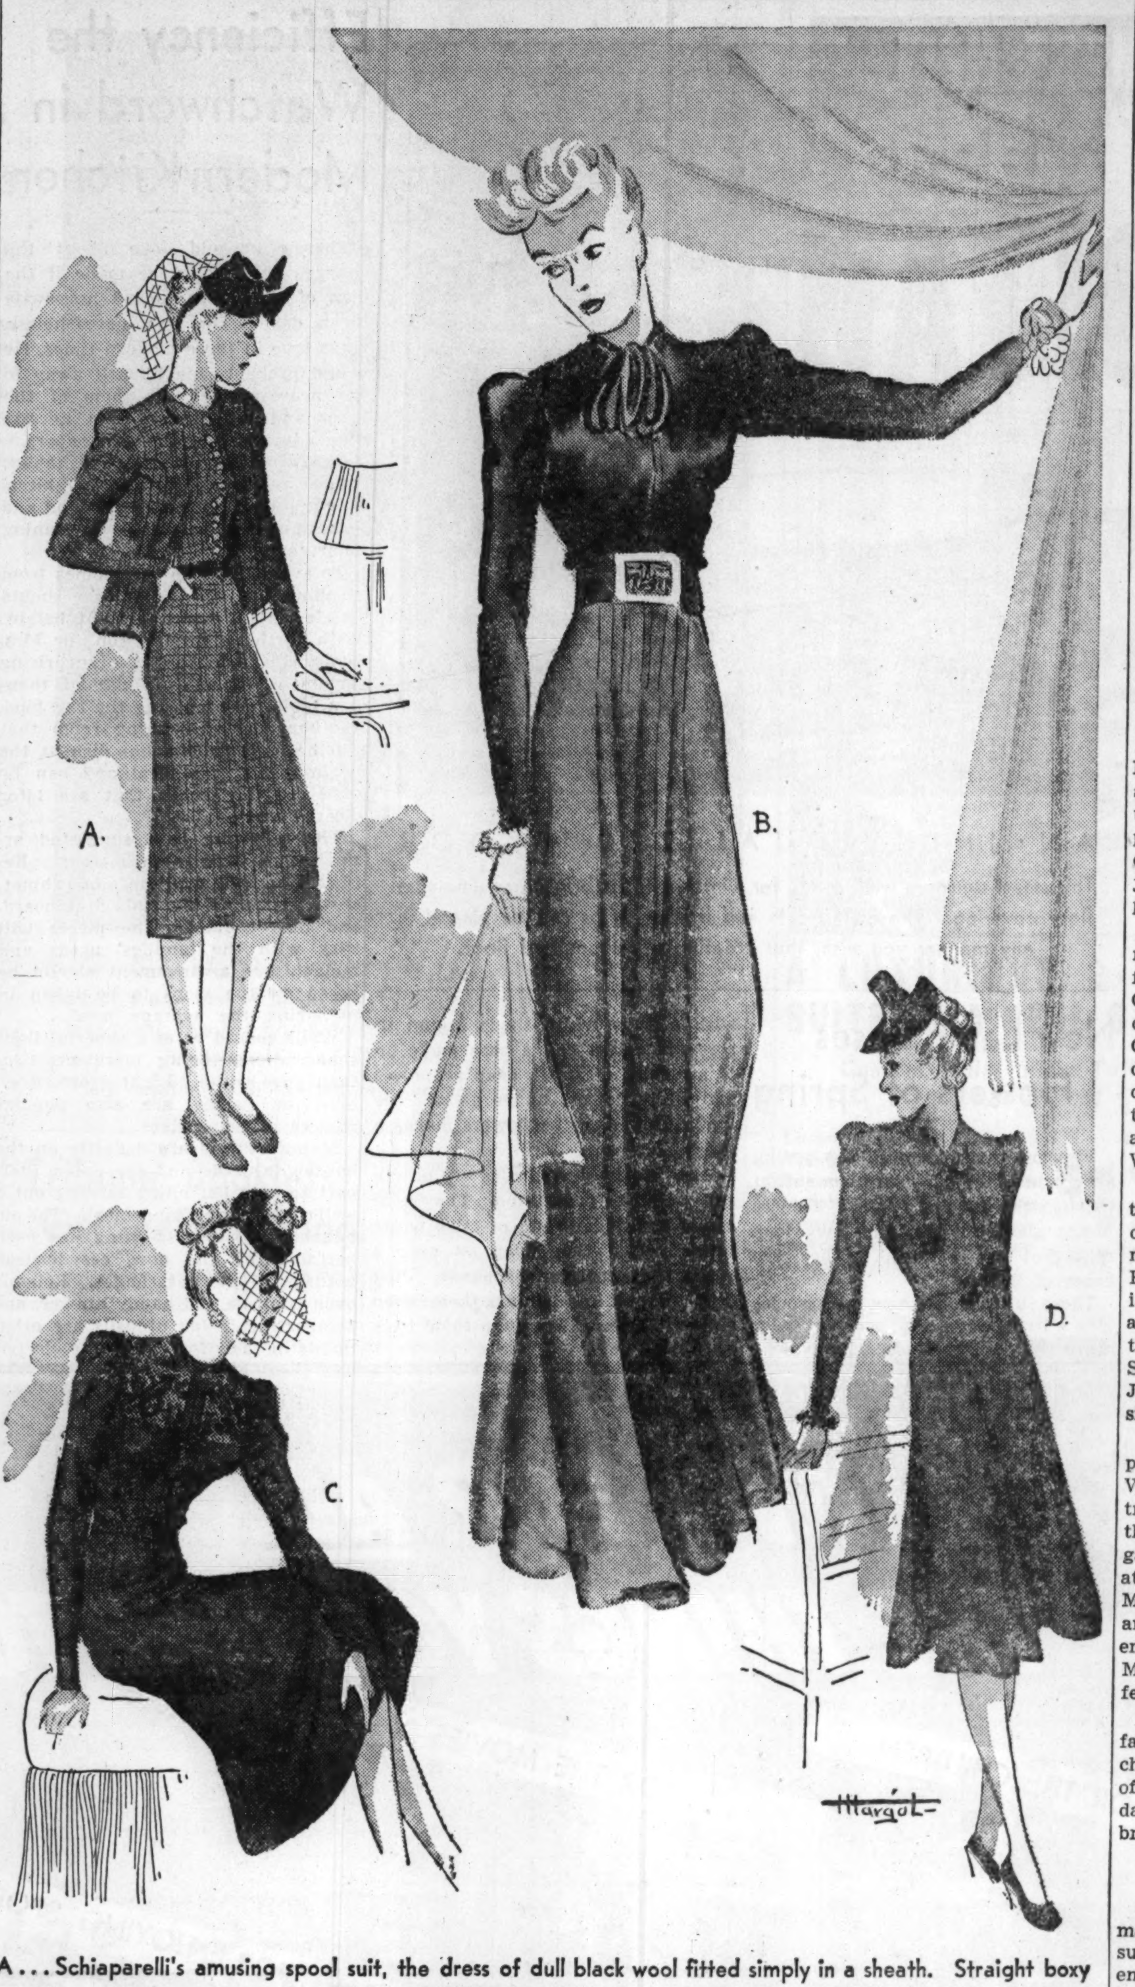
• • •

If you're looking for an unusual black dress parade coat, or a black all-purpose winter coat, you'll have a time trying to decide between all the interesting new arrivals. Sleeves, necklines, and unusual collars, unbelievably slim lines, all are combined to make the perfect black coat. And the newest of suits are equally irresistible. Nothing is so flattering, nothing so slenderizing, and not a single piece in any woman's wardrobe gives as much soul-satisfying flattery and service as a well selected black outfit.

Costumes of white with black also are featured in this famous black and white room. But the white is merely used as accent, such as clever insets, panels, vestees, and appliqued bands or embroidery. Most of the stuff is unrelieved black, but textures, fabrics and combines are so intriguing that they become sensationally high fashion.

From the newest early fall and winter arrivals four outstandingly different outfits have been sketched. None of them is priced beyond the reach of the moderate clothes allowance. All are breathtakingly new and different and ready for immediate wear.

Distinctive Costumes in Autumn Tradition



A . . . Schiaparelli's amusing spool suit, the dress of dull black wool fitted simply in a sheath. Straight boxy coat is gay and young. ● B . . . Excitingly different dinner costume, floor length dull crepe skirt, flat and fitted at sides, with stitched inverted plaits front and back. Top is fitted bodice with sleeves of black velvet. ● C . . . New combine, a woolen thin as satin is accented with cobwebby lace. Sleeves long and dress straight and fitted. ● D . . . All-purpose coat dress background for accessories to offer telling contrast. Styled simply for every hour of day. It can readily understudy a fur coat for coldest weather.

Lengthen Bouquet Life.

Clubwomen to Attend Own Crime School

A crime prevention school for clubwomen will open next week at the Hotel Sherman.

Mrs. F. A. Frankenfield.
[Marshall Photo.]

Police officials, finger print experts, army officers, judges, attorneys, and others concerned with laws and their enforcement will address a law observance institute opening Sept. 28 under the auspices of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. Frederick A. Frankenfield, law observance chairman, will direct the institute. Criminal law, universal finger printing, court procedure, police science, crime and accident prevention, juvenile delinquency, narcotics, and parole will be studied.

A two year course is planned, with meetings from 10 to 4 o'clock the fourth Wednesday of each month. Classes will be open to members of organizations and others interested. Oral examinations will be given and diplomas awarded at the close of the course. Registration will take place tomorrow, Tuesday, and Wednesday at Illinois federation headquarters, 30 West Washington street.

Other interesting courses available to club members this season will be classes in journalism for both beginners and advanced students. Mrs. Fred W. Waterman, press and publicity chairman of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, is sponsoring the courses, which Dr. William Slaughter of the Medill School of Journalism at Northwestern university will conduct.

These courses will be among the projects discussed at a luncheon Mrs. Waterman will give Tuesday for district press and publicity chairmen of the northern region of Illinois. The gathering will take place at 1 o'clock at her home, 7916 South Bishop street. Mrs. Fred R. Lufkin of Elgin, press and publicity chairman of the General Federation of Women's clubs, and Mrs. William T. Bruckner, Illinois federation president, will be guests.

The Illinois federation's Indian welfare department will have a Chippewa chief as speaker at its first meeting of the season at 10:30 o'clock Wednesday at headquarters. Mrs. C. J. Albrecht heads the department.

Flannel for Cleaning Paint.

Soft wool flannel is preferred by many housewives for washing painted surfaces, particularly paint with an enamel content and whose glossy surface is dulled by strong soaps or washing powders. Stubborn spots which will not yield to rubbing with a soft flannel cloth wrung from hot water may be scoured gently with a fine scouring powder. Rinse and dry with a clean cloth.

NOW YOUR HAIR CAN SPARKLE WITH DAZZLING HIGHLIGHTS

When you remove dulling Soap Film this Lucky New Way!

Women cheer Colgate's thrilling new HALO Shampoo for Normal, Oily and Dry Hair! Not oil, not soap—HALO cannot leave cloudy, unrinsable film, as ordinary shampoos do! Thus, a single HALO shampoo gives any type of hair Glamorous new Highlights and Radiant new Softness!

NO WONDER women are raving about Colgate's thrilling new HALO Shampoo, the improved liquid shampoo that contains no soap.

Halo is one shampoo that works equal wonders on normal, oily and dry hair of any color! Even dullest hair takes on breath-taking new sheen . . . while "wild" hair becomes wonderfully soft and silky after washing with Halo!

DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK GUARANTEE

If you do not agree that a single Halo Shampoo makes your hair more beautiful than you ever dreamed possible, mail empty bottle to Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Co., Jersey City, New Jersey. And we will send you a check for DOUBLE what it cost you! Offer expires October 15, 1938.

HALO SHAMPOO

At all drug, department, and 10c stores

Doesn't Irritate Scalp

Don't suffer any longer with shampoos that irritate the scalp. Don't suffer either, with old-style liquid or bar soap shampoos that leave unrinsable soap film on hair to cover up its natural brilliance. Try Halo Shampoo today. And discover, as thousands have, how attractive your hair really can be!

Actual retouched photo above shows what a wonderful improvement this new shampoo may make. Results are so exciting because Halo is utterly different in three ways.

Different in Three Ways

FIRST: Halo contains NO soap! Thus it cannot leave gummy soap film on hair to dull its natural lustre, as old-fashioned liquid or bar soap shampoos do. Yet Halo makes more creamy lather than soap, in hardest water. One sudsing washes away all dirt and loose dandruff. Completely removes that drab, cloudy soap film left by other shampoos. Lemon or vinegar rinses are not needed. Yet hair is absolutely free of dulling film . . . alluringly fragrant, cleaner, more radiant than you ever dreamed possible!

SECOND: Halo is NOT an oil! Leaves hair silky-soft, but never greasy or sticky.

THIRD: Halo contains NO harmful chemicals. Does not irritate the scalp.

Thousands of women have been thrilled by Halo's sensational beauty results. Colgate guarantees that Halo is safe for normal, oily and dry hair!

One Trial Proves It

Get this amazing new Halo Shampoo at any toilet goods counter. 10c and 50c sizes. Or, to try before you buy, send your name and address on a penny postcard to Colgate, Dept. N-454, Jersey City, N. J., by September 25th and you will receive, absolutely free, enough Halo for three shampoos! Act today so you can have soft, lustrous hair this easy, new way!

Paris Openings Are Feast for All Appetites

By Bettina Bedwell.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N Y News Syndicate, Inc.]

PARIS.—The Paris openings, foretelling fall and winter fashions, are a sumptuous feast with something for everybody's appetite. There are four big league silhouettes, destined to do right by women of every shape and size. There is the skinline silhouette you worm into with a shoehorn for both day and evening. It has important sleeves usually. There is the bloused dress line, with the top part as named and the skirt easy and flowing, also both day and evening. There is the Persian tunic silhouette fitted to the waistline and with a flaring skirt, and with sleeves that are big. There is the full skirted Victorian line for evening, and there are loads of variations of skirt fullness, some massed in front, some in back à la 1880-1890, with slim bodice lines and sleeves going haywire.

● ● ●

Color is rampant for day and evening. Newest day color assortment is tone-on-tone ensembles, with wrap in one shade and dress in another of the same basic color. Brilliant red and screaming pink and green and violet wool jackets pair off with sober dinner dresses. Metal brocades and lamés make daytime dresses with wool coats, and they come in lush colors.

There is lots of black, highly spiced with color details, jewels and rich oriental embroideries, for daytime Black coats are made light as summer clouds with new pale gray freak fox fur, or natural lynx trimmings.

And there are lots of red coats, in shades from fuchsia red to wine, and guardsman red, trimmed with black Persian lamb, Alaska sealskin, or such flat fur. Luminous blues, all the violets, all the strident pinks, many vivid or soft grayed greens, and brand new cornelian or terracotta brownish reds, briques, and pinks. Heaps of dark red, dark green, and sooty blue, and almost black iris purple and many amethystine tones.

Your cloth coat will be quilted, or lined with fur or feathers, besides being laden with fur, to make it warm as a fur coat. You'll be looking at natural lynx three-quarter length coats, launched by Molyneux, with more longing than you ever had for a silver fox wrap.

● ● ●

You'll find the buttons on your jacket or coat will be as rich as your jeweled clips. They may be sprays of jeweled flowers, gold studded with brilliant gems, huge gold embossed plaques, carved tortoise shell, and such exciting things.

There will be loads of boxy jacket ensembles on tap for women who look best in that type of thing. There will be just as many fitted jacket ensembles, many of them flared below the waistline and with flamboyant sleeves.

Velvet is an inseparable companion to wool suits, coats, and dresses for every day. The openings are chock full of velvet garments for dressy daytime and evening wear. The cocktail hour will bring out brilliant wool jackets encrusted with Javanese and other rich embroidery, worn with simple dresses and feathered wisps of hats. Also regal brocade tailored ensembles burdened with soft furs. The inevitable fur jacket for such goings-on will be of different furs—fisher, pale fox, and such. Black fox wraps and purest mink will always be smart.

All through the new styles there's a look of the old family album. Fitted basque waists and jackets, leg-of-mutton sleeves, flirtatious muffs, big bunches of violets pinned on fur, small feathered or fur hats that make a beeline over the nose, voluminous skirts or skirts pulled backward and upward around the hips, and fur pelerines. All the jewels are off the same piece of goods, with long dangling earrings, lockets, long lavalieres, gold watch chains with gold watches, massive bracelets, and chatelaines to the fore.

Molyneux, the old master, makes us living daguerreotypes around dinner time, with Toulouse Lautrec stiff brocade dresses. One model is in quaint robin's egg blue and gold brocade, with a tiny boat shaped hat of tortoise shell velvet, trimmed by a cascade of ostrich. The low, squared neckline is super-smart this fall.

● ● ●

The new red coat, which Molyneux casts in the silhouette of a Persian tunic, has flowing angel sleeves. It is trimmed with tubes of black Persian lamb, and has the latest conceit in muffs, done with tubes of the same fur set over black cloth. A small hat is red felt with a Persian lamb brim. The dress that goes with this coat is in a dark shade of the red of the coat, and is made of brocaded silk cloky.

What the doctor orders in the way of a dressy daytime coat is a Molyneux model made of black duvetyn and buttoned down the center front on many small beaded buttons. It is trimmed with freak fox, in palest gray with darker hairs filming it. A very big collar and four godets on the skirt are in this fur. A simple plaited dress made of silk crêpe goes with this coat.

A cocktail suit is made of regal brocade that would stand alone, and in gold combined with soft beige and pastel colors. The jacket is invisibly fastened up the front with snappers, and the enormous shawl collar is pale beige fox. The skirt is made of four slightly flaring gores. A hat of vivid rose velvet, with ostrich riding high, and a beige lace veil falling at the side, gives a note of color that is essential to chic this new season.

Paris Frock Has "Crispness" the Busy Woman Will Enjoy

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS. — [Special.] — One of the smartest women in Paris, and one of the busiest, makes it her business to design clothes for sister "career women." One of her most successful modes she wore herself at a recent lecture and tea. I was so impressed by the crispness of the frock and saw so many possibilities for its popularity in America that I had the design copied for our pattern, No. 5260.

This is a dress every busy woman will enjoy, because it may be worn all day long without showing a sign of wilting. Its rever neckline has a detachable fold of white or pastel, while the rest of the dress falls into figure-moulding lines that retain their freshness no matter how many hours the frock is worn. The bodice has ample fulness, while the skirt hugs the hips, flaring at the knees. The sleeves may be long or short [the original dress has long ones] and they are puffed at the shoulders.

All types of silks, figured or plain, rough weave or slick, make up well and woolens are especially suitable, as are silks with nubby surfaces.

A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown.

Wheel chairs always are scarce, and we have far more requests for them than we ever are able to fill. Recent appeals for them have been fruitless but, because of the circumstances of the following case, we are printing this appeal which came to us from a caseworker in a community house.

The young man in question has been in bed since May of 1937, suffering from a broken neck. Last year the doctors gave him up as a hopeless case and his mother had him moved home from the charity hospital in which he had been treated. With the advice and help of a physician supplied by the relief administration, and a visiting nurse, he has made such remarkable progress during the last several months that the physican has recommended that he be allowed to use a wheel chair. It would, however, need to be one with an adjustable back and foot rest, since the patient cannot sit erect.

The family is in a difficult position financially, and have had to make application for supplementary relief, so there is no possible way in which they could buy a chair.

The worker has communicated with every source through which a chair might possibly be obtained, but without success and has sent one final appeal to me. Mother and son have fought a gallant fight against death, handicapped by financial difficulties, and certainly are deserving of any possible assistance. The name and address will be supplied to any interested reader.

● ● ●

Mrs. S, on the north side sends the following request for assistance.

"Dear Miss Brown: I wonder if it is possible for you to help us as you have helped others. We are in need of a garbage burner. Our small baby is now at the crawling age, and our home is damp and chilly. It would be most convenient to call for the burner if you could locate one on the north side."

● ● ●

The H. family, on the west side of the city, now possesses a piano for the first time. However, the instrument is a player piano, and they are without rolls or money with which to buy any. It will mean a great deal to them to have music in the house, and we are sure that some attic or basement shelters rolls no longer in use. They also lack a piano bench or stool, but are, of course, primarily interested in recordings.

● ● ●

A Boy Scout troop on the west side of the city has appealed to me for a mimeograph. There is a number of boys in the troop, but they have little means. If some reader has a discarded machine these youngsters would be most happy to have it, and willing to call for it.

BAD LEGS

No sensible person will continue to suffer without trying clean, powerful, penetrating Moone's Emerald Oil, which is readily obtained at any well-stocked drug store. It is easy and simple to use—greaseless—stainless—economical. Not only does fiery itching skin torture get quick relief but Moone's Emerald Oil also promotes healthy healing. Ask any good drug store for an original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil. Money back if not satisfied.

Clotilde Children's Fashions

There is one style of coat that is universally flattering to juveniles of the feminine gender, and that is the princess coat. It has a way of giving breadth to the slender silhouettes of growing youngsters and, at the same time, gives an illusion of fitting the figure, too. Another favorable thing about the princess style coat is that it makes up well in a wide variety of fabrics. Woolens of all types will, of course, be selected for autumn and winter wear.

There are two ways you can style the neckline. It may have a rever collarline through which peeps the warm sweater worn beneath, or the neckline may be round and high, and trimmed with a self-fabric collar. Buttons may be arranged in any number of ways, as the sketch illustrates, and pockets may or may not be used, as you prefer.

You will find this coat a delightfully simple one to make. After cutting, which the pattern makes remarkably easy, you simply join a few seams, apply the finishing touches, and Annabelle will have a new fall coat in almost the time it takes to tell about it.

Style No. 2684 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, and 8 years. Size 4 requires 1½ yards of 54 inch material for the coat and hat, and 1⅜ yards of lining. The hat pattern is included at no extra cost.

New Linoleum Patterns Have Dignity, Gayety

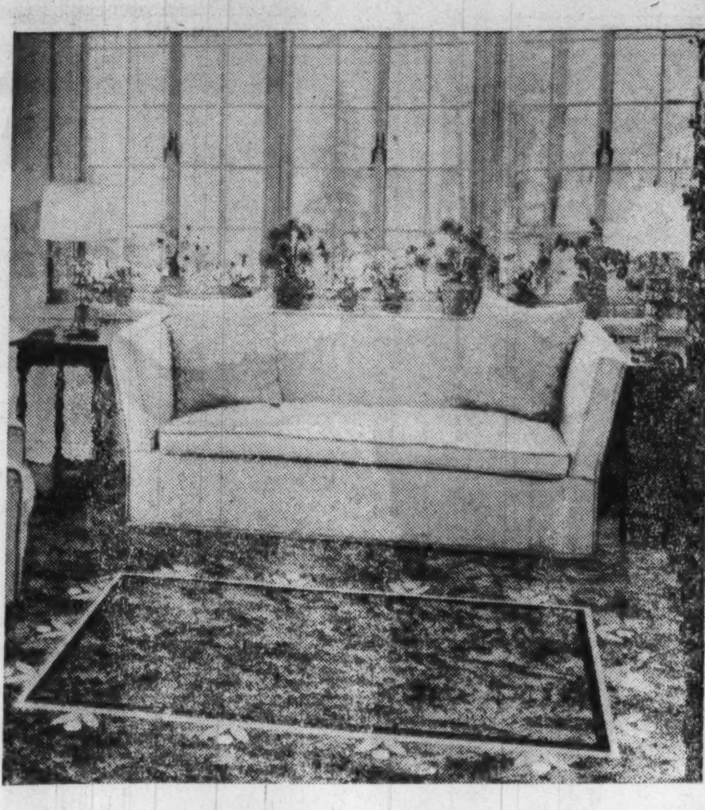
The new linoleums you'll see in the stores this coming week are something to write home about. In fact, they're something to put right in your home and enjoy.

The gay, bright patterns will be best in the kitchen; the dignified marbleized effects are stunning for the hall; special designs are made with the game room in mind, and there are others that will brighten your sun room on long winter days to come. And if you are desirous of having a floor that is quite different from any one else's you can make use of individualized insets, clever motifs that can be put right in the linoleum in any outline or pattern you wish to create.

So that the customer can see just how these borders and bands and cutouts are going to appear in the room in which they are to be used one manufacturer supplies the retail dealer with a convenient book. On the various pages are all the new colors of linoleums and over each page fits a transparent sheet on which are the available cutout motifs. By simply placing these over the linoleum you can tell just how they'll look when your floor is finished. This is a great help to one who doesn't have a visual mind.

The photograph shows a charming sun room the floor of which is done in gray and white marbleized linoleum with a center rectangle made by feature strips of black and emerald green. The little motifs are yellow discs and emerald green leaves. They come already made and are easily set into the linoleum.

Such a floor as this is as practical as it is pretty, for it is so easy to keep clean. If you start off by waxing it it will not require washing more than once in two weeks.



AN INDIVIDUALIZED FLOOR

This smart sunroom is all ready for winter with its bright new linoleum floor covering. The little insets and border strips can be placed in any manner you wish, thus creating a personalized floor.

New Lamp Bases Flowers of Spring

Flowers that bloom in the spring are continuing to burgeon right through the fall and winter. They're under glass, though, and they look real, but are artificial. They are bases of lamps.

These ultrasmart new accessories give a living room that touch of color and beauty it needs. Imagine a lamp with a huge white shade bound in rose red velvet and a base made up of a cluster of small, deep red roses and white flowers under glass. The light shining on the flowers makes a lovely picture.

Some of the new shades are practical as well as pretty, too. They're of eyelet embroidery and of crisp white organdy and they snap on over a plain white parchment shade. Just pull them off and launder them when they are soiled, then snap them back on again!

Efficiency the Watchword in Modern Kitchen

There's an old joke about the changes that would be made if the man of the house turned housewife for a day. The jest, nevertheless, rings true in these modern times. He would probably hie himself away to the nearest store for some of the labor and time savers that he has seen advertised in the newspapers.

The scientifically designed tables, ranges, refrigerators and other kitchen equipment not only save food and steps, but also harmonize in shining smartness.

To avoid the ache that comes from stooping the working surface should be chosen for just the right height. With further consideration for Mrs. Housewife, who spends a surprising amount of time in the kitchen, there is a table for preparing the raw food, another near the dining room that can be used for the hot dish at the beginning of the meal and can be used for the dishes that are later cleared away.

The following is a suggested arrangement of kitchen pieces: Refrigerator, food cupboards or cabinet, stove, serving table, sink, drainboard, and dish cabinet. The pieces will vary with the families' needs and budget, but arrangement should be based on the steps to be taken in preparing the average meal .

Walls should be of a cheerful light shade, cream being more practical than pure white. Light green, gray, blue, or yellow are also popular choices of housewives.

Manufacturers are definitly on the housewife's side and are doing their part to help her enjoy turning out a well-cooked appetizing meal. The old bugaboo of stove cleaning has been banished by the new, easy-to-clean features of the gas ranges. Reliable oven controls and handy drawers and compartments for utensils are other points in their favor. For the electric minded, ranges now have new mechanical features and newly developed high speed units which are designed to give faster and more efficient cooking results.

Nor are the refrigerator manufacturers to be caught napping. Greater performance and efficiency are built into today's models. Specially constructed trays make the removal of ice cubes a simple process. The new low temperature control makes for economy of operation, and the rustproof adjustable trays are easy to clean.

Now the kitchen blooms forth in all its chromium splendor, with tubular legs and comfortable letheret covered chairs. Matching stools, to lighten the process of peeling potatoes at the sink, have metal form-fitting seats and backs.

Cosmopolitan Furniture Is Suave in Line

Cosmopolitan is the name of a new group of furniture for the living room, dining room, and bedroom. It is modern in the sense that it is contemporary, being made by a well known Grand Rapids firm, but it is not designed in the manner of the modern with which many of us have become familiar. Instead, it has gathered together the finest ideas expressed in the golden age of cabinet making, the 18th century, and has combined them in a style that is graceful, dignified, and beautiful.

If you're period wise you can trace the influence of Sheraton and Hepplewhite and Chippendale in the lines of the various chairs, tables, desks, and cabinets. There is a trimness of form that is pleasing, too, to home owners who are weary of overornateness.

The dining room in a series of interiors furnished in this cosmopolitan line is especially interesting. Instead of the usual rectangular dining table an oval line is used and the chairs that go with it have curved backs which repeat the curve of the table. The seats are covered in a striped brocade.

The china cabinet in the suite is beautifully proportioned and has a simple, square, glass top section with drawers and cabinet space below. Above the sideboard hangs a round mirror.

The bedroom displays beds which have head boards that seem a little higher than those found on modern styles. The foot boards curve over slightly at the top. The bureau is of generous size and above it hangs a good looking mirror.

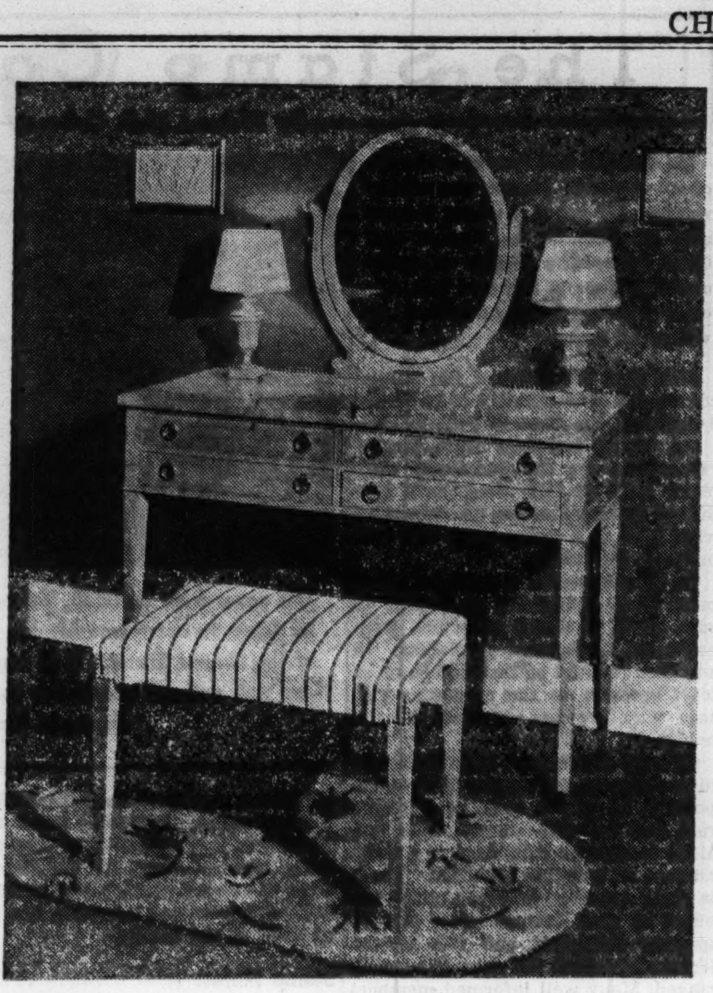
The handsome dressing table is shown in a photograph elsewhere on this page. Notice the little metal gallery at the rear of the top, and the lovely curves of the mirror frame. The legs of both the dressing table and the accompanying bench are tapered in the manner of the best 18th century craftsmen.

The wood used in all of this furniture is Honduras mahogany which has been bleached and glazed and given a hand rubbed finish. Because of its light color it is ideal for the room papered or painted in the popular pastel and grayed light tones.

Rooms furnished in cosmopolitan pieces are open to public inspection during National Home Furnishings week and thereafter.

How to Heat Milk.

Milk scorches easily, so heat it in a double boiler or warm it over low heat in a pan set on an asbestos mat. To help keep the milk from sticking to the sides rinse the pan in cold water before heating.



FOR MODERN BEDROOM

Part of a new line of blond mahogany furniture being introduced to Chicagoans, this handsome dressing table is a member of a bedroom grouping. A combination of 18th century styles is seen in its designing together with the modern feeling for simplicity of form.

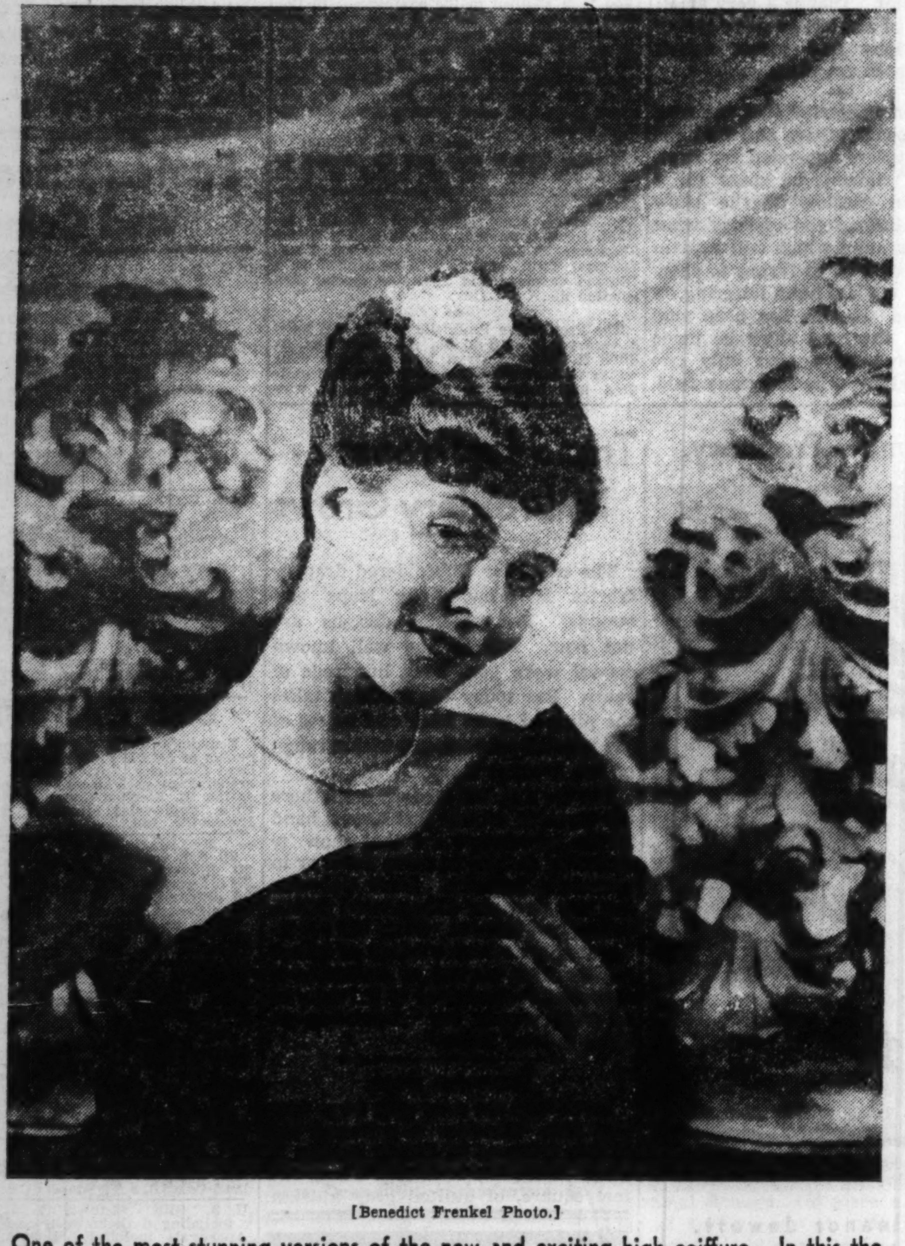
Burl Veneers Come from Tree Tumors

How many people know that the beautiful burl veneer used on some of the most handsome furniture comes from tumors or warts that sometimes appear on trees?

Curly or wavy grain, known as "cross figure" and "cross fire," in a mahogany log cannot be explained. Some trees have it, while others do not.

Through the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle



[Benedict Frenkel Photo.]

One of the most stunning versions of the new and exciting high coiffure. In this the hair is shortened and expertly shaped so that the feeling of height is one of movement rather than placement. The downward swoop over the forehead gives balance and a demure softness.

The fashion scouts report that in Paris the war over high coiffures is definitly over. The high hairdress has won a sweeping victory, so much so that the great dressmakers, milliners, and jewelers are keying their collections to the high line reminiscent of 1900.

The battle still wages around these parts, however. The average woman is proving reluctant to accept the upswept vogue, although the smart women have adopted it rather joyfully. Even the college girls are forsaking the long, loose bobs that have been their favorites for the last few years. They tuck up their curls in the evening, almost invariably, although they might let them fly with the wind during the day.

The prettiest new versions of the high style have a balancing touch of fringe over the forehead that is important. It relieves the high coiffure of the severity which frightened so many women. This is the inspiration of a hair stylist who believes that the feeling of height should be one of movement rather than placement. He feels that shorter hair is the secret of the beautifully molded high hairdress, and that women who merely brush up their long bobs, pinned down with hairpins or small combs and topped with thick bunches of curls at the peak of the crown, lack smartness. Because it has no expert shaping it never can be a perfectly executed hairdress.

If you're wary about the hairdress we suggest that you do some arranging at home. Just swish it up and see what happens to your face. It can be cut later. Before the actual cutting you can work out some idea of your own. If the very high, very severe line seems too harsh for you, pull a bit down on the forehead in the old time pompadour effect. Nine times out of ten this is attractive and demure. Get yourself used to the idea. Then head for the best hairdressing salon you can find.

You'll like the high style once you work it out in the version most becoming to you. Like all revolutionary changes, it takes getting used to and requires individual adaptation. But as a fashion it's here to stay, so you'd better not delay a moment in adopting it.

Eleanor Nangle, "through her looking glass," sees everything that is new in the fascinating realm of beauty aids and tells you about them daily in The Chicago Tribune.

Attack Child's Faults from Varied Angles

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Several years ago, it was [one summer in the country] that it took place. At first I wondered, and then surmised, about little Frances.

She wouldn't eat—this three and a half year old.

She slept badly and had nightmares.

She cried for every little thing.

Her little face was unhappy looking.

She even had a bewildered expression behind her eyes. Then, one fall her older sister [nine] was sent away to school—an older sister, bright, petted, striking-looking, very much in evidence, and always favored by the parents.

Well, if ever there was the fulfillment of a psychologist's dream, the results that followed were it. Frances' mother herself finally tied it all up—cause and effect—when she saw the change take place.

First, the crying became more and more infrequent. Then Franny began to eat well. Next, the broken sleep knitted itself softly together into a long, dreamless rest.

And last, the small round face smoothed out and one saw how sweet and charming it really could be, with peace behind it.

Warnings aren't usually needed on this score. It is usually the reverse that causes unhappiness: The favoring of a second child over a first born. So either from warm, intuitive understanding and love, or from deliberate planning you've got to see to it that the second baby [or even the third may call for a weather eye on all quarters!] doesn't, as a lad put it, "gum up the works." Don't let a tangled situation develop; don't get caught unawares in the thrill, excitement and busyness of your second baby's coming.

• • •

While I touched upon this subject not so long ago in this column, today I want to go more fully into a sort of prevention and cure program—give you suggestions on [best of all] prevention, but also on cure, if things should get askew.

Naturally, it isn't humanly possible to forestall every behavior difficulty. Even if you could be quite perfect there are circumstances over which you have little or no control, and people in your child's life whose ideas conflict with yours. Still, if your general understanding and handling of your child are pretty much all right, you will prevent innumerable small and large troubles.

And among them is the difficulty we're talking about today—that of tumbling into the pitfalls that are found in the wake of a new baby barging into the family picture when the first born hasn't been prepared for it, or when as soon as it happens, he is unintentionally thrust into the background. This is one of the most easily preventable of troubles.

"We've never had a suspicion of trouble with Joey since Mary's arrival," writes one mother. "It's been the most satisfying thing—really the most beautiful—to see how he has responded to our inner determination not to let him feel defrauded by her coming, and at the same time to share it with him. I'm so glad I was warned in time of the complications that might follow if we didn't watch where we were going."

• • •

Other reports like that keep coming in, with details of interesting ways in which the first child was prepared for the baby's coming, or if too young for that, how he was eased through the time of his mother's absence at the hospital, and lovingly and understandingly treated when she reached home again with her surprise package.

But don't be discouraged if you haven't been aware of the need of "forehandedness." Permanent disaster doesn't necessarily result if you have mismanaged this important event in your life and that of your first child. If you've neglected prevention, cure is within your reach. The vital thing is to see the trouble for what it is, and to take it enough to heart to spend time and thought in straightening it out.

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: My girl, just 4, is so naughty, cross, and unmanageable nowadays that I am at my wits' end. She never used to be so.

"I read your article in the paper and thought you might help me to gain her obedience. I have a little girl, 19 months old, and it seems that she is getting to be like Molly—though she will mind her father, who is no more strict than I am."

• • •

In the first place, to establish and then to keep up obedience requires both time and patience—time and patience to wait a little for the small child's shift of interest and activity from the thing she really cares about to the less interesting [or highly interrupting] thing you have to require of her in her daily routine.

Remember: The small child's world is built around her mother, and when her mother deserts her in spirit, she feels deprived, there's a latent unhappiness, and she shows it in indirect and often curious ways. That some of these "naughty" ways [such as her refusal to eat or her moist "accidents,"] gain her the attention she longs for is at first accidental; but then are continued, for any kind of attention from her mother is better than being ignored. Yet, at the same time, scolding and being found fault with doesn't fill her real need. It's simply better than nothing.

"How To Gain Obedience" is the name of a booklet sent on request. To obtain it send a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

Patterns by Clotilde

By Clotilde.

Although styled especially for the mature silhouette, these dresses are youthful. They have dash and sophistication, and their impeccable styling will give you self-assurance such as you've never experienced before. Nothing can give a woman with a few extra pounds more of an inferiority complex than shopping for a dress to fit and flatter. Sometimes it just can't be found. But if you make your clothes yourself, you can't go wrong and always will be smart.

Style No. 3400 is decidedly youthful. Its high neckline is collarless and a length-giving panel lends distinction to the entire front. In the bodice area there radiates from the panel a generous amount of shirring to soften the line. The sleeves are puffed at the shoulders, while fitting snugly at the forearm and wrist. The skirt molds the hips, but flares gracefully at the hem. All types of silks make up well, especially the plain shades.

The center sketch and the one at the right are two versions of pattern No. 2060. Both are redingote or "coat dress" in their styling, the main difference being in the use of the fabric. The center version uses a figured silk and gives the neckline a contrasting touch of white. The version at the right employs a dark under light principle, employing light plain or figured material for the "coat" and dark for the under panel. Either silk or woolen makes up well in this style.

A hat pattern, which fashions all of the three chapeaux illustrated, is available for 15 cents extra. It is designed for one head size only, which you may adapt to your individual needs.

Style No. 3400 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material.

Style No. 2060 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 4¾ yards of 39 inch material, with three-eighths yard of 39 inch contrasting. Each pattern costs 10 cents.

It's a Help to Me, Says—

Opie B., Chicago: I found out this summer that if I put my electric fan near me when I peel onions it prevents me from weeping so much!

Mrs. G. R. E., Grand Rapids, Mich.: I find that the task of keeping my radiators spotless in winter is much helped by painting them each July. First I use a steel wire brush, and remove all trace of the old coating. Then I follow this with a good coat of metal primer. [This primer, I've learned, keeps the paint from peeling off.] Then I finish with a fine coat of flat paint—after the priming coat is thoroughly dry.

• • •

Patty G., Chicago: I've had good luck in taking a piece of dry starch to remove a spot of grease from wall paper. It almost always absorbs the grease, and then I remove the starch.

• • •

Mrs. Carrie A. Bower, Auburn, Ind.: I cook my fruit for jelly right in the bag, which is of strong material, of any desired mesh. I have a strong strip made fast to opposite sides of top edge [like a basket handle]. Then when fruit is ready to drain I slip this strip over hook and drain into same kettle. It saves handling!

On the House

By Louise Bargelt

Beautiful marble is now bidding for favor as an inexpensive surfacing for bathroom walls and floors. Did you know that floor marble can now be obtained for as low as a dollar a square foot . . . and wall marble as low as a dollar and a quarter a square foot?

If you are building or remodeling this fall look into the new window units which can be delivered to your home, complete with storm sash, screens, and weatherstripping. Which means the total elimination of such seasonal jobs as storm sash installations and removal, not to mention storage and painting and so on. But if you aren't in the market for new window units don't overlook the fact that weatherstripping and tightly fitting storm sash can save you some 30 per cent heat loss. In brief, unprotected windows cost money, and plenty of it, every month of the winter season.

From the clay pits of our prairie states come fine clays which are being made into softly colored roofing tiles.

To get more heat for your money you can get sheets of aluminum foil which can be placed behind each radiator so that the heat which is thrown against the wall will not be lost, but will be reflected and thrown back into the room.

Curious Mural Paintings Found in Rhode Island

Curious mural paintings in the Chinese manner have recently been discovered behind the panelling in one of the rooms of the Vesper house [1758] at Newport, R. I., a unique example of early decoration. The Family Welfare Society of Newport owns the Vernon house, some of the rooms of which are on view.

This handsome dwelling was originally the home of Metcalf Bowler, merchant, ship owner, and speaker of the general assembly. In 1773 he sold it to William Vernon, also a wealthy merchant and, during the revolution, president of the navy board. Here the Count de Rochambeau had his headquarters and here in 1781 Gen. Washington was entertained. The original knocker is to be seen on the door and a Vernon sedan chair is an interesting part of the furnishings.

Husband and Wife Paint Flagpoles for a Living

Tiring of keeping house, Mrs. Rita Penlon of San Francisco, Cal., took up her husband's trade of flagpole painting. They always work together and believe they are the only married team in the profession.

Poor Cooking Can Ruin Even Best Meat Cut

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune.]

When the steak is tough do you make libelous remarks about the butcher, swearing that he's handed you a dried out piece of an extremely elderly and ailing bovine?

You may be wrong if you do. For the truth is that even the toughest cuts of beef may be made tender by proper cooking, and the juiciest, most tender ones may be made tough by a careless cook.

Meat from a young animal always is more tender in the beginning than is that from an older beast, of course. The parts of the carcass which have had least exercise are most tender; conversely, those parts used most are toughest—the hard working heart, for example, and the leg and neck muscles.

• • •

Cookery methods for tough and tender cuts of meat are very different. Dry heat is employed for tender cuts, moist heat for tougher ones. Only the more tender parts of the beef animal will be considered in this article. Next Sunday we'll talk about cooking what is known in many a boarding house and college dormitory as "beef on the bias."

Tender meat is toughened by cooking at a high temperature and by cooking it too long, and its flavor is ruined if it's cooked by moist rather than dry heat. I'm speaking now exclusively of beef, for veal, although it is meat from a young animal, contains so much connective tissue that it usually requires moist heat.

Just which are the tender cuts of beef? one might ask. They include all the popular steaks—sirloin, porterhouse, T-bone, and club, usually the top round [not quite as tender as the others], rib roasts, tenderloin, sometimes shoulder and rump roasts. Steaks are cooked by broiling or panbroiling, the roasts and tenderloin by roasting uncovered in a moderate oven.

• • •

Epicures prefer their beef slightly on the raw side. A steak should be quite pink in the middle, and a roast rosily juicy. The well done steak or roast has less juiciness and flavor than does the rare or semi-rare piece of meat. I know that there are some persons to whom rare meat looks "raw," but the fact is that the meat proteins are cooked before there is a color change in the meat.

ROAST BEEF.

Rib roasts are considered choice. A rib roast may be bought "standing," with the bone in; "folded," with the ribs sawed across, folded and tied; or boned and rolled. Roasts may be cut from the shoulder of beef, too, and if the meat is of excellent quality, from the rump, the chuck rib, and top round. In medium grade or lower quality beef these cuts must be cooked by braising.

To cook a beef roast place it fat side up on a rack in an uncovered roasting pan in an oven preheated to 300 to 325 degrees. Salt the meat before putting it in the oven or after it has cooked a while. It makes no difference to flavor one way or another. Roast 18 to 20 minutes per pound for rare beef, or to an internal temperature of 140 degrees by the meat thermometer. For medium rare beef allow 22 to 25 minutes per pound, an internal temperature of 160 degrees. And for well done beef, roast 27 to 30 minutes per pound, which should give an internal temperature of 170 degrees.

BROILING OR PANBROILING BEEF.

Any of the tender steaks is cooked by one of these methods. To broil place the steak on a rack in a broiling oven heated to moderate, 350 degrees, and let cook until well browned on one side. Season that side with salt and pepper and turn to brown the other side in the same manner. Season the other side and serve the steak sizzling. A steak 1½ inches thick requires 15 minutes to a side as a rule. This is for cooking to the medium-well-done stage.

To panbroil a steak heat a skillet sizzling hot. Do not add fat. Place meat in hot pan, brown on each side, and then reduce heat to finish cooking. Pour off fat as it accumulates in the pan so that the meat is broiled, not fried. Allow about the same time for cooking by panbroiling as for oven broiling.

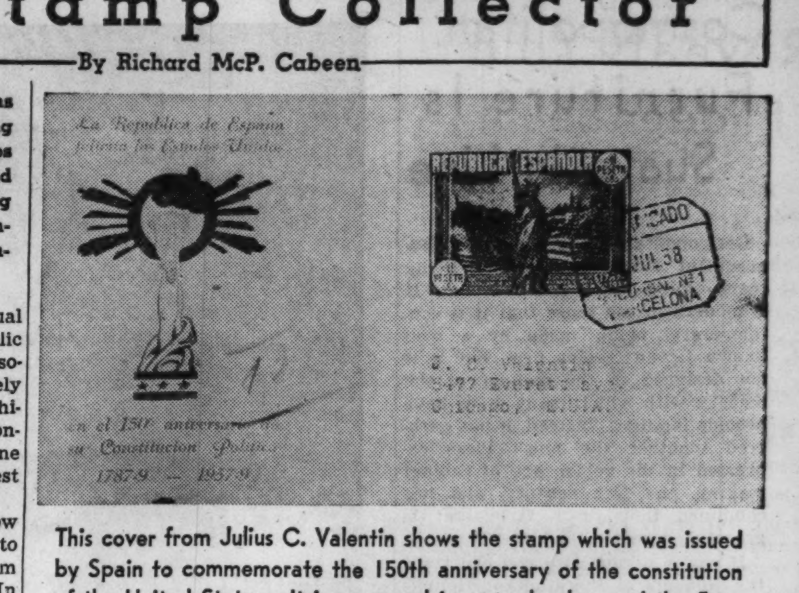
The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen



This cover from Julius C. Valentin shows the stamp which was issued by Spain to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the constitution of the United States. It is engraved in several colors and the flags are well defined except for the fact that the United States flag is shown in red, yellow and blue.

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning values. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Following the close of the annual convention of the Society of Philatelic Americans, the Chicago Philatelic society, whose members were largely responsible for the successful exhibition held at that time, have conducted an open forum to determine what kind of a stamp show will best promote the hobby.

To be successful, a national show must have something to appeal to each grade of stamp collectors, from beginners to extreme specialists. In addition, it must be instructive, or at least amusing to the numerous visitors who are not devotees of the hobby.

Chicago shows have been fortunate in one respect, for usually it has been possible to exhibit some of the very rare and valuable stamps. This fact alone assures an exhibition of a great amount of valuable publicity. There is some question however about the effect of such stamps upon the beginning collectors and the noncollectors for whom the show is actually staged. Many well informed members of the stamp collecting fraternity believe that too much stress placed upon rare stamps has a tendency to frighten away possible collectors rather than attract them.

It is generally conceded that the greater part of the exhibit should consist of material within the financial reach of the average visitor. It is noteworthy that the grand award at the recent S. P. A. show was won through an original study of varieties in a comparatively common British one penny stamp.

Several years ago, the late Charles Lathrop Pack, famous collector and authority on forest conservation, won the highest award in an international show with a painstaking study of a very cheap Brazilian stamp. Mr. Pack, whose collections included reconstructed plates of some of the world's rarest stamps began the Brazilian study to prove to his friends that cheap stamps, properly classified, could be as interesting as the more valuable Sidney Views and Laureated Heads.

Local exhibitions contain an overproportion of United States stamps. This is due to the fact that more than half of the collectors feel that they are specialists of one sort or another in this field, and also to the fact that the standard exhibition gives as many or more prizes in the United States section, as it does for the stamps of all the other countries of the world. Often the United States prizes are doubled by providing separate awards for 19th and for 20th century issues.

Nearly 400 frames of stamps were on view in the recent show and it is fairly safe to say that not more than twenty-five foreign countries were represented by collections or by specialized studies. That is a very small number out of the 950 or more stamp issuing nations and states which could have been on view.

It has been suggested that the next show be noncompetitive and that the money heretofore expended for cups, medals and ribbons, be spent for a well written catalog of the show which will inform the visitors what it is all about, and which will explain what each collector is trying to show without the endless hand lettering on album pages. It also has been suggested that the next show be made more comprehensive, that only two entries be allowed in the same field, and that a maximum value be set for a single entry. This is as much the problem of the visitors as it is of the stamp club members, for the former make the shows possible. Suggestions will be appreciated from any one interested in the hobby.

Stamp Notes.

The total number of Iowa territory commemorative stamps sold at Des Moines on Aug. 24, the first day, was 452,691, valued at $13,580.73. At the same time 209,860 first day covers were postmarked.

The first day sales of the $1 Woodrow Wilson stamp of the new regular series amounted to 31,312 copies. There were 24,618 first day covers postmarked at the Washington, D. C., postoffice. Local collectors are making wagers on the number of $5 stamps which will be sacrificed later in the year to make first day covers. Some believe that the number will be less than 1,000.

The postoffice department has announced the sources of the portraits which will appear on the five values of the Presidential series to be released in September. The ten cent value bears a profile of President Tyler from a bust by Charles Keck, now in the rotunda of the Virginia state capitol at Richmond. The 11 cent stamp shows James K. Polk from a medal prepared by the United States mint. The name of the designer is unknown. Zachary Taylor, on the 12 cent value, is taken from a portrait bust by F. William Siebers, also now located in the state capitol at Richmond, Va. The 13 cent stamp has a portrait of Millard Fillmore from a bust in the gallery of the United States senate. The $2 Warren G. Harding stamp will have a portrait taken from a medal designed by George Morgan, engraver at the United States mint at Philadelphia.

The 10 cent value was designed by William K. Schrage, while the portrait was engraved by C. T. Arlt, and the lettering by J. T. Vail. Robert L. Miller Jr. designed the 11 cent stamp and Leo C. Kauffmann engraved the portrait and J. T. Vail, the lettering. Mr. Schrage designed both the 12 and 13 cent values, and John Eissler engraved the portrait of the former and S. Pauling, the latter, while Mr. Vail engraved the lettering for both. Victor S. McCloskey Jr. designed the $2 stamp and S. Pauling engraved the portrait and E. M. Hall the lettering.

The African World, London, notes that a German writer has stated that types of German aircraft appear upon the postage stamps of not less than sixteen foreign countries. Austria, Estonia, Sweden, Jugo-Slavia, Southwest Africa, Iran, China, Greece, and several South and Central American states are included in the list.

The new Nigerian stamps are disappointing, according to a statement in the African World for July 23, 1938. This mentions an indifferent portrait of George VI. flanked by palm trees and suggests that every one would have been pleased had the pictorial design of 1936 been adapted to the new issue. In the same publication there is a statement commenting upon the rapidity with which new George VI. stamps have been provided for the colonies. At the time of writing some thirty colonies and territories had been supplied with complete sets. Perhaps this extreme speed had some bearing upon the designs used.

Wooden nickels may not be stamps or coins but they will be issued in eight varieties to commemorate the National Chickamauga celebration at Chattanooga, Tenn., Sept. 16-25, 1938. For each "nickel" desired, remit 5 cents in coin to United States Chickamauga Celebration commission, Chattanooga, Tenn., and it will be mailed in a franked envelope and have the special cancelation die.

The Progressive Philatelic society will have a card party at 8 p. m., next Saturday, at 3008 N. Whipple street to raise funds with which to continue work among crippled children and tubercular shut-ins. Those who cannot attend the party may make donations of stamps, seals, poster stamps, or anything of similar nature. Address Alice C. Westphal, president, 3008 North Whipple street.

September Prophecy.

By Eleanor Jewett.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Gray geese are flying low,
Clouds the autumn breezes blow
From north to south and east to west—
Wherever it for geese is best.

The clouds lie soft along the sky,
Gray-feathered, silent, drifting by;
When later, these geese moult, I know
Their falling feathers will be snow.

Trend for Drapery Embroidery Grows

The trend for embroidered drapery fabrics is growing by leaps and bounds. Embroidered designs are not new. Indeed, the well known crewel work goes back hundreds of years. But today the machine takes the place of hand labor and prices of the finished products are within range of the average budget.

For the Swedish modern room there are textured cottons that have a hand woven appearance and that show interesting designs in naïve floral or in geometric patterns. More elaborate are silk or rayon embroidered failles, satins, and taffetas. Often the stitching simply outlines a flower or foliage motif. This revival of embroidered draperies is an answer to the demand of many women for "something besides printed linens."

Enormous Bags.

Little hats are seen with large bags this fall. Consider a brimmed hat of felt, trimmed in draped kidskin in gray. With this is carried a bag, two feet square, of quilted gray kidskin.

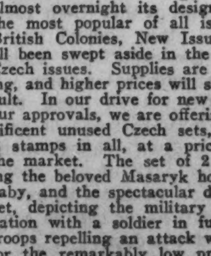
CZECHOSLOVAKIA
Europe's Powder Magazine



Headlines shriek aloud the world's fear of war over Central Europe's last democracy! Czechoslovakia is a name on the lips of every man, woman and child throughout the world. The world crisis is strongly reflected by its postage stamps, and almost overnight its design has become the most popular of all issues. U. S., British Colonies, New Issues, etc., have all been swept aside in the mad rush for Czech issues. Supplies are fast diminishing, and higher prices will soon be the result. In our drive for new applicants for our approvals, we are offering three magnificent unused Czech sets, consisting of 4 stamps in all, at a price FAR below the market. The set of 2 values showing the beloved Masaryk holding a Czech baby, and the spectacular designs, each a set, depicting the military might of the nation with a soldier in full regalia and troops repelling an attack will all be sent for the remarkably low price of 10c to NEW approval applicants.

"Pointing Up" Reveals Your Hidden Beauty

How your health affects the beauty of your hair is one of the subjects treated in the booklet, "Bring Out the Beauty in Your Hair," by Antoinette Donnelly. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 5 cents. By postpaid mail, 7 cents.

By Antoinette Donnelly.

"Pointing up," that trick of heightening interest in her clothes, her silhouette, her walk, her posture, and the way she uses her head, hands, and feet is the secret of many a girl's smartness. Frequently it is the means of transforming mediocrity of personal appearance into compelling loveliness.

This trick, employed by women of the stage and screen, is known in the theater as "dramatizing." It can, in a less exaggerated degree, be used by any woman to lift her good points from ordinary mass levels of interest.

• • •

These observations come from Azadia Newman, young portrait painter in Hollywood, who puts likenesses down on her canvases of the screen's most famous beauties. And because she is a beauty in her own right, she is in a position to speak with authority on the subject of feminine pulchritude and smartness. Many of her commentaries on the screen star "pointing up" are on record at this writing in her collection exhibited in Hollywood's Stendahl galleries.

It is Azadia's opinion that women are not born charming and beautiful, any more than they are born good actresses or good artists. She believes that charm, beauty, and talent require an equal amount of hard work, painstaking effort, and intelligent use of ordinary endowments in meeting the demands for self-improvement.

"A good actress doesn't just walk before the motion picture camera," she explains. "She makes an entrance. She doesn't just hold her shoulders back and her head up. She carries herself like an empress. Her voice isn't just a voice. It's an instrument to be played upon with emotion and speech. Clothes aren't so many gowns and suits with matching bags, hats, and shoes. First, they're long lines to heighten her slenderness, broad lines to give her shoulders more width, which will make her hips seem narrower by contrast, raised waistlines to make her legs longer. Secondly, they're fabrics which will dramatize her figure, heighten her coloring, and lend make-believe to the little world of illusion in which she is playing a part."

Azadia explains that keeping their figures slender is another trick of "pointing up" used by stage beauties. A slender figure enhances the smartness of clothes and gives a woman the appearance of having been born and bred to them.

"The actress who neglects her figure," Azadia avers, "is likely to find herself recast from ingénue to character woman. So, time and effort given to exercise and sane dieting are part of her job. Many stars in Hollywood rely upon dancing to keep their limbs supple, their muscles flexible, and to achieve that exaggeration of movement which teaches them to point up their walk, their posture, and the way they use their hands, feet, and head. This is the reason why exhibition dancing so frequently is an auxiliary art acquired by girls who train to become actresses. It is just as effective for women off the stage who want to improve their walk, their posture, and their grace of movement."

The feminine ideal, observed by Azadia, is broad shouldered, small hipped, long legged. But no actress resigns herself to a lesser place in the sun because nature has failed to endow her with these ideal proportions, she points out.

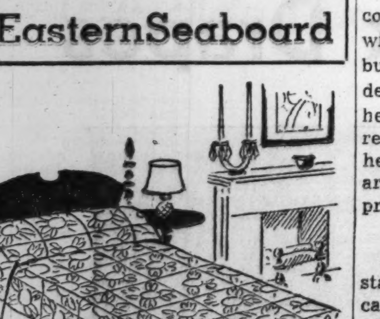
"She does something about it," explains the artist. "She takes special corrective exercises to improve figure defects. Those with which she can't cope are overcome by illusory tricks with clothes. Armholes are padded to build up the line over sloping shoulders, vertical lines are used to give her added height, a raised waistline redistributes inches from her torso to her legs. Facial defects frequently are remedied with makeup and proper hair styles."

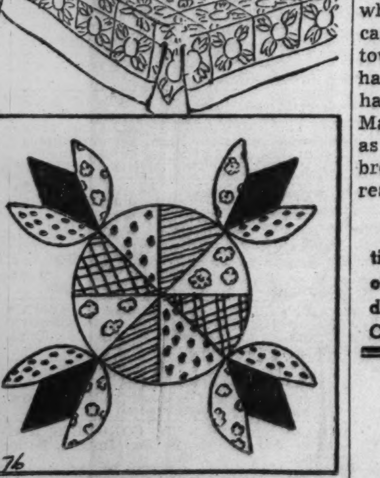
• • •

Azadia insists that those screen stars whose beautiful speaking voices can hold audience interest with a whisper have achieved them, in most cases, by long and patient effort toward self-improvement. Many have had to work as hard as singers who have gone in for operatic careers. Many of them, known to the public as finished actresses, still work at breathing exercises for more perfect resonance and modulation.

Miss Donnelly's authoritative articles, counseling women in matters of beauty and charm, appear every day in the feature pages of The Chicago Tribune.

Applique Quilt First Known on Eastern Seaboard





By Nancy Cabot.

"Painted Snowball," sometimes known as "Buckeye Blossom," is one of the rare old applique quilt designs first known along the eastern seaboard. It then drifted across the rolling prairies and settled in Iowa, there to become one of the state favorites. It has been made, under various titles, in virtually every state in the Union, but the two names mentioned above remain most popular.

For the applique pattern of "Painted Snowball," No. X-76, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

George Rector

When I was a youngster back in Chicago a chap named Malachy Hogan ran a saloon and lunch counter on Clark street. At the time, a well known monologist and comedian, John Kelly, also known as "The Rolling Mill Man" was appearing at one of the vaudeville houses. One night after Kelly finished his act, an old friend dropped in and suggested that they go over to Hogan's place for a drink and a bite to eat. Now Hogan's was noted for the genuine limburger cheese with the real tang to it. The friend acted as host and anxious to give Kelly a treat ordered beer and two limburger cheese sandwiches. Kelly took one bite and collapsed. His friend helped him to his feet and wondered what had happened. He assured Kelly that it was only limburger cheese that he started to eat. O, I know its limburger cheese, replied Kelly, but what did he put on it?

Well, now, I think I had better get down to business and write a few recipes which I hope you will enjoy.

BOILED MUTTON, CAPER SAUCE.

Select the leg or shoulder for this recipe. Have butcher trim and prepare meat for boiling. Put meat in a large kettle, add one bay leaf, one onion and two slices of lemon. Cover with boiling water; boil hard for eight or ten minutes, and skim. Cover kettle and let meat simmer until tender, allowing thirty minutes to the pound. When meat is half cooked add one teaspoon of salt to water. Let meat drain for five minutes then transfer to a dry hot platter for service.

Caper Sauce: Melt three tablespoons of butter, blend in three tablespoons of flour, one-half teaspoon of salt and one-eighth teaspoon of pepper. Gradually add one and one-half cups of hot mutton stock which has been skimmed of all fat and strained. Let boil five minutes; remove from fire and add two tablespoons of butter broken into small bits and one-half cup of capers, drained of their liquor and moistened with one teaspoon of strained lemon juice. A nice accompaniment to this dish is mashed turnips.

Not every one is fond of capers, so if you would like something different I would suggest an onion sauce to serve with the boiled mutton.

ONION SAUCE.

3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
1½ cups hot mutton stock
Salt and pepper to taste
2 tablespoons butter
4 medium onions

Melt butter; blend in flour and gradually add hot mutton stock which has been strained and skimmed of all fat. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Remove from fire and stir in two tablespoons of butter and onions boiled until soft, strained and chopped finely.

Here is a recipe that will take care of the mutton stock which you have on hand: Also using the scrag ends of cooked mutton.

SCOTCH BROTH.

2 quarts mutton stock
¼ cup pearl barley
¼ cup onion, cut in small dice
⅓ cup carrots, cut in small dice
⅓ cup celery, cut in small dice
½ cup white turnips, cut in small dice
1 cup cabbage, shredded
¾ cup mutton, cut in small pieces or dice
1 tablespoon parsley, finely chopped

Skim mutton stock of fat; bring to boiling point and add barley which has been washed in cold water. Add the diced vegetables and shredded cabbage. Cover kettle and let simmer about two hours, stirring occasionally and skimming as necessary. Then add the cooked mutton trimmed of all fat and bone. Serve piping hot with finely chopped parsley sprinkled on top. Soup should be thick but if it is found to be too thick dilute it with a little stock or water.

SOUTH DOWN SHORTCAKE.

2 cups cooked mutton or lamb, diced
2 hard cooked eggs, chopped
2 cups rich white sauce
Baking powder biscuits

Trim meat of all fat and bone and cut in small dice. Combine meat and coarsely chopped eggs with rich white sauce of medium consistency. Serve on freshly baked baking powder biscuits, split and lightly buttered.

I have had quite a few requests for German pancakes. Here is the recipe:

GERMAN PANCAKES.

3 eggs
¾ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup milk
1 tablespoon melted butter

Beat eggs without separating; add the flour and salt and part of the milk and beat until batter is smooth. Add balance of milk and melted butter. Pour batter into a large well greased frying pan and bake in a hot oven about twenty minutes. The ideal frying pan for this purpose should be heavy with slightly curved sides. Remove pancake to large hot platter; sprinkle liberally with powdered sugar and cinnamon and squeeze the juice of half a lemon over all. Roll pancake and serve. Or the pancake may be rolled with jelly or wild cranberries which make a delicious filling. Wild cranberries are very small and are preserved and imported to us from Europe.

It's Smart to Use Slip Covers the Year Around

The smart home manager uses slip covers on some of her furniture the year around. They protect the furniture, thus prolonging its use; they add touches of color to the room, and in many cases they dress up old and homely pieces, making them appear new.

But don't use the same material on all the furniture. Avoid monotony by having some chairs in striped fabrics, others in florals, and others in plain, solid colors.

◆

Instead of a small table, try placing one of the good looking magazine racks beside your most comfortable armchair. As a catch-all for newspapers, magazines, and folders of all kinds it helps to keep the living room wearing that well groomed look.

◆

Changing the fireplace mantel arrangement is fun and it will perk up an entire room. Put away the objects you've had there all summer and experiment with low pewter or brass bowls filled with bitter-sweet or artificial flowers. Or place a pottery jar of trailing ivy at either end of the mantel, and your clock or a group of interesting Chinese figures in the center.

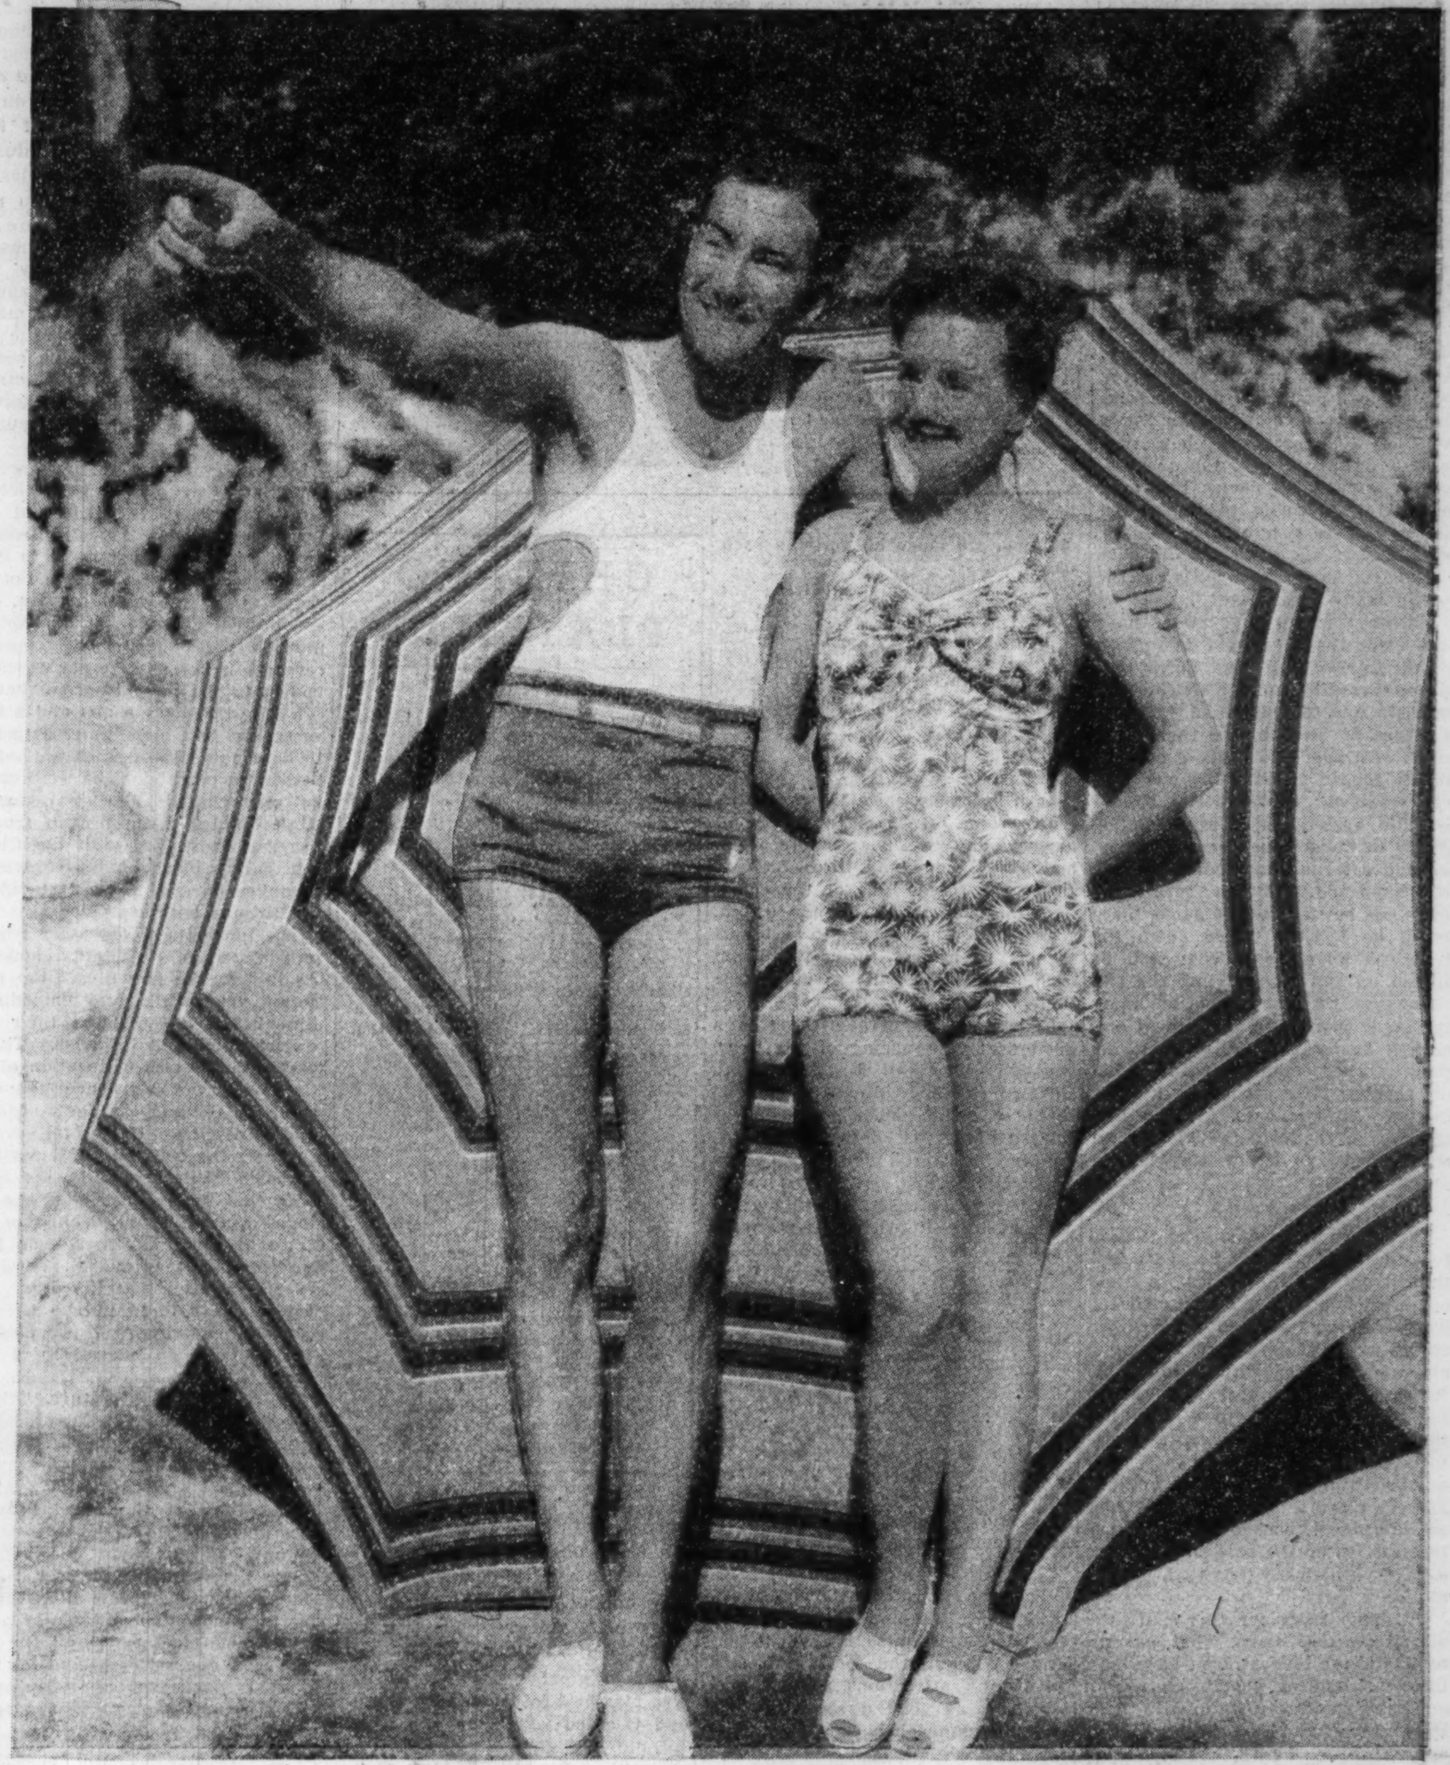
Part 7 | Movies Hollywood

Chicago Sunday Tribune
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

Part 7 | Drama Music Education

SEPTEMBER 18, 1938

This baby stare nipped in the bud Marie Wilson's dream of being a great dramatic actress. Now she plays lovable dimwits. Her latest release is "Boy Meets Girl," adapted from the stage satire.



In "Four Daughters" three sisters play leading parts. They are Rosemary, Lola, and Priscilla Lane. Here's Rosemary with the leading man, Jeffrey Lynn. Lola was the first sister to break into the movies. Rosemary and Priscilla followed suit in "Varsity Show." Both sang with Fred Waring's orchestra.

"Golden Boy" Opens Local Theater Season

By Cecil Smith

The Chicago stage stirred from its summer coma last week with the arrival at the Harris theater of the Group Theater's production of Clifford Odets' "Golden Boy." A capacity audience of first-nighters, sun-tanned and bearing the marks and scars of their summer vacations, turned out loyally to applaud the teamwork of Luther Adler, Frances Farmer, and Morris Carnovsky.

In the two seasons since the Group Theater appeared here before, in Mr. Odets' "Awake and Sing," in May, 1936, this distinctive company has passed through troubled times. Several of its prominent actors, as well as Mr. Odets, its pet author, were lured to Hollywood. There they were put through the wringer reserved for Broadwayites who are breaking into the movies. After a year or more they emerged considerably the worse for wear and eager to tread the boards of the legitimate stage once again, although Mr. Carnovsky in particular won wide favor among moviegoers for his contribution to "The Life of Emile Zola."

MORRIS CARNOVSKY

The New York première of "Golden Boy" last year celebrated the reunion of many former Group Theater players, and the rebirth of one of the country's smoothest ensembles. Five of the principal members of the "Golden Boy" cast were seen here in "Awake and Sing" — Mr Adler, Mr. Carnovsky, Roman Bohnen, Art Smith, and Phoebe Brand. The New York cast of last year has been brought to Chicago intact

All the virtues of well directed stagecraft which have made the Group Theater an admired institution are in evidence in their newest production. Several of the individual performances — notably those of Mr. Adler, Mr. Carnovsky, and Elia Kazan — belong in the virtuoso category. Yet the star system has not been allowed to prevail, and the excellences of the single players are skilfully geared into a well integrated, swiftly paced whole. The company, in short, maintains the standard it has set for itself in the past, and the performance belongs in the upper bracket of assured stagecraft.

So completely is this the case that the "Golden Boy" cast can easily afford to absorb the less skilled work of Frances Farmer without essentially hurting the total effect. Miss Farmer is a decidedly comely recruit from the cinema, with relatively little experience on the stage. As is so often true of movie celebrities, she does not have much range either of inflections of speech or of bodily plasticity. Her voice has a soft, pleasing microphonic quality, but there is no core to its timbre. Her (Continued on Page 2.)

Right gallantly Nelson Eddy pins an orchid on Jeanette MacDonald in this scene from "Sweethearts," an adaptation of Victor Herbert's operetta. The film was made to satisfy fans who have been feverishly demanding that Miss MacDonald and Mr. Eddy play together again.

Jai Alai Again Shows Its Face to Americans

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—Little by little we stay-at-homes have a chance to even things with the world travelers. Just this week we have had a chance to pick up the old Basque game of jai alai [call it hi-li, the program advises], about which our rich friends have been boasting exciting knowledge for years, they having seen it played in Havana, or Seville or perhaps Miami.

This, the enthusiasts have been quick to promise, is the fastest game in all the world. In Cuba it has been the national pastime since long before the first revolution. In Spain they like it almost as much as they do bull fighting. But, for one reason or another, no one has ever thought it advisable to import jai alai to this section of the country. Several years ago the sport did have a brief trial in Chicago, but went the way of many other "fads."

Whenever recent suggestions have been made that it should be imported, the answer has been quick that such a venture would be altogether too risky and too expensive. Jai alai is played on an immense three-sided court, with floor and walls of cement, like a squash court with one side wall removed. It would cost $50,000 to build such a court and another $50,000 to import the necessary players and set the game going. Then, if it happened that New York sport lovers did not take to the game, there would be $100,000. tossed down the drain, and quantities of cement to be broken up and dumped into the sea.

However, three or four of our more optimistic sports and amusement promoters finally decided to take the chance. They include Lee Shubert of the theater, Mike Jacobs of the 20th Century Athletic club, Richard Berensen, who conducts the Florida jai alai games, and Harry Kaufman, a Shubert partner.

• • •

This quartet has taken over the old Hippodrome, which has housed everything from musical revues to grand opera, including box fighting jousts, ice skating contests and a one-ringed circus, and transformed it into a jai alai amphitheater with a court 150 feet from front to rear wall and 40 feet from side wall to a wire net that serves as a fourth wall and protects the spectators from such balls as may carom off the court, or mayhap the players. The walls and floor are of cement, backed by a composition said to be the hardest substance ever synthetically created, called gunite.

To make room for this court the old Hippidrome stage, what was the tank, and the orchestra pit have been torn out and a goodly section of orchestra chairs thrown in with them. It still leaves an amphitheater seating approximately 4,000 persons. There were that many present at the opening of the jai alai season Thursday night, and about as much enthusiasm as could reasonably be crowded into one arena. Whether succeeding audiences take to jai alai or not remains to be seen. The first audience was largely Latin in makeup, and the Latins know the game and love it.

Jai alai is not unlike squash rackets on a heroic scale, or handball save that it is played on a three-sided court and the players are each provided with a fiber arm extension shaped like the bill of a pelican in which the ball is caught and with which it is returned, handball fashion, to the front wall of the court at tremendous velocity. Frequently, being thrown 130 or 140 feet, the ball will strike the front wall and bound the length of the court to the rear wall, to be caught again and hurled back. It is nearly half the size of a tennis ball with a hard rubber core and each ball is handmade.

Fifty players have been brought from Cuba and Spain to introduce the game to America. They are small, dark haired men, and incredibly agile. In play they often fall prostrate and slide over the cement floor in making a difficult catch and return of the ball, turning on their backs to protect their arms as they go down.

The players are matched as evenly as possible by an official matchmaker. They play singles and doubles. The matches I saw were frequently tied, increasing the excitement. White and blue teams were never more than a point or two apart in the scoring. In Cuba and Miami, they tell me, the excitement is greatly increased by the betting. Odds change with the score and bets are made all through each match.

There was no public betting the opening night, nor is any likely to be permitted later. There is nothing in the law to prevent individuals laying wagers with one another, however, and if jai alai takes hold in America this probably will become the fad.

• • •

As a spectacle, jai alai has considerable color. There is a parade of players and officials before each match. A judge and three referees sit at the screen side of the court, like linesmen at a tennis match, armed with what appear to be tennis rackets to protect themselves from such misdirected balls as may come their way.

Following the parade there is a good deal of bouncing of the balls, submitted by a ball boy, before both sides are satisfied with the one chosen for play. The player serving hops toward the center of the back court, running backwards the last few steps, bouncing the ball, catching it in his arm basket or cesta, whirling about and hurling it with terrific force against the front wall. Should it bounce back across a designated center line he has a second trial without penalty. And, as in tennis, he takes his second service a bit easier.

The ball is kept in play until it is either shot out of court or one of the players misses it. The score for a miss is one point for the opponents, and the games are for the number of points stipulated by the referee before play—twenty points, or twenty-five, and sometimes for as few as seven points in elimination play.

• • •

The last shows of summer are still blooming. The new theater season, frequently postponed, is about to blossom. We end the mid-season spell with nine attractions still playing, which is as good a record as any recent summer has shown, and better than most.

"Our Town," the novelty drama for which the author, Thornton Wilder, was awarded the Pulitzer prize last spring, is now threatening to play through another season. Incidentally "Our Town" has a new bride in the person of a young woman from Omaha, Neb., named Dorothy McGuire. Dorothy is one of those sensitive, eager, and talented ingénues who arrive periodically to confound the prophets and disturb the parents of pretty daughters with stage ambitions.

After she left school, which was Pine Manor, at Wellesley, her mother brought her to New York for instruction. She studied singing and dancing, played a season with a summer stock company at Deertrees, Me., came back to New York to flirt with radio and understudy jobs and then walked smack into this chance to play one of the most sought after parts on Broadway. Plays it very nicely, too.

The original "Our Town" bride was Martha Scott, another attractive and talented youngster. So great a hit did Martha make that she was promptly snapped up for screen tests and is on her way to Hollywood. It happens that way once in a hundred times, which is enough to excite the entire ingénue world.

WHIMSY BY GARR

Eddie Garr, whose whimsical impersonations have been made known for some time on the stage and at the night clubs, headlines the show that opened at the Bon Air Country club Friday night.

Season's First Stage Venture Is 'Golden Boy'

diction never escapes the careful elegance demanded by Hollywood directors and it suggests little of Mr. Odets' unlucky, unhappy, confused "tramp from Newark." Most clearly of all she indicates her motion picture background by her failure to conceive her movements in terms of the ampler space afforded by the stage. In the movies the camera itself provides much of the movement necessary to avoid a static impression; on the stage acting seems bloodless and dead unless the actress knows how to move fluently, expressively, and with a good deal of purely choreographic imagination.

In a series of twelve short scenes punctuated by blackouts, "Golden Boy" tells the life history of Joe Bonaparte [Luther Adler]. Brought up with the idea that he is to be a concert violinist, and possessed of unusual talent in this direction, Joe abruptly—on the eve of his twenty-first birthday—tosses his musical career overboard, in order to make money in the prize ring, so that he can afford to have a girl and a high speed car. As a prizefighter he proves to be a natural—so much so, indeed, that in the climactic fight of his career he unwittingly kills his opponent. With his left hand broken from a previous fight, and with the Chocolate Drop's blood on his conscience, he takes his girl for a fast ride in his car, and both are killed.

The incidents of the story explain only a part of its vitality, however. As in "Awake and Sing," the characters are vividly and immediately brought to life through their own conversation and behavior. Thanks partly to the rich delineation of Mr. Carnovsky, the most memorable character in the play is Joe's sensitive and affectionate Italian father, who suggests the old Jew in Maxwell Anderson's "Winterset," in his insistence that inner sincerity is the only indestructible thing in human life. Once or twice his lines seem a bit forced, yet it is around the fixed pole of his idealism that the other characters are able to pursue their eccentric orbits without producing in the audience an impression of utter chaos.

As a piece of literature, "Golden Boy" is a mélange of humor, humanitarianism, and hokum, ranging from mere facility to an occasional approach to thinly disguised poetry. At the worst moment the mood bears an overpowering resemblance to that of Fannie Hurst, when Joe, offstage, plays his violin for the last time before renouncing music altogether. At best the moral tone of the play is lofty, even when the people on the stage are most quarrelsome—and the moral tone is none the less lofty because its preachments are seldom made explicit.

The next major opening in the offing is that of Tallulah Bankhead in "I Am Different," at the Selwyn theater on Wednesday, Sept. 28. The new comedy is an adaptation by Zoe Akins of a piece by the Hungarian author, Lili Hatvany, in whose "The Love Duel" Ethel Barrymore was seen here a number of seasons ago.

After a triumphant five week engagement in San Francisco, during which a new and expensive stage door was built for the Curran theater so that she would not have to pass through the former unattractive portal, Gertrude Lawrence is currently repeating her success in Los Angeles with Rachel Crothers' satiric comedy, "Susan and God." On Oct. 10 she will bring it to the Harris theater, in order that we Chicagoans may see Miss Lawrence's radiant self and hear Miss Crothers' fun at the expense of the Oxford Group movement, whose methods of evangelism are lampooned in the play.

The first autumn production of the Chicago Mummers theater will be Maxwell Anderson's "The Masque of Kings." Francis X. Bushman, former star of the silent movies, will have an important rôle.

Rumored for Chicago presentation during the first week of October is "A Woman's a Fool to Be Clever," a comedy by Dorothy Bennett and Link Hannah. The play was tried out during the summer season, and is ultimately headed toward Broadway. Ian Keith and Vera Allen are featured players, and the sets are by Donald Oenslager. No theater has yet been named, and no definite opening date set.

Vaudeville

Ed Sullivan, a daily contributor to THE TRIBUNE in his "Looking at Hollywood" column, is appearing in person at the Chicago theater this week. His associates in the current stage show are Benny Rubin, screen comedian; Ginger Harmon, singer; the Lathrope brothers and Virginia Lee; Jerry Adler, harmonica virtuoso, and the six Lindy Hoppers, champions in Harlem's recent "Harvest Moon Ball."

At the Palace theater the twenty-four Chester Hale dancing girls are presented in their third return engagement within a year. Other acts are Arren and Broderick, comedians; Chuck and Chuckles, dancers, and Rolf Holbein, magician.

In addition to the motion picture, "Scandal House," written by a Chicago woman, Madeline Woods, the State-Lake offers a stage bill featuring Carlton Emmy and his Mad Wags; Douglas Leavitt and Ruth Lockwood in "Satires of 1939"; Bert Lynn and company, exponents of the electric guitar; Mildred Parr, "delineator of sophisticated songs"; Burns, Moriarty and Dell in "A Dance Rendezvous," and Verne Buck and his State-Lake Sweethearts orchestra.

Publish Book of Sonnets by College Poets

By the Rev. John Evans.

The highways of education are so frequently traveled in this column that to turn off on a side road leading to a Pierian spring bubbling in Iowa is a welcome detour. So forsaking the concrete [just to continue the metaphor!] and turning to the abstract, Beauty, we shall consider the eleventh brochure in a series of chapbooks published by the English club of Cornell college, Mount Vernon, Ia., which has just reached this desk.

"No Beauty Lost" consists of thirty-one sonnets by sixteen authors which, over a period of years, have appeared in the Husk, another of this college's occasional publications. It is edited by Prof. Clyde Tull of the English department, whose opinion, as expressed in the foreword, is that these sonnets "are too beautiful and significant to be lost in the files of the magazine," thus we have in permanent form what otherwise might have been but fugitive pieces.

Nor, indeed, are Mr. Tull's adjectives by any means inapt, for there is beauty in most of them, and all are significant for the emotional skill displayed by writers whose profundity in life's experience is, presumably, limited by tender age. It is in those sonnets dealing with Nature's aspects in the varied moods of her seasons that beauty most often prevails. This is only to be expected, for appreciation of nature is quite independent of any philosophy of life and its poetic treatment is within the ken of any receptive mind. Ruth Messenger, for example, gracefully illustrates the vernal mood in "Shakespeare in Iowa":

And cowslips' bells, and fairy groves of broom
Bedecking the sweet English countryside,
He did not think to paint a fairer bloom
Upon a wild rose cheek, and when he praised
The glorious morning, gilding the pale streams,
He did not know the magic that he phrased
For this bright Iowa morning's golden beams.

Because an English boy loved English fields
Three hundred years and half a world away
One sees more clear the harvest beauty yields.
One weeps when rough winds shake the buds of May;
And at each pasture bridge one leans to look
And see the willows, grown aslant the brook.

And the aura of historic environment is acutely reflected in Jewell Bothwell Tull's "Mary, Queen of Scots":

These were your rooms; this was your bed, your chair,
And down these halls you walked with regal grace,
In pointed cap and collar of old lace;
This the dark door led to the secret stair.
Of that sad beauty that was sweet and rare
In this dim mirror there is now no trace;
For the proud glass that knew your winsome face
Gives back no image now, however fair.

Time, that has not destroyed this ancient wall,
These tapestries, this fireplace, this bed,
Decrees no rival beauty shall be seen.
Over this mirror throws a ghostly pall,
And, jealously faithful to the lovely dead,
Keeps undefiled, the memory of its queen.

Quoting these two sonnets, however, does not intend to point invidious distinction. They do, nevertheless, possess to a marked degree certain merits peculiar to the sonnet structure.

As when appraising a new symphony one looks beyond the emotional content of melody and rhythm into the solid structure of thematic development and extension of the sonata form, so also in judging a sonnet must one take cognizance of those properties particular to that form of composition. Merely adhering to fourteen lines with a stated rhyming scheme based perhaps on a somewhat slender concept does not necessarily constitute a sonnet; and more even than the flaw in a diamond can a sonnet be disfigured by a line guilty of monosyllabic monotony or an awkward tribrach [a foot of three short syllables.]

But the two sonnets quoted above fulfill at least four of the requirements in this strictest of all poetic forms: the demarcation between the octet and the sextet [last six lines of a sonnet]; the ritornello [a reflection in the last six lines of the idea contained in the preceding eight]; elegance of diction, and clarity of phrase.

The aim of these chapbooks [any of the small books formerly sold by hawkers] published by the English club of Cornell college is to encompass a "higher and more general appreciation of Iowa writers." "No Beauty Lost" will aid much in the furtherance of this aim.

Current Music News

Three of the world's best known tenors as well as a profusion of ballet organizations and some miscellaneous concerts are promised for this season by the Harry Zelzer management.

The tenors, in order of their appearance, are Jussi Bjoerling, who appeared here with the City Opera company and in one semi-private recital last season; Beniamino Gigli, Italian opera luminary who returns after an absence of several years, and Jan Kiepura, widely known for his motion picture work.

The Ballet Caravan, the Mordkin ballet, Trudi Schoop, Martha Graham, and Harald Kreutzberg compose the Zelzer ballet and dance list. Miscellaneous concerts include the Don Cossack chorus; Beatrice Bell, pianist; the Budapest university chorus, Mischa Elman, violinist; Yehudi Menuhin, violinist; Nelson Eddy, baritone, and Andres Segovia, guitarist. Miss Bell will play in the Studebaker theater. All of the other events are scheduled for the Civic Opera house and the Civic theater.

Saturday, Oct. 29.—"Otello," with Jepson, Martinelli, and Tibbett.

Sunday, Oct. 30—The Littlefield ballet.

Monday, Oct. 31—"Aida," with Giannini, Castagna, Martinelli, and Czaplicki.

Wednesday, Nov. 2—"Die Meistersinger," with Reining, Berglund, Vogel, and Maison.

Friday, Nov. 4—"Rigoletto," with Tibbett, Reggiani, and Tokatyan.

Saturday, Nov. 5, afternoon—"Samson and Delilah," with Castagna, Maison, and Morelli.

Saturday, Nov. 5, evening—"Madame Butterfly," with Reining, Czaplicki, and Tokatyan.

The Chicago Business Men's orchestra is resuming activities after the summer vacation period. Membership is confined to nonprofessional musicians. Application blanks may be secured at the offices of the Business Men's orchestra, 14 East Jackson boulevard. Three public concerts are planned for this coming season.

Either You Do or Don't Have Sense of Music

By Edward Barry.

People who approve on principle all of the so-called finer things of life and who have been trying unsuccessfully to add an appreciation of music to the other weapons with which they fight the general dreariness of existence are sometimes heard to complain of the lack of any books on the subject which begin near enough to the beginning.

They claim, these would-be music fanciers, that somewhere there should be a book which would start off with "Annie Laurie," explain just what is good about it, and then progress by easy stages to Strawinsky. By the time he has finished such a book the neophyte would be an accomplished music lover, with exact knowledge as to what to look for in music, how to feel while listening, and how to separate good from bad with an unerring hand.

This whole idea, alas, is based on no less than three misconceptions. They are: [a] Any one can learn to appreciate music. [b] A person can learn about the heart of musical experience from a book. [c] There are principles of good and bad which you must keep firmly in mind in listening to music.

• • •

To call music the universal art, as some of its more gushing votaries do, is sheer nonsense. The simple truth is that many people are absolutely incapable of responding to any but the lowest forms of music and that ten years of intensive conservatory study would leave them just about where they started.

Mysterious nature, when she deals to each person the cards with which he must play, seems to fix for life not only his general character but his esthetic makeup as well. Education and proper environment certainly improve a man's game and enable him to make the most of the cards which he has been dealt—enable him even to find certain cards which he did not know that he had—but all the education in the world can never entice an extra ace out of our parsimonious mother's pack.

In this connection one should stress again a truth which has been pontifically announced in this column before. There is no more reason to be ashamed of lack of ability to appreciate music than there would be of lack of talent for mathematics. Neither has any bearing on a person's general excellence. We have them or we haven't them. In the latter case tears and gargantuan effort are alike futile.

• • •

The second and third of the misconceptions are so closely related that they may be dealt with together. The idea that a person can learn the important things about music out of a book and that there are principles of good and bad which should be kept firmly in mind in all musical experience are both based on an unfortunate confusion between art and intellect.

The notion that art is an intellectual pursuit, or that it can be studied and appraised in intellectual terms has confused issues and bedeviled thinkers more than almost any other false premise in the history of philosophy. Because of the tremendous prestige of intellectualism even artists themselves have accepted the relationship with a sneaking pride.

The strangest thing about the prestige of intellectualism is that it has suffered little or no diminution [in the popular mind, at least] as a result of all the lamentable immoralities and the spectacular boat-missings to which the processes of pure thought have led. Remember that the idea of infanticide, and—a little closer to our present subject—the harmfulness of art, rest on the proudest intellectualistic foundations.

• • •

Art is a nonintellectual pursuit. There is nothing to learn about it in the sense that there is something to be learned about trigonometry. The important thing in art is experience—experience with the art work itself and not with anything that has been written or said about it. [This, of course, does not apply to the creator or to the interpreter. There are plenty of things which they must learn if they are to handle their difficult materials successfully.]

Art is an expression of feeling rather than of actual thought, and music is preëminent in this respect. Even Kant, who enthroned reason so high, gives over many a dull page to a demonstration of the fact that the esthetic judgment is nonconceptual—that is, we do not react to pure beauty by means of a mental process or evaluate it in terms of its intellectual burden [or of our preconceived ideas as to what it should be].

"Annie Laurie" [or Strawinsky, for that matter] cannot be explained. You either understand it or you do not, and "understand," as used here, is not to be construed as having any relation to purely mental process. If a piece of music does not, after a reasonable number of trials, express or communicate feeling, then either the piece is bad or the listener is as yet immature or is deficient in musical sensitiveness. To increase this sensitiveness radically it will not do for him to read a thousand books, absorbing and engaging and profitable though countless books on music are. He must arrange to be born again with a different set of cards.

EARLY BIRD

Rose Bampton, soprano, will give one of the first recitals of the season. She is booked into Orchestra hall for Oct. 15, as the opening feature of the popular price musical arts concert series.

New Conductor

The Metropolitan Opera association in New York has engaged a new assistant conductor for the 1938-'39 season in the person of Felix Wolfes. The conductor's career as an operatic conductor in Germany goes back to 1912. Until a few months ago he was in Paris, having left Germany in 1933 for political reasons. Recently he has served as accompanist to Marjorie Lawrence, dramatic soprano. During the seasons of 1935-'36 and 1936-'37 he served as chief conductor of the Monte Carlo opera. Although he has conducted most of the usual French and Italian répertoire, he has won special success in the works of Mozart, Wagner, and Strauss.

Raisa to Mark 25th Autumn in Opera Here

By Cecil Smith.

Twenty-five years ago next Nov. 29 a young soprano made her debut with the Chicago Opera association at the Auditorium theater, singing the title rôle of Verdi's "Aïda." The performance fell on a Saturday afternoon, and since it did not create any sensational stir discussion of it in musical columns of the Chicago papers was largely lost in the week-end shuffle.

If history were written backward the researcher into past events could count on finding ample columns of thoughtful and interested criticism. For the debutante on that forgotten occasion was the now celebrated dramatic soprano, Rosa Raisa, who this fall celebrates the completion of twenty-five years of vivid participation in grand opera in this city.

Miss Raisa was barely out of her teens when she received her first opportunity to sing for a Chicago audience. Cleofonte Campanini, musical director of the Chicago Opera association at the time, had discovered the young singer in Italy, and with the faith and imagination that characterized his leadership became convinced that she could achieve success in America.

• • •

By now Miss Raisa has been one of the ornaments of Chicago's musical scene for so long that it seems as if she had always lived here. The early facts of her life have not been widely publicized, but since they are of a sort to increase one's admiration for her courage and stamina, there can be no harm in telling them.

Rosa Burstein was born at Bialystok in Polish Russia. Her parents died when she was only 6. An uncle whose wife was musically gifted took over responsibility for his little niece, and the aunt gave Rosa her first music lessons.

Life was not smooth during the young musician's childhood years. Her uncle was expelled from Russia on political grounds, and the rest of her family suffered repeated hardships in a series of pogroms. With the poise in the face of difficulty that has characterized her later career, Rose stuck it out until, at 16, she was graduated from the singing school at Bialystok.

• • •

At this time a traveling operatic concert company took her into its fold, and by remaining with them she finally managed to reach Italy. Here she studied intensively, and made her operatic debut in 1910 in Rossini's "Semiramide." When Campanini heard one of her performances in this year he placed her under the tutelage of a teacher in whom he had confidence, and required her to study until the fall of 1913, when he felt she would be ready to come to America.

Her name—Rosa Burstein—Campanini found somewhat lacking in glamor, however. If an oft repeated tale is true, it was he who suggested that a good stage name could be made out of the name "Rose" in two languages—"Rosa" in Italian and "Raisa" in Polish. Like all such apocryphal legends, this explanation may be a popular fiction which Miss Raisa will explode on her return from Italy next month.

In her first appearances here in 1913 it soon became apparent that the young Raisa possessed, as one critic put it, "the future possibilities of a great artist." Probably a better story could be written by falsifying the facts and pretending that Miss Raisa sprang full panoplied into vocal and histrionic greatness in her first season. Actually no young singer ever does this, for the business of being a first rank opera singer is terrifically complex, and few singers ever reach anything like artistic maturity before they are 35.

• • •

So in her early seasons here Miss Raisa received reviews that must have been at once a tribulation and a challenge to her. Of her very second operatic appearance, Franchetti's "Cristoforo Colombo," for instance, THE TRIBUNE critic wrote of her: "Her voice has carrying power. But it is marred by an overemphasis of head resonance, and becomes nasal in consequence. Furthermore, it is not remarkable for evenness."

After her first season Miss Raisa went back to Italy to study for two more years. [How many young singers today would have the strength of purpose to interrupt a new and promising career for a two year period of study?] In the fall of 1916 she came back, and on Nov. 23 sang for the first time the rôle of Santuzza in "Cavalleria Rusticana," and won the first of a series of successes that have rewarded her electrifying performance in this opera. She has sung Santuzza twenty-two times in Chicago and twice in Ravinia, and there is no reason to believe that the world has ever seen a better protagonist of the part.

Another of the rôles particularly associated with her career, that of Maliella in Wolf-Ferrari's "The Jewels of the Madonna," fell her way the following season. The late Karleton Hackett was enormously impressed by her singing, which was marked by "stunning power and instinctive feeling for the rhythms." Striking a moralistic note about the character she was called upon to impersonate, Hackett used such pictorial terms as corrupt "spawn of the gutter" and "a psychopathogenic study in perversion." Really, I assure you, it's not as bad as that.

In December, 1919, Miss Raisa submitted to one of the supreme tests of her artistic career when she essayed the florid and exacting rôle of the Druid heroine of Bellini's "Norma." Hackett was not altogether satisfied. "When she had a dramatic phrase in long sustained notes she accomplished some remarkable displays of vocal prowess," he commented. "But when it came to the runs a good many of them had to be taken for granted."

Characteristically, Miss Raisa did not accept the partly adverse criticisms of her "Norma" as final. She dropped the rôle for nine years, then revived it, and won a major triumph. The very reviewer who had expressed his dissatisfaction before now awarded a palm, writing: "It was beautiful singing, with the breadth of phrasing, the sustained cantabile, the brilliant decorations and the dignity of bearing that altogether united to form the grand manner. . . . Mme. Raisa did it in such a way as placed her upon the vocal pedestal."

The rest of Rosa Raisa's career, since 1928, is recent history. She has won and maintained an enviable place in the affection of Chicago's musical public, and her anniversary this fall is an important milepost in local operatic history.

• • •

The tabulation of her accomplishments speaks for itself: 264 performances with the successive Chicago Opera companies; 21 performances at Ravinia; a repertoire of 35 rôles in Italian, French, German and English; the only singer Chicago has heard in 11 different leading rôles; the first exponent at the Chicago Opera company of 18 rôles, including such operas as "Andrea Chenier," "Falstaff," "Norma," "La Juive," "La Forza Del Destino," "Der Rosenkavalier," "Turandot," and "La Fiamma."

Let some other prima donna point to a more stupendous record!

Notes of Music and Musicians

Fortune Gallo's San Carlo Opera company, which opened an engagement in New York's Center theater last Thursday, will move into the Auditorium here on Oct. 3. The engagement is for three weeks, during which time this energetic troupe will put on no fewer than twenty-four performances. Instead of resting, the company will then embark upon a transcontinental tour.

Returning to the San Carlans this year are Lyuba Senderowna, Russian mezzo, and Rolf Gerard, American tenor. The roster boasts such familiar names as Saroya, Koyke, Greco, Turner, Bruno, Ippolito, Lindi, Onofrei, Thomas, Valle, Kozakevich, Kravitt, and Cervi. Carlo Peroni continues as conductor.

The first week's répertoire is as follows: Monday, "The Barber of Seville"; Tuesday, "Aïda"; Wednesday, "Rigoletto"; Thursday, "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci"; Friday, "Madame Butterfly"; Saturday afternoon "Faust"; and Saturday evening, "Carmen."

A partial répertoire for the Chicago Symphony orchestra's forty-eighth season [beginning Oct. 13 in Orchestra hall] has been released.

Ernst Krenek, Vienna born composer of "Jonny Spielt Auf!" will play his own piano concerto and will probably conduct his "Triumph der Empfindsamkeit."

Storm Bull is to play a piano concerto by Béla Bartók. The Alban Berg violin concerto, presented successfully in Boston last season, will be performed here by Louis Krasner.

Other out of the ordinary music includes a John Ireland piano concerto, Mahler's "Lied von der Erde," and the Leo Sowerby organ concerto. Igor Strawinsky's program is not yet available.

Central church resumes its Orchestra hall 11 o'clock services this morning. The Central church chorus, directed by William Hughes, will be supported by Archer Lambuth, organist.

Rosa Raisa and Giacomo Rimini cable from Italy the news that Virginia Haskins, one of the pupils whom they took abroad this summer, has made a successful appearance as Gilda in Verona.

EDUCATIONAL. EDUCATIONAL. EDUCATIONAL.

ATTEND COLLEGE THIS FALL At Low Cost

Are you ambitious to secure the benefits of a college education? At the same time, do you face the problem of how to finance your way on a modest budget? This is a condition confronting many students and their parents today.

CENTRAL YMCA COLLEGE

a fully accredited senior college for men and women, offers you the opportunity to start your college course now — this fall. Here are a few of the reasons:

Low Tuition. A full half-year program including two laboratory subjects costs only $97.00 — no extra fees.

Spaced Payment Plan. Tuition payments are adjusted to your finances with only a modest initial payment necessary.

Loan Funds. These are available to entry Freshmen as well as to all other students needing assistance.

Student Employment. Many positions in the College are available to students to help them defray expenses.

Placement Service. This office assists students, without cost, in finding part time jobs in business firms.

Convenient Loop Location. You can attend college while enjoying the comfort and economy of living at home.

Day or Evening Classes. This flexible schedule makes the facilities of Central College available to everyone — the employed person as well as the full time day student.

FOR THOSE WHO WILL—IT CAN BE DONE

Central YMCA College is a senior college member of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools; also of the Association of American Colleges. It offers you a well balanced program of cultural, pre-professional, and specialized business courses leading to degrees. 4500 students enrolled annually.

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

Fish pirates. Ever hear of them? You're going to now.

It seems that about the time when cattle rustling was the problem of the new west, fish pirating troubled the pioneers making a living on northern waters. These pirates were men who robbed fish traps put out by men engaged in salmon fishing—holding that the ocean belonged to no one and that, therefore, its denizens were the property of all. . . . So, at last, hardy natives took the law into their own hands as did the western vigilantes and there was hell and bloodshed to pay.

Henry Fonda and George Raft, as a sort of Damon and Pythias, are the heroes of the piece. The former goes right. The latter, wrong. But, in the end Tyler Dawson's supreme sacrifice, when he realizes the mess he has made, provides the picture with its big punch and a crashing [literally!] big punch and a crashing [literally!] finale. . . .

The production's too great length interferes somewhat with its hold on your interest, but nevertheless it is a worthy and exciting show, its red blooded fiction tinctured with fascinating information on the fishing industry. For example—did you know that vibration produced by the human voice could reduce an iceberg to smithereens? No? Neither did I till I saw "Spawn of the North."

Performances are excellent, with special mention being hereby accorded George Raft, Lynne Overmann, John Barrymore, and a trained seal. [Dorothy Lamour really SHOULD have edited that sweater!] Which, of course, is no reflection on her acting.

The picture is magnificently backgrounded, well directed in the main—and about two reels too long.

See you tomorrow.

Labor Stage

Illinois history is slated to occupy a prominent place in the future doings of the Labor Stage [the International Ladies' Garment Workers union unit whose fame and fortune were made by "Pins and Needles"]. John P. Altgeld, governor of Illinois during the Pullman strike of 1893, is to be the subject of a play, for which Elmer Rice is named as a potential author. Labor Stage already owns the rights to two literary works about Altgeld, Harry Barnard's "Eagle Forgotten" and a biographical work entitled "Altgeld of Illinois."

THE LAW

Over on the Roosevelt screen Edward G. Robinson is holding forth in "I Am the Law." And is he making folks step 'round! Yeah BEBBY!

Praying Mantis Aids Play.

The box office men at the Lyceum theater in New York, where "Bachelor Born" is now in its ninth month, have discovered a good luck charm in the form of a praying mantis. Ever since the bewildered insect was discovered in the lobby, business has climbed up and up until it has reached an all-time high. Consequently the boys are feeding the mantis religiously on a unique diet of pears and water.

Shakespearean Repertoire.

Maurice Evans will devote most of the coming season to a Shakespearean répertoire. In addition to "Richard II." and "Henry IV. [Part I]" both major memories of the last Chicago season, he plans to add "Hamlet" to the list. Come spring, he will leave Shakespeare behind, to act in a new play by Monckton Hoffe, in which a historical character, as yet unrevealed, will be treated in modern terms.

Richman Still Keeps Dust Off the S. R. O. Sign

It's nearly 3 a. m. . . . Enough delegates from Chicago's café society to jam every table and nearly every aile have sat or stood for seven hours to hear and see one man. . . . The ermine and silver fox on display would reach from here to breakfast. . . . Enough celebrities on display to make a mob scene in the movies.

It is Harry Richman's opening night at the Chez Paree. . . . At a reported $3,000 a week, they say he's the highest [or at least the next to the highest] paid single act of the night clubs. . . . He gives a dizzy exhibition of how he earns it. . . . He sings, everything from "Bicycle Built for Two" to "Music, Maestro, Please," and the crowd yells for more. . . . He quips pungent drolleries, and the crowd goes into hysterics. . . . The act over, he makes the rounds of the tables, and tells how he wowed 'em in London, and the diners like it.

● What is Richman's special appeal? . . . Use all the overworked words—charm, personality, magnetism, and any others you can think of—and you still miss the mark by a mile. . . . His singing voice would never set the civic opera ablaze, and some of his stories are far from new, yet this master of the microphone seldom fails to register. . . . His highly elastic style, the spice he throws into everything—whether it's pounding the keys or introducing the other acts and the celebs—and the spontaneous air he gives even the most carefully rehersed spots and skits combine to make a performance worthy of a glittering première.

● Harry Richman and Abe Lyman, long since established as topnotchers in American amusements, headline Fritzel's and Jacobsen's new revue at the Chez. . . . But a lively group of youngsters, just breaking in, threaten to steal home with the winning run at any moment. . . . Three Chicagoans calling themselves the Oxford Boys do near perfect impersonations of such bands as Wayne King's, Shep Fields', and Clyde McCoy's; six 17 and 18 year old striplings from South Carolina tie the show into knots with their jitterbug contortions, and Fred Evans' dancing ensemble does ultra modern numbers and gay ninety numbers with equal abandon. . . . Dolly Arden, blonde ballerina, provides the sweetness and light; Rose Blane, swinging songstress with Lyman's gang, turns on the heat.

● Shooting—but not falling—stars are bursting these nights all over the Chicagolandscape. . . . Eddie Garr, funster and mimic, opened at the Bon Air Country club, along with Lang Thompson's swingeroos, Friday evening. . . . Buddy Rogers, the Kansas boy who crashed the gates in Hollywood and then deserted the kleig lights for the white lights, is returning to the Hotel Sherman's College Inn Oct. 8. . . . The following night Hal Kemp will go into rhythmic action again at the Drake hotel's Gold Coast room. . . . Mark Fisher's sun dodgers are to take up their stand at the Royale Frolics chummery Sept. 28. . . . The night after that Guy Lombardo is to move in at the Palmer house's Empire room. . . . And on Oct. 12 Bernie Cummins will start pouring out his cadences in the Bismarck hotel's Walnut room.

● Note to the 85,000 or so who attended the 1938 Chicagoland Music festival, and to the hundreds of other thousands who listened in via the radio: Lois Jean Tschappat, crowned as "the best woman singer" on that occasion, is now lifting her voice nightly at Eitel's Old Heidelberg restaurant in Randolph street.

● Dwight Fiske's sprightly — sometimes sizzling—ditties are about to reach the final bar [of music] in these parts. . . . He will close Tuesday night at the Colony club in the near north side Bohemia. . . . He goes to the Savoy Plaza in Gotham. . . . Lillian Carmen, blues and swing singer, follows him at the Colony.

● C. Harry Hepp lets it be known that he's going to reopen Harry's New York cabaret Thursday evening. . . . This near north side place has been done over, with new dance floor, stage, and decorations. . . . Among the principals in the forthcoming girl show are Natasha, Sakura, Miss California, Jean Mode, Mildred Rock, and Muriel Love.

● Hailed by somebody as "the mistress of modern melody," Rita Rio and her all girl band will be cofeatured with Dick Jurgens' band at the Aragon ballroom this afternoon and evening. . . . Bernie Cummins will handle the baton at the Trianon.

● Closed for the summer, the Merry Garden ballroom at Belmont and Sheffield has opened up again with two dance bands, playing simultaneously. . . . In their first appearance in this country, Mario Dumont's men are taking care of the tango, rhumba, and bolero numbers. . . . Maurie Sherman and his gang are doing the fox trots, waltzes, and swing pieces.

● Coming here from Cleveland, Tony Cabot and his musicians have installed themselves at the Villa Moderne, out on the Skokie highway. . . . They lean toward swing; Cabot himself leans toward—or on—the violin and the sax.

● Lang Thompson has returned to his old time haunts. . . . Hailing from La Salle, Ill., he organized a band at the University of Illinois when he was a student there. . . . This summer he has been performing at the New Terrace Beach club at Virginia Beach, Va., and now he is at the Bon Air. . . . He plays the accordion. . . . With his band, besides Eddie Garr, are Marjorie Knapp and Lillian Carmen, singers, and Peppino and Camille, ballroom dancers.

● One of the latest of the spots known as "late"—the Yacht club in East Oak street—reopened Thursday night, with George and Michael Mandell as the new owners. . . . The first show at this intimate nitery doesn't begin until 11:30. . . . Comedian Joe Herbert emcees it; the acts include Ruth Denning, songstress heard at the Bon Air last summer; Alfredo and Dolores, in rhumba and tango routines, and dancers known as Agnes Dwyer and Colleen. . . . The interior of the club has been restyled to accommodate larger crowds, and redecorated in keeping with its marine atmosphere.

Contract According to Culbertson

Poem About Bridge Stirs a Chord in Ely's Breast

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

Poetry, and especially poetry about bridge, has to be pretty good to stir my interest and I imagine it is that way with most of my readers. For that very reason I have no hesitancy in presenting excerpts from an heroic poem called "The Beauties of Bridge," which is soon to be published in England. The verses are so excellent that I take this occasion to thank the poet, a Mr. Dixie [he is unaccountably shy about supplying his first name], and his publishers, Faber and Faber, Ltd., of London. Actually, the poem covers every phase of bridge—the bidding, the play, and even the ethics. It is much too long to reproduce in its entirety, so I quote at random:

THE BEAUTIES OF BRIDGE.

On Contract bridge, its problems and its rules,
[Sport of great minds and acid test of fools]
What reams are written, and what varied views
Fill every evening's Standard, Star, and News!
Yet Bridge, that sets all Fleet street scribbling hard,
Still lacks its laureate, still awaits its bard.
Out with the lyre! 'Tis time to interpose
A spot of verse in all this spate of prose.
Just for the once give Pegasus a spin.
Let prose stand out while poetry cuts in.
Great shade of Pope, assist the work I've planned,
And let your brother Bradley take a hand.
To sing of bridge in measures neat and terse;
To clothe its laws in finely tailored verse;
To justify, as well as couplets can,
The complex ways of Culbertson to Man.

On the Art of Bidding.

To bid correctly one may justly name
The very arch and keystone of the game.
Points of less moment you may safely miss;
You'll drive a taxi if you fail in this.
Bad play may cause some trifling loss to fall;
Whole fortunes vanish if you wrongly call;
Your Bridge appearing to your partner's eyes
A Bridge of Asses and a Bridge of Sighs.

On Bridge Manners.

Bridge is as much—dispute it if you will—
A school of manners as a game of skill.
Behavior's oil should grease the contract wheel;
And no game so betrays the hairy heel.
Some show such faults as in all games you'll meet,
Crow when they win, or whimper at defeat.
Others make errors found in bridge alone,
A field with snares and pitfalls all its own.
Some play'rs through lack of quickness fall from grace,
Rabbits who vex us by their tortoise pace.
Some through their bridge at varying speeds will go,
Now madly fast, now maddeningly slow.
Worse than the quickfire gangster is the snail
Who hems and potters on till all grows stale.
When such frown o'er the cards with tortured brain
And, one hour later, shut the hand again,
One longs to cry, all courtesy forgot,
"For God's sake play some card—no matter what!"

The recent Asbury Park tournament was a revelation to me in at least one detail. I could not personally participate, but arranged to receive voluminous reports. One of these dealt with the peculiar bidding system used by half a dozen experts in connection with an opening two bid. I thought that in this enlightened age every player had come to the realization that ace showing, as an immediate response to a two bid, had long since been thrown into the rubbish heap. The following hand proved a well deserved triumph for Culbertson players and an equally well deserved debacle for ace showers:

NORTH
♠ 10 9 6
♥ A Q 5
♦ Q 6
♣ Q 9 6 5 4

WEST
♠ Q 7 2
♥ K J 9 6 3
♦ 9 7 2
♣ 10 8

EAST
♠ 5 3
♥ 10 8 7 4 2
♦ 10 5 4 3
♣ J 3

SOUTH
♠ A K J 8 4
♥ None
♦ A K J 8
♣ A K 7 2

East and West were vulnerable: North and South were not. East was the dealer and passed. South, holding the above rock-crusher, opened with two spades and, after West's pass, North was bound by the system he used, either to respond naturally with three clubs or artificially with three hearts. Culbertson players, of course, correctly chose three clubs, and after that it was absurdly simple to reach the laydown contract of seven clubs. When North, however, was hogtied by the horrible ace showing system he had to respond with three hearts.

Now let me quote from an account of this very hand written by A. Moyse in The Bridge World magazine: ". . . judging from the floundering around that took place after that three heart response one might have imagined oneself in an aquarium rather than a hall devoted to the cerebral, edifying, and scientific pastime known as contract bridge.

"This was a typical bidding sequence when the ace showing three heart response was employed:

East	South	West	North
Pass	2 spades	Pass	3 hearts
Pass	4 diamonds	Pass	4 spades
Pass	5 clubs	Pass	6 clubs
Pass	6 spades	Pass	Pass
Pass

"As will have been noted, the club suit was mentioned, all right, but too late for either partner to venture to a grand slam in that suit. South, knowing that the heart ace would be virtually worthless, didn't care much for any grand slam contract [although two North-South teams landed in seven spades, to their discomfiture]. North, having already announced his heart ace, didn't feel up to a seven club contract and, besides, there was always a doubt in North's mind as to whether South's belated club bid was "honest" or a cue bid. Of course, this being a match-point contest, many teams selected six no trump as the final resting place, but even though they were successful, usually taking thirteen tricks through an original heart lead, or a squeeze on West [who could not guard the heart king and the spade queen] their scores were not impressive."

It is inconceivable to me that any first rank players [which, presumably, describes all the contestants in the Masters' Pair event] should think it desirable, let alone necessary, to announce which ace is held on the first round of bidding. Surely it is a great deal more helpful for the strong hand to know what suit he can expect to find opposite him. A three heart response by North in this particular hand kills one entire round of bidding and, even more important, kills an early round which might well be devoted to locating the trump suit. Once an expert pair agrees on trumps it is easy for them to locate the vital ace, but it is distinctly a case of putting the cart before the horse to think about slam possibilities [the only reason for ace locating] before a safe game contract has been established.

Personally, if I ever encounter a partner who insists on immediately showing aces over a two bid I shall know how to take care of myself. The solution is really very simple—I just won't make any two bids!

Here is a new type of problem, or, rather, a new question, bearing on defense. South is playing a four heart contract. If you were West, and could see all four hands, what opening lead would you select?

Answer—You should lead either the king or the jack of diamonds.

On any other lead declarer could establish a club trick, for a diamond discard, and hold you to a trump trick and two clubs. The low diamond lead would allow declarer to win with his own ten. The king or jack lead forces an honor from dummy. East, on taking his first club trick, returns a diamond, thereby establishing a defensive diamond trick before declarer can establish a club.

What Do Irish Argue About? Now Its' a Play

By Hugh Curran.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN.—[Special.]—The fortnight's festival of the Abbey theater has been concluded, but the controversies which it has started may be expected to continue for quite a long time. Why should there be any controversy, it may be asked. On the other hand, why should there not be controversy? To find the answer to either question one must take into account the Irish temperament which is always "spoiling for a fight." It is almost a national characteristic, and your true Irishman will not dispute it. After all if a thing is worth having is it not worth fighting for? And whether the battle is one of physical fisticuffs, a "free-for-all," or an intellectual high-brow affair there is no denying that every one appears to enjoy it.

In the present fight no "claret" has been drawn, for the weapons are no more lethal than pens, and the arena is confined to the columns of the local high-brow newspaper. As it develops new facets appear, but the central points so far center around the philosophy of the poet Yeats, and the allegation that the Abbey theater is neither "Irish" nor "national." The first "spanner in the works" was heaved by an American priest, Father Connolly, a professor of English in a Boston college. This was following the production of a new play by Yeats entitled "Purgatory." As the title indicates this trenched on a tenet of Catholic theology which in a Catholic country like Ireland is almost inevitably likely to have repercussions.

● ● ●

The play entitled "Purgatory" is really a very slight affair, rather in the nature of a monolog; but in its brief compass it envisages the lives of two sets of individuals, men and women, who in this world "went the pace" with irregular marriage, drink and riotous living, culminating in a couple of murders. Some attempt is made to portray what happens in the "after life," but how this is done one would not venture to describe. On the fall of the curtain, Mr. Yeats, who was present, said a few words in the course of which he remarked that he had put into the play his "notions" about this world and the next."

On the next day when the poet Fred Higgins had lectured on Yeats' genius the American priest asked if he would explain what was the symbolism of Yeats as manifested in the play of the previous day. He had seen the play and had read it carefully but he was unable to grasp the philosophy that he professed.

Every one, said Father Connolly, spoke of the great spiritual quality of Yeats' work, and unless the poet meant to pervert the meaning of words, and use them as mere notes of music it seemed to him that he must mean something when he spoke. Higgins dodged the question by suggesting that the trend of the play was more in the line of the reverend questioner to interpret than in his own. The interpretation of art, he submitted, was a matter for each individual.

● ● ●

Yeats, who was not present at the lecture, subsequently gave out a statement on the subject which is worth quoting in part. There was no allegory in "Purgatory," he said, but symbolism was another matter. "There is symbolism in every work of art," he said. "A work of art moves us because it expresses or symbolizes something in ourselves or the general life of men. My plot is my meaning. I think the dead suffer remorse and recreate their lives just as I have described. There are Japanese plays about it and much in the folklore of all countries. In my play a spirit suffers because of its share when alive in the destruction of an honored house. That destruction is taking place all over Ireland today. Sometimes it is the result of poverty, but more often because a new individualistic generation has lost interest in the ancient sanctities. I know of old houses, old pictures, old furniture that have been sold without apparent regret. In some few cases a house has been destroyed because of a mesalliance. I have founded my play on this exceptional cause, partly because of my interest in certain problems of eugenics, partly because it enables me to depict more vividly than would otherwise be possible the tragedy of the house. The problem is not Irish, but European, though it is perhaps more acute here than elsewhere."

● ● ●

Another aspect of the controversy is concerned with the question as to whether the Abbey theater is entitled to be called "national." It is urged against the policy of the management that it is more concerned as to what Britain thinks and what America thinks than it is as to what the Irish people think. One writer alleges that it is neither "Irish" nor "national," and that in reality it is contemptuous of Irish opinion. "The Irish people feel," he says, "that the leaders of the Abbey Drama group have not been at one with them, and that their philosophy has not sprung from the traditional creeds of the people—in fact, they believe that the movement rests solely on the veneration of an artificial and unreal Ireland and on a mixture of A. E.'s reveries and W. B. Yeats' philosophy."

Another critic complains that the Abbey theater's policy is to ignore Irish audiences. While it was boasted at the recent festal gatherings that the plays had been brought to places in the United States and Canada which were too small to be marked on the map, yet in Ireland they were rarely if ever seen outside Dublin. Before it can call itself truly national, this authority says, it will have to adopt a plan of procedure in which actors, authors, audience, and language will be fully and fittingly represented.

Sherwood Play

When Robert Sherwood's new play, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," is placed on view in New York Oct. 17 the rôle of Lincoln will be played by Raymond Massey, Canadian born star of the London stage. Muriel Kirkland will portray Mary Todd, Lincoln's wife, and the Ann Rutledge will be Adele Longmire, who comes to the New York stage from the Little theater of New Orleans.

"Abe Lincoln in Illinois" covers a thirty year period in the life of the great President, taking him from his first political job as postmaster of New Salem, Ill., to his election to the presidency in 1860, with the clouds of war on the dark horizon. It is the second production of the new Playwrights' Producing company, formed last spring by Maxwell Anderson, S. N. Behrman, Sidney Howard, Elmer Rice, John F. Wharton, and Mr. Sherwood.

The first of the Playwrights' productions, to be unveiled in New York Oct. 11, is "Knickerbocker Holiday," a musical comedy by Maxwell Anderson and Kurt Weill. Walter Huston is starred.

Reinhardt May Send 'Faust' on Tour with Gallo

Fortune Gallo has a new iron in the fire. Not content with the arduous job of sending his San Carlo Opera company on tour across the nation—and making a profit with it!—he is now in process of talking business with Max Reinhardt, with the idea of bringing his new production of Goethe's "Faust" eastward across the country.

Mr. Reinhardt's "Faust," which opened in the Pilgrimage theater at Hollywood late in August, may be classified as both super-Salzburg and super-Hollywood in scope. Following the expensive precedent set by "The Miracle," "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and "The Eternal Road," the director once again built a spectacular stage setting.

This time it is an entire Bavarian village, designed by Nicholas Remisoff and strung about the precipitate hills that enclose the intimate Pilgrimage theater. The action of the drama takes place in a score of different houses, churches, market places, on hillocks and in ravines, and the voice of God, with attendant spotlights, is heard apparently from the crest of a thousand foot mountain in the background.

The difficulties of transplanting so pretentious a production to indoor theaters, no matter how large, are great. At the moment Mr. Remisoft is at work on new designs which will bring the drama within the physical possibilities of such a house as the Auditorium theater. Nobody has hinted at the manner in which the tour might be financed. Possibly it might be sent across the land as an advertisment of Hollywood's belief in the finer things of life.

The title rôle is played in the Hollywood performance by Conrad Nagel, once a luminary of the silent movies, and more recently seen here in the second company of Keith Winter's "The Shining Hour." The Gretchen—or Marguerite, to devotees of the Gounod-Barbier-Carre version—is the greatly gifted Margo, known here for her warm performance in "Winterset." George Houston, a graduate of the now defunct American Opera company, plays Mephistopheles, and Lenore Ulric is Martha.

The BLACK MARK

Hartigan Exchanges Stories with Anna; His Bad Ankle Complicates Plans to Escape

THE STORY TO DATE

● Anna Silver, returning to her lodgings in a London suburb, finds the house deserted and an unconscious man lying on the stairway. When she brings back a doctor and the police the man is gone. Mrs. Weldegger, the landlady; Lot, her son, and Philly, the half-witted maid—even the new lodger, Ben Saul, Mrs. Weldegger's brother—insist they were there all the time and never saw the man. Bewildered, Anna goes off to work, forgetting about a photo she found beside the man. Returning that evening, she sees the young man of the photo. He is Ronny Eltham. Her description of the unconscious man fits his friend, Philip Hartigan, from Africa. He arouses Anna's suspicions by refusing to appeal to the police. Ben Saul wins her confidence by his apparent honesty. He claims authorship of the highly successful play, "The Black Mark"; that Hartigan has returned from Africa to blackmail him because of a crime committed in his youth, which only Hartigan knows about. Saul says Hartigan was drunk and fell just as Anna was entering the house, and they fled in panic, returning to hide him when she went for help. Saul intends to leave England soon and says he gave Hartigan enough to keep him quiet till then. Actually Hartigan wrote the play and sent it to Saul, who sold it and collected the profits. It was Hartigan who committed the crime and fled to Africa to escape punishment. Hartigan has been drugged and taken to a secret hiding place. Saul courts Anna. She defends him to Ronny, who believes him a crook. However, she consents to go with Ronny to see "The Black Mark." It is the drama of a man hounded by his past, climaxed by the hero finally accepting his punishment. Anna overhears Saul declare his love for her to his sister, but Anna discovers he knew she was listening. Ronny learns Saul has a house up the Thames. Anna remembers Mrs. Weldegger mentioning sending Philly to Dodmans. They realize that is where Hartigan must be hidden. Together they find the house and break into it, but Philly has seen them and warned Saul. They are taken prisoners and locked in separate attic rooms. That night Hartigan, trying to escape over the roof top, climbs in Anna's window.

ANNA told Hartigan how she had found him unconscious on the stairs at Heath House, how the photo had led her to get in touch with Ronny. He interrupted only once, and that in the beginning.

"You say my foot was jammed in the banisters?"

"Yes, and so awkwardly that it was the reason why they could not get you out of sight when I came in on them."

"Well, that does account for my crocked ankle," he said, but he made no other comment until she had finished; then he said in a more friendly tone:

"You seem a plucky young woman, and Ronny—well—seems very like Ronny. I'm grateful—or would like to be. But even now I don't feel like taking you on trust."

"I don't see why you should, except that we're both prisoners of Mr. Saul."

"Even that does not entirely convince me," he said guardedly "Ben Saul is capable of any cunning——"

"Even of locking me up in the top of a house in order to fool you—should you chance to get out?" Anna said.

"He has filled me with such doubts," Hartigan sighed, "I'm at a stage when I can trust no one. You see, I trusted him so much; he was my best friend. Even the shock of learning that he—he——"

"Had stolen your play, 'The Black Mark'?" Anna helped him.

"So—you guessed that. Or he——" Hartigan began, and paused. She guessed he had meant to add, "Or he told you." It was after a pause that he went on: "Even then I couldn't believe; I thought there must be some explanation. And when he told me there was—I mean, when I saw him at the theater that afternoon I still trusted him. He was still my friend; he didn't seem to have changed. But when he did what he did at that out-of-the-way house——"

"At Tanners Heath, you mean? Were you drunk? Did you try to fight? Were you blackmailing him?"

"Good God!" he breathed quite gently. "Is that his story? But how absurd—I mean to anybody who knows me."

"So Ronny said," Anna told him. "Ronny is sure they drugged you."

"Ah, Ronny, he knows me. . . . Yes, they drugged me. I anticipated that. They gave me a cup of coffee when I arrived at Tanners Heath, and immediately I went to sleep. I went to sleep in my chair in that bedroom just as Saul was setting out the papers.

"I knew nothing more till I woke on the floor of a motor car. It was broad daylight, and Saul was bending over me, and my hands were tied. Then he threw a rug over me, and the car started and brought me here. I might have made a fight as they got me here; I fancy I did, but my ankle was in very great pain and I fainted. . . . Where is this house? My room hasn't a window, only a fixed skylight."

Anna told him the little she could, but he did not know the district save as a memory of Dickens. "That makes it beastlier," he sighed. "All loneliness and marshes, from what I recall of Pip's adventures. Yes, a cunning hiding-place—Ben Saul is clever."

She told him of Saul's plan to escape to the continent, and he groaned: "Yes, a brilliant idea—he'll vanish into the blue with every penny he can collect banked abroad under another name. Once he's gone there'll be no catching him." She heard him move toward the window, asked sharply what he meant to do.

"With only four days left—I must get away tonight," he said.

"But—can you escape that way?" she said, shivering at the thought of that steep roof.

"I've got to try. There are a couple of dormer windows on the other side and a raised skylight at the end. One of them may let me into a room with an unlocked door."

"You'll find Ronny Eltham in one of them; better do that first—for isn't the roof horribly dangerous? How did you even get onto it if your skylight is fixed?"

"I made a hole through the slates; you've noticed how rotten they are. I've been working them loose for days."

"But—can't they see that?"

"No; they even helped. I complained of the drafts through the cracks in the slates. Hayman even helped me tack a blanket onto the roof beams to keep the air out—my hole is behind that blanket."

Anna laughed at his cleverness, yet asked, "And you risked climbing out with your injured ankle?"

"Had to—and it's not so bad now, anyhow—not as bad as they think. I've been playing their own game——" Again he checked himself, as though fearful he had told too much. She understood him. His natural frankness had received such a shock through Mr. Saul's treachery that he could not trust even those seemingly trustworthy. She said:

"I think your ankle makes it even more imperative that you should find Ronny first. With him free there'll be a greater chance of all of us escaping."

"I'll try that." But as he went toward the window she had a sense of his weariness and realized both that he was no longer a young man and that his ankle was more painful than he admitted. She helped him out of the window and heard him clawing softly up the roof. Presently he seemed astride the ridge, shuffling away from her.

For a long time after that she heard nothing definite, though once there was a sharp thud and a sound of cracking that sent her heart into her mouth. But nothing stirred in the house, and, going to the window, she heard nothing from above, though she saw that the gray light before dawn was already brightening the sky.

Then, just as she was beginning to fear that something had happened to Hartigan, she heard his voice whispering above her as he talked through a crack in the slates.

"I'm exhausted," his voice came down when she arrived. "Foot very painful. . . . Have to go back to my room now till tonight. . . . Can't he helped. But had a stroke of luck . . ."

"Ronny?" she cried.

"Eh? No, not yet. But that other skylight on the roof—broke a pane and got it open. Too late and no strength to explore tonight, but tomorrow—looks like a storeroom, and it's empty. It may help . . ."

* * *

SHE heard him shuffling off. Heard the slates creak and crack as he slid down the roof to his hole, and nothing more. But her fear for him was not banished until the Haymans brought breakfast. She listened with her heart thudding as they opened the doors of both the other rooms, and only when there was no outcry did she relax; she knew Hartigan had got safely back.

That day seemed to drag unendurably. Three meals and stagnation was its sole content, though she slept a little. She had given up thinking as maddening—it seemed always to lead her to the moment of test for her, the moment of Ronny's fate when she must answer Mr. Saul about going away.

Most of the time she spent at the window; and she was there in the evening when she saw the motor cruiser come into view round the bend of the creek. Mr. Saul and Jim Bells were coming back. Their guards would rise from two men to four, and anything Hartigan did that night would have that added danger.

Also, why had Ben Saul come back? Was it a portent of his readiness to escape?

She went to the other side of the window, looked down into the garden. Saul came into sight. Her heart jumped sickeningly; she seemed to see her fate in his manner—never before had he seemed so pleased with himself, so good-tempered and smiling. If ever a man had triumphed or was about to triumph, he was that man.

Yet as she stared down at him, her mind full of fear, an amazing change came over him. The smirk was wiped from his face, dismay leapt to it. He stopped dead like a man smitten with a blow .

His sister, Mrs. Weldegger, had come out of the house and was moving toward him along the path.

Even though his face immediately assumed a surprised and delighted friendliness, and he went forward to greet her with both hands, Anna knew that his sister's unexpected arrival had been a blow to him and that the triumph he had at first shown did not include Mrs. Weldegger.

Something thwacked softly on the slates above Anna's head, slid rustling down to the roof of her window. It had been dark so long now that she had given up hope of anything happening. For hours she had been listening to sounds of laughter and singing from below, as though Mr. Saul had after all shared the news of his triumph and the family were celebrating it. But that had stopped long ago, and yet there had come no sign from Hartigan.

She had grown tired of wondering if anything had gone wrong, or if Hartigan had found a way of escape and taken it, leaving them in the lurch. As the dawn drew dangerously near she had given up hope. She had practically accepted the worst when she heard the sound above her.

She went swiftly to the window just as the thing began to bump and flap gently against the slates again. She saw something dance its way over the edge of the dormer; she snatched at it and could scarcely repress a cry—it was the end of a rope.

She drew it in, calling softly up to the slates, "All right!" It was not a long piece of rope—its end barely touched the floor as it tightened. But as it did the shuffling and sliding on the roof began, only more pronounced than last night. The slates rattled and cracked so terribly that she felt they would crash inward. Then the sound was on the roof of the dormer and, amazed, she heard Ronny's voice whispering:

"Anna! Anna! Can you hear? Give me a hand!"

It seemed that her whole body leaped toward that voice as she thrust her head out of the window and answered. Ronny called: "O, spendid! Catch his legs as he comes down."

Hartigan's legs wavered toward her; she caught and directed them until he was sitting on the sill. He was panting gustily and he clasped her with a nervous violence as he let go of the rope.

"Absurd!" he muttered. "Absurd! But I'm all in, my dear."

Anna eased him to the floor, supported him to her bed. His body was heavy against hers and his injured leg trailed inertly. She heard a scuffle at the window, turned, and was in Ronny's arms.

How tightly he held her, and she him—and yet never tightly enough. How firm and dependable his strength seemed! And, more than that, as they kissed she felt a coil of rope about his body.

"Ronny! How did you work that miracle?" she gasped.

"Hartigan did," he said. "He's been wonderful."

Hartigan was dazed and exhausted with pain. Anna gave him a drink of water, and he revived a little, but he said again: "It's absurd. I never thought I'd crack up like this."

"How you ever did it with that ankle's a marvel, Phil," Ronny said.

"How did you get the rope?" Anna asked.

"He did," Ronny said, sitting and putting his arms about her. "He forced a skylight open last night, but hadn't time to go in. He did that tonight—dropped in blind! He couldn't see what was underneath—if anything—but let go with his hands and dropped. Luckily the place was a storeroom and he fell on something soft—or rather he wasn't so lucky; he was thrown off his balance and injured his leg again. But he crawled round, found the door locked and unbreakable, but found several coils of rope, too, and then climbed out again."

"But how could he with that ankle?" Anna demanded.

"Packing cases," Hartigan said thinly. "Found a couple, climbed out from them . . . but the real luck was finding Ronny's window first try. I don't think I could have got to the other, though I had anchored my rope round the chimney."

"I heard him coming," Ronny took up the tale. "In fact, I heard him last night and was ready for anything. I had my head out of the window as soon as the rope flopped down. Then when I found who it was I joined him and we came along to you."

"And you've rope enough to reach the ground?" she asked.

"Plenty."

"Then we've only——" she began, but Ronny's arm tightened about her warningly and she said, "What will be our best plan?"

"Simple enough." Ronny was plainly striving to seem offhand. "I slide down the rope and fetch help."

"Help?" Hartigan's voice came edgily. "What help do you mean?"

"Well, we've got to rescue you, Phil, haven't we? And Anna Silver, too?"

"Do you mean—the police?" Hartigan asked huskily.

They heard in his voice his shrinking terror of the police.

"Well, Phil, in a jam like this I don't see what else——"

"Not the police!" Hartigan said with sudden firmness. "We'll all go down the rope together——"

"You can't do it, Phil," Ronny said. "You can't walk, you're too weak. We couldn't get far——"

"Plenty of hiding places in the country," Hartigan said.

"Not in the marshes, Phil. And they're likely to know them all. And my car is a good mile away—even if it hasn't been found and impounded by the police. And they'd probably hear the car coming back—or see the rope, which we'd have to leave, or something would go wrong, and they'd catch you alone. . . . And they're pretty desperate, Phil."

"I know," Hartigan agreed. "Saul let me see he'd stop at nothing—but that's got to be risked."

"But it's an unnecessary risk. You have only to remain here, looking after Anna, while I get help to round Saul & Co. before he even dreams there's any danger."

"The police are what I've wanted to avoid at all costs, Ronny," Hartigan said in such despair that Anna said, "Couldn't we lower him to the ground between us and then carry him?"

"Can you walk at all, Phil?" Ronny asked anxiously.

* * *

HARTIGAN slewed his legs off the bed and, holding their arms, stood up, but directly he let go he collapsed onto the bed with a groan.

"It's like a trap," Hartigan said in a dull voice. "I can't escape the one thing I feared."

They knew he was thinking of the police. Indeed. Rony said gently:

"But after all these years in Africa——?"

"If Saul's arrested it's bound to come out."

"But—but how else did you ever expect to beat Saul?" Ronny blurted in surprise.

"I thought if I confronted him, frightened him——" His voice lightened. "We might do that now"

"How?"

"When they bring the breakfast there are three of us. We should be able to trap the woman and man. Then we could creep down and surprise the other man. And they've got a car——"

"Or I might; you couldn't with that ankle. Yes, it's an idea——"

"No," Anna had to put in. "It's too late for that. Hayman and Lot are not alone; Saul and Jim Bells are back."

She told them what she had seen, how the whole gang was in the house, including Mrs. Weldegger. The odds were too great for any surprise.

Hartigan's groan told that he agreed; so did Ronny, but he added: "It makes the need of haste more urgent. Why, from what you say it looks as if they're ready to bolt at any moment."

"They may just leave us behind," Hartigan said.

"They might," Ronny hesitated, and Ronny, with memories of Saul's threat, cried impulsively: "No, they won't do that. They realize we know too much about the motor boat and their plans."

There was that in her voice that made Ronny demand, "What is it, Anna, my dear?" And for fear of him she had to tell him of Saul's threat.

"My God!" he cried, seeing it from a different angle. "He means to carry you off to save himself. Phil, I can't help it. The risk's too great. I must get help at once."

From the darkness they heard Hartigan's voice, oddly resigned: "You're right, Ronny. You must go at once. You've been splendid, boy, but—it's written."

"I'm awfully sorry, Phil," Ronny said as he worked on the ropes. "I wish there was some other way—but there isn't. You see that?"

"My dear boy, I know you're doing the right thing. . . . I hoped too much. Perhaps, even, I knew all the time I hadn't the right to hope."

"But—that comes from 'The Black Mark,'" Anna could not help saying.

"Yes, from my play," Hartigan sighed. "Ready, now, Ronny. God's speed, my boy."

Anna hauled up the rope after Ronny had gone and tossed it onto the roof of the window. With luck Ronny should bring help before the house awoke, but it was wise not to leave any clew to his going. Then, feeling her way to where Hartigan rested on her bed, she said:

"Would you like to sleep?"

"I couldn't sleep," he said wearily. "Besides—you've something to say?"

"It was your quoting 'The Black Mark.'"

"You've seen it?" he said with a touch of eagerness. "You like it?"

"It's a noble play."

"It's just a bit of life—a broken bit."

"But with a soul in it. More than ever I know that Saul could never have written it, and you did. And Ronny was always sure."

"He's a splendid boy, Ronny," he said. "You've found that out, my dear?"

"I've just found it out," she said. "I was silly not to see it at once, but Saul blinded me."

"Saul always had that gift," he sighed. "He might have used it so well, too. He even fooled me with it."

"Over 'The Black Mark'?"

"Yes; he was my best friend, my only friend. A colleague of the old days when I, too, was a newspaper man. . . . When—when I went to Africa I went on writing, mainly plays. I sent them home to Ben Saul, the only man I could trust, to place them. I think he did his best. He got two of them produced, but they were failures."

"Are you sure? Was he ever to be trusted?"

"In those two cases I have no doubts. In fact, one of them may have supplied him with the germ that made him act as he did over 'The Black Mark.' I did not know it had been acted until months after. He'd changed the title, as he usually did, and given me a fresh pen name, since—since I had to avoid my own. He had then himself gone down with a serious illness, so that until he could write I had no idea that the play had been produced, failed, and vanished.

"I naturally wrote about this, explaining how, living right out of the world as I did, there was little chance of my hearing save from him. I suppose it made the temptation to steal 'The Black Mark' irresistible, for no doubt he saw at once what chances it had."

"So he invented the pen name of Martin Davaray?"

"And the new title of the play. I called it 'Fate's Outcast,' a poorer title, I'll admit. Thus when its immense success penetrated even to the remote district where I live I didn't for a moment suspect it was mine. In fact, I rather envied Martin Davaray for getting away with it and wished I had his luck. Ironic, isn't it—actually envying myself?"

"Infuriating," Anna said. "But—but how did he fob you off in his letters? I mean, the play is a great play; you must have felt that in your heart. I suppose he told you it wasn't salable, but you must have known better."

"To an author every play he writes is a great play," Hartigan said dryly. "But an experienced author learns to recognize that there is no guarantee against its rejection. It's all part of our day's work, my dear, and Saul knew he was safe enough on that point. He knew I'd accept philosophically the fact that it was but another play that hadn't clicked and not start dangerous inquiries."

"But what about the theatrical managers?"

"They were merely dealing with Saul. He might be Martin Davaray or merely an agent. It was he who put the play into their hands. If he said he was Martin Davaray and signed the contracts as such, how were they to know otherwise? And, seeing the possibilities of the play, he saw all this and took the risk."

"And stole a fortune," Anna said fiercely. "They say 'The Black Mark' has earned anything from a hundred thousand to two hundred thousand pounds."

"So I've read in the papers." He seemed to smile. "I suppose that's what made me dash so wildly home—greed for my enormous profits. I learned the truth from Ronny. He's a splendid correspondent, you know. Wrote every mail and sent papers, too. Literary papers, since we're both that way inclined. One of them was practically a 'memorial number' of 'The Black Mark.' I mean it was full of photographs of the play, with great slices of the dialog."

"And I suppose you read that it was also the work of the well known journalist, Ben Saul, using the pen name of Martin Davaray?" Anna said.

"Ah, that's shrewd of you. . . . Yes, that's the reason I blew up. The treachery of my own friend was too much for me. I was so angry that I drew what was left of my savings and started home before I realized what I was doing."

"Who wouldn't have done the same? But what did you expect to do?"

"I scarcely know—confront him, I suppose, force him to disgorge somehow. . . . But I don't think I really thought. I was bewildered, too. It was a shock even to think of Saul like that. I felt sure there was some mistake somewhere—I mean, he was a true friend in the old days, and straight enough."

"Ronny found out that he's been growing steadily more and more crooked through mixing with criminals. For years his reputation has been so bad that no paper would employ him."

"I see, going down hill. Poor Saul, that chance of easy money must have been a terrific temptation!"

"You pity him!" she cried.

"I can understand him," Hartigan said gently. "Life can drive men into desperate corners, you know."

"That doesn't make him less a thief—and a particularly mean one. Did he even try to come to terms with you?"

"No, but thinking he might was how he got me out to Tanners Heath. When I reached London I saw I had time to reach the Isis theater for the matinée. I did that, leaving my bag at the station. When I found the play was definitly mine I went to the box office to find out about this 'Martin Davaray.'

"Saul was there. He recognized me at once in spite of my beard—in fact, I think he must have been ready for such a contingency. He behaved like my old friend. In fact, he said to me at once: 'I know why you've rushed home like this. You're ready to tear my heart out because you think I've stolen your play.'"

* * *

"YES, that's his method," Anna said. "He disarms one with his air of honesty."

"Well, I was disarmed. He made me feel that everything was all right and that a simple explanation would clear it up. But, of course, it could not be done there. That's why I agreed to go home with him in the evening—with the result you know. Why, I was so certain that all was well that I stepped into a postoffice near the theater and wired Ronny to meet me next day at Tanners Heath station. Saul hadn't given me more of his sister's address."

"And so provided the meeting that helped us to find you," Anna said.

They sat silent for a long while, watching the gray of the false dawn growing in the sky. Anna said presently:

"You accused yourself of being greedy just now. Was it really the money that brought you here?"

"Well, perhaps; honestly, it wasn't quite. It was the shock of having something that meant so much to me stolen that really made me lose my head. And then there are things I dreamed of doing——"

"Ronny's experimental farm?"

"He's told you about that? Yes, that is the biggest of my dreams. Ronny and I were to run it. He's brilliant and a lovable boy who has suffered much and deserves——"

"Listen!" Anna interrupted sharply "Isn't that some one at the trapdoor?"

"But it's far too early," Hartigan said; then: "You're right. There is somebody on the landing. But why is he moving so quietly——"

Anna sprang up, her heart hammering in her throat.

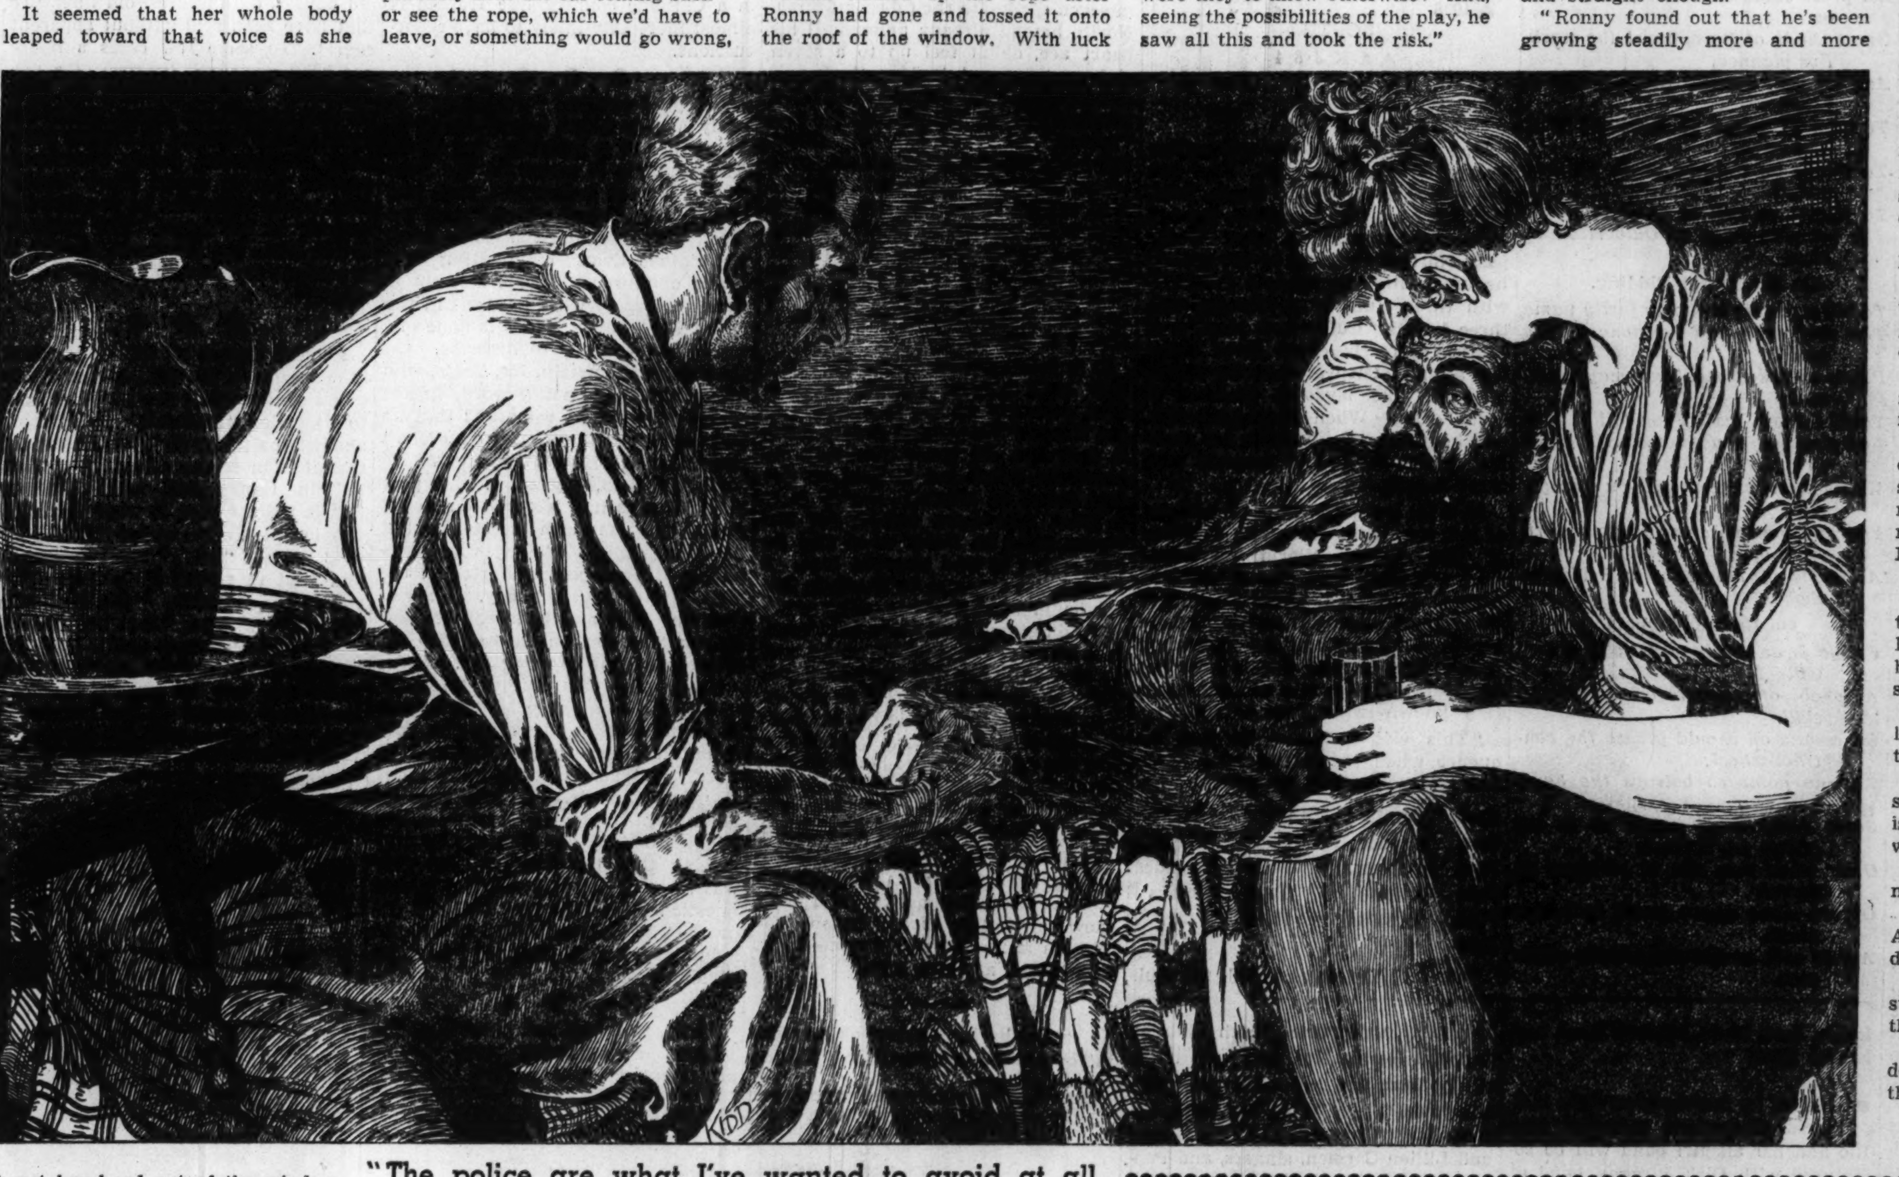
"I don't think it's a man at all. And I—and she's coming to this door."

And, indeed, they both heard the stealthy, soft sliding of the bolts of the door.

Then before they could stir the door was plucked open so swiftly that it hit the wall with a crash.

Philly stood in the opening.

(To be concluded.)



"The police are what I've wanted to avoid at all costs, Ronny."

An Open Letter to Bob Burns

BOB BURNS

Dear Bob: The urge to travel is usually pretty strong in your life, for you were born with it. And I am not making a pun on "The Arkansaw Traveler." You are now coming into a stretch of several years during which travel will be a positive need in the matter of your personal and inner development. Along with it will be opportunities to learn many unusual facts about human nature, all of which will be grist for your mill, further enriching your store of dramatic and entertainment material. Your professional style will undergo subtle changes, bringing still more delight to your listeners and audiences. But in your travels make up your mind to take no physical risks; you will feel too daring in the pinches. Choose caution instead of valor. With best wishes, WYNN.

The Mill Creek to Hold Hunter Trials on Oct. 2

By Judith Cass.

Two weeks from today, Oct. 2, over the rolling country west of Lake Forest the hunter trials of the Mill Creek Hunt will be held. They are an annual event enjoyed not only by members of the hunt, but by their friends, other horse lovers, and by the landowners over whose property the hunt rides. In the morning and again in the afternoon horses and riders will compete over a stiff jumping course, singly and in teams. Many of the spectators will bring their own picnic luncheons; others will buy luncheon at the scene of the trials. Landowners always are guests of the hunt at luncheon.

The trials are not being held where they were last year. Instead, the entrance to the fields, owned by Austin Niblack and Mrs. Benjamin Behr, is by a lane just across from the hunt stables. However, there will be arrows posted all through the hunting country of Millburn pointing the way.

Following the trials the hunt members will go to their clubhouse for high tea and the awarding of prizes. On the eve of the trials there will be a gay party at the Onwentsia club, a subscription dinner-dance organized by the governors of the hunt. At it about 100 of Lake Forest's hunting enthusiasts will gather to make pools and to buy sweepstakes tickets on the following day's events. Pink coats are de rigeur at this hunt party.

The Mill Creek hunts regularly four times a week, on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 6:30 o'clock in the morning; on Saturdays at 4 o'clock, over the small line, while on Sundays the hunt meets at various points. Today the hounds will start from Mr. and Mrs. John F. Jelke's farm at 11:15 o'clock.

The Wayne Hounds will meet for the first time this season this morning at the Dunham Woods Riding club. This hunt always is informal, that is, the riders never wear the traditional pink hunting coats, but we doubt if there is a hunt anywhere that has more fun out of following the hounds.

From the standpoint of those devoted to traditional hunting, the Wayne hunt probably wouldn't "stack up" with those of the east that are modeled after old English and French ones. It's a jolly time, though, that the Wayne hunters have every Sunday and Wednesday morning during the autumn as they gallop over the beautiful rolling country west of Chicago and a bit east of St. Charles. They meet at the stables at 6:30 on Wednesdays and at 11 on Sundays. Charles R. Lindsay III. is the master of this hunt.

Ball at Cannes Is Huge Affair, with "Names"

By Cousin Eve.

CANNES Many years ago, early in the last century, the great Lord Brougham, leader of fashion in London society, came to Cannes with his family. They were en route to Italy but rumors of plague halted them. The shining blue glory of Cannes brought them back, again and yet again, until Lord Brougham built a villa here, with marble pillars and patios, on a great estate where royal palms waved in the mistral, and mimosa and oleanders and azaleas grew. Friends of the Broughams followed until a brilliant British society met yearly at Cannes. Sundays at the little British church, a hundred and fifty beautiful victorias and landaus with prancing horses in gleaming harness with liveried grooms and outriders waited in the nearby streets and square. Fashion meanwhile, in marvelous array of furbelows and crinolines, heard the word of God. Later on Edward VII. liked Cannes and the Esterel, staying at the mossy old Hotel Gray and d'Albion, with his favorites.

The other day at an antiquarie's there was a faded blue print of Lord Brougham's villa, with hundreds of the books and antiquated bibelots which adorned it. The house, empty for two score years, has been torn down and the estate divided by order of the heirs.

In driving about Cannes one sees many such old villas and estates placarded for sale, their windows void of life, their palms and pomegranates fading under the sun.

• • •

I thought of King Edward VII.'s and of Lord Brougham's days the other night on seeing Edward, duke of Windsor, at a ball with a little group of satellites about him. The Windsors have formed their own little court and at that soirée they had Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Bate, Lady Alexandra Metcalfe, Sir Walter Monckton, that lovely brunette Mrs. Evelyn Fitzgerald, Mr. Davidson, the new equerry, and Lady Elsie de Wolfe Mendl. It was a huge dinner-dance for more than a thousand guests for the benefit of "Les Petits Lits Blancs," a Paris charity. Tickets were five hundred francs apiece, and people paid it cheerfully to see the Windsors. Nobody knew where the "petits lits blancs" were situated or seemed to care.

Three hundred tables were set out upon a terrace of the Palm Beach casino, facing the sea. In front was a dancing floor which was also a stage, where later a good floor show went on with dancers from the opera, stars from revues, a superb fashion show from Worth, Paquin, Lanvin, etc.; feats of high diving in the pool and fireworks.

It was everybody's aim to sit as near the Windsors as possible, so we went down that day to look over the battleground, intending to cross the palm of the maitre d'hotel. But this was apparently being done in a big way by all, and would be merely throwing our baksheesh down the rathole.

One of our guests was a resolute young blond attaché of the French foreign office, so he was asked to reserve a table, with such good results that we were seated back of the Windsors and served well. Some of our important neighbors had no food at all, and others were eating their caviar and melon at 1 o'clock in the morning.

• • •

"Pas du tout mal, la Wally," said the French attaché as we were "Lambeth Walking," which by the way is good exercise if a rather silly peasant contre danse. "Elle est même tres jolie," he said, and I found he meant Mrs. Evelyn Fitzgerald, sitting on Edward's right, a pretty woman in dark blue, sister-in-law of Lord Beaverbrook and formerly one of the Drury girls of Montreal. On the duke's left was Lady Elsie de Wolfe Mendl, lovely and having adorers a-plenty in the autumn of life. Lady Mendl wore Chinese red, and [on my honor] her hair was turquoise blue, with pink and red blossoms sprouting out of it on top. She was truly remarkable.

Edward in white dinner coat and black tie looked more than ever the young adolescent. His opposite at table was his wife, tres soignée in a frock of pale green lamé, magnificent clips of rubies and diamonds, and a broad riviere of pierced rubies and diamonds. She wore no makeup whatever, her hair was beautifully coiffed without a wave, her eyes are long, arresting, and of a green gray. And she has the nose of a general, of a general who wins his battles.

Grace Moore, the singer, sat hard by at a small table with Valentin Parara, her husband, and the Eric Loders, madame being the former Lady Mortimer Davis. Grace, much tanned, was in baby blue tulle with three prince of Wales blue feathers standing over her brow. The general feeling about these feathers was that Mme. Moore wishes to be included in the Windsors' set.

Other glamorous dames were Marlene Dietrich, in silver lamé with cape of swan's down; Mrs. Georges Bonnet, wife of the foreign minister, in midnight blue tulle, and Mrs. Raymond Patenotre, in white tulle, blazing with diamonds. She is the great Riviera hostess this season, a wealthy Philadelphian, whose white steam yacht lies in the harbor, center of gay lunches and dinners, of lovely nights under the stars.

Our next neighbors were Ambassador to England Joseph Kennedy, his wife, and a tableful of young Kennedys, who bathe daily at Eden rock.

Others in the enormous glittering crowd were Mmes. Lanvin, Chanel and Schiaparelli, great dressmakers of Paris, and the maharajahs of Cooch, Indore, and Kapurthala.

Of Romanoffs, Dmitri and Grand Duchess Marie, Princess de Brojhe, Duchesse Decazes, leaders of French fashion, and from Chicago Mrs. Paul Healy, Mrs. Charles Chadwick, and Joyce Borden, with her equally charming husband, Sladko Balacovics, the noted Jugo-Slav violinist.

A few lovely frail beauties had pink chiffon scarves draped à la Hindu over their heads, which was nothing if not soulful. As the crowd surged out toward the baccarat, or to bed, there was a tremendous amount of hand kissing. And for the terraced figure of Miss Elsa Maxwell passing by in sequins of red and yellow, almost a riot. At the sight of this noted designer of spectacular fêtes every head turned.

I heard a man say that waiters had thrown melon rinds under his table all evening. But we did far better than that; our slippers reposed on lobsters, lovely cold langoustes, that were afterwards eaten by the unaware.

• • •

To discourage gambling the French government permits only four shows of baccarat a day. At the new Sporting club of Monte Carlo, however, every Friday is a grand gala. Then the great thrill is to put on one's gladdest rags for dinner and a bird's-eye view of Lady Baily, wife of Sir Adrian, who wins enormously and loses her pile occasionally. She is half American, this tall, rangy girl, a daughter of Pauline Whitney of New York and Almeric Paget, now Lord Queensborough. She was first married to a man named Filmer-Sankey, and now to Sir Adrian.

One pays 60 or 80 francs for an eight day ticket to la salle de baccarat and shows one's passport, and all one's credentials, not forgetting the names of the great-grandparents. How different from the welcome one has across the way at the old Monte Carlo casino! There they ask no questions and you tell no lies. They hand you a nice green tourist ticket and you go in and lose a handful of francs on your pet number. It is all quite painless. The most heart-rending thing about Monte Carlo is its overpowering loveliness. The night is glamorous as the day, with a bejeweled shoreline and soft air drenched with fragrance of flowers and trees.

Driving home from Monte Carlo one day we took the Upper Corniche or Napoleon's Route des Alpes, and skirted the high mountains, looking down upon everything and everybody like the angels. We passed little towns, golf links, ruins, all upon the edge of the abyss, with the frantic blue of the Mediterranean far, far below.

And again we took the middle Corniche, landing at Eze, where Mr. and Mrs. Zlatko Balacovics are living this summer after three and a half years of absence. This rocky fortress is a tall cliff topped by a church and citadel, with rocky galleries below where celebrities have niched themselves. Mr. and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter have frequently stayed in the Balacovics' aerie way above. Prince William of Sweden lived in between, but he has sold his house and gone.

We followed a rough donkey trail and cobbled, narrow lane, flanked by 1,000 year old stone houses to the iron grille of our hosts. The maitre d'hotel ushered us into a huge room overlooking the sea, fashioned out of solid rock. Its wide, beautifully arched windows were framed by delicately carved marble pillars from southern Spain, and the view absorbed us all—there were Cap Ferat and Monte Carlo looking like mere maps, the lower road was as silver ribbon. A grand piano and furniture of the early 14th century were there, a huge fireplace, everything in keeping.

• • •

We went on a little sightseeing tour of the premises with our hosts. They have a swimming pool, trees, a formal garden, a quite large guest house with separate kitchen, where Joyce often slips in and cooks a very fine meal. They have a marvelous broad covered terrace on the roof, with tables and chaises longues, and in and outdoor dining rooms. They have a shaded garden and in that garden of cypresses and box lives the house pet, Olympia, a temperamental turtle brought from the Temple of Athena at Olympus. A few years ago this was all weeds and rock.

Now there is a chamber in the solid granite, furnished after the Jugo-Slav manner, where Zlatko practices on his violin. At present the room reverberates at all hours, for Balacovics leave in October for a tremendous tour of eastern Europe, beginning with Warsaw, including Russia and all the Balkans. For Christmas they are coming to America. Ernesta Barlow dropped down from above while we were having tea and brought some problems in knitting with her. She was Ambassador Bullitt's first wife and is a lovely, slim creature with blue gray eyes and ditto hair.

Joyce was wearing a navy woolen yachting outfit with sailor trousers, and looked darling. I got excited on arriving at Cannes on the question of trousers and went to a shop on the Croisette to have a modish pair of navy linen with a white jacket. But it cost the price of an evening gown in Paris, so I abandoned the idea and was practically the only woman at Cannes in skirts. Always excepting Beatrice Lillie, also at the Martinez, who was wearing regular clothes, very lovely ones, too.

She had a cabaña at Eden Rock next to Marlene Dietrich. It was a great sight at noon to look over from the terrace to the base of the rock, where human beings were lying like sardines, roasting themselves in the hot sun. The water is very blue and deep here, and the sport of the hour is water skiing, which as every one knows is standing on wide skis and being drawn along at top speed by a power boat. This is done far better at Honolulu than on the Riviera, up to date.

• • •

But the Riviera has a new sport which was taken up with gusto by the duke of Windsor—shooting fish.

The hunter puts on hermetically tight goggles, an air tube worked from the surface of the sea, and sits down among the clam shells and sea anemones. The fish, naturally curious about this submarine monster, come goggling along only to get potted in the tummy. Poor fish! Well, the longshore fishermen of Cannes, finding their fishing boats no longer in demand had a law passed which declares that fish shooting is illegal.

I went up to Grasse one day to lunch with Vivian Woolley-Hart, the London beauty, whose quaint old house is at St. Jacques, just outside Grasse, and named Manoir de St. Prayere.

The Woolley-Harts fly down often during the year to luxuriate in the silence of the Alpes Maritimes. They have kept the ancient stone manoir simple and we had lunch outside in the garden, shaded by a chestnut tree. Mrs. Woolley-Hart herself was laid up by a singular accident in her London house. She was opening a door when a houseman pushed it roughly from the other side and knocked her down.

Broken bones and a concussion have kept her housed for weeks, and

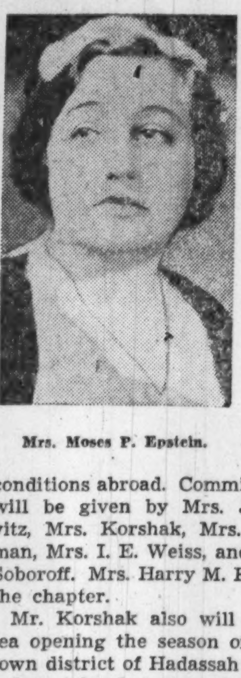
Jewish Youth to Hear Report on Employment

How the Chicago bureau of Jewish employment problems is combatting economic discrimination against Jews seeking employment will be described Tuesday evening before the Chicago Youth division of the American Jewish congress. Claude A. Benjamin, president of the bureau and vice president of the Chicago division of the congress, will address the opening meeting of the youth division at 8 o'clock at the Hotel Hamilton, 18 South Dearborn street.

A program of debates and essay and song contests has been outlined for the youth division this year in order to stimulate interest in Jewish problems and traditions. Seminars will be continued under the direction of William Resnick, chairman of the education committee. William Jay Robinson is president of the youth division, with which 50 Chicago youth organizations are affiliated.

Mrs. Moses P. Epstein of New York, national president of Hadassah, will address the Chicago chapter of the women's Zionist organization at its first open meeting of the season at 2 o'clock Tuesday at the Congress hotel. Max Korshak, who recently returned from Germany, Poland, and Palestine, will discuss conditions abroad. Committee reports will be given by Mrs. Jacob Lebovitz, Mrs. Korshak, Mrs. Max Shulman, Mrs. I. E. Weiss, and Mrs. S. H. Soboroff. Mrs. Harry M. Fisher heads the chapter.



Mrs. Moses P. Epstein.

Mr. Korshak also will speak at a tea opening the season of the downtown district of Hadassah at 3 o'clock today at headquarters, 8 South Dearborn street. Mrs. Kate Zeleznick will lead community singing. Miss Gertrude Bruckner is president.

Ramah Women's auxiliary of B'nai Brith will open what promises to be a season of record activity with a meeting Wednesday afternoon at the Morrison hotel. Julius Selinger, president of Ramah lodge, will speak.

The auxiliary is sponsoring two interesting artistic events next month, the Don Cossack male chorus concert, Oct. 23, and the Mordkin Russian ballet on Oct. 24. Proceeds from both events will go toward replacing equipment at the nonsectarian hospital for the tubercular at Denver, Colo., and toward other B'nai Brith philanthropies.

Mrs. Harry Franklin is newly elected president of the auxiliary. Other officers are Mrs. Harry Trubitz, first vice president; Mrs. Bernard Levinson, second vice president; Mrs. M. Riskin, recording secretary; Mrs. Morton Herzon, corresponding secretary; Mrs. M. Grabowsky, financial secretary; Mrs. Bernard Shaffer, treasurer; Mrs. Peter Seifer, sentinel; Mrs. Herman Mitchell, guide; Mrs. David Samuels, monitress.

A fashion revue given by three leading stores will begin the year for Infants' Aid at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow at the Auditorium hotel. Mrs. S. A. Morris, a member, will play a musical accompaniment for the models and Miss Mafa Elston will be commentator.

• • •

A harvest frolic dinner-dance to be sponsored by Infants' Aid Sunday evening, Oct. 30, at the College inn of the Hotel Sherman, will be the chief topic of discussion at the meeting. Proceeds from the party will help build the endowment fund for the premature infant station at the Sarah Morris hospital. The station is among the Infants' Aid philanthropies.

Mrs. Isadore S. Stein heads Infants' Aid this year. Other officers are Mrs. Laurence M. Du Bois, first vice president; Mrs. Edward Glaser, second vice president; Mrs. S. A. Morris, third vice president; Mrs. S. Fuchs, recording secretary; Mrs. J. M. Kraus, financial secretary; Mrs. Abe Maremont, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Fred Gimbel, treasurer. Mrs. Jacob Espovich and Mrs. L. J. Solomon are general co-chairmen of the dance.

Plans for another interesting autumn benefit will be discussed at the first meeting of the Uptown auxiliary of the Douglas Park Day and Night nursery at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow at the Palmer house. The auxiliary will give a dinner-dance Sunday, Nov. 20, at the Palmer house as the culmination of the annual earning fund drive. Mrs. Harry Ex is chairman of this drive.

Yet another benefit, a play and dance to be given Sunday evening, Nov. 6, at the Civic Opera house, will occupy the attention of the Ruth League for Crippled Children at its opening meeting today. The organization will meet at 2:30 o'clock at 316 North Michigan avenue. Rehersals for the play begin tomorrow at the Majestic hotel.

Infants' Aid juniors will hold their first open meeting of the season at 2:30 o'clock today at the Auditorium building.

Dining Room Walls Aided By Two Different Papers

A beautiful treatment for dining room walls is to use a striped paper on two opposite walls and a paper having a design on the other two. For example, in a room now on display, the long side walls are done in a stunning soft, powder blue and white stripe, while the end walls are hung in a paper having the same blue background and a Chinese design [pagoda, trees and bridges, etc.] in white.

Sarah Maxwell and Brother on Visit in West

By Ruth Billheimer.

PASADENA, CAL. Before college swallows them for another year, two popular Chicagoans, Miss Sarah Maxwell and her brother, Henry, are west to visit their cousins, Miss Bessie Keith and Harold Keith, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hall Keith [Adelaide Maxwell], formerly of Chicago.

Sarah, as Chicagoans know, is a University of Arizona co-ed and a Delta Gamma. Henry will soon enter his sophomore year at Harvard.

In compliment to them, their cousins gave a barbecue supper in the Keith gardens this week. Flood lights illuminated the sloping lawn and tables were arranged at the bottom of the slope for supper. At the top were ping-pong tables and space for other games. But perhaps the most popular spot in the garden, aside from the barbecue pit, was the fortune teller's booth among the shrubbery.

Later in the evening, Miss Keith and her brother took their 30 guests roller skating.

Over at the Hotel Huntington, the George Marcys celebrated their 52d wedding anniversary a few days ago.

In the sheltered patio of the John Valleau Rathbone home in Westwood, late summer flowers, predominantly pink, were massed for the mid-September wedding of their daughter, Miss Helen Burnell Rathbone, to Richards Lindley Layman, son of Mrs. Gertrude Richards Layman of Urbana, Ill.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and wore cream lace over satin, made with a long train. A wreath of orange blossoms held in place her finger tip tulle veil, and she carried a shower of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. David L. Clark Jr. of Pasadena was matron of honor, and wore deep turquoise chiffon, with flowers in her hair. Miss Sally Allison of Beverly Hills was bridesmaid and wore a paler shade. They carried pale pink roses and bouvardia in a shower.

Collin Rathbone, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John V. Rathbone Jr., was ring bearer and wore pale blue taffeta. On her head was a dainty garland of pink flowers and a similar garland outlined the neck of her frock.

After a brief honeymoon trip to Coronado, Mr. and Mrs. Layman will occupy the Rathbone residence while the elder couple is in Chicago visiting. Eventually, they will make their home at Manhattan Beach.

History Lends Special Charm to Strassburg

By May Birkhead.

PARIS It is quite the thing for tourists, eminent, and otherwise, to include Strassburg in their summer itinerary. If you arrive there just as August is gliding into September, you are sure to see well known fellow Americans, not to mention British and many other nationalities, even some of the traveling maharajahs. Not only is the Strassburg cathedral one of the most imposing and beautiful in Europe, but the ancient city is full of picturesque old houses, and the cachet of antiquity is enhanced by the Ill that flows through Strassburg, under quaint bridges, on its way to the nearby Rhine. Then many cannot help wondering, in these troubled days, when frontiers are being called in question, what may happen one day to Alsace and her capital, where problems of race, language, and sovereignty have made this handsome land of mountains and plains so often a counter throughout their long history.

If you lay aside all thoughts of trouble, Strassburg yields many tourist delights. Every one hurries to the cathedral, a wonderful example of Gothic architecture, built of rich red Alsatian stone, only the left tower soaring into the air. On fine days, if you climb even up to the platform, 300 steps above the ground, you may revel in the magnificent panorama, which includes the Black Forest in Germany, the sweep of the Rhine, and the Vosges mountains. There, above the platform, you may see the names, carved by the owners themselves, of such illustrious one-time residents of Strassburg as Goethe, then a law student, and Voltaire, on his way to self-imposed, but prudent, exile. The interior of the cathedral is as grandiose and somber as Gothic can be, and suggests the famous Duomo of Milan.

• • •

At noon, hundreds crowd the side entrance for tickets to the horloge astronomique, when the famous procession of the apostles revolves under the clock, one of the figures striking twelve hammer strokes, while the cock crows three times, with its strange mechanical cry. Perhaps the greatest thrill of all, for the lovers of sheer beauty, is the magnificent colored glass, especially that on the series of windows on the right as you go towards the altar. When the sun shines on that side, the rich reds, violets, and yellows, form a luminous tapestry of jeweled glass that owes much of its splendor to cunning restoration, in the ancient mode, by a great modern master of what is now regarded as nearly a lost art.

You will, of course, seek out the house where Goethe lived as a student; the palace, right alongside the cathedral, where the Cardinal de Rohan lived both before and after his connection with the Marie Antoinette necklace scandal—a palace which now houses the art of many centuries; the place where Marie Antoinette first touched French soil on coming from Austria to be the bride of Louis XVI.; and the Orangerie, a park and plaisance on the edge of the city, where Josephine waited for Napoleon when he returned from his victory at Austerlitz; and Petite France, with houses hundreds of years old.

The most curious, not to say anxious, reflections will not down as you visit the Rhine. We arrived there on a Monday afternoon. The Rhine, of muddy turquoise color, flowed rather swiftly, and seemed almost as wide as at Basel. In a half dozen places, hundreds of workmen, on the German side, at the village of Kehl, were working behind high screens of fresh lumber, and there was a steady thumping, as of a pile-driver. Several heavily filled barges drew up, on the German side. Here and there, on the French side, army officers could be seen pointing out, to a high civil functionary, the activity on the opposite bank. On getting back to Strassburg, late in the evening, a local Alsatian paper, printed in German, announced that that very Monday morning Fuehrer Hitler, accompanied by eight generals, had visited Kehl, and that the bridge had been closed to international trafic for an hour while he inspected the new works.

• • •

Strassburgians seemed calm on learning this piece of news. This city, capital of a district which, with the part of Lorraine that was returned to France after the war, is somewhat larger than the state of Connecticut, has seen so many vicissitudes in its long history that it has learned to hope for the best. But when it is remembered that Alsace-Lorraine, in the last years it was in German hands, produced annually 3,500,000 tons of coal, 21,000,000 tons of iron ore, 3,000,000 tons of pig iron, 2,300,000 tons of steel, not to mention its rich potash deposits, copper, petroleum, and textiles, and over 13,000,000 gallons of wine, the anxiety of France is understandable.

Alsace, to the rapid observer, seems, however, thoroughly accustomed to, and pleased with, her attachment to France. She would rather be independent, as she was intermittently, for centuries, since Roman days, when Strassburg was called Argentorate. But if she must have a suzerain, then France will do, for France respects her local customs, such as religion [three-fourths of Alsace-Lorraine is Catholic] and her language, which sounds like some of the Germanic dialects of northern Switzerland. But every one is greeted with the French bon jour and the Alsatians draw themselves up a bit when addressed in ordinary high German, although among themselves they prefer their local patois.

Legion Auxiliary Cook County Unit Elects President

Mrs. Myron W. Omlie was elected president of the Cook County council of the American Legion auxiliary at its annual meeting Sept. 10 at the Hotel Sherman. She succeeded Mrs. Ernest Duckett, who took Mrs. Omlie's former post as chapeau of the 8 and 40 Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Myron Omlie.

Child welfare has been Mrs. Omlie's chief activity in the legion. Helping delinquent girls and coaching boys to victory in legion oratorical contests are among her interests. Before her marriage she taught public speaking at the South Dakota Teachers' college. Her eligibility to auxiliary membership is based on the wartime service of two brothers and her husband, whom Pershing cited for heading "the best motor transport company overseas." Phoebe Omlie, flyer and first woman in any country to hold a government post in aeronautics, is her sister-in-law.

Mrs. Omlie has been president of Logan Square unit of the auxiliary, director of the ninth district, and Americanism chairman as well as chapeau of the 8 and 40, honor organization of the auxiliary. But her service to the legion dates back to giving programs in pre-auxiliary days in 1919 in South Dakota. She is a native Iowan, claiming Lansing as her home town and Iowa State Teachers' college as her alma mater.

Other officers of the council are Mrs. Frank Wissman, first vice president; Mrs. Joseph Van Der Haeghen, second vice president; Mrs. Edwin Palm, treasurer; Mrs. William Landeck, chaplain; Mrs. Ann McManus, historian; Mrs. Fred Volkman, sergeant at arms.

World Cruise to Speed Recovery of Earl Beatty

LONDON In an effort to speed up recovery from the effects of his serious hunting accident last February, Earl Beatty is shortly going on a world cruise.

He and Lady Beatty sail for New York on the Aquitania on Oct. 19. Christmas and New Year will find them somewhere on the Pacific. They will arrive at Auckland, N. Z., early in January. As chairman of the Navy league he will visit the branches of that patriotic organization in New Zealand and Australia, leaving the latter country in March and arriving in England toward the end of April.

He has sufficiently recovered to be able to mount one of the safest of his hunters and to ride around his estate at Brooksby hall in Leicestershire, much to the surprise of his household staf. Lady Beatty looked on with some concern. At the time of his accident, while hunting with the Quorn, it was freely predicted that he never would be able to ride again.

Rail Association Auxiliary to Fete 39th Anniversary

The Chicago Women's auxiliary to the Railway Mail association will celebrate its 39th birthday anniversary Saturday evening at the Marshall Field Garden apartment community hall, 411 West Blackhawk street. A covered dish dinner will be followed by cards and games.

Mrs. Glen E. Walker.

Organized Sept. 30, 1899, the auxiliary is affiliated with the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs as a member of the first district. Its chief philanthropies are the national scolarship loan fund providing sons and daughters of railway mail employés with college educations; the Mary club, the Park Ridge School for Girls, the Red Cross, and the Chicago Woman's Shelter.

Mrs. Willis J. Burgess, executive secretary of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs since 1919, is a charter member of the auxiliary. Mrs. Julia Chandler is the only other active charter member. Mrs. Harry E. Teachout, Mrs. John H. Kelly, Mrs. Charles W. Keeler, Mrs. John B. Dillon, and Mrs. John H. Naser, now first vice president of the national auxiliary to the Railway Mail association, are among the leading members. Mrs. Glen E. Walker is president of the Chicago auxiliary.

Myopia Hunt Club Starts a New Season

BEVERLY, MASS. The huntsman's call resounded today over hill and dale as the Myopia Hunt club inaugurated its hunting season with meets for the fox and drag hounds, harbingers of the long season which often continues until the snow comes in December.

For more than three score years Myopia has been the center of hunting activities, with the Hamilton club one of the oldest and best known in the country. The club numbers among its members many Chicagoans and is famous for its classic golf course, the St. Andrews of America, its polo teams, and its general interest in sport activities enjoyed by country gentlemen.

Meets this year promise to bring out larger fields than for many seasons, with the red coated hunters to find the trails attractive. The fox hounds are to meet on Wednesday and Saturday mornings and it is an early start the hunters get, away at 6:30 o'clock in the morning on the trail of the elusive fox. The drag hounds meet on Tuesday afternoons and Friday mornings. Later the schedule changes with the drag hunts on Tuesday afternoons, Thursday mornings, and Saturday afternoons and the fox hunts on Monday and Friday mornings.

Gordon Chickering Prince is again M. F. H. with James W. Appleton, a former master of hounds, as honorary M. F. H. At Myopia it is not unusual to find several members of one family in the field.

Memories of days when the Marshall Fields, the Levi Leiters, the William H. Moores, and other well known Chicago families were among the owners of the finest stables on the north shore were recalled this week at the Myopia Hunt club at Hamilton, where the call bell on the great elm at the clubhouse was viewed by many visitors. The bell was used in the days when motor cars were few on the shore and summer residents enjoyed the coast and were driven in carriages. At that time the drive wound by the clubhouse and attendants were summoned by using the bell and without the necessity of leaving the carriage.

• • •

The passing of the years has witnessed many changes. The road which passed the clubhouse in front in now a part of the lawn and the home hole of the classic golf course and the tennis courts, scene of many notable matches, are now on what was part of the old thoroughfare. The sheltering elm on which the bell is placed is one of the finest specimens at the club. It has been looked after with the greatest care, as befits one of the landmarks of the club. Many of the summer residents continue to own horses and in the Myopia district there are some of the finest hunters to be found in the country.

Chicagoans who have fished for tuna in southern waters will have an opportunity to enjoy that sport on the north shore next summer as a result of visits of the large fish to this section of the coast. In Ipswich bay tuna, many weighing over 700 pounds, have been caught and so popular has been the sport this last season that plans are under way for organizing a tuna fishing club. There have been many tuna fish taken this year by summer visitors and it is probable that tuna club headquarters will be established at Ipswich.

The Ipswich players plan to continue their presentations through the fall and winter season as an added attraction for the ever increasing group of late stayers on the north shore. The summer playhouses have, for the most part, closed their program after the most successful season in the history of the north shore. There have been a score of little theater groups all the way from Nahant to Rockport on Cape Ann. There have been more stage and screen stars playing in the groups than for any season to date. The movement is increasing in popularity and more groups are promised for next summer.

When Miss Nancy Leiter of Chicago and Washington has her yacht, the Venture, placed in winter quarters next month, it will close a most successful season for the swift yacht and her owner. Miss Leiter has been a devotee of yachting since her early teens and has been one of the most successful of the younger group, racing yachts on the north shore.

The Venture is a new craft launched last spring and with Miss Leiter at the helm figured as a winner of many races at Marblehead, Manchester, and Newport. There are few young women who have won more trophies in yachting than Miss Leiter. She is a modest winner, but her friends say her victories in many hard fought races are due to her cleverness in handling her craft, oftentimes against the best of the men sailors on the coast.

Mrs. Barrett Wendell has returned to her Chicago home after an enjoyable stay at her country home in the Myopia district at Hamilton. Mrs. Wendell has many friends in the Wenham and Hamilton colonies and her north shore sojourn was a pleasurable event.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Mountol have returned to their Kenilworth, Ill., home after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Megowen at the Duane cottage. The Megowens are former residents of Chicago.

Miss Evelyn Lilly, daughter of Mrs. Frederic Clay Bartlett of Chicago and Beverly Cove, has returned from a trip to Indianapolis. The Bartletts are planning a late season stay at their Cove home.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Chatfield-Taylor have returned to their Chicago home after a visit with Mr. Taylor's sister, Mrs. Chatfield Whitman, at the Burnham cottage, Mrs. Whitman's summer home in Manchester. Much entertaining was done for the Taylors during their north shore sojourn.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Moore of Convent, N. J., are visiting Mr. Moore's mother, Mrs. William H. Moore of Chicago and New York, at Rockmarge, her Pride's Crossing estate.

LONG ISLAND NEWLYWED

Mrs. Paul D. Van Wagner of Great Neck, Long Island, N. Y., was Miss Eleanor Sullivan until Sept. 10. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Sullivan of Chicago.

Observe Rules of Etiquet, but Retain Poise

What refreshments may be served at a bridal shower? For the rules governing bridal showers, read the booklet, "The Bridal Shower," by Helen Bartlett, Tribune etiquet editor. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 2 cents. Postpaid, 3 cents.

By Helen Bartlett.

Sometimes I think that these weekly columns of advice and frequent criticisms of behavior as seen on the city streets may be having an effect opposite to that intended. In the quantities of mail and telephone calls we receive, now and then we find a letter that makes us feel that the writers have a tendency to be much too conscious and obvious about this problem of "the correct thing." Their innumerable questions and anxiety over frightfully unimportant details and jitters because of some small mistake are an indication of their extreme discomfort in their social contacts.

If our criticisms and suggestions operate in reverse, thereby making people self-conscious, afraid to move without consulting the book, unnatural and ill at ease instead of sure and confident, then we do more harm than good. The little details are not to be minimized in their importance, because a lot of little details make a big one. But neither should they be exaggerated out of proportion and permitted to heckle and upset the natural poise of the individual.

The knowledge that one is doing the correct thing in any given situation, no matter how trivial, gives one a feeling of poise in a way that nothing else can. And yet if the observance of these rules of etiquet is not as natural as second nature, and they are permitted to prey on the mind of the individual, they can tear down that all-important poise and leave us cringing and fidgety.

The purpose of etiquet rules is to make our living in a complex society smoother and more comfortable. If it fails in that, then the individual is taking the wrong approach and placing the importance on the wrong point.

Call us or write us whenever you have a problem, great or small. That is the reason for our existence. Knowing the right way will lessen the burden if you take this thing seriously at all.

When Chicago Was Young: "Deacon" Bross, Mouthpiece of Chicago, Died

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Jan. 28, 1890.

Dear Julia: We have just learned of the death of our old friend "Deacon" Bross, who was such a part of Chicago that it seems to us the city will not be quite the same without him.

An old man, he yet had been so vigorous physically and mentally that his friends felt he would be with them many years more. He was one of the heads of The Tribune company at the time of his death.

The mouthpiece of Chicago, many called him, when he went up and down the land, in early days, declaring to the world that this city would one day boast a population of one million. With an appalling death rate here—his own family of eight children, with the exception of a daughter, died young—he stoutly maintained this to be a healthy place to live. It had so much ozone! No fault nor flaw could he find in Chicago. It was an article of religion with him.

• • •

His life was like a Horatio Alger story. Born in New Jersey and moving with his parents to Pennsylvania at an early age, he soon took his place as a breadwinner, for his father needed his help in getting out wood from the forests for the Delaware and Hudson canal, then being built. It was as a woodsman, I suppose, that he laid the foundation for his excellent health.

At 19 he began his classical education and two years later he entered Williams college. I can imagine that he worked over his lessons with the same zeal he has given to business in his later life. When he had finished college he had on his shoulders a debt of $600 but he was ready for the problems of life.

He became principal of a school in Pennsylvania, but in 1846 he visited the midwest and fell in love with Chicago. Here, he felt, a man might have a chance to make a fortune. Two years later he came to stay and opened a bookstore but was forced to admit after a year and a half that Chicagoans were too busy making money to buy and read books. Then he and the Rev. J. A. Wight established a religious paper, the Prairie Herald, which succeeded only moderately well. In 1852 with John L. Scripps he started the Democratic Press, having a subscription list of 100 names for the daily edition and 200 for the weekly.

Two years later, when the Republican party was born, the "Deacon," as he is always called, espoused its principles and spoke for John C. Fremont in Dearborn park. In 1858 the Democratic Press was consolidated with THE TRIBUNE and ever since that time Mr. Bross has been one of the great figures in Chicago journalism.

• • •

His services during the civil war were notable, for he helped organize a colored regiment, which was commanded by his brother John A. Bross and it was due to Deacon Bross that the conspiracy to release the prisoners at Camp Douglas was discovered and thwarted.

We were all glad when his services were recognized by his being elected lieutenant governor of Illinois in 1864. I think he was very proud of the fact that his name was signed to the amendment to the constitution prohibiting slavery, submitted to the states for approval in 1865.

He is said to have left a large fortune, which will undoubtedly go to his only child, Mrs. Henry D. Lloyd of Winnetka.

Martha and the children have forturned from Florida and yesterday Esmond, now 7 years old, attended a chillren's party at little Ginevra Fuller's, 2900 Michigan avenue. Martha said it was a pretty sight, as she saw the parlors, when she called for her own child. All the south side boys and girls were there—Sol and Walter Smith, Frances Dibblee, Cecil Clark, Ira Holmes, Charles Dewey, Leeds Mitchell, and so on.

Now, much love and good night.
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

Little Ginevra Fuller became Mrs. Charles Garfield King. Among the children at her party, Frances Dibblee became Mrs. A. A. Sprague; Cecil Clark married Richard Harding Davis and is now known as Cecil Clark Davis; Ira Holmes, who died early, was a brother of Burton Holmes; Charles Dewey is a candidate for member of congress, and Leeds Mitchell and Solomon A. and Walter B. Smith are well known as solid citizens of Chicago.

Martha's allusion to the song of the old soldier who had a wooden leg has brought a flood of letters, with differing versions of that touching ballad.

F. R. Houston, Green Bay, Wis., recalls hearing it sung by an old porter in a saloon in Wausau, Wis. A. J. Lockwood, Park Ridge, heard it years ago. R. B. Rector, Chicago, includes a verse of "Down Went McGinty" in his letter. Jessie N. Johnson and H. L. Anderson of Chicago and Mrs. Harry Holland of Winnetka are others who have sent the words of the song as they recall it.

Somewhat to our disappointment, no one of our readers feels that it is suggestive of "Down Went McGinty."

J. West, who has directed choirs in several Chicago churches, says in an appreciative letter about his affection for this column: "The writer was a member of the children's chorus led by W. L. Tomlins in 1885-'86. We had rehersals on Saturdays at old Central Music hall, Mr. Tomlins presiding at the piano, assisted by Miss Hofer and Miss Squires. Our favorite numbers were 'March of the Men of Harlach,' 'Welcome, Sweet Springtime,' and 'Come Out, 'Tis Now September.' In the spring the chorus sang at the Auditorium."

I was the first guest to see her. During luncheon our hostess was carried to the terrace and listened from afar to the frivolities of her guests, who included Lord and Lady Elmley of Norfolk and Herbert Gornschner, the London portrait painter of the moment.

The luncheon table was charming, a rough yellow linen cloth, plates of emerald green peasant style, and other vividly colored potteries for the salad, the melon, figs, and pomegranates.

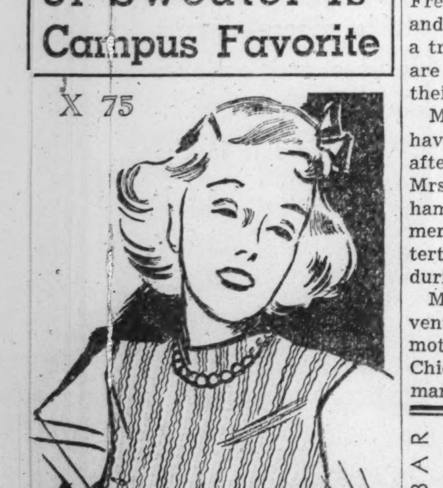
Mr. Woolley-Hart, one of England's noted gold mining millionaires, has achieved several rare medieval fountains for the farm. It was marvelous to sit in the hot sun, under the cool breeze, watching the cloud shadows chase over the mountains. Some of my ancestors came from this region and I felt strangely akin to it.

In fact we had such a good time at St. Jacques that we decided to run over to Valbonne, where is the Domaine de Beaumont, built ten years ago by the late Mrs. George Carr of Chicago.

We drove due west across the mountains to the broad plateau and in. Since my last visit lodge gates have been built and the trees have shot up like mad, hiding the distant Mediterranean. The servants welcomed us as friends of the Carr family, and in great glee announced that the American ambassador to London, Mr. Kennedy, and all his progeny were in residence. They were, however, all away swimming at Eden Rock twenty-five miles as the crow flies. So we looked over the Domaine de Beaumont and the portrait of lovely Katharine Carr, who designed and built the beautiful place, but never liver to enjoy it. Domaine de Beaumont is owned by her daughters Katharine and Martha of Chicago, both brides of the spring.

The great afternoon excitement at Cannes, meaning from 6 to 9, is the cocktail bar at the Carlton. It is a strange conglomeration of the very young, the very ultra; of movie stars and of gigolos, and indeed, as to gigolos, they seem to be in convention, they are so many. Fashionable women's faces stand forth, Daisy Fellowes, Marquise de Polynac, Lady de Mendl in audacious shorts. My word! What a crowd, mostly burned till they are darker far than the East Indians, who look on in silent amazement.

Sleeveless Type of Sweater Is Campus Favorite



By Jean Macdonald.

Hand knitted campus modes no longer are carelessly casual. They have smartness and distinction about them which rate with the dressiest fabrics. The sleeveless sweater of uneven ribbing is worn over a one piece woolen dress. Patch pockets of the same ribbing as that of the sweater are tacked onto the bottom of the blouse. Scotch fingering, angora, crêpe, and nubby wool are the varieties of yarns which are favored. Instructions for knitting the garment are available in sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42.

For instructions for knitting the sleeveless jacket, No. X-75, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

TRYING to pound a nail with a shoe is as inefficient as pounding the streets in search of an apartment without the guidance of Tribune rental offers.

The convenient way to choose your new apartment is to concentrate your search in the Tribune want ad section.

Choice apartment values in practically every size and layout, location and rental bracket are described in these columns. For ease of selection, the offerings are grouped by location in the city or suburb and by number of rooms.

The more apartments from which you have to choose, the greater the likelihood that you will find just the one you want.

The Tribune prints more apartments to rent want advertising than all other Chicago newspapers combined. As a result, when you follow Tribune rental columns regularly you keep informed of practically all the worthwhile apartment values available in metropolitan Chicago.

You can find the comfort and convenience you desire in an apartment by consulting Chicago's most convenient apartment guide—the Tribune want ad section. Read today's offers now.

• Before starting your apartment hunt, spend a few minutes making up a list of the rental offers in the Tribune which interest you most.

This will save you time and energy because you can restrict your search to those apartments which you know in advance have the best chance of suiting you.

Tribune Rental Want Ads Have This ADDED Convenience

TRIBUNE rental want ads are listed by location in city or suburb and by number of rooms. Thus, if you know that you want to live on the South side, for instance, and that you require a minimum of four rooms, you turn immediately to the columns headed "To Rent—Apartments—South" and then consult the offerings under the subheading "Four, Five, Six Rooms and Larger." Then all you have to do is to make up a list of the offerings which appeal most to you and then inspect these at your leisure.

Rental Agents!
Apartment Owners!

Low-cost Tribune want ads can help you rent your apartments. Every day of the week far more families in Chicago and suburbs read the Tribune than read any other Chicago newspaper.

If your name is in the phone book, you can charge your Tribune want ad. Phone Superior 0100—Want Ad-Viser—or ask to have a Tribune representative call on you.

Jewish Council Out for 1,000 New Members

By Betty Browning.

One thousand new Chicago members! That is the response of the National Council of Jewish Women to the emergency now confronting it. Twenty-five teas next Wednesday afternoon in the city and suburbs will open what is perhaps, the largest membership drive ever undertaken locally by a woman's organization. The council now numbers 1,800 Chicago members.

Mrs. Hannah G. Solomon, the still vigorous 80 year old leader who organized the council shortly after the World's Columbian exposition of 1893, will address all twenty-five gatherings simultaneously over station WAAF from 2:45 to 3 o'clock. She will describe the growth of the organization from the original Chicago section to the present 50,000 members in America and Canada.

Service for foreign born will take precedence over other activities this year. With the increasing peril of Jews abroad, the council must enlist the aid of thousands in this country in order to extend a helping hand.

Mrs. Benjamin I. Morris.

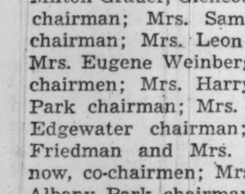
"The European situation is a menace not only to Jews but to all believers in democracy," Mrs. Benjamin I. Morris, new president of the council's Chicago section, explained her organization's stand.

"The council always has stressed that it is an American Jewish organization, that it must serve the American community first. But in this crisis we feel that we are upholding the American tradition when we help unfortunate refugees. America always has been a refuge for the oppressed."

Aiding the emigré to establish himself without displacing some one else is the council's objective, Mrs. Morris emphasized. To meet the growing demands of the last few months the council this summer opened a larger office at 130 North Wells street near the Jewish charities, the Jewish Social Service bureau, and other agencies with which the council coöperates.

The council effects contact with many refugees before they leave their homeland, assists them to enter the country, and guides them through the process of naturalization. Persons interested in bringing refugees into the country are placed in correspondence with families abroad to establish friendship with them.

Mrs. Morris told of a German born Lutheran who recently came to the council offices and offered to bring two Jewish families to America.



Mrs. Harry J. Myerson.

Mrs. Harry J. Myerson is directing the membership drive. It was during her presidency last year that the council conducted one of the largest and most successful benefits ever given by a Chicago organization.

Mrs. Myerson is assisted in the membership drive by Mrs. William H. Sahud and Mrs. Joseph Slottow, vice chairmen; and Samuel Perlstein, secretary.

Mrs. Wilfred Newman is Highland Park chairman for the drive; Mrs. Milton Grauer, Glencoe and Winnetka chairman; Mrs. Samuel Oman, co-chairman; Mrs. Leon B. Sager and Mrs. Eugene Weinberg, Wilmette co-chairmen; Mrs. Harry Salk, Rogers Park chairman; Mrs. Sidley Pollack, Edgewater chairman; Mrs. Samuel Friedman and Mrs. Harry Gershenow, co-chairmen; Mrs. David Gross, Albany Park chairman; Mrs. Arthur Elfenbaum, Mrs. Herman Silvertrust, Mrs. Sam Steinberg and Mrs. Edward Weinstein, co-chairmen; Mrs. Max L. Loewenberg, Lake View chairman; Mrs. Max Krauss and Mrs. William Wolfson, co-chairmen; Mrs. Morton Hoffman, South Shore chairman; Mrs. Meyer Solomon, Hyde Park chairman; Mrs. A. A. Abelson, Mrs. Herman Franz, Mrs. Nathan Metzger, Mrs. Albert Spiegel, Mrs. Louis Wangersheim, and Mrs. Milton Wolfson, co-chairmen; Mrs. Joseph Willens, Oak Park chairman; Mrs. Benjamin Braude, Mrs. David Gesmer and Mrs. Abram Korff, co-chairmen.

The Du Page Hounds have been meeting every morning at 7 for the last month, but there will be no official hunts until later when the fields are drier. Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, the M. F. H. of this hunt, which rides in the lush, fertile country around Wheaton and Naperville, has a young kinsman, Deering McCormick, as joint master this season.

There is no hunt, as yet, in Barrington, but there is a riding club which some day will acquire a pack of hounds and some jumps, no doubt, and then it will be a full fledged informal hunt. The riding club is giving a barbecue supper tonight at the James Cardwells' for the owners of the land over which the club rides.

The Longmeadows Hounds have been meeting in the early mornings for several weeks, but starting this week they will meet in the afternoons at 3 on Wednesdays and Saturdays, and in the mornings at 6:40 on Mondays. Clark Lawrence, the M. F. H. of this hunt which rides over the colorful prairies west of Winnetka, just is back from a summer abroad, bringing reports of the superb jumping he and Mrs. Lawrence saw at the Dublin horse show. Her daughter, Miss Nancy Blaine, is leaving this week to return to her studies at Vassar. The Longmeadow will not commence its formal hunting until October.

Indian Council Fire to Award Medal for 1938

The Indian Council Fire will award the Indian Achievement Medal for 1938 to Mark L. Burns at its American Indian day meeting at 8 o'clock Friday evening at 32 West Randolph street.

A Chippewa, Mr. Burns is superintendent of the Consolidated Indian agency, one of the larger reservations. A former lumberman, he was one of the first Indians to be appointed superintendent of a reservation.

The Rev. Philip Gordon, also a Chippewa, said to be the only Indian Catholic priest in this country, will be the principal speaker. A program will be given by George LaMere, Winnebago baritone; Lone Feather, hoop dancer, Clearwater, Whirling Thunder, and a number of other Indian singers and dancers. H. E. Wilkes, president of the Council Fire, will conduct the meeting.

D. A. R. Division to Offer School of Americanism

The fourth division Americanism committee of the Illinois Daughters of the American Revolution will sponsor an advanced school of Americanism over station WGES on Fridays from 3:30 to 3:45 o'clock. The series began last week, to continue for fifty-two weeks. Mrs. Marie Tylee McHugh is chairman in charge.

Names Chicago Galleries an Art Stronghold

By Eleanor Jewett.

The Chicago Galleries association, 215 North Michigan avenue, is Chicago's greatest stronghold of fine painting. It deals entirely with the work of contemporary artists and draws for most of its exhibits upon work done through the middle west. Many of its artist members live in Chicago.

In these times it is more difficult for contemporary art to find a sale than for an old master. Somehow the prestige of time gives a glamor to a picture that has survived two or three hundred years and people will pleasantly dip into their purses and pull out thousands of dollars when, if the picture was by a local, living man, they would hesitate about extracting hundreds.

The confusion that modern art has spread [in spite of those vitalizing qualities for which it is to be commended] has made the going all the harder for the contemporary painter. So the report of the Chicago galleries upon sales for the first six months of 1938 is rather cheering. The sale of eighty paintings was made totaling $14,775. This is an average of $184.69 each, not too bad.

The eighty sales were made for thirty-six artists exhibiting in the galleries during the half year period. Frederic Tellander led with nine paintings sold; Julius Moessel sold one oil and eight of his stunning water colors; Othmar Hoffler sold seven oils; Frank Dudley sold six [less than usual for this popular painter]; Joseph Tomanek and Edward Grigware sold four each and Mathias J. Alten of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Louis Kelly of Minneapolis two each. Mr. Alten died very suddenly at Grand Rapids just after his arresting exhibit closed at the galleries.

Among other artists whose work was purchased are Edward K. Williams, Carl Hoerman, John A. Spelman, Arthur G. Rider, Marie E. Blanke, Oskar Gross, Leon Pescheret, Bessie Helstrom, Carl R. Krafft, Richard Chase, Pauline Palmer [it does not seem possible we shall not see her again], Edithe Jane Cassidy, and Marques E. Reitzel.

• • •

It seems worth recording where some of the paintings went. Gen. Gignilliat of Culver Military academy, Culver, Ind., selected Frederic Tellander's magnificent large canvas, "Sunlit Surf," the colorful "Unloading Sponges," by Mathias J. Alten, and the beautiful "Moonlight and Branches," by Rudolph F. Ingerle. The pictures will be notable additions to Culver's growing art collection.

The Gary Public Schools, represented by Miss Elizabeth Ames, art director, acquired the eight water colors of birds by Julius Moessel, a splendid and decorative group. The water colors will hang in a corridor of the biology department. Gary also secured a fine Tellander, "Landscape of Vermont," an Adolph Schulz Brown County landscape, "Procession," and the "Winding Road," by Dale Bessire.

Lawrence college, Appleton, Wis., purchased the stunning marine, "English Coast," by Tellander. This was bought by the faculty of the Paper institute. An exhibition of paintings from the Art institute and the Chicago galleries was held at Lawrence college last fall through the courtesy of Charles H. Worcester, vice president of the Chicago galleries.

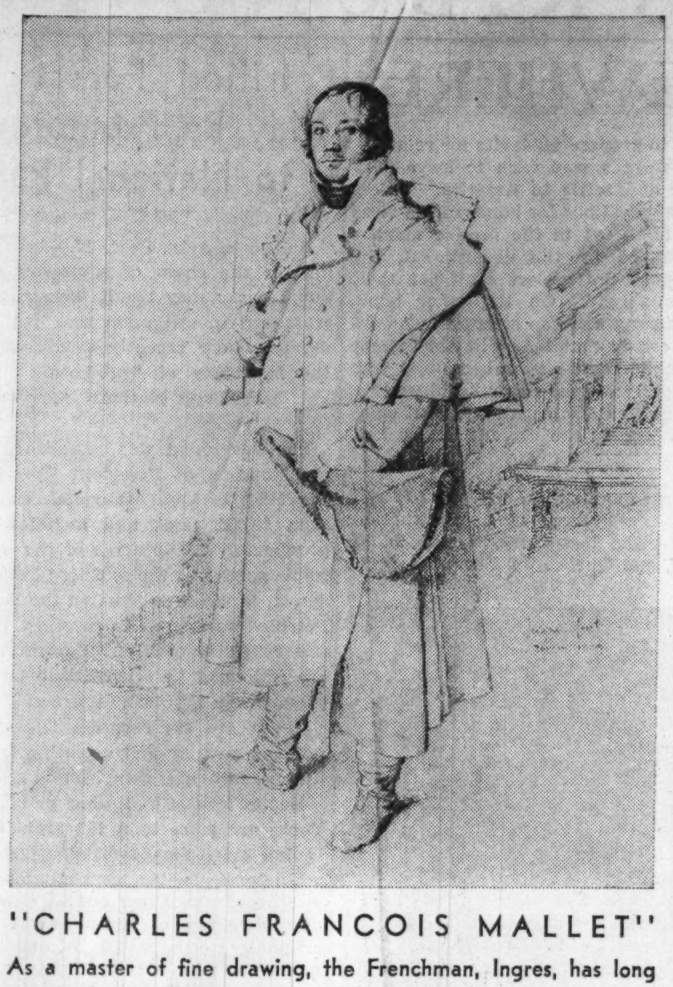
During February the Lafayette Art association, Lafayette, Ind., had an exhibition of twenty-six important paintings from the Chicago galleries and purchased Louise Kelly's "Cornish Cottages" for their collection.

• • •

One interesting feature of the Chicago galleries is its circulating department, through which, for a very moderate sum, one may borrow a painting to hang at home and exchange it for another at one's will. Nineteen new subscribers entered this service during the first half of 1938, and only two of the older members dropped out.

The pressing need of the Chicago galleries is more lay members. Lay members pay $300 over a three year period and for this have the more than equitable privilege of making their own selection of a painting or a portrait of themselves or a member of their family from the artist members' annual exhibition held in each December.

The forty-ninth annual American paintings and sculpture exhibition will open at the Art institute Oct. 20. Three curators of painting from three museums constitute the jury of selection. Clyde H. Burroughs, Detroit Institute of Art; Henri Marceau of the Philadelphia Museum of Art, and Henry Sayles Francis, Cleveland Museum of Art, compose the trio. They will meet in New York Sept. 21 and in Chicago Sept. 23 to pass upon the entries. Mr. Rich, director of fine arts of the Art institute, is privileged to select 100 paintings and a small group of sculpture for the show. No work by a Chicago artist is eligible for invitation for obvious reasons.



"CHARLES FRANCOIS MALLET"

As a master of fine drawing, the Frenchman, Ingres, has long stood alone. This unusual pencil portrait by him, a recent accession to the department of prints and drawings, is the September "masterpiece of the month" at the Art institute. It is from the Charles Deering collection.

Rug's Life Depends on Quality and the Care You Give It

Have you bought a new rug or carpet recently? It's life depends on two things: Its quality and the care you give it.

Do not be alarmed at pile shedding, which happens to all new rugs at first. It's just a temporary condition. Sweep gently for the first two or three weeks until the wool has regained its natural amount of moisture.

Remember that dirt and grit, unless removed, will work down into the back of a rug and with continual grinding will soon cut the threads and will thus wear it out. Whether you use a vacuum or a broom or carpet sweeper your floor covering must be kept clean.

Electric cleaners and carpet sweepers are especially recommended for pile surface rugs and carpets. Do not beat or clean with stiff brushes. If a corn broom is used the sweeping should be done lightly. And never sweep against the pile.

Chicagoland Engagements

Wedding and engagement announcements must be signed by a member of the family and must bear the address and telephone number of the signer. Announcements must reach the society editor by Tuesday noon preceding the Sunday of publication.

Dorothy Pearl Lowenstein, daughter of Mrs. Ann Lowenstein, 633 Addison street, to Irving Durbin of Chicago. The wedding will take place this fall.

Vivian Jepsen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Jepsen, 5361 West North avenue, to Stanley Holtz of Forest Hills, N. Y., son of Mr. and Mrs. George Holtz, North Mayfield avenue.

Mary Adele Wilkinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Wilkinson, 5815 Maryland avenue, to Alexander Sany Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Sany, 6303 Kenwood avenue.

GOING SOMEWHERE?

Wintertime along the shores of the Mediterranean will be spent by the passengers on a cruise arranged last week by the Italian Line in coöperation with the American Express travel service. On Jan. 28 the group, using the Conte di Savoia throughout, will leave for a 39 day trip to the Madeira Islands, Cannes, Genoa, Naples, Athens, Istanbul, the Island of Rhodes, Beirut, Haifa, Port Said, Cairo, and Valetta, capital of Malta.

A large area dedicated to hikers, campers, and outdoor fans is taking shape in western North Carolina. The national park service, the national forest service, and the state park division are coöperating in providing campsites, trails, highways, and recreational facilities in the Great Smoky Mountains National park, the Cherokee, Nantahala, and Pisgah National forests, and the Joyce Kilmer Memorial forest.

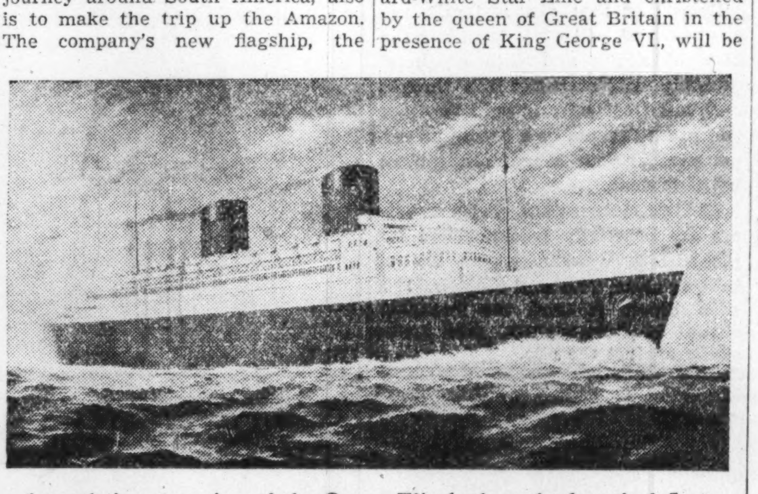
Late next winter the Kungsholm will go on a 125 mile cruise up through the lower reaches of the Amazon river. This was announced yesterday by the Swedish American Line. The jaunt will be a part of the motor liner's 32 day cruise to Rio de Janeiro, starting Feb. 17 and scheduled for stops at Trinidad, Martinique, St. Thomas, Bahia, and Para, along with a pause close to Devil's Island. The Gripsholm, leaving Jan. 31 for a 46 day journey around South America, also is to make the trip up the Amazon. The company's new flagship, the Stockholm, will enter the trans-Atlantic service next May, and on June 26 will leave New York for a 41 day cruise to the North cape, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Finland, Estonia, and Russia.



An artist's conception of the Queen Elizabeth, to be launched Sept. 27 in the presence of King George VI.

When the Hamburg of the Hamburg American Line-North German Lloyd docked in New York the other day she had 1,023 passengers on board—the largest number she has carried since 1934. Chicago offices of the line, together with the offices of the travel agencies and the other trans-Atlantic steamship companies, are being swamped these days with requests for information. The callers want to know how to prepare affidavits for relatives and friends who wish to leave Europe and settle in America. Unless the applications for immigration visas are filled out in the precise manner demanded by the government, the prospective travelers can't get their visas abroad. On the other hand, applicants who can satisfy the American consul that they will not become a public charge over here, and who comply with the other requirements, are given their permits without delay—as long as the current quotas hold out.

Next month there are to be 87 sailings—an average of nearly three a day—from New York, Boston, Montreal, and Quebec for European ports.

Autumn fairs, exhibitions, races, and music festivals are among the chief attractions on the other side of the Atlantic.

National Air Travel week, commemorating the tenth anniversary of commercial transportation by plane, will be observed Oct. 1 to 9. As a part of the celebration, officials of the twenty-one participating lines hope to attract more than 50,000 first riders. Hundred mile sightseeing flights will start from more than 200 cities.

Word received in Chicago has it that the Queen Elizabeth, to be launched Tuesday, Sept. 27, by the Cunard-White Star Line and christened by the queen of Great Britain in the presence of King George VI., will be the world's largest ship. While she is destined to be the sister ship and running mate of the Queen Mary, she will be different in a number of respects. The Queen Elizabeth will have two stacks instead of three, a sharper angle to her bow, and more noticeable streamlining throughout. She will be 1,030 feet long — 10½ feet longer than her sister—and have a gross tonnage of approximately 85,000, as against the 81,235 of the Queen Mary. Following her launching, it will take approximately a year and a half to fit her out. She will enter the service between New York and Europe in late spring or early summer of 1940.

Petrified Forest May Be Promoted to National Park

Holbrook, Ariz., Sept. 17.—Another link in the chain of southwest national parks may result from a congressional investigation that got under way here recently to determine the feasibility of "promoting" the Petrified Forest National monument to park status.

The monument was established by proclamation of President Theodore Roosevelt in 1906. It contains more than 90,000 acres and includes approximately 53,000 acres of the most scenic portion of the southern Painted desert, in which is situated the Black Petrified forest. The petrified logs, scattered over most of the monument, are estimated by scientists to be approximately 200,000,000 years old.

There are six separate "forests," each of popular and scientific interest. There are many fossilized remains of animal and other plant life. There are more than 100 prehistoric Indian ruin sites, and thousands of prehistoric Indian petroglyphs on weathered sandstone cliffs. One Indian dwelling of seven rooms was originally constructed of agatized wood. The pueblo, called Agate house, has been rebuilt of the same material on the original foundations.

Porcupines visit the forests occasionally, but apparently find the "wood" a bit hard on their teeth, and move on.

Among many features in the monument is the Agate bridge, a petrified log about 100 feet long, originally encased entirely in sandstone. The crumbling of this stone has exposed the largest part of the trunk, and, beginning with a small channel under the central portion, erosion has carved an arroyo under the log so that it now forms a bridge of about 50 foot span.

Farming and Fishing.

A nation busy with farming and fishing, Portugal has little use for formal education. Although there are three universities, more than one-half the population can neither read nor write. The peasants, however, preserve by word of mouth a rich folklore, and their unwritten four-line poems, recited from one end of the country to the other, are famous. These poems are so numerous that a single collector was able to record 10,000. The Portuguese language, with its signal scarcity of l's and n's, is represented in the world's literature by the 16th century Lusiad, written by the one-eyed Camoen, largely while in exile.

THROUGH THE MOUNTAINS IN A BOAT.

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 14.—To the Travel Editor: While looking through my scrapbook tonight I came across some notes on a rather unusual trip [possibly you have made it yourself] and, obeying an impulse such as I had when I wrote you previously, I'll try and describe it. It is the inland or inside passage from Ancud, Chile, to the Straits of Magellan. It is an interesting and beautiful journey that the average tourist does not have the opportunity to make.

Look at your map of South America. This passage or channel starts at Ancud and goes between the chain of islands and the mainland from there to the straits.

Ancud is a farming village situated at the entrance to the Chaco narrows, which also is the entrance to the passage. Approaching Ancud, you get a view of a gigantic mountain, far inland, that seems a replica of Fujiyama, its peak snow covered and glistening. This is a prelude and a promise of what to expect. The Chaco narrows are not very long and lead into a large lake.

After crossing the lake we entered a channel that ran in behind some small islands. Behind this island [on the mainland] nestled a little fishing and farming village—one of the most peaceful scenes imaginable—with simple, homelike houses, some of them gray and weather beaten; the spire on the church, the drawn up boats and nets along the narrow beach and, as a background, the well kept fields and farms.

The surface of the channel was so calm and glasslike, and completed the picture so well, that I felt as if we were marring a painting by disturbing it with our bow.

Within a few hours we were back in open water, where we had a veiw of another great mountain peak, this one shaped like the Matterhorn and so steep and jagged that not even the usual small pockets of snow could cling to it.

Along this part of the passage the mountains on the mainland rise right from the water and thus give the appearance of terrific height. The outward side of the passage is formed by what must be a smaller range, the peaks of which are the chain of islands. The shore line is now too rugged to be tillable, but the islands seem to be good farm land and are seemingly all cultivated.

On the second day we crossed the gulf of Penas, which opens directly upon the sea, but by early afternoon we were inside again. The passage was now winding, going in and out between the islands. These islands were so numerous and close together that it seemed a miracle our pilot could remember the course, as it was poorly marked; in fact, some parts were not marked at all.

The third day we passed through the English narrows, which are the narrowest part of the entire passage and seemingly impassable for large ships. But the pilots for these waters frequently take fairly large vessels through. There is a small island in the center, the channel on one side being navigable and on the other quite shallow and full of moss and marine growth. This makes it necessary to do a sharp turn around the island and requires a highly skilled pilot.

As the days passed and we went farther south the temperature fell and glaciers were visible on the distant mountains. Small ice floes appeared alongside the channel at times.

It was during this part of the journey that we passed a small island on whose beach all the inhabitants stood up to greet us. They were in full dress. They were, of course, a flock of penguins.

We passed two wrecks—one of an old steamer that had chosen the wrong channel. It had evidently been there for years, as it was rusted and broken. The other was a small steamer that had run aground fairly recently and was lying broadside close to the shore.

These channels are exceptionally deep—in some places hundreds of feet—yet are only a couple of hundred feet wide at their narrowest points.

We passed an Indian village, and the natives came out in their canoes to beg. So we made the customary donation of cigarets, tobacco, old clothing, food, and whatever odds and ends we could scrape up in a hurry.

At last we entered the Straits of Magellan and sailed east to the port of Punta Arenas, Chile, southernmost city in the world.

The trip of more than 1,200 miles through the passage and straits is a never to be forgotten experience. One of the party described it as like taking a trip through the mountains in a boat.

I didn't intend to write such a lengthy letter when I started. All I can say now is that I hope it hasn't bored you. If it has, and this is an old story to you, please forgive me. F. H. ROBERTS.

MAIL FOR SHUT-INS.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—To the Travel Editor: Would you kindly put the name of Miss Irene Lavoie, Milford, Me., on your list to receive mail from travelers? This young girl, 18 years old, has been an invalid for some years. She is unable to walk. Any consideration from others cheers her up and helps to keep her smiling amid spells of unspeakable suffering. Letters or cards would be deeply appreciated. E. D. M.

Des Plaines, Ill., Sept. 1.—To the Travel Editor: Please ask your readers to write Ernest F. Weight, M-1-P-4, 6501 North Pulaski road, Chicago. Since he is an invalid and spends a great deal of his time in bed, cards or letters would help him endure the long hours. "QUIZZICUSS."

Winfield, Ill., Sept. 3.—To the Travel Editor: I have been in a sanatorium for a year and a half. I am 30 years old and have traveled a bit, therefore, am always interested in hearing from anybody taking a trip of any kind. I would be greatly indebted to those sending cards and letters. THE TRIBUNE TRAVELERS' GUIDE

FOREIGN TRAVEL

Paris Is Paris; Rest of France Is Real France

By Edwin Robert Petre.

In France there is a saying which a good many American tourists might ponder before embarking on their vacation trips abroad. "Paris is Paris," it goes, "but the provinces are France." Far too often the visitor from this side of the Atlantic allots a week or two to Paris and environs—which admittedly is little enough—and then returns convinced that he has acquired an intimate, first hand knowledge of the French people and all their ways.

It would take a two weeks' holiday to overcome that conviction. More persons should emulate Robert Louis Stevenson and take an "inland voyage"—say, through the heart of Normandy: down the Seine from Paris to Le Havre.

Near the tranquil little village of Vernon the last traces of the Parisian suburbs are left behind, and the traveler finds himself in the midst of a picturesque countryside. Fruit and dairy farms nestle around the quiet towns, and the rolling meadows, under cultivation for centuries, give the impression of one great park, with orchards, green hedges, thatched cottages, and rows of tall poplar trees. Vernon itself is a village of ancient timbered houses haunted with memories of the middle ages. Placed with charming irregularity along the banks of the Seine, they tempt many an artist to set up his easel, while tourists find them full of curiosities.

• • •

If the traveler can resist the inclination to settle down in the unpretentious but comfortable inn at Vernon, he will follow the meandering course of the river past Les Andelys, with perhaps a stop to inspect the ruins of the Château-Gaillard, perched on the summit of a grassy bluff, with a view down the valley for many miles. A few hours more of drifting under the shade of the thick foliage along the banks, and the spires and quays of Rouen appear around a sweeping bend in the river. Here are scenes of greater activity, for Rouen is the metropolis of northern Normandy, and its docks and market places bustle with provincial industry.

It is an illuminating experience for the traveler who knows only the more cosmopolitan atmosphere of Paris to spend an evening at one of the huge sidewalk cafés near the wharfs of the city. Seated on the terrace with a bottle of wine or a glass of Normandy's cider, he may watch a fascinating panorama of faces. Persons from every walk of life pause for a drink or a chat, or to listen to the plaintive music of the café violinist.

The river widens, and as one approaches Caudebec the fresh salt air of the sea can be caught. Here is a town of rare antiquity. It has scarcely a building not made of great oaken timbers, fashioned by artisans in the 15th and 16th centuries or earlier. Nor is the sense of the medieval broken by modern innovations; market day finds the peasants from the surrounding farms arriving in old fashioned carriages and wagons drawn by plodding horses, and the hawkers cry their wares in Norman French as they did a century ago.

• • •

The transformation in environment a few miles farther is startling, for one of the world's greatest seaports lies at the mouth of the Seine. Le Havre is, to many Americans, the first sight of France. Here huge liners rest beside the docks before pushing out again into the North Atlantic. The cliffs of the Norman coast, close at hand, offer a refreshing change from the countryside.

From here on the traveler needs no urging to make him visit the rest of Normandy. He may go down the coast to the twin summer resorts of Deauville and Trouville, or he may go on a pilgrimage to the magnificent Gothic cathedrals at Caen, Beauvais, Coutances, and Mont Saint Michel.

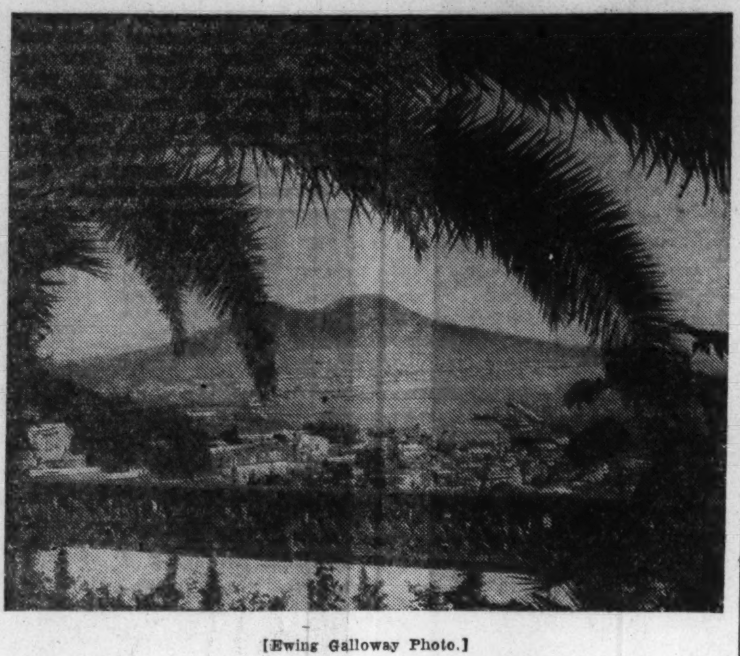
The last of these crowns is a great rock rising from the sea near the border between Brittany and Normandy. Built at enormous expense and labor by the finest architects and artists of the middle ages, it provides in itself a "course" in medieval art and, better than anything else in France, epitomizes the spirit of the Norman conquest and the Crusades.

A visitor may spend weeks in one of the little inns which cluster around the base of the massive abbey and its buttressed cathedral. It is quite unnecessary to forego the worldly pleasures of the gourmet while enjoying the esthetic perfection of the Mont—as any one who has tasted one of the omelets in the establishment of a certain Mme. Poulard will certify.

And this suggests a final attraction of Normandy. There are gastronomic delicacies to be found in Rouen, Les Andelys, or perhaps some less known village, which can be duplicated nowhere else. One may combine a dinner with sightseeing at such places as the inn of William the Conqueror, near Houlgate, where the great warrior is supposed to have rested before his trip across the channel, and in any Norman village one may be certain of discovering a provincial restaurant serving "poulette," fresh vegetables, delicious salads, excellent wines, and a few "spécialtiés" which not only rival anything available in Paris but are a great deal easier on the tourist's pocketbook.

DETOUR

By FREDERIC BABCOCK



[Ewing Galloway Photo.]

The bay of Naples, with Vesuvius in the background.

Tomorrow the Napoletanos [otherwise, the people of Naples] will celebrate the Festival of St. January. . . . He is the patron of their city, he gives his name to their cathedral, and twice a year he performs his miracle. . . . Oddly enough, this performance doesn't take place in January, but in May and September.

Seven hundred years old, the cathedral is known for its stately beauty. . . . Its chief attraction for the traveler, however, lies in its 17th century chapel, built at a cost of more than a million dollars as a shrine in memory of the saint.

● September in Naples is given over largely to fêtes. . . . One of them still has some of its original character, but in recent years it has become chiefly a singing contest. . . . Everybody composes words and music for the occasion, and then proceeds to let his neighbors in on his brain child. . . . The nights are devoted to song, feasting—and delirium. . . . Garish carts, picturesquely illuminated, try to make their way through the streets, but they are halted by huge crowds intent on shouting all the new tunes and most of the old. . . . And so on, far into the night.

At last, when the throngs have yelled and trumpeted themselves to exhaustion, it follows that their throats are dry and their stomachs empty. . . . So they consume miles of macaroni and barrels of such things as Frascati, Chianti, and Lacrima Christi.

● After having listened for a lifetime to the suggestion that he should see Naples and die, the newcomer is likely to wonder why. . . . If he arrives there at this time of the year, he may find the city more vociferous than beautiful. . . . It is not until he reaches the Corso Vittorio Emanuele, and sees the whole panorama spread before him, that he awakens to what all the shouting is about.

As a matter of fact, the old home town of the Neapolitans is important from the tourist viewpoint, not so much for what is to be found within its borders as for what surrounds it. . . . Pompeii, Herculaneum, Vesuvius, Capri, Ravello, Amalfi, and Sorrento provide the real scenery. . . . Many observers—this one included—agree that the view across the Bay of Naples from Sorrento at twilight, with the volcano giving off a faint glow and the lights beginning to make the harbor look as fantastic as Shelley's "ocean of dreams without a sound," ranks near the top among the wonders of the world.

Advertising in Chicago to Be Dinner Topic

Advertising Chicago will engage the attention of the Women's Advertising club at its first dinner meeting of the season Tuesday evening at the Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street.

Barnet Hodes, corporation counsel, will tell how Mayor Kelly's New Century committee is doing the job. Frederick Ashley will speak for the Chicago Association of Commerce as public relations director, and A. B. Johnston, merchandise manager of the Better Business bureau, will describe what his organization is doing to advertise Chicago and how the Women's Advertising club can help. Heads of industries and organizations also have been invited to take part in the discussion.

Prize winning entries in the annual contest for the Josephine Snapp award will be on exhibit. Clara Villeson of Philadelphia, Pa., won the silver trophy this year, and Mary Dahnke of Chicago received honorable mention.

Miss Mary E. Nyhan will discuss the award, which the club makes each year for outstanding work by an American advertising woman. The award commemorates a former president.

• • •

Miss Helen Vance.

Other meetings already planned for the year by Miss Helen Vance, program chairman, include: Oct. 18, a film dramatizing the rôle of advertising in the development of the country; Nov. 15, a study of fashion design and merchandising by Miss Anne Sheehan, fashion coördinator; Dec. 20, a Christmas party; January, a discussion of color in advertising; February, a manufacturer-consumer exchange of ideas.

Founded 21 years ago, the club draws its 125 members from the ranks of women producing, buying or selling advertising in an executive capacity.

Consuela H. Miller is president; Elsa J. Smith, first vice president; Julia C. Stevens, second vice president; May Plaunt, recording secretary; Karen Fladoes, corresponding secretary; Bernice M. Capion, treasurer; Ruth H. Gates, historian.

Committee chairmen, besides Miss Vance, include Ellen V. Littlejohn, membership; Marcelle H. Mitchell, publicity; Shirley Grant Dahl, social chairman; Ann Weiszbrod, vocational chairman; Estelle Ryan, finance; Mary Coffey, Josephine Snappa, ward; Aubyn Chinn, consumer relations.

• • •

Members' night will open the year for the Woman's University Club of Chicago on Friday evening. A dinner at 6:30 o'clock at headquarters, 410 South Michigan avenue, will be the first of a series of members' dinners on the third Friday of each month, with Miss Mildred Chinlund as chairman.

Group discussion of foreign and domestic events, led by Mrs. Hope Graham, an amateur photographers' exhibition, and an exhibition of local artists' work will be special activities this year. Miss Marion C. Lyons heads the club.

A civic night dinner Tuesday evening will start the Railway Business Woman's association of Chicago on another year's activities. C. G. Koller will address the group on "Operation of the Illinois State Legislature." The meeting will take place at 6:15 o'clock at the Chicago Woman's club. Miss Helen Wagner is president, and Miss Berenice Koller, program chairman.

Mrs. David J. Peffers.

Mrs. William Franklin Stone of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., and Mrs. David J. Peffers of Aurora, Ill., who are national president and state regent, respectively, of the Daughters of the American Colonists, will be guests of Fort Checaugou chapter at its opening reception and luncheon Saturday. The meeting will be held at 10:30 o'clock at 209 South State street.

Mrs. Charles E. Davidson of Greenville, Ill., national vice president of the middle west section, and members of George Rogers Clark chapter also will be guests. Mrs. Robert S. Ogilvy, regent, former regents, and visiting leaders will speak, and there will be a musical program.

• • •

Under Mrs. Rudolph Baumel's leadership the Andoka Philanthropic club will open the season Tuseday at the Sky Top roof, 185 North Wabash. A board meeting at 11 o'clock will be followed by luncheon and cards.

Officers, besides Mrs. Baumel, are Mrs. Helen Dinnsen, first vice president; Mrs. Frank L. Beadell, former president, second vice president; Mrs. Joseph E. Scott, recording secretary; Mrs. Archibald Cameron, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Charles Wicklin, treasurer.

The Junior Business and Professional Women's club also is resuming activities with a membership tea Saturday at the Hotel Sherman. Miss Rosemary Novotny, membership chairman, will be in charge. The club's interests are social, civic, and educational. A scholarship fund maintained by the club provides business training for outstanding girls.

Miss Margaret Powers is president. Miss Eleanor L. Meyer is program chairman; Miss Marguerite Brown, social chairman; Mrs. Frances Wellman, recording secretary; Miss Bernice Grunwald, corresponding secretary; Miss Emma Agnes Weber, treasurer; Miss Carolyn Englehart, auditor; Mrs. Lucille Warner, scholarship chairman; Mrs. Rebecca Dill, ways and means chairman; Miss Annette Schmidt, historian; Miss Wilna Lou Walker, courtesy chairman; Mrs. Dorothy Vogt, printing chairman; Miss Genevieve Steiner, house and property chairman; Miss Gertrude O. Martin, publicity chairman.

WILL BE WED SATURDAY

Miss Grethe Marie Jones and Robert H. Fesler will be married next Saturday at 7:30 o'clock in the chapel of the First Methodist Episcopal church in Evanston. She is the daughter of Mrs. Josephine M. N. Jones of Fargo, N. D., and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd J. Fesler of Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Fesler will be at home after Nov. 1 at 7409 North Damen avenue.

Medal of War of 1870 Given to Aged Parisienne

The medal of the War of 1870 and the cross of a front line soldier have been awarded to Mme. Joucla, 102, of Paris, France. Daughter of an army bandmaster and wife of a bandsman, Mme. Joucla followed the army in the war of 1870 as a nurse.

Autumn Beauty Holds Maine's Summer Colony

BAR HARBOR, ME.

During the remainder of the month and through the month of October many visitors from all parts of the country will visit Mount Desert Island and its various resort retreats to witness the carnival of autumn beauties. The most marked appeal at this time is the vari colored foliage of the Maine woods, on lowland and mountainside, which seems to change its hue overnight as a sign of the coming winter months.

Many members of the summer colony will remain through the month, some planning to stay until late in October. Picnic parties seem to hold the center of attention on the entertaining calendar at the present, with perfect weather prevailing for this type of social activity.

• • •

The board of governors of the Kebo Valley Golf club, consisting of Charles Burrall Pike of Chicago, and Gerald Borden, Henry O. Tallmadge, and George G. McMurtry, members of the New York colony, and Jay Cooke, H. Howard Ellison, A. Atwater Kent, John B. Thayer of the Philadelphia representation, and Marshall Langhorne, Joseph E. Wholean and F. Hamilton McCormick-Goodhart, who is well known in Chicago society circles, have voted to keep the beautiful 18 hole testing golf layout of the club open to some time in October. Several informal tournaments are scheduled through that period.

Mrs. Charles Sumner Frost of Lake Forest, who has been spending the summer at Up Away, her charming estate in Northeast Harbor, will remain to the middle of October before returning to her home in Lake Forest with Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Hughitt Frost and Miss Virginia Frost, who have been her house guests here. Charles Bosworth Frost and Marvin Hughitt Frost are leaving next Wednesday for the Asheville school in North Carolina to resume their studies there.

Among others who will stay late are the Potter Palmers, who are ensconced in their magnificent estate Hare Forest with Miss Pauline Palmer for the fall season; Mr. and Mrs. Pike of Chicago and Bar Harbor; Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick of 1260 Astor street and Burnmouth, her summer residence here in Eden drive, and several others. Mrs. McCormick returned to Burnmouth this week after spending a fortnight with her daughter, Mrs. Sargeant Collier, at the Collier residence in Boston.

• • •

Mrs. Elisha Dyer Hubbard of Middletown, Conn., and Palm Beach was a dinner hostess this week at Villa Mary, her lovely cottage here. Mrs. Hubbard is also staying for the late season before going to Chicago.

Alfred Jenkins Shriver of Baltimore was a dinner host this week at the Bar Harbor club for Mrs. Harold A. Howard, previous to her return to her residence in Chicago after spending the summer and early fall season at Mossley Hall, her estate here.

Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin of Lake Forest and Washington is visiting Count and Countess de Fontnouvelle at Long Island after spending some time at Elsinore, summer residence of Mrs. Henry F. Dimock at Bar Harbor. Norton Goodwin, her son, is spending the fall season at Elsinore.

A number of Chicagoans entered prints in the first international salon of camera art, which is now being held at the building of arts, among them Dr. Max Thorek, who received honorable mention for his pictorial study, "Harlemesque"; Donald Loving of Evanston, Ill.; Ragnar Hedenwall, whose pictorial print of "Lake Michigan" also received honorable mention, and several others.

• • •

Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen returned to Chicago this week after spending the summer and early fall at Baymeath, her summer residence here.

Mr. and Mrs. John Duncan of Alton, Ill., have returned there after spending the summer at Nasturtium cottage in Seal Harbor with a number of house guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick have returned to their home in Chicago after a summer's stay at East Point, their estate in Seal Harbor, with their sons, Roger and Brooks.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Colton Daughaday left this week-end for their home in Winnetka after a summer at Berry Cliff in Northeast Harbor. With their daughter, Deborah, they will remain in Cambridge, Mass., for a short stay. Colton Jr. is returning from a trip to Europe next week and is due to arrive in New York next Saturday, after which he will visit friends in Boston.

Mrs. John H. Briggs of Chicago left for New York to join Mr. Briggs. They were scheduled to arrive at their home in Chicago this week-end.

NEWLYWED OF AKRON

Mrs. Robert Warren Bailey is the former Miss Margaret Janet Wray. She and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Grant Bailey of Evanston were married on Sept. 8 in the Covenant Methodist Episcopal church by the bridegroom's uncle, the Rev. Arthur Wirick of St. Petersburg, Fla. He also married the bridegroom's parents. The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wray of Evanston. Mr. and Mrs. Bailey are at home in Akron, O., where he teaches economics in the University of Akron.

Youth Commission to Begin Second Year on Tuesday

The Youth Commission, widely acclaimed experiment started last year by the Chicago Association for Child Study and Parent Education, will begin its second year Tuesday evening at the Central Y. M. C. A., 19 South La Salle street.

Dr. Philip L. Seman, general director of the Jewish People's institute and chairman of the Chicago Recreation commission, will speak on "Youth and Leisure Time."

Forty organizations of young people between the ages of 18 and 25 are represented in the youth commission. The objectives of the Chicago Association for Child Study are carried into the second generation by this organization. Its aims are to promote youth education for family living, to foster wholesome and intelligent boy and girl relationships, and to increase understanding between parents and children.

Women of Moose to Send Delegates to Quincy, Ill.

Chicago's six chapters of the Women of the Moose will send their representatives to the annual state convention taking place Thursday through Sunday at Quincy, Ill. Mrs. Agnes O'Hara, who was made grand ritualist emeritus at the recent national convention at Pittsburgh, Pa., will be among the delegates. Mrs. Margaret E. Johnson, former grand regent, now junior graduate regent, and Mrs. Angeline Kindlan, grand dame, will be other national officers who will represent Chicago at the meeting. Mrs. O'Hara was sent by the national organization last week to Chatham, Ont., where she instructed Canadian members in the new ritual written by herself.

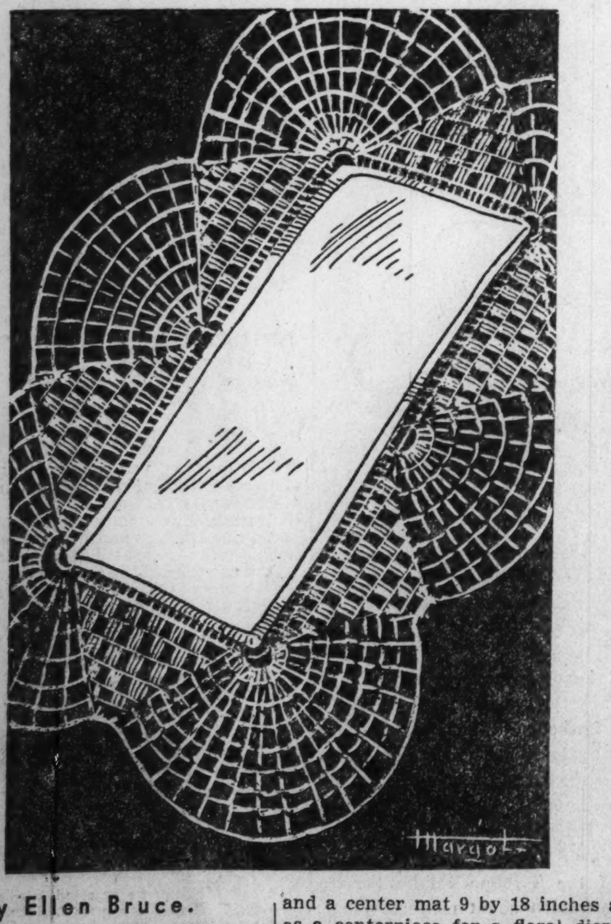
Luncheon Set Is Crocheted in the Fan and Cone Design



By Ellen Bruce.

When the energetic housewife feels the need of something new for her home as well as for herself, she should sit down and crochet a luncheon set for her table in the fan and cone pattern illustrated today. A rectangular piece of white linen, 4 by 9 inches, with a fine, spidery edging, creates one of the loveliest of luncheon mats, and a center mat 9 by 18 inches acts as a centerpiece for a floral display. The chorus of O's and Ah's is more than gratifying for the few hours and material required to complete the ensemble.

For instructions for crocheting the doily with the fan and cone edging, No. 74, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Marie Coudert Brennig, daughter of Mrs. Dongan de Peyster and the late Baron Benno Frederic von Brennig; granddaughter of the late Charles Coudert, internationally known barrister, and niece of the late Duchess de Choiseul, has, it is obvious, the perfect social background for the business to which she now devotes her energy and her talents — the management of weddings. It is equally obvious, therefore, that what she says regarding weddings has the authority of background, plus specialized observation. Her book "The Wedding Embassy" should be welcome and useful wherever there are brides — which is everywhere!

Looking at Hollywood with Ed Sullivan

Customer Is Right, to Norma

By ED SULLIVAN

Hollywood, Cal.

"YOU ASK why it is movie stars often get themselves jammed up on account of bad publicity," commented Norma Shearer. "Well, take an experience I had in New York. The M-G-M publicity men arranged a series of interviews. I was delighted to be interviewed. Publicity is of vital importance to any performer. This one chap walked in, and it didn't require a psychic to know that he had come there to write a certain kind of story about me. 'How much money have you in the bank and in stocks, Miss Shearer?' was his first question. 'How old are you, on the level?' was his second question. Then he pointed at two bracelets I was wearing and said, 'How much are those worth?' I told him that the bracelets had been given to me as a wedding present and that I'd never gone out and priced them. In answer to his question about how much money I had in the bank I told him that it wasn't enough to support or fulfill my obligations if I were thrown out of work. To laugh off the whole thing, I summed up by assuring him pleasantly that I wasn't as old or as rich or as shrewd as some people imagined.

"The next day there was a four-column head on page one: 'Shearer Denies She's as Old, as Rich, or as Shrewd as Fans Imagine.' Now, I've been in this business long enough to know that newspaper men must get a story and that bad news too often is good news, but I think that a writer if he half tried could get a truer story than that, honestly I do.

Miss Shearer as Marie Antoinette.

"It reminds me of an old French Canadian story of the neighbor who decided to go next door and borrow a lawn mower. He started away from his door, and before he'd left his porch he started guessing what the owner of the lawn mower would answer. 'He probably won't give it to me at all,' he guessed. He walked a few feet farther. 'The old skinflint has a lot of nerve refusing to loan me his lawn mower.' By the time he reached his neighbor's door he was burning up. When the owner of the lawn mower opened his door the would-be borrower shouted indignantly, 'To hell with you and your old lawn mower!' and stalked away in high dudgeon. I think that newspaper men often approach movie performers in that frame of mind. They start disliking us before we meet.

"If they'd just realize that we're just as scared of them as they are critical of us it would make it a lot easier for us and for them."

The more time you spend with Norma Shearer the more you get to like her. She has a swell sense of humor, she doesn't take herself seriously, she likes crowds, she is always willing to lend a helping hand to younger performers. While she was on Broadway she attended the show on the Hotel Astor roof, where Alabaman Hal Kemp's band is playing. Songstress with the band is tiny Judy Starr. "You're grand," said Norma. "You ought to be in pictures." The next day an M-G-M scout was over to cover Judy's act. "I thought that she was only fooling when she told me that she would tell the studio about me," Judy told me a few days later. "You know, a lot of people make promises at night and then forget all about them in the morning. I wouldn't have felt hurt if Miss Shearer had forgotten, but she didn't. The really big people are always nice, aren't they?"

I spoke to Norma about what Judy had said. "Plenty of people helped me when I first came to New York from Canada," she said. "I'd be very ungrateful if I didn't help youngsters now. It means so much to them, and it takes so little of your time to say a good word about them to the right people."

The Shearer background wasn't exactly a path of rose petals. She worked in a music shop, demonstrating songs, in Canada. She worked as a model for billboard and magazine ads in New York. She and her sister, armed with a letter of introduction, went to see Florenz Ziegfeld for a job as showgirls, but were turned down. Ziegfeld, however, gave them two free seats for the Ziegfeld "Follies," so they were delighted. D. W. Griffith told Norma to pack up her clothes and her dreams and go back to Canada. "You would have no chance at all in the movies," he told her. But Norma and her mother and sister decided to stick it out for a few more weeks. They were living in a flat on 6th avenue on a floor level with the "L" trains.

Then she got a small offer from Universal, but they wouldn't pay her mother's car fare to the coast, so she turned it down. A few months later she got an offer, slightly better, from M-G-M. Daringly she decided to ask for more money and so wired: "Universal is very anxious to sign me, so please make immediate decision." To her amazement Irving Thalberg, at M-G-M, told her that he had been the one at Universal a few months previous who had made the original offer. So she signed hastily with M-G-M.

That she and Thalberg would fall in love was in the stars. Quiet, modest, diffident, he was a "natural" in so far as attraction for her was concerned. The question often has been raised as to whether or not Norma Shearer ever will marry again. I don't know the answer to that, but you can make up your mind that when she does it will be because she has met some one who is as quiet, as shy, and as appealing as Irving Thalberg.

Having resigned the lead in "Gone with the Wind," her next picture will be "The Women." In the Reno sequence you may see her do a dance. She has become convinced, as a result of her travels, that the country has gone dance crazy. In Chicago 120,000 jitterbugs assembled at Soldiers' field. In New York 30,000 jitterbugs crowded Madison Square Garden for the Harvest Moon ball. Norma believes that the movie star who goes along with the fan taste is being intelligent. She is one star who believes that the customer is right, a fact which explains her long career as a headliner.

"I don't want to start slipping," she tells you frankly. "When that time arrives—and I hope it doesn't arrive for about three years—M-G-M will have to get rid of me. There is very little sentiment in business, believe me."

Stars in Color

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS JR. It is reported that Douglas Fairbanks Jr. dislikes to be called Junior. Why he doesn't say.

This son of a famous papa was born in New York on Dec. 9, 1907. His mother is Beth Scully—now Mrs. Jack Whiting.

When small Douglas didn't want to be an actor. An elevator operator's job was his ambition. For a while he lived with his mother in Paris and studied art. Then, needing money, he accepted a movie offer. He came to America and made "Stephen Steps Out"—his first film. His work on the stage in "Young Woodley" convinced Hollywood that here was an actor. Joan Crawford sent him an enthusiastic telegram—and you know what that brought on. It wasn't long till Joan became Mrs. Fairbanks Jr.

Fairbanks is a little more than six feet tall, weighs 165 pounds, and has blue eyes and brown hair. He writes prose and poetry, loves to argue, and is unmarried at the present time. His latest pictures to be talked about—"Joy of Living," "Prisoner of Zenda," and "Having a Wonderful Time."

CLAUDETTE COLBERT Claudette Colbert is all for white lies. She says one launched her successful career. She told Producer Brock Pemberton she'd had several years' experience in stock, when she had played only one small part. As a result he gave her the lead in "The Marionette Man."

Miss Colbert was born in Paris, France. The family came to New York when she was 6 and she received her schooling in New York. She did designing, taught French, and finally landed on the stage. Her first starring part was in "A Kiss in a Taxi."

Her first movie, "For the Love of Mike," was made in New York. "It Happened One Night" won Academy awards for both her and Clark Gable.

Important movies—"The Gilded Lily," "Private Worlds," "She Married Her Boss."

Miss Colbert is 5 feet 5, weighs 103 pounds, has reddish brown hair and eyes, and is married to Dr. Joel Pressman.

JAMES STEWART Six feet two and one-half inches of gangling young manhood, a shy, disarming smile, a shock of brown hair that doesn't like to stay in place, and a pair of gray eyes as friendly and trusting as a Newfoundland puppy's have wedged James Stewart tightly into the hearts of fans.

Mr. Stewart was born May 20, 1911, in Indiana, Pa. His parents, nonprofessionals, are Elizabeth and Alexander Stewart. He was educated at Mercersburg academy and Princeton university. He began his stage career playing with a Cape Cod stock company, later appearing on Broadway in "Yellow Jack" and other plays. He was stage manager in Boston for Jane Cowl in "Camille."

Outstanding work in a short subject attracted producerial eyes, and James' performance in "Rose Marie" established him as a clever and dependable actor. Since then he has been greatly in demand. His most notable pictures you will recall as "Rose Marie," "The Gorgeous Hussy," "The Last Gangster," "Seventh Heaven," "Navy Blue and Gold, "Of Human Hearts," and "Vivacious Lady."

Not married.

Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: It is terribly important that I find out who took the part of the reporter in "Night Club Scandal." He also took the part of Jim in "Her Jungle Love." I think he's great, and I'd like to see him in more pictures.

ROBERT YOUNG

I enjoyed his part as a reporter because I have high hopes of becoming a scoop collector myself, even if I am only 14 now.

My favorite actor is Robert Young, and I'd like to see him a little oftener. If you could find a corner empty I wish you could put a picture of him in for me, and also a bit about him. Where and when he was born, and all that sort of stuff. A faithful admirer,

HELEN MAY.

Editor's note: Lynne Overman played the rôle of the reporter in "Night Club Scandal," and he also took the part of Jim in "Her Jungle Love." Robert Young was born in Chicago, Feb. 22, 1907. He's 6 feet tall, weighs 170 pounds, and has brown hair and eyes. Educated Seattle and Los Angeles public schools and Lincoln High of Los Angeles. He's married and has two children.

Dear Mae Tinée: Isn't it too, too bad when "the enjoyment of a film" such as "Son of the Sheik," with Rudolph Valentino, must be hampered by the comparative imperfections of old movie mechanics? This quotation is from Mrs. Beulah Barker's letter in the Voice of the Movie Fan.

If the wonderful movie industry would give to the screen again some personalities just half as distinctive and worth looking at as Rudy and many others of the silent pictures we could well dispense with all the so-called new perfections being foisted upon us. All that Hollywood movies are composed of today are new perfections, million-dollar picture pay rolls, and a set of the most thoroughly unindividual looking and acting movie stars ever collected in one place.

I'm only 24, but with a good memory, and I know that the silent pictures and their players had something that made you a movie fan, and that has gone since talking pictures came in.

So bring back all of Valentino's films, and though we'll sigh and sob at the lack of new perfections, we will have something good to look at! Sincerely,

MISS L. CARLISLE.

Editor's note: "Amen!" will say many readers of your letter.

Dear Miss Tinée: Will you please tell me who was the leading man in Joan Crawford's "I Live My Life"? I saw the picture a few years ago, and I just can't recall the leading man. I remain,

MISS ANGELYNE KLEMISH.

Waucoma, Ia.

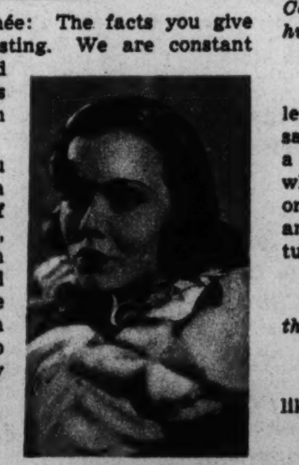
Editor's note: Brian Aherne played opposite Joan Crawford in the above film.

Dear Miss Tinée: Bouquets to two of the best "picture snatchers" I have seen in a coon's age, namely, Lew Ayres and Melville Cooper in "Holiday" and "The Adventures of Robin Hood" respectively. Ayres' characterization of the alcoholic Ned should certainly win him the Academy award for the best supporting actor of 1938.

Not to mention Melville Cooper, who could walk calmly in and steal a scene completely from such opposition as Basil Rathbone and Claude Rains and even Errol Flynn himself. His ludicrous speeches and pompous ways, which vanished so completely when either of the two villains scolded him, had me in stitches most of the time. More power to the two of them. Here's hoping they go even farther. Sincerely, S. E.

Editor's note: "Picture snatchers" always add a lot to observers' enjoyment, though they probably bring very little sunshine into the lives of the stars.

Dear Miss Tinée: The facts you give are most interesting. We are constant movie goers, and we have our likes and dislikes in the stars.



JANE WYMAN
Praised for good work in a silly part.

Could you please print a small picture of Jane Wyman, who played in "The Crowd Roars"? We think she did an excellent job with that silly part. Thanks.

MARY JANE KRAJEWSKI.

Editor's note: Here's a picture of Jane.

Dear Miss Tinée: Would you please print a brief biography of William Hopper, the son of Hedda Hopper? Thanking you, I am JEANNE IRWIN.

Editor's note: Here are facts about William: He was born in New York City, Jan. 26, 1915. He's 6 feet 3 inches tall, weighs 185 pounds, and has green eyes and dark brown hair. Educated Raymond Riordan school and Catalina School for Boys. Appeared on the stage before entering motion pictures.

Dear Miss Tinée: Could you please tell me if George Brent, who played in "God's Country and the Woman," also played the part of the husband to the missionary in "West of Shanghai"? Thank you so much. MRS. G. P. HUNGER.

Burlington, Ia.

Editor's note: George Brent did not appear in "West of Shanghai." Ricardo Cortez played the rôle of the missionary's husband in this film. Glad to help you.

Dear Miss Tinée: I am replying to the letter written by Francine Smart. She said you were not compelled to sit through a double feature. Well, what do you do when you come in at the beginning of the one you don't like? I wish she would answer that. I am all against double features!

Sincerely, MARY E. CALLOPY.

Editor's note: You might phone the theater for the time each feature starts.

Dear Mae Tinée: I thought you might like these:

Robert Taylor—A baked apple à la mode.
Ginger Rogers—A platinum loving cup.
Clark Gable—A hearty laugh.
Marlene Dietrich—A candle gone out.
Hedy Lamarr—A candle burning.
Ronald Colman—British tweeds and a cup of tea.
Douglas Fairbanks Jr.—a little boy with a new tin sword.
Beulah Bondi—Our first school teacher.

Respectfully, PETITE.

P. S.—Please, puh-lease print your picture, 'cause we all are dying from curiosity.

Editor's note: You know what killed the cat, don't you?

Italy Builds Her Army on Young Shoulders

Military Training Starts at the Age of Six

By EDMOND TAYLOR

Paris.

BABY SOLDIERS march the streets of Italy today.

With all the wide-eyed seriousness their 6 years will permit they lead a military parade that gathers momentum as it marches down the years — a momentum the Fascist government hopes will eventually bring it to a goal of eight million "courageous and quick-thinking soldier-citizens."

These baby soldiers are the "Children of the She-Wolf." They belong to the youngest (6 to 8 years) group of the Balilla organization — Fascist spiritual, physical, and military father for children from 6 to 18. After them comes the "Fighting Union of Youth," the Fascist organizer of boys from 18 to 21. Next there is the eighteen months of military training in the army, compulsory for all Italian manhood when it reaches the age of 21.

Out of this tremendous nucleus of a nation trained in arms from the cradle (there are an estimated three million boys in the Balilla organization alone) the three branches of the state's fighting arm are supplied with "adaptable" material. Some enter the ranks of Italy's standing army of 550,000 men (more than three times the size of ours), or the Fascist militia, or train to become officers at Modena and Turin, the West Points of Italy, or at Leghorn, the Annapolis; or Caserta, the Randolph field. The rest retire to civil life, theoretically ideal soldier-citizens, equally at home with table knife or bayonet.

• • •

General Visconti-Prasca of the Italian army, author of the book "Decisive War," speaking about the particulars of Fascist military training, said: "Cultivation of the military virtues must be a matter for widespread national education." This is a basic Fascist theory; also that "war is a continuation of national policy by other means." Both Fascist military theory and national policy exalt the ideal of dynamic action. The Fascist state is, Mussolini has proclaimed, a state at "ideal tension."

Renato Ricci, head of the Balilla organization, summarizes in high seriousness the aim of the Balilla group as follows:

"We teach physical education so that the young Italian can learn to appreciate the importance of his body, his health and his strength, both in consideration of what these elements represent in themselves and what they represent from a superior point of view for the national defense. We teach a knowledge of the military art, as it is absolutely necessary to be prepared to serve the country and to be ready for every eventuality. We teach historical, civil, and political knowledge which give an exact idea of the road being taken by Italy and of her future possibilities, because it is useless for youths to be quick and strong if they have not the faith which drives them on to sacrifice themselves without hesitating."

For enrollment in the Balilla organization the consent of the parents is necessary. Children of the She-Wolf filed past the Duce for the first time on the twentieth anniversary of Italy's entrance into the World war, May 24, 1935. The uniform of these toy soldiers is a black shirt with an open collar on which are metal insignia representing the Roman wolf, also a broad white belt and crossed white shoulder straps. At the crossing is a metal M. The rest of the uniform is gray-green shorts and stockings and black shoes. The head covering is a low-crowned black fez, on which is again the insignia of the wolf. The activity of these youngsters consists chiefly of light games, easy marches, and elementary rhythmic gymnastics.

Next in age to the Figli della Lupa are the Balilla Scouts, boys from 8 to 12 years of age. Then come the Balilla Musketeers, 12 to 14. After these are the Avanguardisti Musketeers, 14 to 16, and finally the Avanguardisti Machine Gunners, 16 to 18.

Military division of these outfits is in the old Roman style, the units being: A squad, a manipulo (three squads), a century (3 manipulos), a cohort (three centuries), and lastly a legion (composed of three cohorts).

Fascist military training programs for its youth include gymnastics. This is a group of young Fascists in sport uniform during a mass review.

The uniform of the Balilla Scouts and Musketeers is like that of the Figli della Lupa, with the difference that the white belt is replaced by a knotted sash, while the insignia on the fez is a "Fascio." The uniform of the Avanguardisti Musketeers and Machine Gunners differs in that it has white escutcheons on the reverse of the black shirt and the fez is replaced by the felt hat of the Alpine hunters.

Training for the Balilla Scouts and Musketeers is chiefly physical, but takes on a more highly military aspect and becomes more rigorous with the Avanguardisti Musketeers and Machine Gunners. However, even the Balilla Scouts march with bayoneted guns, with canteens and full knapsacks. As a part of their training the Avanguardisti are given trips to the Italian colonies aboard cruisers "to observe the Fascist régime abroad."

• • •

In towns where naval training is possible groups called Marinaretti, or "sailor boys," have been formed. They are given physical and mental training to fit them for the navy. It includes having boys run up rope ladders and into the rigging of training ships to develop "strength, speed, and courage." However, nets are spread across the decks to catch the boys in case of a slip. Those who show promise and are especially enthusiastic about the navy are sent to Antium to the House of Balilla Sailors, a modern construction capable of housing 2,500 students.

There are three age divisions for the Marinaretti—again the Figli della Lupa, aged 6 to 8; Marinaretti Signalers and Pilots, from 8 to 12; Avanguardisti Artillerymen and Machine Gunners, 12 to 18.

In aviation the Balilla organization offers annual courses to its Avanguardisti in the town of Pavullo del Frignano, in the province of Modena. Students are admitted after having attended pre-aeronautic schools for mechanics and radio telegraphers and after passing a course in anti-aircraft defense.

In Italian schools military courses are almost as much a fundamental of school life as is arithmetic the world over. Military studies appear in the third grade of all intermediate schools, in the first and second classes of every liceo classico, analogous to our high schools, and in all universities. Whenever history is taught it is usually paralleled by a course which deals minutely with the strategy of battles fought.

At the age of 18 a boy leaves the Balilla organization. If he wishes to continue to develop into an exemplary Fascist he enters the Fasci Giovanali di Combattimento, the Fighting Union of Youth. This is the threshold to the Fascist party, and here a boy is put through his preparatory paces for three years, until he is 21.

Mussolini wants this group especially to learn a dynamic, almost reckless attitude toward life. He has had them equipped with bicycles, motorcycles, and trucks. Spiritual inspiration is provided by old fighters and Fascists who took part in the World war or in the Fascist revolution, and who tell stirring tales.

These lads are further prepared by means of gymnastics, sports, parades, and military instruction. Like the Avanguardisti, they board cruisers in summer and visit the colonies. In winter they frequently encamp in the mountains, chiefly for skiing.

The Fascist academy in Rome, completed Feb. 5, 1928, is a school for aspirant Fascists who have gone through high school and want to become Fascist instructors. Most of the officers in the Balilla organization are graduates of the Fascist academy.

• • •

Students in all Italian universities are under the wing of an organization called the Grupo Universitario Fascista (University Fascist Group), which is to college students what the Balilla organization is to youngsters, an overseer which promotes Fascist political, cultural, and sports activities and ascertains that youth takes the "right" road. It also trains students toward becoming officers in the Fascist militia, by means of two winter courses of three months each and two summer courses of three months each.

Because many university towns are expensive and many aspirants are poor, the G. U. F. has put up its own buildings, "students' houses," where the cost of living is nominal and which are equipped with reading rooms and libraries, and also with an infirmary where members of the G. U. F. can receive free treatment. In Florence the group has constructed a "test theater," the object of which is to "incite youth to contribute to the new trends in the modern theater." This does not include new ideological trends.

By the time an Italian youth goes to his compulsory eighteen months of military service in the regular army he is supposed to be in good physical shape and should not have to be told how to shoulder arms or how to open the breech of a rifle.

The young Italian soldier is made ready for a war in the Alps by obstacle races over ten-foot fences which lead up to scaffolds forty feet high. Soldiers rush the scaffolds and then run across a narrow plank at the top to develop balance. In time the men are expected to do this in full army equipment, with knapsacks and guns.

Mock battles are a part of the training, also maneuvers and encounters on all kinds of terrain —high mountains, plateaus, valleys, woods.

To become an officer in one of the three branches of the regular fighting arm a student must first have a "bachelor's" degree, given upon graduation from a lycée or institute, which is analogous to our high or preparatory schools. The aspirant must then pass competitive examinations. The training school for future army officers of infantry, cavalry, and commissary is in Modena. Turin trains artillery and engineering army officers. The course at each is three years. While the enrollment at both is said to be very flexible, the number of students at Modena is reportedly about 500, at Turin about 200.

• • •

Caserta, the air school, is in the south, not far from Naples, and is said to have an annual enrollment of about 550. It is a two-year course. Leghorn, which turns out ensigns in the navy, is situated near Genoa in the north. The course is three years and the number of students again about 550.

Training for officers in the army reserve differs from the system in the United States. Whereas most of our reserve officers come from the universities, in Italy they come from the ranks of the army itself. Each army corps has a school for reserve officers, but here again students must first get a bachelor's degree. A man who successfully finishes this training does not become a second lieutenant in the reserve immediately. He is an "aspirant" for six months to determine whether or not "he is fit to be an officer."

How Dull, Dry-Looking Hair Reveals Glamorous, Natural Beauty

Millions Thrilled by Beauty Miracle of Special Drene for Dry Hair

CORRECT NEW WAY
No dull film; hair soft, shining like silk!

IMPROPER WAY
Hair dull, covered with cloudy film.

WOMEN with dull, dry-looking, unruly hair need no longer despair. Here is an amazingly easy way to reveal all the glamorous natural beauty that is hidden away in your hair. A way that leaves your hair without a trace of ugly film to cloud its charm and beauty—leaves it radiating with its full natural sparkle and gleam—brilliant beyond your fondest dreams.

Special Drene Shampoo for Dry Hair leaves unruly hair thrillingly soft and manageable, so that it sets beautifully after washing. A single sudsing and thorough rinsing in plain water leaves hair gleaming and glistening in all its radiant natural brilliance and lustre.

The two photographs illustrate the thrilling difference between hair clouded with film and the brilliant beauty of hair when this dulling film is removed. So try Drene at once and see how beautiful your hair really can be.

Drene works these wonders because it is an entirely different type of shampoo. So different, that the process by which it is made has been patented. It is not a soap—not an oil. Its whole beautifying action is the result of its amazing lather. For Drene actually makes five times more lather than soap in hardest water. Lather so gentle and cleansing that it washes away dirt, grime, perspiration—even loose dandruff flakes. It cannot leave a dulling film on hair to dim and hide its natural brilliance, nor a greasy oil film to catch dust. Instead, Drene removes ugly film often left by other types of shampoo. So vinegar, lemon and special after-rinses are totally unnecessary. And, because Drene contains no harmful chemicals, it is safe for any kind of hair. Special Drene for Dry Hair is made and guaranteed by Procter & Gamble. It is approved by Good Housekeeping.

So—for thrilling, natural beauty of dull, unruly, dry-looking hair, ask for Special Drene for Dry Hair at drug, department or 10c stores. Or—at your beauty shop. Whether you shampoo your hair at home or have it done by a professional beautician, you'll be amazed and delighted to see your hair manageable and sparkling. How glorious a Drene shampoo really is! Or, for the next 7 days only, you can send your name and address to Drene, Dept. 204, Box 629, Cincinnati, Ohio, and the makers will send you a bottle of Special Drene for Dry Hair (enough for two shampoos) absolutely free to try!

Luke—Balloon Buster

"Sausage" type of observation balloon used during the war.

Fourteen Gas Bags, Five Airplanes, and Five Medals in Seven Days

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

OF ALL THE Americans who fought in the World war the one who stood out perhaps above all others for unqualified contemptuous courage was Second Lieut. Frank Luke Jr. of Phoenix, Ariz., a daredevil and expert aviator of the 27th aero squadron of the 1st American pursuit group.

Before he died on Sept. 29, 1918, with his automatic pistol banging defiance to the Germans to the very end, Luke had come to be known as the "balloon buster." He had brought down fourteen enemy observation ballons, not to mention five enemy planes, in a few brief days of unparalleled aerial activity against the Germans.

To the uninformed the destruction of an observation balloon might seem a relatively harmless exploit for a fast-flying pilot, but ask any World war aviator about it and he will tell you that downing one of these aerial sausages was a hazardous feat.

Observation balloons, which were so valuable to the artillery and so costly to construct and maintain in the field, were protected by anti-aircraft batteries, long-range machine guns, and bomb-throwing cannon. The balloons when aloft even to the full length of their mooring cables were comparatively close to the ground, and their fixed positions enabled the anti-aircraft gunners to range the air above the huge gas bags with deadly accuracy. In addition, near each balloon were stationed combat planes ready to take the air the moment an enemy plane was sighted. The pilot who attacked a balloon had to descend into an extremely dangerous zone of shrapnel, machine gun bullets, and bursting bombs, and be ready to fight off the onslaughts of the balloon's protecting planes.

• • •

Lieutenant Luke for his amazing acts of heroism won the congressional medal of honor and the distinguished service cross with oak leaf cluster, decorations which were awarded posthumously. The Italian government honored him after his death with the croce di guerra, and two other awards, the medal of the Aero Club of America and the Margarita Fisher gold medal for the first Rockwell field pilot to conquer an enemy in the air, also were presented posthumously.

The series of astounding exploits for which the distinguished service cross and the oak leaf cluster were awarded covered the seven days from Sept. 12 to Sept. 18, 1918, inclusive. On the evening of Sept. 11 in the officers' mess of the 27th squadron at Rembercourt one of the distinguished flyers of the outfit remarked that he thought an observation balloon was the toughest proposition a pilot had to meet. The next day Lieutenant Luke, who had brought down his first German plane on Aug. 16, announced that he was going to get an enemy balloon that day.

Lieut. Frank Luke Jr.

Within a couple of hours after he had made this statement, and while flying near the town of Lavignéville, he sighted three enemy planes, to which he gave pursuit. They vanished in the direction of Metz, and as Luke swung his plane toward Marieulles he sighted a German observation balloon.

He put his plane into a climb, going up and up until the balloon was only a tiny speck beneath him. Then he went into a dive, down and down into a danger zone of bursting shells from anti-aircraft artillery. Twice he poured bursts from his two machine guns into the balloon. Leaking gas through many bullet holes, the balloon was being dragged down swiftly by its ground crew. Luke followed it almost to the ground, gave it another burst from his guns, and saw it collapse in a puff of black smoke.

• • •

In bringing down his first balloon and killing one of its observers Luke drove his plane through flying shrapnel fragments and machine gun bullets that left it almost a wreck. He was able, however, to land it safely. To all the exclamations of his brother flyers, who were amazed that he could pilot a plane so badly crippled, he only grinned.

"They can't get me," became his boast.

Two days after he had brought down his first balloon Luke took off on an assignment to bring down an enemy balloon anchored near the village of Buzy. Accompanying him in another plane was his close friend, Lieut. Joseph Wehner. The two spotted the balloon, and, as Wehner remained aloft, Luke dove and accounted for the sausage with fire from his two guns. Eight German Fokkers pounced upon him from on high. His guns jammed. Wehner dove to join the fight. Together they squirmed their way out of peril and joined a group of their own flyers on a patrol near Alancourt. Luke, his guns in working order again, dropped out of the flight and destroyed another enemy balloon. This one was near the town of Boigneville. He had to dive a half dozen times before he got it.

On the morning of Sept. 15 Luke's flying companion, Wehner, brought down a balloon and two planes, and Luke himself accounted for two balloons. The afternoon of the same day he shot down another balloon. Night had fallen when this third balloon for the day went down in flames.

Six balloons in four days for the balloon buster!

• • •

On the forenoon of the 16th Luke went to his group commander with a proposition to destroy three enemy balloons at dusk that evening. Obtaining permission to attempt this feat, he and Wehner took off at 6:45 p. m. with the understanding that their flying field would be lighted with flares on their return. The sky had just begun to darken when the pair dove on a balloon over Réville. It burst into flames. As Wehner left the scene to attack another enemy sausage, Luke set upon a balloon near Mangiennes and destroyed it.

Above Romagne the balloon buster attacked a third enemy gas bag as it was being dragged down by its windlass crew. He shot this balloon down, and as it fell in a blaze on its ground tenders it burned several of them severely. Luke rejoined Wehner, and the two, in flying back to their airdrome, were mistaken for enemy planes and shelled by American anti-aircraft batteries. Both planes were hit but not badly damaged.

On the 18th Luke and Wehner were flying together when they sighted two balloons near the town of Labeuville. Luke destroyed the first at an altitude so low as to be out of danger of enemy anti-aircraft. He glanced above and saw a formation of Fokkers attacking his comrade. Climbing rapidly, Luke soon was in the midst of the fray. Almost as quickly as it can be told he shot down first one German plane and then another. Wehner by this time was nowhere in sight, so Luke streaked for his own lines.

• • •

On the way he saw an enemy observation plane pursued by a squadron of planes, which later he learned were piloted by French flyers. As he was closer to the German plane than were the pursuers, he swung his plane in its direction and opened on it with both guns. Down it went in a crash.

Two balloons and three planes for the balloon buster in less than ten minutes!

When he arrived back at his base he learned that Wehner was missing, reported shot down in flames over Labeuville.

The exploits for which the congressional medal of honor was awarded were carried out on Sept. 29. Luke was reprimanded that day by his squadron commander for disregarding orders and told that he could not leave the ground until further notice. A rebel against discipline, he left headquarters in a huff, stepped into his plane, and took off for a flying field in the region of Verdun. A phone message from his squadron commander beat him to this field. The message gave orders for Luke's arrest for disobedience. But he was not arrested. Instead his group commander, who arrived at the Verdun field by plane, not knowing of the arrest order, gave him permission to attack German balloons in that area. Luke was supposed to delay his takeoff until twilight, but he took off as soon as his tank was filled with gas, a couple of hours before sundown. He didn't want the arrest order to catch up with him.

Above the town of Dun, on the swift-flowing Meuse, he came upon his first balloon of the day. Approaching it swiftly, he lined it up with his sights, pressed his trigger, and sent it earthward in a ball of smoke.

Over a place designated on the map as Briere farm he encountered his second balloon. A squadron of German planes was upon him in an instant here. He was shot. But he managed to fool the enemy by going into a nose dive. They thought he was done for, but he leveled off, came up under the balloon, and gave it a round of incendiary bullets. It exploded and sagged to the ground.

Wounded but still game, Luke flew toward a third balloon that hovered over the village of Milly. Down it came, shot through and through by his guns.

Fourteen balloons and five planes—his score to date:

And that was to be the finish. He was unable to gain altitude after that. He was bleeding from his wound, and things were not going right. Perhaps he knew that the end was near.

Off on the north bank of the Meuse, near the spot where he had brought down his first balloon that day, was the tiny village of Murvaux. In a slanting flight he drove his plane toward this cluster of houses.

• • •

In the main street of the village were German troops. Luke flew over these gray-clad warriors at a height barely sufficient to enable him to clear the housetops. He gave them burst after burst from his guns. He saw them scatter and run—all except those who lay still on the ground.

His plane refused to rise. He brought it to a bumpy landing in a field beside the village.

Germans closed in on him from all sides. He crawled painfully from his Spad, ran limpingly for a stream near by. Then he turned and retraced his steps to the plane, drew his automatic pistol, and began firing.

His vision probably was blurring fast. He surely could not see those toward whom he was firing. But still he pressed the trigger.

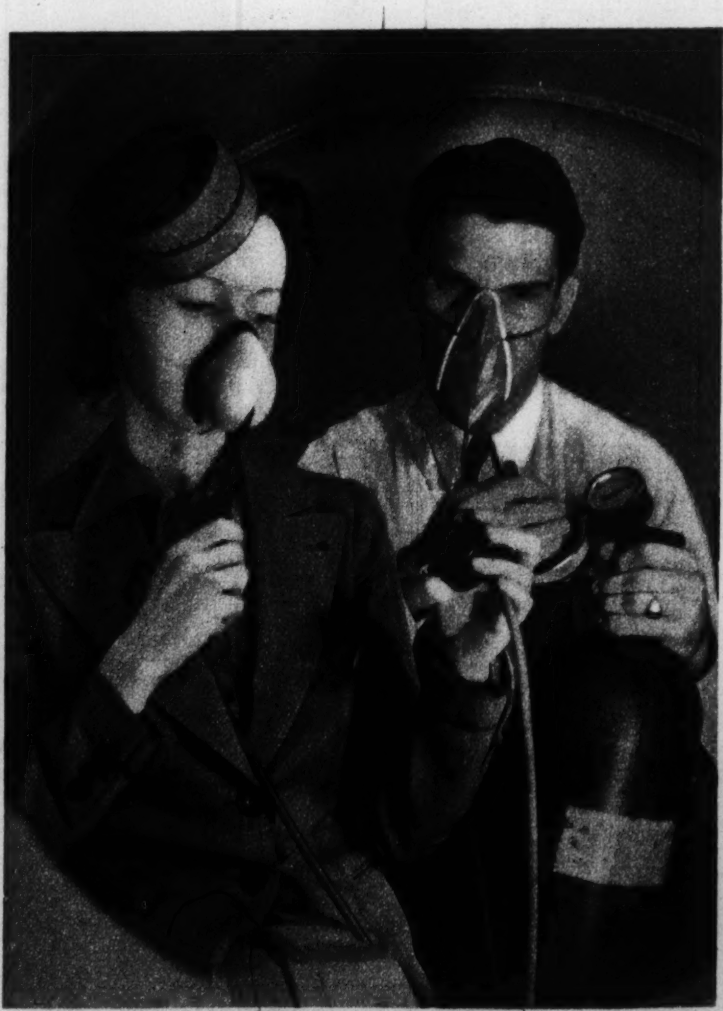
An observation balloon comes down in flames over the western front after having been attacked by an enemy plane — a scene enacted fourteen times during Frank Luke's career.

And then he slumped to the ground. The war was over for him. His great adventure was ended. When the German soldiers reached him Lieut. Frank Luke Jr., the balloon buster, was dead.

Testing the Effects of High Altitudes



A United Air Lines stewardess and an expert from the research division of the company's engineering department test the altitude chamber.

By WAYNE THOMIS

YOU CAN make a flight to an altitude of 65,000 feet without leaving the ground in the United Air Lines hangars at Chicago airport. They take you back into the laboratory and you climb into a big steel cylinder that looks not unlike the bathyspheres that are used for deep-sea diving.

You sit inside, and a number of vanes in a tub of water begin to rotate. The splashing continues and the air mixes with the water. Then the water is drawn off until there is a reduction in pressure equivalent to the pressure reduction with high altitude. In this ingenious fashion they can take you as high as thirteen miles—so far as oxygen content and air pressure are concerned.

All the standard physical reactions occur. There is no feeling of suffocation. Instead, as at high altitude, there is a slight feeling of stimulation. Then the room seems to darken. It's difficult to think clearly. You become tired. It's a great effort to move your hand.

About this time one of the company engineers, who has fitted a sort of nose guard apparatus over his face, hands you a duplicate and signals for you to put it on. The guard is attached to a rubber tube on an oxygen cylinder. You begin to breathe pure oxygen.

Immediately all the dizziness disappears. The inside of the cylinder brightens. Your lassitude departs and the day again seems cheerful and you can take an intelligent interest in the engineer's various explanations.

This altitude test chamber is made of half-inch steel plates that must bear a pressure on the outside of 75 tons when the atmospheric pressure equivalent to that at an altitude of 65,000 feet is reached inside. It has a diameter of four feet and is five feet long. The entrance is at one end, where the end plate is held by twelve clamps.

There is a row of five windows, each twelve inches in diameter, made of special tempered plate glass. The total weight of the chamber is 1⅓ tons. A phone system connects with the outside.

All this elaborate equipment was designed and constructed to make a number of experiments in oxygen masks, in discovering the effect of high altitudes upon company personnel, in experimenting with radio and with ignition at high altitudes.

Strange as it may seem, air pressure apparently has something to do with the flow of electricity. As this pressure is reduced with altitude, electrical wires tend to short out, because the charge jumps gaps that are too large for the same power at lower altitudes.

"It's of exceptional value in studying oxygen equipment," said J. A. Herlihy, company director of engineering. "Although we never anticipate flying unsupercharged passenger equipment above 20,000 feet, oxygen equipment has been studied up to heights of 30,000 feet.

"This has permitted us to improve on the present types of oxygen systems and allowed us additional research pertaining to general application of an oxygen system to an entire cabin. As a result of our studies the simple tube with a mouthpiece is being superseded by face masks and the nose cases that permit speech while oxygen is being inhaled."

All this has become necessary due to the trend toward higher flying in all passenger airplanes. Medical studies have proven that high flying, so long as oxygen is supplied in sufficient quantity, does no harm to any person who is capable of walking about his own home. Age, heart diseases, and other physical infirmities apparently will not disqualify passengers for high flying if oxygen is available.

She Stoops and Stretches to Conquer Style

By ELEANOR NANGLE

AROUNDED slenderness and a youthful carriage are the secrets of clothes success this year as never before. There is no place in the fashion picture for the too thin, the too fat, or the droopy. If you want to wear the fabulously lovely clothes offered for this winter you must cultivate the springy step and the svelte silhouette. And it's done, my dears, with the aid of exercise.

It's fashionable to be an exercise fan. Nearly every woman whom the columnists and the society scouts label as chic brags nowadays about being able to do cartwheels or to stand on her head ten times before breakfast. Here at last is a fashion out of which great good will come. Exercise pays dividends in health, beauty, and emotional stability.

If you want an improved figure and an improved supply of youthful vim and vigor, go into action. And we mean that literally. If you can afford it, go to a beauty salon or gymnasium where an instructor shows you what you should do and why you're doing it. Supervision is especially desirable in the case of corrective exercise. And, whatever you pay for it, it's money well spent. Then, too, if the will is a little weak, signing up for a course and shelling out good money for it often serves to keep women faithful to a routine they might otherwise be half-hearted about.

But every woman can exercise at home. Music helps, though all you really need is will power. Modern exercises are simple. And they are NOT strenuous, like the violent "physical jerks" of old.

When you think of exercises, and when you do your exercises, consider the cat. Stretch rhythmically and fairly slowly. First thing in the morning and last thing at night, stretch five or six times, with a strong rib lift and deep breaths. Stretch up and up and up until you feel the pull from your toes to your very finger tips, inhaling as you stretch, exhaling as you relax. It's the best limbering and relaxing exercise in the world.

On this page are five easy exercises that will help you keep fit and court the beautiful figure. Don't go at them too hard if it's been years since you did anything more strenuous than walk up or down stairs. Start by doing each no more than five times. As you stretch each morning and do these daily you'll grow more limber. Then you can increase these and even improvise. In a month you'll be a full-fledged member of the growing army of exercise fans. And you'll look and feel like a different woman.

It's fashionable to exercise. And only if you exercise can you have the rounded slenderness and beautiful carriage that fashion demands.

2 At left: Here's a good one for general limbering and for working off some of that midriff bulge. Notice that the knees and back are straight as from a standing position she alternates her arms in touching opposite toes.

3 Stand erect; then, without allowing the back to sway, stretch the arms out in back as far as you can.

4 At right: The lunge, for leg and waist muscles. Keep the shoulders level, with all the pull through legs and waist. Alternate right and left leg.

5 Below: The push-up. Lie flat on floor, head in line with the rest of the body; push up slowly with arms. No fair sagging in the middle!

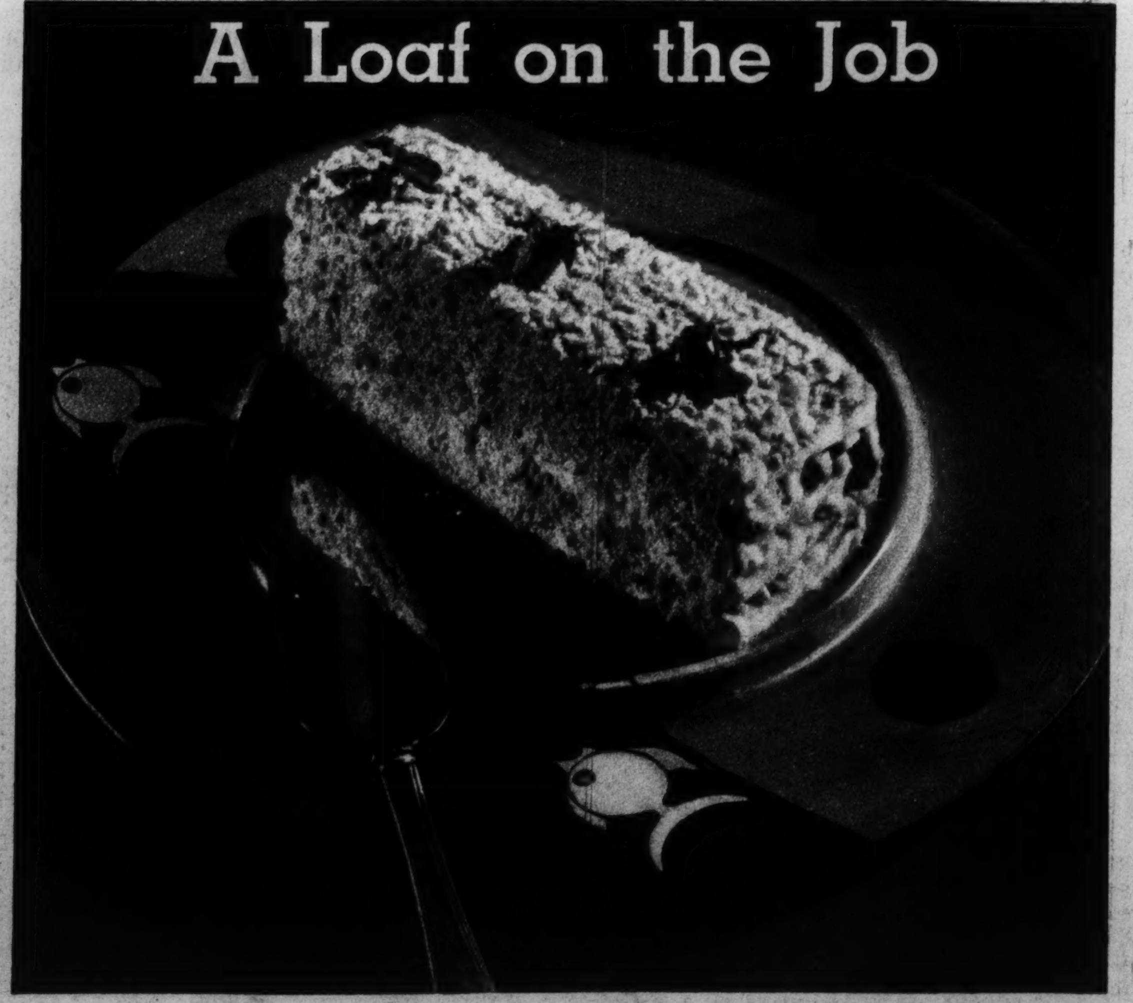
A Loaf on the Job



Sieved hard-cooked eggs give this salad sandwich loaf a crumbly coating. There are three layers to the loaf—first cottage cheese and chopped watercress, next grated carrot mixed with salad dressing, and, last, finely chopped cabbage, chopped white of egg, and salad dressing.

By MARY MEADE

COMES your turn to entertain the bridge club, you'll be looking for ideas. Well, how's this for a menu: Salad sandwich loaf garnished with radishes and olives, fruitade, lemon chiffon pie?

To make this sandwich loaf, remove crusts from a loaf of sandwich bread and cut the bread into four lengthwise slices. Spread the first slice with cottage cheese mixed with chopped watercress, spread the next with a mixture of grated raw carrots and cooked salad dressing, and top the third slice with minced cabbage mixed with chopped egg white and salad dressing. Put these slices together and cover with the fourth slice of bread. Spread the whole loaf with salad dressing and sprinkle top and sides with sieved yolks of hard-cooked eggs. Such a loaf will serve a dozen bridge players.

This is an excellent salad dressing to use in making it:

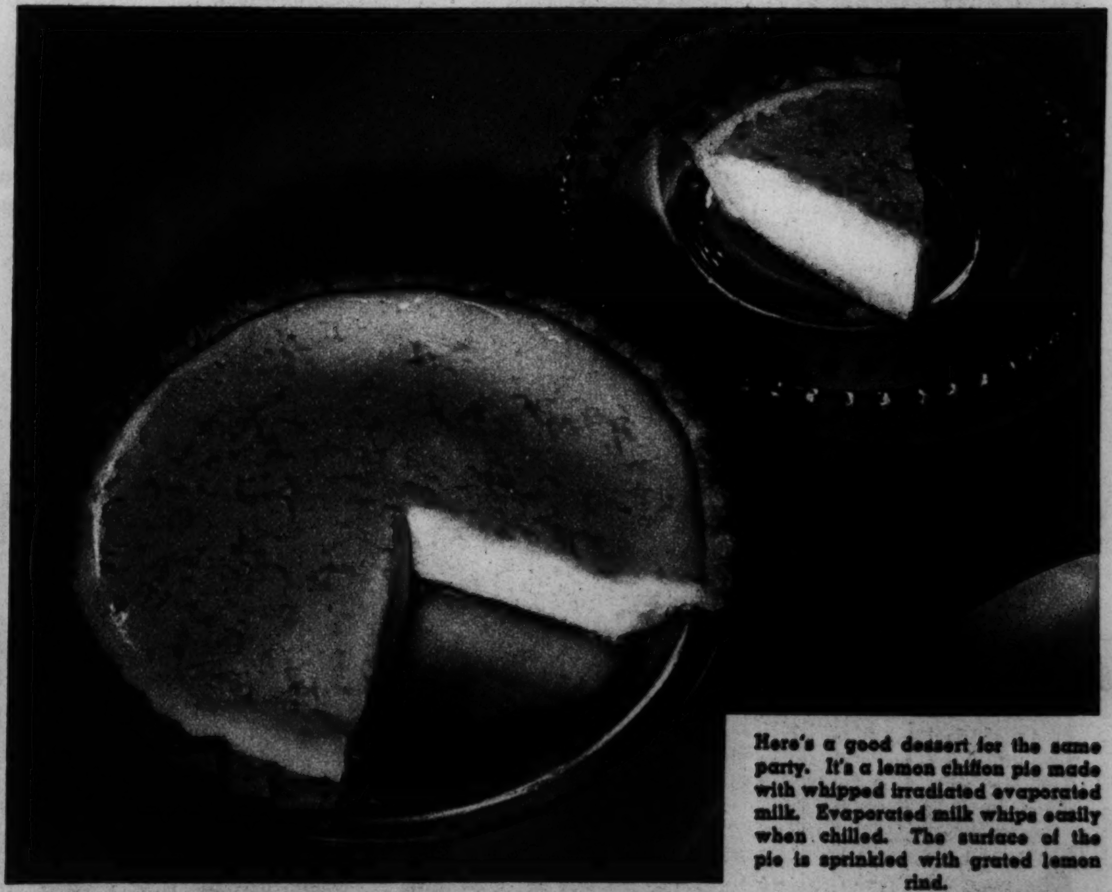
COOKED SALAD DRESSING

(1¼ cups)

1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon mustard
Dash of cayenne
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons sugar
2 egg yolks or 1 egg
1 cup irradiated evaporated milk
¼ cup vinegar

Blend salt, mustard, cayenne, flour, and sugar. Mix in egg yolks and add milk. Cook until thickened over hot water, stirring to keep smooth. Chill. Stir in vinegar slowly. Lemon juice may be substituted for vinegar. A few drops of onion juice may be added.

The lemon pie is made with irradiated evaporated milk, too, which gives it a smooth custard texture and makes it inexpensive. If you haven't a recipe for this kind of lemon pie we shall be glad to send you ours upon receipt of a self-addressed, stamped envelope. The pie is easy to make, and ever so good. Send requests for the recipe to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune—but don't forget the stamped envelope!



Here's a good dessert for the same party. It's a lemon chiffon pie made with whipped irradiated evaporated milk. Evaporated milk whips easily when chilled. The surface of the pie is sprinkled with grated lemon rind.

Steel—an Industry Built on Its Own By-Products

By JOSEPH ATOR

GO OUT to Chicago's stockyards district and you will find an industry which has built its prosperity on the by-products of the animals it slaughters—which, in the traditional phrase, uses every part of the pig except its squeal.

Continue your trip to the lower curve of Lake Michigan, where steel mill stacks darken the sky by day and the Bessemers' flares redden the clouds by night, and you find another great industry built on by-products. Its principal by-products, however, are invisible. They are energy in its various forms of heat, electricity, gas, steam. Some of them are sold, but the greater portion are plowed back into the manufacturing process to make steel a cheaper product.

The steel industry, in the words of one of its engineers, lives on heat. Its processes make use of all the principal forms of energy, chemical, electrical, and mechanical, as well as thermal, but in nearly all of these heat, or thermal energy, is either the ingredient or the product.

Iron ore is relatively one of the cheapest and most abundant of industrial raw materials. In various forms it makes up four parts in every hundred in the earth's crust. Even in the ores, various iron oxides from which it is extracted industrially, it is widely distributed, as Wisconsin farmers frequently discover to their amazement when they find that steel companies are not interested in purchasing the few tons of perfectly good ore which outcrops on their farms.

Delivered at the docks in Duluth after it has been mined and taxes have been paid on it, the iron in iron ore is worth only three-tenths of a cent a pound. Made into steel sheets for automobiles, the same iron is worth about twelve times that.

Drop forge fashioning a steel ingot.

While a steel company buys part of its operating energy in the form of electricity, natural gas, fuel oil, and boiler coal, the vast proportion of such expenditures is for coal which is converted into coke. Just how thoroughly the industry lives on heat is illustrated by the fact that last year in the Chicago district alone the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation—"Big Steel"—used 5,000,000 tons of coking coal. Used for electric power generation, that tonnage would run for a year generating plants with a capacity of about 1,118,000 kilowatts—three times the useful capacity of the hydro-electric plants on the American side of Niagara falls.

There is a common law of physics, that of conservation of energy, which states that the total energy in the universe remains constant. Thus man in his industrial operations cannot create or destroy energy. He can only change it from one form to another. No industrial plant offers a wider or more interesting demonstration of these changes than does a steel plant in its constant struggle to conserve, transform, use, and reuse the heat on which it lives.

The steel-making process starts at the blast furnace, but its energy processes go a step farther back to the coke ovens, which make one of the four prime ingredients in the iron-making process. The modern coke oven is a distilling plant. It heats coal to high temperatures in air-tight chambers and drives off its volatile contents, part of which are condensed as oil, ammonia, benzene, and the coal tar which is the base of so many thousands of chemical products, and the remainder the illuminating gas of commerce.

• • •

Much of the gas is sold commercially, but the remainder reenters the energy processes of the steel making at different stages. For the time, however, we can leave this gas in its towering holder and follow the coke to the blast furnace. This furnace is the principal source of by-product energy. Such energy in various forms may pass through as many as three more processes before it is finally captured and put to useful work.

In the blast furnace coke does both physical and chemical work. Part of it is burned to melt the iron ore and limestone which is used as a flux. The remainder acts as a chemical reducing agent. It robs the ore, which is iron oxide, of its oxygen, which combines with the carbon of the coke to form carbon monoxide gas and leaves the molten metallic iron as the other product of the reaction.

Three of the main ingredients in the iron-making process are iron ore, limestone, and coke. The fourth is frequently forgotten. It is air. Yet to make a ton of iron it is necessary to use about 3,700 pounds of ore, 700 pounds of stone, 1,600 pounds of coke, and 7,000 pounds of air. The products of the reaction are roughly 2,000 pounds of iron, 900 pounds of slag, 250 pounds of dust, and 9,850 pounds of blast furnace gas.

Only about half of the heat energy available in the coke is used within the blast furnace. The other half passes out the top in the blast furnace gas, made up principally of carbon monoxide and nitrogen. Since carbon monoxide will burn, the gas is a low-grade but extremely valuable fuel. It furnishes most of the by-product energy about a steel mill.

The gas, while it is produced in a molten reaction, is damp when it leaves the furnace. The materials fed in at the top have to be kept wet to prevent their melting before they reach the lower portion of the furnace. The gas is first dried by water sprays, in which its moisture content condenses, and then cleaned of the dust which it contains, either in an electrical precipitator or a disintegrator, which operates on the same centrifugal principle which is applied in the cream separator.

About half the gas is used in running the furnace itself. The blast furnace gets its name from the fact that the molten mass within it rests on a cushion of air blown in at high pressures to supply oxygen necessary for its chemical reactions. This air has to be very hot, and it is heated in the stoves, the great dome-top towers which stand alongside the furnace.

These stoves are filled with checkers, piles of refractory brick with spaces between them for the passage of the gases. The blast furnace gas, mixed with air, is blown into these stoves and burned until the checkers are red-hot. Then the gas blast is stopped and air blown through the checkers to heat it before it enters the blast furnace.

The blowers which build up these high pressures are sometimes operated by gas engines, using the blast furnace gas as fuel. In other mills the blast furnace gas is burned under boilers, generating steam to operate turbines or engines which drive both blowers and generators.

Many steel mills, however, generate their own electricity by means of gas engines connected to generators. Modern rolling mills, requiring tremendous power, are electrified, and blast furnace gas gives the steel mill a very cheap and efficient source of such power.

Another manner in which the steel mill fights its battle against wasted energy is to keep its metal hot through as many processes as possible. For this reason straight-line production is as important in the steel business as it is in the automobile assembly line. Molten iron, drawn off from the blast furnace, is carried in that state to the Bessemer converter or open harth furnace, which burns out its impurities and makes it into steel, and there poured into ingots, which do not lose their heat until they have been rolled down to blooms, slabs, or billets.

• • •

The open-harth furnace, one of the most spectacular of steel-making processes, is a great tub lined with refractory materials which is filled with a hundred tons or more of molten iron, scrap steel, or both. They bubble and seethe at white heat until impurities have been burned out. Then carbon and other alloying or purifying elements are added to make it steel.

Blast furnace gas, which has about 92 heat units to the cubic foot, is not a sufficiently rich fuel to furnish the tremendous charge of heat demanded by the open harth, but if the steel plant has a by-product coke plant the coke oven gas, five to six times richer, is mixed with blast furnace gas to heat the open harth. Plants without coke ovens have to use oil or other fuels.

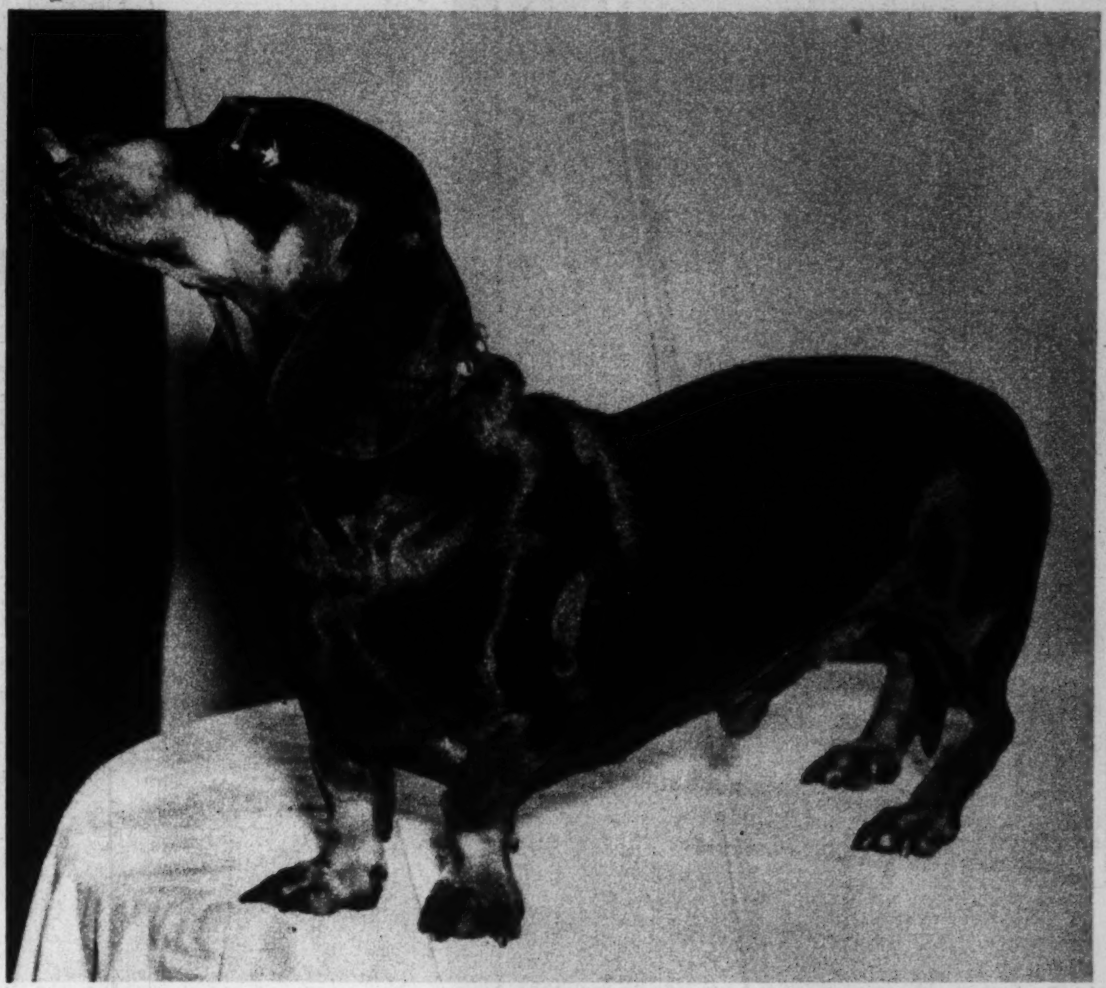
The burned gases leave the open harth at temperatures as high as 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit. The heat units which they carry are customarily trapped in a waste heat boiler, in which they generate steam to operate machinery about the open-harth plant, or to generate electricity.

Frequently the opportunity for commercial sale of some of its energy by-products modifies the procedure of a steel plant. At the Chicago plant of the Interlake Iron company, for instance, blast furnace gas is used, among other purposes, to heat the retort ovens in a by-product coke plant. The richer coke oven gas is sold for domestic use in Chicago, while the company, instead of generating its electric energy, buys power from the Commonwealth Edison company. The South Chicago works of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel company have no by-product coke plant, and buy large quantities of natural gas from the southwest.

In Boston pig iron is one of the by-products of a utility company. Eastern Gas and Fuel Associates, a highly integrated corporation with its own mines in West Virginia and its own line of ships carrying coal to New England, makes coke, sells the gas for domestic use in Boston, and uses part of the coke to operate blast furnaces at the plant of the Mystic Iron Works, which it owns, to reduce iron ore brought from Cuba.

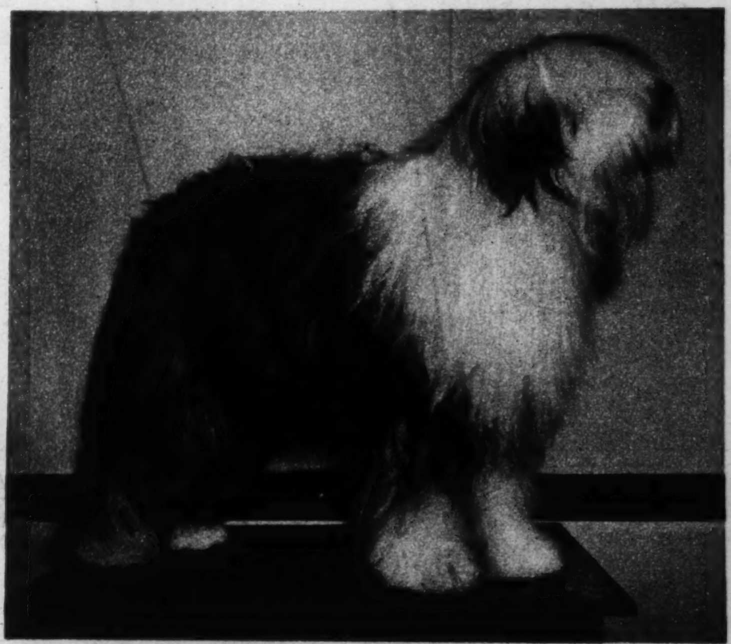
Mostly About Dogs

By BOB BECKER



A champion dachshund, Blacky Walck. There has been a noticeable increase in dachshund popularity in recent years. Fanciers of the breed have a choice of three varieties of dachshunde, based on differences in coats.

Dachshund's Past as a Hunter



Puzzle: Find the eyes of this big sheep dog. The long and abundant coat of the sheep dog is well known to many dog fanciers. This dog is Champion Shepton Attraction.

IN LOOKING at books on hunting published several hundred years ago you see pictures of dogs that are called badger dogs or dachs-hunde. These illustrations, dating from the fifteenth, sixteenth, and seventeenth centuries, show that badgers frequently were hunted by dogs with long bodies, short legs, and hound type ears. But some of these hunters had bent front legs similar to those of the basset hound. Some had smooth coats. Among these early badger dogs we also find some that seemed to have terrier rather than hound heads. All were rugged, hardy hunting animals capable of standing up to a badger, which is no mean antagonist.

This Boston terrier was appropriately named The Tops when it competed in a big midwestern dog show, because it was judged best of breed at the age of only nine months.

There are, however, many gaps in the history of the dogs from which our modern dachshund has come. Just how the smooth, wire, and long-haired dachshunde were evolved, the stock used to produce these varieties, and many other facts about the early history of this popular breed are obscure. This is true of other breeds, too. It is not possible to trace with absolute accuracy the complete stories of many of our common breeds of dogs.

Just as the Pomeranian of years ago weighed much more than the Poms of today, so the dachshunde which were taken afield to hunt in the early days were pretty husky individuals. Weights of 30 and 35 pounds were not uncommon. Dachshunde were even used for hunting wild boars. Then dogs of this breed were bred for fox hunting. Later small specimens were developed weighing around four and five pounds.

Considering this interesting history of the breed, it's no wonder that the dachshund of today is a lively, courageous little dog. He had to be clever in the work he was asked to do. Indifference or dullness hardly go hand in hand with hunting wild animals.

The breed has many specialized characteristics, such as the long head and goose nose, a good sized chest for lung and heart room, a long, strong neck, powerful feet and legs which are used in digging, and, above all, plenty of courage.

• • •

The person who likes dachshunde has a wide selection in coats, since the breed has three coat varieties. The most common, of course, is the smooth, with a coat that is short, thick, and shining. The wire-haired dachshund has a short, harsh coat which resembles that of the German spiky-haired pointer. The long-haired dachshund is distinctive with its soft, sleek, slightly wavy coat. Both the long-haired and the short-haired are old, well fixed varieties. In the wire-haired variety there probably has been introduced some terrier blood to get the coat desired.

In this country the dachshund has almost entirely lost its standing as a hunting dog and is owned mainly for its qualities as a pet. However, the ability of the dachshund as a good hunting dog is being demonstrated in field trials. Most dachshund owners like the breed as pet dogs because they are quiet, are not hard to keep in apartments, have coats which are easy to care for, and are intelligent enough to be easily trained.

The dachshund has had its ups and downs in dog popularity. It was first fostered in America about 1895. By 1914 it was one of the ten most popular dogs in the country. During and after the World war it rapidly lost ground, and in one of the war years only about a dozen dachshunde were exhibited in the largest dog show in the country. Since then the breed has gained in popularity and now it is up with the leading breeds in dog registrations.

DOG NOTES

The rather rare English terrier breed known as the Norwich terrier was recognized in 1936. Now fanciers have a club to promate the interests of the breed.

A judicial decision of interest to many dog owners was that made recently in a middle western city when the judge decided that the cash value of a dog was only $100 unless the owner could produce pedigree papers. In other words, a pedigree for your dog increases its cash value. In the case tried a dog owner sued a railroad for $250, saying that her dog had jumped from a baggage car and then had wandered to a highway, where it was killed by an automobile. The judge recognized the dog's value as a companion and protector of its mistress, but ruled that unless a pedigree was available the dog's value was limited to $100

IT'S THEIR INFERIORITY

Sidney is one of those inferior feeling men, humble and harmless, at most times. But with too many drinks inside, he is a changed person, insults people, tells them where to get off. And if they don't like it, well, they know what they can do about it.

Arthur insists on paying for the lunch. It bucks him up and makes him feel equal even a bit superior—to the boys in the office.

These little girls have terrible inferiorities, although they are not aware of the fact. The one on the left is the chronic apologizer. Asks people to pardon the way she looks this morning because she knows she looks just awful, etc. The one in the center is given to heavy flattery, hoping thereby to get some in return. The one on the right forestalls criticism by making fun of herself. Usually ends up a long account of how stupid she was with the words, "Wouldn't I be just dumb enough to do that?"

Harold's inferiority (which is just a teeny one) makes him rely on big names to gain standing. Always manages to discover a celebrity in a public place so that later on he can say, "I and Noel Coward had dinner only seven tables apart at a restaurant the other night!"

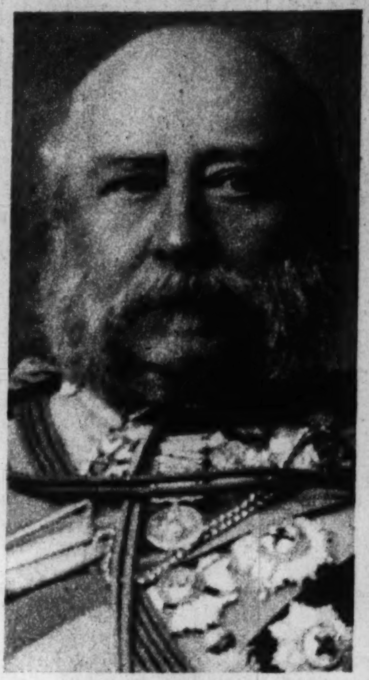
A boy with an inferiority and a leaning to loud clothes lives a drab life in the daytime. Hates to look conspicuous and wears mouse gray as a rule. But in the silent watches of the night he goes on the loose sartorially. His pajamas shriek aloud.

Julia has an inferiority complex and a caustic tongue. This is a terrible combination. It leads her into criticism of her friends, which gives her, for the moment, a glow of superiority.

Two factors that lead to inferiority feelings in women: (1) The slip that shows and which some dear, kind person tells her is showing, and (2) the uneven tempered bridge partner who asks witheringly if she never played bridge before.

Victoria's Lost Love

Hidden Story of an Actress Who Got Her Man



H. R. H. PRINCE GEORGE

By JAMES CLIFF

London.

THE ALLIANCE of Mrs. Wallis Simpson with ex-King Edward was heralded with world-wide publicity. Yet it is not the only sensational morganatic marriage that has been made by a member of the royal house of England in the last century. There was "the great unmentioned case."

One of the most amazing conspiracies of silence ever devised, instituted 100 years ago and still effective today, hangs over the marriage of his royal highness Prince George, duke of Cambridge, to Louisa Fairbrother, an actress from the Lyceum theater, London.

The great sin was not that a prince so near the throne of England wished to marry a commoner. It lay in the fact that that prince was the man whom Queen Victoria had chosen for herself and who jilted her in favor of a common actress—in a day when actresses were not even recognized by polite society.

In 1817 Princess Charlotte, daughter to the prince regent (George IV.), died, and England was left without an heir to the throne in the second generation. The position was critical. The old king, George III., had not long to live. The regent was ailing and it was unlikely that his brothers would achieve longevity.

• • •

So in 1818 there was a riot of royal weddings, the king's sons changing mistresses for legal wives. The results were seen in 1819.

Prince George, son of Adolphus, duke of Cambridge, won the race. He was born in March, and was for a short time heir to the throne. Then in May, 1819, Victoria was born, and she took precedence. From that moment the lives of the two were linked, bound together until the twentieth century cut them apart—by death.

From infancy Prince George was trained, groomed with one object--that he should share the English throne. He and Princess Victoria were constantly together. When George IV. died it became certain that Victoria would become queen.

But the George-Victoria alliance went on. At Eton, at Ascot, at Windsor the names of George and Victoria were coupled together. They danced, went on picnics, visited each other. They exchanged personal birthday presents, and in Victoria's diary these were mentioned with special tenderness.

The affair came to a head with the death of William IV. and the accession of Queen Victoria. Prince George was with his parents in Hanover at the time, but immediately the news arrived his mother sent him to England.

In London the ministers were worried by the idea of so young a girl sitting on the throne alone. All were agreed that she should marry as soon as possible.

Prince George was the obvious consort. He was a grandson of George III.; he had been brought up in England; he was good looking, regal. There was no other choice for the young queen—and she liked him.

England wanted an English consort for Victoria. The people clamored for Prince George. They had had enough of unknown and poverty-stricken royalty from Germany—unknowns who could not speak English and could not even understand England's customs.

As soon as George arrived in England the queen sent for him.

The stage was set for the epoch-making interview. The prince seemed a trifle nervous, as well he might!

The interview was stiff, formidable, uncomfortable. If the queen had declared her love it is hardly likely that that sensitive and chivalrous prince could have refused to marry her—and so the whole history of her reign and her country's future would have been altered.

But for some reason she did not mention the subject which was in the forefront of both their minds. The words that might have altered the whole destiny of a great empire were never uttered.

They talked of the death of the late king, the health of the queen dowager, and a little of Prince George's own future career. And that was all.

In November of that year the prince was made a colonel in the British army. He thanked Victoria very charmingly for this.

He attended the coronation in all its pomp and ceremony. Outwardly his relationship with the queen had not altered.

• • •

And then, like a bolt from the blue came the news that Prince George was about to leave the country! He had been posted to the Mediterranean garrison of Gibraltar. The prince had been less than two years in the army, and obviously the usual procedure would have been for him to see some service at home before proceeding abroad. Why, then, should he leave so hurriedly?

There can only be one answer. George had made up his mind not to marry the queen, and so he did the only thing possible—he removed himself from the danger zone.

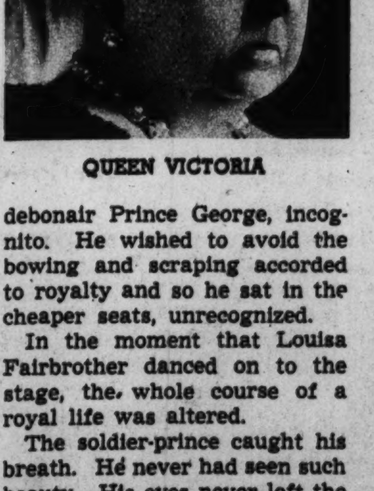
Queen Victoria, left alone, allowed her thoughts of marriage to wane. It was not until it was forced upon her as a duty and national necessity that she consented to receiving the Saxe-Coburg brothers, Albert and Ernest, with a view to making one or the other of them her consort.

It was not until he heard the definite news of the marriage that Prince George returned to England.

So Victoria was married to Albert and Prince George expressed his entire approval.

The light of the London stage at that time was a beautiful young actress called Louisa Fairbrother, starring at the Lyceum theater.

To the Lyceum one night went debonair Prince George, incognito. He wished to avoid the bowing and scraping accorded to royalty and so he sat in the cheaper seats, unrecognized.



QUEEN VICTORIA

In the moment that Louisa Fairbrother danced on to the stage, the whole course of a royal life was altered.

The soldier-prince caught his breath. He never had seen such beauty. His eyes never left the sparkling actress.

Night after night he visited the Lyceum, Louisa the magnet that drew him.

One evening, plucking up his courage, he made his way to the stage door—with a bouquet of flowers. These he requested the doorkeeper to present to Miss Fairbrother with "Mr. Cambridge's compliments." He added that he would like to see her personally so that he might congratulate her on the perfection of her dancing.

In this he was rebuffed. The doorkeeper came back with the message that "Miss Fairbrother thanked Mr. Cambridge for the lovely flowers, and was very glad that he enjoyed her dancing, but regretted she could not receive any gentleman to whom she had not been properly introduced."

"Mr. Cambridge" received this cool message with equanimity. He was, if anything pleased, for Louisa had shown that she was not prepared to be bought with flowers or be the plaything of any rake who came along. And as for an introduction—that was easy. A word to the manager, a knock at her dressing room door; "Miss Fairbrother, I would like you to meet Mr. Camridge."

It was a genuine case of love at first sight between H. R. H. and actress. The courtship was short. The prince proposed, and was accepted. But it was not until she accepted him that he revealed that he was H. R. H. Prince George of Cambridge.

Louisa, instead of being excited by her alliance with a member of the royal family, was worried. Would the queen sanction such a marriage, she asked. The prince pooh-poohed her fears. He was confident that Victoria, now so happily married to Albert, would not put any obstacles in the way of his happiness. Blinded by his own good fortune, he had reckoned without the fury of a woman scorned.

THE DUCHESS OF WINDSOR

He asked for an interview with the queen. It was granted and gaily he went to the palace.

The prince broached the subject tactfully, merely stating that he had a bride in view. Victoria was delighted; she had always been fond of her "dear cousin" (how true) and had his interests at heart. Who could it be? A German princess, perhaps, or some society beauty?

George then admitted that he wished her official sanction to his marriage with an actress.

The storm broke! Her majesty stamped and screamed as she used to when a child. A trifle nonplused, but unafraid, the prince waited until she regained some control of herself, and then said, quietly:

"I am very sorry you do not approve, ma'am! But my mind is made up, and I must still ask for your official sanction!"

The queen, however, refused point blank.

"Then the matter is at an end!" said the prince. "Except, of course that I shall marry the lady! I will crave your majesty's leave to retire!"

He did so, and, soon afterwards, he married his Louisa, very quietly, in defiance of the queen's wishes. Probably he still hoped and believed that, the marriage once accomplished, Victoria would recognize it, as she had done that of the duke of Sussex and Lady Cecilia Buggin.

But here again he was optimistic. She never did so—at any rate publicly.

Louisa Fairbrother became known as Mrs. FitzGeorge, and prince and actress set up a house in Queen street, Mayfair, London. Although they were sublimely happy, Mrs. FitzGeorge's position was very invidious. The scandal was hushed up as much as possible, but she was at first shunned by society. She was looked upon as a designing girl who had ensnared a prince.

MRS. FITZGEORGE

But Louisa soon altered all that! Her charms and flair for entertaining became renowned and in a short time she had established her own "court" at Queen street. She had a wide circle of friends, leaders in the realms of art, literature, and politics, who braved the queen's displeasure to bask in Mrs. FitzGeorge's glory. Mr. Gladstone, great prime minister, was one of these friends.

From Buckingham palace Victoria jealously watched her "rival's" success. What was so galling was the fact that George was ideally happy.

The years rolled by and Mrs. FitzGeorge's Queen street "court" became increasingly popular. In regard to this a wit of the time remarked: "Queen street has the cream of court and society—Queen Victoria has to put up with the skimmed milk as well!

• • •

At last Victoria could stand it no longer. Out of sheer curiosity she determined to see her rival, the woman whom ostracism had failed to crush.

And so a meeting was arranged between the queen and actress. Quite and unostentatious—almost, indeed, secret—as that meeting was, it constitutes one of the most dramatic incidents of its kind in the whole history of British royalty.

The two women met as ordinary women do. They were both mothers—and were both devoted to their children. They had just that much in common!

But it was enough! It had been intended that the meeting should last a quarter of an hour, but it was over two hours before a lady in waiting was summoned and the meeting was at an end.

It was noticed that both her majesty and Mrs. FitzGeorge had been crying. What passed between them in that momentous interview will never be known. Yet one thing is certain. The duke had said that if the queen were to meet Louisa she could not fail to be favorably impressed. It was so, and the queen had the grace to admit it. She announced privately that Mrs. FitzGeorge was "a very sweet, good lady," and that she had been too severe in the past.

The years passed. For Victoria the sun set with the passing of Albert in 1861. For George, duke of Cambridge, the light stayed longer, Louisa living until 1890. For nearly fifty years he had been blissfully happy with his "Lyceum star" and he felt her passing very deeply.

Yet in his sadness he received one message that brought him happiness. It was from Queen Victoria. The duke described it as "a most affectionate message . . . which would have been such a joy to my beloved one had she known the fact."

Yet the conspiracy of silence lives on today. Biographers of the Victorian period hardly mention the man who was destined to be king—his marriage is taboo—genealogical tables show him as a bachelor—details of his private life have been "tactfully" forgotten.

Worsted-tex Suits $40

(Lined with Super-Celanese)

in The British Lounge* Model

In this business man's photograph above please notice his appearance of comfort. That is the new trend of fashion in men's clothes. Not only the personal feeling of comfort but the actual appearance of casual ease.

This clothes freedom of the British Lounge* Model also carries with it other flattering features. The longer coat, the lower placement of buttons, the lower collar, the lower waist, the sweeping lapels and the tapered sleeves make you look taller.

The broader shoulders, the extra folds of fabric at the chest and the breadth of the lapels give you a fuller chest appearance.

The contrast between shoulder width and narrower hipline create the impression of slenderness.

Worsted-tex is the kind of cloth you see at a fine custom tailor. You have a wide variety of patterns, colors and models from which to choose, from the fashionable British Lounge* to the restrained models for men of the most conservative tastes.

Editorial POWER MEANS Advertising POWER!

Pictured here is the Tribune's Chicago staf of reporters, feature writers, artists, photographers and editors who, every day of the year, bring to the people of Chicago the finest service delivered by any newspaper. Wars and sports, business and politics, society and social issues, fashions and cookery—every important development about which readers want to know is expertly reported and presented by these and other Tribune men and women throughout the world.

That the Chicago Tribune staf knows what people want and provides it with unequaled brilliance is proved by the fact that from 242,000 to 477,000 more families in Chicago and suburbs read the Tribune than read other Chicago newspapers. That the greater appeal of Tribune news, comics and features builds greater response for advertisers is proved by the fact that the Tribune prints 66% more advertising than is printed by any other Chicago newspaper.

Advertisers get maximum results from their expenditures for Tribune space because the Tribune has built—and holds—unparalleled reader interest

TO PRODUCE for its advertisers, a newspaper must first produce for its readers. Its success as a selling medium follows the success with which it sells itself.

In Chicago, the Tribune plays a vital and intimate part in the lives and thinking of Chicagoans because it prints the news—completely and without compromise. Readers like the vivid way news is written and illustrated in the Tribune. And they know that no other newspaper can match the Tribune's ninety-one year record of aggressive action in advancing their interests.

More than 690,000 families in Chicago and suburbs—from 242,000 to 477,000 more than read other Chicago newspapers—turn to the Tribune every day of the week for accurate reports of events. They welcome it into their homes as a familiar friend. They rely on its service departments for guidance in choosing clothes, preparing meals—for help in practically every problem.

Reader interest starts on page one and carries right through. News, cartoons, comic strips, photographs, features—the finest that money can buy—are distributed throughout the Tribune so as to get high trafic for every page. Makeup invites and steps up attention.

As a result, the Tribune is Chicago's first newspaper—and, measured by volume of circulation and intensity of reader interest, it is the dominant selling force in this market.

It is the only newspaper with majority coverage of the families in metropolitan Chicago. It reaches practically as many city and suburban families as any two other Chicago newspapers combined.

Retail merchants in Chicago recognize the power of the Tribune by placing in it 63.5% more linage than in the second Chicago newspaper. General advertisers place in it 49.9% more linage than in the second paper.

Regardless of the product you sell—to whom it sells—for what it sells—the Tribune is the logical medium around which to build your advertising program for Chicago. Advertising rates per 100,000 circulation are among the lowest in America.

For a Slim, Trim Waistline

Give the dresses you make yourself that smart, professional look! Have a fine, slim, wrinkle-free waistline by using the modern, easy-to-put-in dress placket Talon Slide Fastener. It has a metal bridge across the top, which protects the fabric from strain, and actually reinforces the garment at what is usually its weakest point—the top of the placket.

There is a specific Talon Slide Fastener for every closing—for neck and sleeves, down the front, pockets, dress and skirt plackets, coat-type closings.

Made in America by American workmen, Talon Slide Fasteners always work perfectly, will wash and wear and outlast the garment. They are easy to sew in when you follow the simplified picture directions packed with every Talon Slide Fastener you buy at:

In the mellow flavor belt an entire tree yields only a pound or two of coffee a year!

UP here in a region of rich, sun-drenched soil extending along the tropical mountains, men toil to develop a superb coffee flavor that few other regions supply.

Yet they deliberately keep down the yield of their trees! They prune them to half size—satisfied with fewer pounds per tree to get more of the rich mellow flavor per pound.

. . . carefully raised from birth by hand

They tend each tiny shrub from birth—by hand. Then for three or four years, they patiently cultivate each growing tree—by hand. At last they pick the ripe, mellow berries carefully one by one—each one by hand.

. . . on low trees, high quality . . .

You who truly love the fine flavor of a full-bodied but smooth coffee can enjoy the benefit of this triumph of coffee growing. Try Beech-Nut Coffee. Its fine flavor comes from those superb, mellow flavor belt coffees!
